HOUSE BARS OUT JAPANESE

GERMANS BOW TO DAWES PLAN; O. K. IT MONDAY

Better than Hoped For, Bankers Say.

BERLIN, April 12.—The Dawes "business plan" for the payment of German reparations is assured of acceptance by Germany. While the cabinet has not yet taken an official decision regarding the German reply to the reparations commission, acceptance of the experts' report is now mere formality, and is expected Monday after a meeting of the presidents of the German states.

The German representatives will go to Paris with orders to secure favorable modifications if possible, but they will be empowered to accept the experts' plan in full if changes are not admitted.

A closer perusal of the Dawes report by government officials and industrialists has brought the leaders face to face with the fact that Gen. Dawes and his colleagues in their reports have offered Germany better terms than it had ever hoped to be accorded. The protective measures for German industry, which were glossed lightly in the excerpts printed here the first few days, have met with almost unanimous approval.

Industrialists Swing to Plan.

From open hostility, as expressed in both the Deutsche Allgemeine and Der Tag in the early comments, the industrialists have swung about entirely in their attitude as the full text of the report is placed in their hands.

One of the most pleasing features of the report from their point of view is the organization of an operating company for the railways. While the experts provide that the shares shall be turned over to the German government, they envisage the sale of these shares by the German state. Through means of this company German industrialists hope to accomplish what they have been seeking since the end of the war—the purchase of the state owned railways at a figure which will make them highly profitable enterprises.

The operating company, which will be capitalized at 26,000,000,000 gold marks ($6,500,000,000) will fall chiefly into the hands of the big industrialist groups at a figure considerably below the estimated value of the German state lines based on their operative earnings in pre-war days.

Like Protection of Currency.

The protection of German currency by provisions for the withdrawal of reparations credits only in sums calculated not to disturb the exchange markets has also pleased industrialist and financial circles.

The provisions which please Germany most, however, are those wiping out French railway management in the occupied territories and the reuniting of the Rhineland and Ruhr to the rest of Germany. While the German government has been fighting for these provisions, declaring them absolute prerequisites of settlement, it had hardly hoped for proposals of this nature to come from the allied side.

After a private conference lasting two days in which the approval of the important elements of the business, industrial and financial life of the nation was accorded, the cabinet is now ready to lay the experts' report before the presidents of the German states for their formal ratification. As soon as this is obtained the German delegation will receive its powers and instructions and proceed to Paris for Tuesday's meeting of the reparations commission. The German leaders now hope that the reparations question will be definitely and finally settled, and this great stumbling block to Europe's reconstruction will be removed.

LONDON, April 12.—British diplomats are much pleased at the reports from Paris that Premier Poincare has refused to interfere with the reparations commission's action on the experts' committee reports. He is reported to have told Louis Barthou, president of the commission, that that body is an independent authority and is competent to go ahead and impose the terms of the reports on Germany without further reference to the governments involved.

This is regarded as a change in the French attitude. In London, the reparations commission has long been regarded as a mere annex to the French foreign office. It is also taken as an indication that M. Poincare is satisfied with the experts' plan

REV. WILLIAMS NABS WILMETTE SCOFFLAW PAIR

The Rev. Elmer Williams pointed out a couple of homes in Wilmette yesterday where the village police could find some scofflaws. He accompanied the raiding party which broke into the residence of W. L. Coruscavish at 1315 Wilmette avenue and carried away five kegs of mash and a busy still. The owner sought to repel him with a club, but he couldn't get away with it.

Then the raiders stepped next door to 1317, where they arrested Frank May and seized a quantity of homemade wine and beer. The two prisoners, one of whom proclaimed that he would "call up Sheriff Hoffman and get out of this in a hurry," were taken to the federal building for arraignment tomorrow.

Earlier in the day prohibition agents under the direction of Maj. Hamlet C. Ridgeway raided thirteen saloons in Harvey and Phoenix and arrested twenty-seven men.

Young Man Made Profits in Stock Market.

Washington, D. C., April 12.—[Special.]—Announcement was made at the war department today through a routine order President Coolidge had accepted the resignation from the army of Second Lieut. Osborne Cutler Wood, son of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, governor-general of the Philippine Islands. The resignation takes place immediately.

OSBORNE CUTLER WOOD.
[(C.) By Walinger.]

Leave of absence for two months was granted Lieut. Wood early this year when he was in the Philippines serving as aide de camp to the governor general. He is supposed to be in this country now.

Admitted Making Money.

According to his own statement, Lieut. Wood made profits of between $700,000 and $800,000 while he was in the Philippines, through speculative investments in American securities. He said that he had not engaged in any Philippine business enterprises.

Last autumn the secretary of war advised Gen. Wood to induce his son to cease his speculative activities, which had become the subject of considerable gossip in banking and army circles.

Plan for Inquiry Slumbers.

Resolutions for an investigation of Gov. Gen. Wood's administration, offered by Senator Ladd [Rep., N. D.] and Representative Frear [Rep., Wis.], contain provision for inquiry as to whether any officers associated with the governor general have been engaged in buying and selling stocks and bonds. These resolutions have not been acted on by either house.

Last December Lieut. Wood made known that he would return to the United States to resign his commission in order to take a course in international law and diplomacy at a school in Washington with a view to entering the American diplomatic service.

13 ANTI-KLUXERS PUT IN SAME JAIL WITH 27 K. K. K.'S

Ebensburg, Pa., April 12.—Total arrests on charges of murder and riot growing out of the fatal disorders last Saturday at Lilly between townspeople and visiting Ku Klux Klansmen were increased to forty tonight when thirteen residents of Lilly were committed to the Cambria county jail. Twenty-seven men, said to be klansmen, had previously been committed to jail.

Each of the thirteen waived a preliminary hearing before a justice of the peace at Cresson and was held without bail. A hearing will be held Monday upon an application for a writ of habeas corpus. Ten of the men were at liberty on bail on charges of inciting to riot when rearrested.

NEGRO, TAKEN AS AX SLAYER, SAYS HE KILLED EIGHT

New York, April 12.—[Special.]—A Negro who, police say, admitted slaying eight persons in five states, two of them with axes, is under arrest in Newark, and the authorities there have written to Augusta, Ga.; Richmond, Va.; Cleveland, O., and Chicago to verify his story.

On the chance he may be wanted in Birmingham, Ala., his photograph and fingerprints have been sent to that city, where an "ax murderer" has killed more than twenty persons and injured eighteen in the last two and a half years.

The Negro gave his name as John Clark. He told police he had used several other names.

He was arrested by Detectives McConnell, Harris and Moffett in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Ella Nicholson, a Negro boarding house keeper, killed with an ax in her home, 22 West street, Newark, Friday night.

DECREE DEATH FOR DOGS THAT ATTACKED GIRL

Two dogs, an airedale and a mongrel, which attacked and severely injured Miss Marian Goodman, a physical instructor at New Trier High school, three weeks ago, will be put to death tomorrow by an order issued yesterday by Justice of the Peace John F. Boyer of Evanston. No action was taken against John C. Miller, caretaker of the Evanston community golf grounds, owner of the dogs, but it is understood that Miss Goodman, now recuperating from her injuries, will file a civil suit upon her recovery.

'SINS OF G. O. P.' LAID BARE BY SEN. WHEELER

Solemnly Predicts Party's Doom.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

Piece by piece, Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana put together his interpretation of the evidence of alleged conspiracy against Harry M. Daugherty last night. Joint by joint, the prosecutor of the senatorial investigating committee ripped it apart again to show what he called the "rottenness and corruption" of the Republican party, "higher up," in Washington.

This Democratic inquisitor tore into shreds the Republican convention in 1920, the oil leases, the aircraft graft scandals, before the eyes of the Iroquois club members—under the painted gaze of Thomas Jefferson, whose birthday they celebrated—even as with nervous fingers he stripped the stem of a fern that lay on the table before him.

And he predicted, a Democratic President once elected next fall, that the Republican party could put itself together again no more easily than the bits of green lying scattered on the white cloth.

Sees Democratic Victory.

"If we put before this country a man whom the people can trust," the senator from the northwest, who has reached a certain fame as champion muckraker of the upper house, told his fellow Democrats, "the Republican party never can come into power again during yours or my life."

It was in Europe that Senator Wheeler, who has set himself the task of scourging the administration, learned his text. It was in Austria, Germany, and Russia, tired of war, hunger and Bolshevism, that he saw his vision of "what might happen to our United States," he told his listeners.

His face is thin with a high forehead from which thinned dark brown hair is sweeping back. His nose is thin and sharp. His chin is narrow and curves out to a jutting point. He "talks well on his feet," slowly, and moves about in short impatient paces. As he spoke his way into his theme last night, his face—white above the white dress tie—grew paler.

Speaks of Nazarene.

He spoke often of Christ and wondered what "that gang of grafters" would do to the Savior were He to return to earth. He might have been seeing, as he talked, a temple in Jerusalem.

"Unless this country wipes out the corruption in Washington it isn't going to be long before we will have to go through the same miserable experiences that countries in Europe have gone through." He rapped out the words with the knuckles of the back of his hand on the table.

"It was in Washington, not long after the Republican convention in Chicago, that I learned the inside story of the nomination. It was from a woman and her husband. That woman told me she knew weeks ahead that Harding was going to be nominated. It was settled in the Blackstone hotel, and her husband was on the inside."

"Super Man" Cabinet.

And then, said the senator, came the forming of the cabinet. He called them super men, as he said the newspapers had headlined them, but there was no praise in the thrust forward of his head on its slightly stooped shoulders. And with the cabinet there descended on Washington the men who—scornfully he said it—"would put business into the government, and take the government out of business."

It was the beginning of the machine which, he declared, had forced the former attorney general of the United States out of the cabinet. "Mannington, Jesse Smith, Urion, Orr, Forbes, Trainer," he called the roll of names which have been blackened, through his accusations, with the print of every paper in the country. His charges, finding their inception in the story of "the woman who knew," grew into the "scandal" which even school children chatter about.

"These men sold patronage in the little green house on K street"—the house that is now as familiar as the house next door.

"These men sold permits to bootleggers."

"These men failed to prosecute those who stabbed the soldiers in the back by robbing the government while our boys were in the trenches."

Why He Called Means.

"I am criticised for calling some one like Gaston B. Means to the witness stand." He ground out the words against his detractors. "For calling

Find Body of Woman Slain in Mystery

Two boys, seeking boards with which to build a raft, uncovered a murder mystery in the forest preserve at Riverside yesterday. In lifting some rotting planks, torn from an abandoned farmhouse, they discovered the body of a young woman with the head almost entirely severed.

The revolting character of the crime leads the police to believe it was committed by a moron who succeeded in luring his victim, a comely, light haired woman apparently about 25 years of age, to the lonely spot where materials were at hand to hide his crime. Brush, dried weeds, boards and a copy of THE TRIBUNE, dated Feb. 26, had been used to cover the body. Judging by condition of the body, it was judged that the date on the paper approximates the date of the murder.

Evidences of Struggle.

It was evident the woman had waged a desperate struggle against her slayer. Her clothes had been partly torn from her. Her right eye had been gouged out. Her face was covered with abrasions and bruises. Her throat had been slashed and hacked.

The body was found by the boys at 2 o'clock in the afternoon on a part of what is known as the old Bushaks farm, about 1,000 feet west of the Des Plaines river. Bushaks died several years ago. After his death the farm was bought by the county. There is no road leading to the farm.

The Boys Disappear.

The boys, terrified at their discovery, rushed to the caddy shed on the grounds of the Riverside Golf club, where Pete Bussema, a caretaker, lives with his family. Bussema notified the Riverside police, but by the time they arrived the boys had left and Bussema had failed to obtain their names. For four hours the police searched every pile of brush in that vicinity of the forest preserve and it was not until 6 o'clock that they came upon the body.

The woman was hatless. She wore a black plush coat, over which was a gray wool sweater buttoned down the front; a blue serge dress with black trimmings, brown woolen stockings, black slippers [size 5], and galoshes fastened to the tops.

The police estimated the victim's weight at 135 pounds and her height at 5 feet 4 inches. She had blue eyes and hair that might be classed as "dark blonde."

Wore Wedding Ring.

A gold wedding band on the second finger of her left hand, apparently new, bore no initials. On this finger there was also a smaller ring set with a cheap purple stone. On the little finger of the same hand was a ring containing three small red settings.

While the Riverside police were struggling with this mystery, the Des Plaines river solved another one when it yielded the body of Fred Geistler, a janitor in the Riverside-La Grange High school, who had been missing since March 3. Geistler, who is believed to have committed suicide through despondency over ill health, left a widow and eight children.

SOUTH EUROPE QUOTAS CUT TO 1890 BASIS

U. S. Gains Nordics by 2% Limit.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Washington, D. C., April 12.—[Special.]—The immigration restriction bill, fathered by Representative Albert Johnson [Rep., Wash.], chairman of the house immigration committee, passed the house late this afternoon by a vote of 322 to 71.

It cuts down substantially the quotas of immigrants permitted to come in, raises the standard, and provides for examination on the other side of the ocean.

The comment of the victors was:

"The house of representatives is still American."

Passage of the bill followed nearly five hours of wordy maneuver by the house sitting in committee of the whole.

Bill Excludes Japanese.

As passed the bill retains its original Japanese exclusion sections. They are based on the law which excludes from the United States all aliens ineligible to American citizenship. During the five hours of debate the house paid almost no attention to the vehement note which the Japanese government sent a few days ago to the state department through Ambassador Hanihara and which give in explicit terms Tokio's warning that enactment of the measure "would inevitably bring grave consequences."

Only one voice was lifted in sympathy with the Imperial Japanese government's "warning," which in the cloakrooms was interpreted as more a "threat" than a warning. That voice was Representative Burton's [Rep., O.]. He said that the Japanese exclusion sections of the bill must give "grievous offense" and he declared that if he did not offer a substitute for them it was only because he believed that the "nationally and internationally famous lawyers" of the upper house would so clearly see the invalidity and the menace in them that they would fail of the senate's approval.

Fixes Quota at 2 Per Cent.

The Johnson immigration restriction bill, as passed by the house today, fixes future quotas from each foreign country on the basis of 2 per cent of the nationals of that country resident in the United States in 1890.

The law now in operation permits quotas based on 3 per cent of the nationals resident in this country in 1910.

It is pointed out by students of the bill that the change of basis upon which quotas are to be calculated from the 1910 basis to the 1890 basis is emphatically a Nordic victory, for, by sharply reducing immigration from southern and eastern Europe it will tend to make northern Europe the chief foreign breeding ground of future American citizens.

Bears Burden of Proof.

The restrictive provisions of the bill were made more drastic by an amendment, introduced by Representative Begg [Rep., O.], and passed, which places the burden of proof on an alien entering the United States, he being compelled to establish that he is not subject to exclusion under any provision of the immigration laws. Also, in any deportation proceeding, the burden of proof will be upon the alien to show that he entered the United States lawfully, and how, when, and where he entered. In presenting such proof he will be entitled to the production of his immigration certificate or other pertinent documents which may be in the custody of the department of labor.

It was intimated during the debate on certain modifications of the bill that members of foreign parentage showed a tendency to think in the terms of the races to which they belong more than in the terms of the country they now represent.

Sometimes this intimation was made covertly on the floor of the house and sometimes pretty plainly in the lobbies.

"Danger Sign" in House.

"When a race," said Representative Holaday [Rep., Ill.], from Speaker Cannon's old district, "grows strong enough to send to this floor a member of their race to plead and to work for increased quotas from the country of their race it is a danger sign. It is a danger sign when the plea is made on the floor of this house that, if the quota permitted a certain country is restored to the 1890 basis, it will result in an annual decrease of seventy million dollars in the funds sent back to that country by its natives now resident in the United States."

It transpired later that Mr. Holaday's reference was to Italy.

"It is not a question," he continued, "this whole matter of restriction is not a question of discriminating against any particular races. It is a case of protecting American interests."

It was observed throughout the afternoon that the men of New England and of the old Western Reserve areas which New England peopled were the most fervent advocates of restriction. "I stand today," said Rep. Treadway [Rep., Mass.], "where I stood before—for the strictest form of restricted immigration. This country is neither a melting pot nor a dumping ground for the undesirables of other countries."

Rep. Cable [Rep., O.] caught up the "dumping ground" phrase, saying, "The United States has grown in prosperity not because of the freer immigration since 1910, but in spite of said, "If we've got to have restriction for the best interest of the country, let's have restriction! What it amounts to is discrimination. Remember that the winning of the west was accomplished by native stock helped out by a sprinkling from northern and western Europe."

Sabath Favors 1910.

Rep. Sabath [Dem., Ill.] declared himself in favor of striking out the 1890 basis for the calculation of quotas and substituting the 1910 basis. "Some of you maintain," he said, "that this bill is not discriminatory. I say that to discriminate is our right but that when we discriminate we ought to discriminate fairly.

"As to the charge that other countries would take advantage of the 1910 basis to dump their undesirables upon us, I say that the same charge was made against Britain 250 years ago—the charge that it was dumping its criminals on our shores—but today descent from the pioneers of two centuries and a half ago is esteemed a badge of honor. The charge was not true."

Victory for Nordics.

Mr. Sabath's contention was that the reversion to the 1890 basis would allow Great Britain, Germany, and the Scandinavian countries quotas between four and five times larger than those allowed six other European countries—the northerly lands being permitted about 131,000 American entrees annually and the southerly and easterly about 30,000, while Mexico in the last nine months has sent in 63,000 legally, "and," he added, "nobody knows how many Mexicans have come in illegally."

He closed with this question:

"If you desire to protect American labor, why don't you put the restricted quota on Canada and Mexico as well as on the European countries?"

Rep. Hudspeth [Dem., Tex.] came to the defense of our Mexican fellow-citizens, saying amid loud applause, "I do not contend that the naturalized Mexicans are our best citizens but I did observe that when we entered the world war it was less than 1 per cent of those citizens who did not come up and register."

Deprecates Jap Exclusion.

There was no response to the warning note pervading the speech of the veteran member Theodore Burton of Ohio, who deprecated—but did not offer a substitute for—the Japanese exclusion sections of the Johnson bill. He believed those sections "may endanger friendly relations with Japan."

"There are, perhaps, good reasons," he continued, "why we should be averse to any extensive immigration of the Japanese. They have a different form of government and different ideals running back 2,000 years.

"They have a different standard of living. But I must protest against this provision for the reason that what is sought to be attained can be accomplished in a more effective way by leaving the law as it now is.

Cites "Gentlemen's Agreement."

"We have at this time an agreement and treaty with Japan that covers this subject. We have an arrangement with Japan for the exclusion of her immigrants under certain conditions. In the first place, a Japanese immigrant must have a passport from his government. This must be viséd by an American consular official. If you wipe out that agreement, you wipe out that coöperation of the Japanese government for exclusion of its nationals from the United States.

"We are now on friendly terms with Japan. For the future peace of the world it is absolutely essential that we should maintain friendly relations with that power. We must respect the susceptibilities of that people."

It is estimated that under the Johnson bill's provisions immigration would approximate 161,990 aliens a year as compared with an average of 357,801 under the present laws.

Efforts were made by Mr. Madden [Rep., Ill.] to modify this provision on the ground that it unduly discriminated against the peoples of southern Europe in favor of northern Europe. He offered a substitute that would take the average from the alien population resident in this country according to the census of 1890, 1900, 1910 and 1920.

The effect of the Madden proposal would have been to authorize the admission of 207,848 immigrants a year. Mr. Madden's amendment had the support of many of the New York delegation, but it was defeated by a vote of 162 to 89, and the opponents of the bill then gave up their fight.

Kentuckian Scores La Guardia.

The comedy drama of the day came when young John Marshall Robsion, one time schoolmaster in the mountains of southern Kentucky, turned on little, round Fiorello La Guardia, representing the Twentieth district, New York City, with one of those eat 'em alive speeches which occasionally inspirit the weary house and which are considered the specialty of southern members.

Mr. La Guardia, who would love lavish immigration, had said that when it came to illiteracy tests most foreigners would compare favorably with most Kentucky mountaineers and that their fastnesses would be a poor school to which to send aliens to learn Americanism.

Only One Flag Theirs.

Those fastnesses which Robsion represents comprise fifteen counties with 300,000 population, and he rose up on behalf of every man, woman, and child in his constituency, of which Barbourville is the capital. The speech he flung in the little Italian's pale face was rotund, flamboyant, melodious—and short, and when the speaker of it came to these words, which he released in the roar of a bull—

"There is no room in that section of the country for more than one flag. You cannot march as they do in the gentleman's city behind the red flag of anarchy."

Then the house broke into a storm of applause.

Except for dragging Lincoln into the Mexican war the speech held pretty true to history, and it moved thus along in a volume that made the amplifiers squeak for mercy.

"I cannot understand how any representative of the great state of New York would go out of his way to utter the vicious, contemptible slander that he did here on the floor of the house. What did he say? He said that if a foreigner should go to Kentucky, to the mountains, to the highlands of the country, he could not learn Americanism.

"Does not the gentleman from New York know and has he not read the story of the sharpshooters of Kentucky and Tennessee who followed the lead of the wonderful soldier, Gen. Jackson, and gave the British such a trimming that they never have come back? (Applause.)

"Has not the gentleman read the story of Lincoln and Jefferson Davis and many others who upheld the stars and stripes in Mexico? Has not the gentleman read the story that in many of those mountain countries more men joined Abraham Lincoln's forces than there were voters in the counties?

"Has not the gentleman known of these mountain counties in my district where bonds were oversubscribed more than in any other county in the United States? Has not the gentleman read that in one county they oversubscribed the quota for the Red Cross more times than any other county in the United States? Has not the gentleman read that in that county two boys received the congressional medal of honor for bravery on Flanders fields? Has not the gentleman read that in one of those counties where he said they had no schools they furnished more officers than any other county, according to its quota of soldiers in the United States? (Applause.)

"O, yes, when Andrew Jackson and these mountaineers were upholding this country and building this country, where were the gentleman's ancestors? I resent a slander like that. In that district there are eight colleges, and there are twenty-four A1 high schools, recognized by all authorities in this country.

"If your foreigner or alien goes to that country and does not go to school, it is not because opportunities are not afforded him. The gentleman talks about learning Americanism. (Here came the fling about anarchy's flag.)

"The gentleman talks about their not learning Americanism in that section. Why, Mr. Chairman, they helped to make the institutions of the country and they do not have to learn it. (Applause.)

Calls It Insolent Slander.

"They suckled their Americanism from their mother's breasts and heard it at their father's knee, and I resent the gentleman's insolent, infamous, contemptible slander against a great, honest, patriotic people." (Prolonged applause.)

And so having inspirited the house and having said something for every loyal Kentuckian's scrapbook, the mountain lion sat down.

Mr. La Guardia wanted to reply, but the house would not let him. It had had its thrill.

NUMBER OF PERSONS OF FOREIGN BIRTH HERE IN 1890 AND IN 1910

If the house immigration measure becomes law the annual number of immigrants from foreign countries permitted will be 2 per cent of the number of their several nationals resident here in 1890 instead of, as now, 3 per cent of the total here in 1910. The foreign birth population figures follow:

Country—	1890.	1910.
England	909,092	877,719
Scotland	242,231	261,076
Wales	100,079	82,488

Switzerland	104,069	122,848

Italy	182,580	1,343,125
Portugal	15,996	59,360

The countries now known as Czecho-Slovakia and Jugo-Slovakia did not exist as political units in 1890 and none of their nationals are reported as here in that year. The number of natives of Spain in this country in 1890 was only 6,185.

Of native Chinese, 106,701 were here in 1890 and only 56,756 in 1910.

There were 2,292 natives of Japan in the United States in 1890, and 67,744 in 1910.

'SINS OF G. O. P.' LAID BARE BY SEN. WHEELER

Roxie Stinson, for calling in bootleggers. But you have got to go among men's associates to find out what they are doing."

A dead President found no mercy under the sting of his lash.

"Bootleggers and boodlers were welcome guests on the Mayflower," he cried, "just as they were at McLean's house or Harry Daugherty's." These were the men with whom Daugherty drank and whom he had for boon companions.

Robbers of Government.

Again he picked up the chain of evidence which he claimed he had forged against these "robbers of the government."

The Wright and Martin stock owned by Daugherty, Jesse Smith's money belt and its 75 $1,000 bills, and the $75,000 a bank examiner found to Daugherty's credit. These things, he said, the committee had had proved to them, and—

Hints More Revelations.

"I predict that the evidence next week will show that more money donated to the Republican national campaign was donated by men whose cases never were prosecuted.

"We are asked to stop because it is hurting business," cried the prosecutor. "It may temporarily, but ultimately it will prove the best thing in the world to drive these grafters into the open."

And then, with a thin smile, he apologized a little for coming to speak "after my indictment in Montana."

Dryly, the prosecutor of conspiracies declared it was a conspiracy, his indictment in Montana.

Refuses Martyrdom.

Once when he was exposing a ring of copper owned public officials in Montana, he said, they had wanted to tar and feather him, and his friends had wanted him to let them do it—for the good of the cause. But he had refused. And he refused now to be made a martyr for the cause, he said. He is going to fight and demand justice.

For "Daugherty said he wasn't behind the indictment," he leaned over the table toward his listeners. "But Burns told us just the day after that he had sent out three men to investigate me—after a conference with Daugherty. The whole indictment is a conspiracy—tied up to Daugherty."

Senator Wheeler will fight the indictment. The senatorial committee will probe this "rottenness and corruption if it's the last thing it ever does," he said.

And the remedy? "What," he asked of Mayor Dever, and Dr. James Whitney Hall on the platform beside him, "can be done to save the country?"

"Get out and vote for honest men—Democrats," advised the senator from Montana.

LA FOLLETTE TO RUN ON THIRD PARTY TICKET

New York, April 12.—[Special.]—United States Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin will be nominated for the third party candidate for President if his health will permit, J. A. H. Hopkins, chairman of the executive committee of the Committee of Forty-eight, declared today. Mr. Hopkins is one of the national committeemen in charge of arrangements for the third party convention, which will convene at St. Paul on June 17.

"Senator La Follette, who has consistently fought special privilege since he first entered the arena, is our logical candidate," Mr. Hopkins said. "He undoubtedly will be nominated unless his health forbids. But this movement is not built on any personality and if the senator is unable to take on the strain of a campaign another standard bearer will be named."

TESTS SHOW FORD CAN RUN 80 MILES ON GALLON OF GAS.

The amazing fact that a Ford can run 80 miles on 1 gallon of gasoline was recently brought to light through tests conducted by America's foremost engineers. Great strides have already been made in this direction by the recent invention of a simple attachment which can be installed in a few minutes without any alterations to motor. A. C. Winterburn made 41.4 miles on one gallon of gasoline after this device was attached. B. O. Weeks, famous aviator and inventor, wants agents and will send sample for trial. MORALE RUINED IN TREASURY BY QUIZZES: MELLON Employes Afraid to Work, He Tells Pittsburgh.

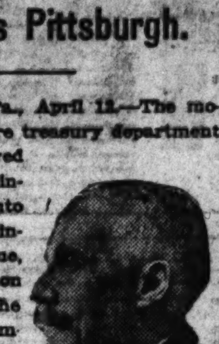
Pittsburgh, Pa., April 12.—The morale of the entire treasury department has been destroyed by the senate investigation into the bureau of internal revenue, Secretary Mellon tonight told the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce. He said that "unless some end is brought to this unnecessary interference government will cease to function."



ANDREW W. MELLON.
[Trinity Court Photo]

Reviewing the effect on the department after one month of investigation, Secretary Mellon declared that production in the income tax unit, where disputed tax liability cases are determined, has dropped 50 per cent. In the natural resources division, where values are obtained, he continued, work has practically ceased, and the time of the division is devoted to furnishing information to the senate committee.

Employés Fear Inquisitors.

"Employés throughout the bureau," Secretary Mellon declared, "are more interested in reading about and discussing the investigation than in work, and adequate supervision can scarcely be maintained. In any close case a man, because he fears that he, too, may be criticized, refuses to act impartially and automatically decides the question in favor of the government, leaving the taxpayer to such relief as the courts may ultimately give him. No one knows when a prosecutor, under government authority and private pay, may haul him before a committee and pillory him on the stand."

Secretary Mellon said that the purpose of the investigation—to recommend improvements in the law and its administration—"was laudable," but declared "its real purpose seems to be a personal attack on me or an effort to develop scandal."

All His Firms Scrutinized.

"The committee has made inquiry into every company in which I may have been interested," he declared. "Nowhere has it been shown that a company has been favored because I happened to be a stockholder. On the contrary, it is probable the reverse has been the case.

"As a matter of fact, I think the investigation has shown that favor through connivance of government employés is practically impossible. Too many different divisions and too many different employés in each division, each jealous of his opinion, have to pass on every claim. Certainly no fraud has been shown, although nearly every discharged employé has rushed to present his suspicions to Senator Couzens."

In opening his address Secretary Mellon presented what he termed the "ordinary difficulties" of administration and declared that, added to these, "we have congressional investigations, disingenuous in nature and paralyzing in effect."

Many Honorable Officials.

"It has been my experience in Washington," he continued, "that there is a sense of service and a pride in position which has brought to the government a better, a more honest, and a more honorable class of servant than private industry can command on anything like the same terms. The value of this asset is incalculable, but it is rapidly being destroyed. Public service is now a target for public abuse, not an honor.

"However, I hope and believe that it is a passing phase which may soon disappear, to be succeeded by a return to orderly procedure."

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, also spoke. Neither house of congress has any authority under the constitution to investigate the private affairs of any one, Dr. Butler said. He called Mr. Mellon "the most distinguished public officer of this generation."

Ellis Island Chief Eager to Close Gates on Immigrants

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

New York, April 12.—[Special.]—Preparations are under way at Ellis island, the gateway to America, to care for the expected influx of immigrants July 1, when the new fiscal year begins.

Maj. Henry H. Curran, commissioner of immigration at Ellis island, is hopeful that when the new immigration bill, debated in both branches of congress this week, emerges into law it will fix the new quota at 2 per cent of the census of 1890. This would reduce the number of immigrants who can enter annually from 357,803 to 169,083.

Regardless of which bill eventually is adopted by congress, July 1 will see the beginning of the annual flood of immigrants to America's shores. Under the present law 20 per cent of a country's annual quota was admissible monthly, with the result that Ellis island overflowed during the first five months after July 1 and has had little to do since.

"Time to Close Gates a Bit."

"Any change that will give us less immigration is to be desired," Maj. Curran declared today. "Our gates have stood open long enough. It is time to close them a bit.

"I am heartily in favor of the proposed 2 per cent of the census of 1890. It will bring the greatest reduction in immigrants as a total and will reduce more materially the quota of those nations which have sent the larger increases in recent years."

Maj. Curran and his chief assistant, Byron H. Uhl, are favorably inclined to the 1890 census as the basis. It is pointed out that approximately 17,000,000 so-called Nordic people entered the United States in the period of 100 years, while nearly that same number from other parts of the world entered within the last thirty years.

What Change Would Do.

An an example Mr. Uhl pointed out that 2 per cent of the 1890 census would admit during the coming year 62,658 immigrants from Great Britain, as compared with 77,342 during the current year. On that same basis the proposed law would permit less than 5,000 Italians to enter, against 42,057 during the present year.

Owing to exhaustion of quotas, this is the slack period at Ellis island. Less than a thousand persons form the island's population today.

Less than 2,000—to be exact, 1,982 immigrants — can enter the United States during the balance of the fiscal year.

Commissioner Curran is anxious that American consuls have discretionary powers in passing on would be immigrants at the source. They have no option under the present law, except where the applicants have known anarchistic tendencies. He is vehement also in declaring that the provisions of the law should be changed to provide regular monthly quotas.

Anything for Votes.

Ellis island officials are bitter against political interference. They assert that strange exceptions are made for no earthly reason except that some politicians ask it.

As an instance Commissioner Curran cited a telegram he had received from a member of congress demanding the admission of a certain Greek immigrant. The presumed reason, Mr. Curran said, was that the Greek vote in a certain city depended on the admission of that immigrant.

"Just what is the 'Greek vote' in America?" he queried. "What business has it to be here?"

BANK BOOKS KEY TO JUSTICE QUIZ, SENATE BELIEF

Committee Aims to Force Disclosures.

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—Stunned by its inability to obtain the records of Mal Daugherty's bank in Washington Court House, O., the committee investigating former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty suddenly called off today's scheduled session and on Monday will go into executive conference, when plans for a new course of procedure may be made.

Chairman Brookhart returned to Washington today and held a short conference with Senators Moses and Jones. Later it was indicated that the evidence obtained yesterday in Ohio prior to the court injunction was considered so amazing that all other lines of inquiry may temporarily be dropped while action is concentrated directly on the former attorney general and his brother.

Members of the committee said they felt that the bank records might hold the key for which they have sought for weeks in an effort to carry the trail of misconduct directly into the office of the former attorney general.

Monday's executive session, Senator Brookhart said, is certain to result in the committee requesting a contempt citation for Mal Daugherty.

Senators Brookhart and Moses both seemed to feel that the injunction had created somewhat of a crisis in the committee's progress.

Chicago's liquor traffic also is in for another bombardment. Brice Armstrong, the so-called one man prohibition department, is ready to tell some more of his ideas on who pays what for protection to bootleggers, and other witnesses may be called.

HENEY IS CALLED PINCHOT'S CLUB TO HIT COOLIDGE

Hot Senate Debate Over President's Protest.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 12.—[Special.]—Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania inspired the appointment of Francis J. Heney as counsel for the special senate committee investigating the internal revenue bureau, according to charges made in the senate today by Senator Watson [Rep., Ind.], chairman of the committee.

It was Gov. Pinchot's purpose, Senator Watson says, to have the investigation include within its scope the prohibition unit, which is part of the internal revenue bureau.

A "muck raking" inquiry lasting until the November election with the purpose of discrediting Secretary Mellon and President Coolidge had been planned, Senator Watson declared.

Backs Coolidge Protest.

The speech of Senator Watson was in support of the message sent to the senate yesterday by President Coolidge, protesting against the course pursued by the special senate committee investigating the internal revenue bureau in authorizing Mr. Heney to conduct the investigation with Senator Couzens [Rep., Mich.] footing the bills.

Senator Watson urged the adoption of his resolution discharging the committee from the further investigation of the bureau. He did not ask a vote on the resolution today, however, owing to the illness of Senator Couzens.

Republican senators will hold a conference on Monday to decide on a program of action with respect to the Watson resolution and other pending resolutions growing out of the controversy over the investigation of the internal review bureau.

Senator Watson's speech was in the nature of a party pronouncement for senate Republicans who propose to resist further investigations which promise to make campaign sensations.

Democrats are Bitter.

Democratic senators replied to Senator Watson in partisan speeches bristling with bitterness. Several hours were devoted to one of the most acrimonious debates of the session.

Senator Reed [Dem., Mo.] in replying to Senator Watson declared that the efforts of "such an astute lawyer and politician" as the senator from Indiana had convinced him that there is something "crooked" in the internal revenue bureau and that it should be investigated.

Senator Reed introduced a resolution to expunge President Coolidge's message of yesterday from the Record, on the ground that it constituted an insult to the senate. Later he agreed to let it lie on the table, saying he would call it up later.

Senator McKellar [Dem., Tenn.] and other Democrats assailed the administration.

Senator McKellar urged the need of an investigation of the prohibition unit, and said that Secretary Mellon, having been in the distillery business all his life, did not have the viewpoint which the person at the head of the prohibition enforcement machinery should have.

Senator Watson reviewed at length the character of the work which has piled up in the internal revenue bureau and the manner in which the bureau has been able to handle it. He described what has taken place at the hearings of the committee, including the furnishing of tax records of companies in which Mr. Mellon is interested.

Firm Foe of Muck Rakers.

Senator Watson said he had been determined that there was to be "no muck raking or any besmirching of the character of any citizen, in or out of public life." He said that the other members of the committee, including Senator Couzens, who introduced the resolution authorizing the inquiry and has presented the evidence, and the two Democratic members, senators Jones [Dem., N. M.] and King [Utah], had appeared to agree with him that the investigation should be of a constructive character.

The purpose was in the beginning, he said, that recommendations for simplifying tax procedure and for improving the administration of the income tax unit of the internal revenue bureau should be prepared.

On the theory that the investigation was to be of a constructive character, Senator Watson said that Dr. Thomas S. Adams, professor of economics at Yale and former chief tax adviser of the treasury, had outlined a plan for the appointment for a board of experts to make a study of the administration of the bureau.

Tells of Heney's System.

Describing the manner in which Heney, who won fame as prosecutor in the San Francisco graft cases many years ago, and has figured prominently in other prosecutions and investigations, was appointed, Mr. Watson said that the Couzens resolution for his appointment came as a complete surprise to him. This resolution, he said, was presented in the midst of a hearing while a witness was on the stand. It was supported by the two Democratic members and by Senator Couzens and opposed by Senator Watson and by Senator Ernst [Rep., Ky.].

When asked why he had not consulted with him as chairman, Senator Watson said Senator Couzens replied that in a matter of this character he did not recognize any partisanship.

Senator Watson said he asked Senator Couzens if he had discussed Mr. Heney's appointment with the two Democratic members of the committee. Couzens said he had not done so, but that Mr. Heney had talked with them.

Senator Watson intimated that the information about Gov. Pinchot's participation in the affair had been given him by Senator Couzens. He indicated that he had desired to repeat a conversation with Senator Couzens, but that he would not do so in his absence.

Pinchot Gets Into Quarrel.

"I learned on indisputable evidence that Pinchot had injected himself into the controversy and that Pinchot was the man who had recommended the appointment of Mr. Heney," said Senator Watson. "I communicated that information to the secretary of the treasury. He knew and I knew that constructive work at that moment ended in our committee and destructive work at that moment begun.

"We all remember reading in the public prints of a controversy between Secretary Mellon and Gov. Pinchot. Perhaps the controversy originated in the first instance in Pennsylvania politics, a subject so profound that I have no knowledge of it. In any event the recent controversy related to the prohibition unit which is a part of the internal revenue bureau.

"Secretary Mellon thus had reason to know that the prohibition unit was to be investigated, that every one of its acts was to be brought before the senate.

"When we passed the prohibition law we knew it could not be successfully enforced within five years. Everybody knows that if we started an investigation it would throw out scandal unequaled in the political annals of the country. The investigation would be continued until the day before the election of November, 1924.

"The secretary of the treasury knew that if a committee inspired by Pinchot, engineered by Heney, and sustained by the two Democratic members of the committee started an investigation it would be kept up right to election day.

"So far as I am concerned, there will be no investigation of the prohibition unit."

Chance to Sling Mud.

Senator Jones inquired of Senator Watson if the committee had not agreed that there should be no muck-raking and that all evidence gathered by Mr. Heney should first be submitted to the committee in executive session. Senator Watson said this is true, but that it would be an easy matter for the two Democrats and Senator Couzens to outvote the other two Republicans in deciding what should be presented at public hearings.

Closing his speech with a tribute to President Coolidge, Senator Watson said the real purpose of those now anxious to investigate the internal revenue bureau is to injure the President's prospects for reëlection.

"This whole thing in my judgment is but an assault on the President," said Senator Watson. "These people do not intend to assault Mellon for Mellon's sake, but Mellon for Coolidge's sake.

"Mr. Mellon proposed a tax plan. The tax bill is now under consideration. If in any way they can besmirch Mr. Mellon it will weaken his tax plan, which the President has indorsed.

Unsullied by Garbage.

"The President will undoubtedly be our leader in the campaign. Therefore, anything brought against him at this time will tend to weaken him in the campaign. The breath of scandal has not touched him. He has stood in that fierce light that beats against the throne' and has come through unsullied. The people will continue to believe in this man. I have no doubt any investigation, no matter how troublesome it may be, will not disturb the estimate in which he is held.

"I do not believe this investigation should go on. It has gone far enough to show that Secretary Mellon has never at any time interfered in tax cases of the companies with which he has been connected. I believe no good purpose will be served by the investigation, but I believe much of evil will result."

Senator Norris [Rep., Neb.] declared the prohibition unit should be investigated. Senator King, as a member of the investigating committee, declared that he was opposed to extending the inquiry to the prohibition unit.

Reed Waxes Satirical.

Senator Reed replied in a satirical vein. He described Senator Watson's address as a nominating speech for President Coolidge. He said that the nominating speech might have been reserved for a more appropriate occasion.

"I have not believed anything crooked would be discovered until I listened to the speech of the senator from Indiana. When I see so astute a lawyer and politician trying to stop an investigation I know there must be something wrong.

"It seems to me that the fear is that at least another cabinet officer may have to go."

Senator Reed said that so far as he was concerned he would not have selected Mr. Heney to take charge of the investigation.

Senator Reed added that the secretary of the treasury had been a director in sixty-eight banks and corporations.

Pinchot Won't Comment.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 12.—Gov. Pinchot today refused to comment when asked if he had suggested appointment of Francis J. Henry of California as counsel to aid the senate committee investigating the books of Secretary Mellon.

CONFERENCE ON TEACHERS' PAY, M'ANDREW PLAN

Superintendent of Schools William McAndrew has sent out a call for a conference on teachers' salaries, it was learned yesterday. In letters to Miss Rose Pesta, president of the Principals' club, Miss Anise Slattery, president of the Elementary Teachers' council, and Elzy Downey, president of the High School Teachers' council, he set forth the need of drawing up a new salary schedule.

He indicated yesterday that all but the elementary teachers, as represented by their council, were agreeable to the conference.

"There are on file various requests from different branches of the service, schedules devised independently, without consideration of other schedules," the superintendent's letter read. "A salary schedule must show that it is prepared with the paramount idea of securing the best possible service to the city, rather than with a hope of satisfying those who are to draw the salaries."

DENEEN LEADS BY 4,069 VOTES; 13 PRECINCTS SHY

Complete unofficial returns, minus thirteen Cook county precincts, indicate the nomination of former Gov. Charles S. Deneen over Senator Medill McCormick for United States senator. His lead is 4,069 votes.

A summarization of the returns is as follows:

Area.	McCormick.	Deneen.
Cook county	161,448	169,425
Downstate	190,080	186,172
Totals	351,528	355,597

Ten of the missing precincts are in Chicago. The ballot box from one precinct, with the ballots inside, was stolen and is believed to have been thrown into the drainage canal near 31st street. That precinct will be permanently "missing." The other three precincts are thought to be in Cicero.

BEG YOUR PARDON

The death of George Krull, 3 years old, in an automobile accident, was reported yesterday. The boy is not dead, but is recovering at the county hospital. The automobile, owned by Dr. Isaac A. Abt, was driven by a chauffeur, Charles Barnett, who was charged with assault, not with manslaughter, as published.

New Trial Denied Butcher, Given Life for Killing Wife

Joseph Milewski, 1901 West 63d street, the former sheep butcher, found guilty of the murder of his wife, whose throat was cut, yesterday was denied a new trial by Circuit Judge George Fred Rush, who sentenced him on the jury's recommendation to life imprisonment. His attorney, William Scott Stewart, announced he would appeal to the Supreme court.

COUZENS BETTER; OPERATION PUT OFF BY DOCTORS

Washington, D. C., April 12.—The condition of Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.], confined at his home here by a severe intestinal attack, continued to improve during the day, according to attending physicians. As a result an operation at first regarded as immediately necessary was postponed until next week after a long consultation in which Dr. Hugo A. Freund of Detroit participated.

Senator Couzens was said to be resting easily tonight under a regimen designed to prepare him for the operation. The pain was materially alleviated, the physicians' report said, and there was no excessive temperature.

Associates of the senator at the capitol have been aware for at least a fortnight that his health was not of the best. He was advised to curtail his legislative activities but refused to consider such a step.

CITY PLAN BODY MAKES PLEA FOR STREET PROJECT

Asks Help for S. Water, La Salle Improvements.

O. M. TORRISON.

Improvement of South Water street by making it a double decked boulevard and the widening of La Salle street from Washington street to Lincoln park — twin Chicago Plan commission projects—hang in the balance of judicial and popular approval.

The plan to transform South Water street from an alleylike street lined with rambling, ramshackle buildings into a two level riverfront boulevard and heavy traffic thoroughfare, flanked with huge skyscrapers, may be abandoned if Circuit Judge Torrison, in a decision expected in a few days, upholds the objections of a group of property owners.

The other project, improvement of La Salle street into a 108 foot highway with an 86 foot roadway, is endangered by counter proposals which would stop the widening at Ohio street, creating a "bottle neck" from that point north.

Commission Issues Appeal.

Property owners are urged by the plan commission, in an appeal issued yesterday, to defeat the counterproposal at public hearings soon to be called by John J. Sloan, president of the board of local improvements, who sponsors the substitute plan as an "economy" measure.

More than twenty thousand pages of testimony had been written into the record of hearings in the South Water street case when the last witness was excused by Judge Torrison Friday afternoon. The hearing had continued for more than six months at an estimated cost of $30,000 a month to the city.

Closing arguments will be made in a few days. If the objections are overruled by Judge Torrison, the city will seek immediate hearings on pending condemnation suits, with a possibility that the last of the legal barriers to the $22,000,000 improvement will be swept aside before fall.

Create Bottle Neck.

"To widen La Salle street only as far as Ohio street would be merely to extend loop congestion," insists the plan commission. "A 'bottle neck' would be created at the point where an eighty-six foot roadway is narrowed to a fifty-six foot roadway.

"La Salle street leads directly into the center of the loop from the north and northwest sides, from Lincoln avenue, from Clark street, and from the main drives of Lincoln park.

"It will, if widened to 108 feet, shorten by one mile (on an average) the distance which 50,000 vehicles a day must travel now in using Michigan avenue in order to reach their destination somewhere in the loop.

73,000 Vehicles Daily.

"Approximately 73,000 vehicles a day cross the Michigan avenue bridge, according to traffic counts. Of these, about 18,000 go through the loop without stopping. About 9,000 per day would save time, distance, and expense by using La Salle street.

"Of the nearly 55,000 vehicles which do stop somewhere in the loop, about 14,000 stop east of State street and 41,000 west of State street. These 41,000 'loop' vehicles, plus the 9,000 'through' vehicles, compose the 50,000 vehicles per day that will use widened La Salle street.

"This number of vehicles is more than five times as much traffic as caused the city to widen Michigan avenue, because in 1911, when that improvement was undertaken, there were only 9,725 vehicles per day crossing the Rush street bridge."

HUSBAND IS HELD AS MURDERER OF KENOSHA WOMAN

Kenosha, Wis., April 12.—[Special.]—Following the recommendation of the verdict of the coroner's jury, H. B. Eichelman, 35, husband of Mrs. Caroline Emelia Eichelman, 34, the prominent Kenosha woman who on Friday afternoon was found dead in a pool of her own blood in the bedroom of their home, was arrested on a charge of murdering her just before seven o'clock Saturday evening.

The arrest followed a verdict of the coroner's jury holding that Mrs. Eichelman came to her death by a bullet shot, adding that they "believed the husband of the deceased fired the said shot and recommended that the said husband be held by the authorities to answer the charge of murder."

The husband was arrested at the home of his father, Henry Eichelman, by Detective Charles Rock. He had nothing to say. He was booked on a murder charge and held incommunicado.

ITALIAN CLAIMS NEW SERUM WILL PREVENT CANCER

Will Give Discovery to League of Nations.

[Copyright: 1924: By the New York Times.]

ROME, April 12.—At the meeting of the medical section of the league of nations in Rome next month, which will be devoted entirely to methods of fighting cancer, Prof. Gaetano Fichera, director of the Institute of Surgical Pathology of the University of Pavia, will announce his latest discovery, which, it is claimed, is an absolute preventive of that disease.

Prof. Fichera, who has devoted his life to the study of cancer and has spent his whole fortune and income on his researches, discovered several years back that cancer is produced by absence in the human body of a certain serum which dissolves the centers of infections as soon as they are produced. His first idea was to extract this serum from healthy individuals and to inject it into sufferers from cancer.

This method, however, met with small success, because he found that his operation, to be efficacious, had to be repeated every few weeks, and that the extraction of the serum weakened the resistance to cancer of healthy individuals and made them liable to fall prey to that disease.

Serum Artificially Produced.

His latest and greatest discovery which will be announced at the meeting of the league of nations, was made quite recently. It consists in a method of artificially producing the precious serum which spells immunity from cancer so that in future it will be as easily obtainable as any other medicine.

Examines Man Over Fifty.

He examines men over 50 all of whom are liable to fall prey to cancer, and any one else who suspects he has a predisposition for that disease, to see if there are any traces in their blood of cancer germs. If such traces are found he prescribes his serum and claims that as long as it is continued, the patient is absolutely immune from that disease. As the serum is absolutely free from toxic properties it can be taken without any danger, he says.

CROP FAILURE; MOTHER WIELDS RAZOR ON BABES

Farmer's Wife, Deranged, Sent to Elgin.

Sven Carlson sat in the kitchen of his farmhouse yesterday, his head in his hands, tears trickling from fingers calloused with gripping the plow. Neighbors came in to wipe away the blood stains and tidy up the place, but he paid no attention to them.

Less than twenty-four hours earlier Carlson had a wife and four children of whom he was proud. Now his wife was in a state insane asylum, his baby daughter was dead, and his three other children were trying to recover from injuries inflicted by their mother.

"And it wouldn't have happened if he had listened to the doctor a few weeks ago and let the county authorities take her away," a neighbor remarked. "The woman was insane."

Mother a Paranoiac.

Dr. E. H. Oelke of Wheaton was the physician who examined Mrs. Carlson and found she was a paranoiac, suffering from delusions that some one was following her with intent to harm. He recommended that she be committed at once to the Elgin State hospital, and he notified C. W. Reed, state's attorney of Du Page county, to that effect. But Carlson begged them not to take his wife away, and they relented.

Friday night the farmer went out to tend the live stock. His four children were asleep in a bedroom. His wife was working about the house.

A few minutes later Carlson's eldest child, 12 year old Edwin, rushed into the barn. Blood was streaming from a gash in his throat. His hands were cut from grabbing the razor with which his mother had slashed him.

"Ma's killing all of us!" the boy gasped.

When Carlson reached the bedroom he found his wife standing over the form of 4 year old Doris. Theodore, aged 10, and Edna, 9, had already been attacked. The mother turned as Carlson entered.

"Good-bye," she called, cutting her own throat. "I'm going, too!"

Aid Is Summoned.

There is no telephone in the farmhouse rented by Carlson, one and one-half miles south of Wheaton on the Butterfield road, and the farmed had a neighbor call the doctor. Dr. Oelke arrived to find the entire family lying in the kitchen. In the center of the group sat Carlsen, holding Doris in his lap. She had just died.

The three injured children were taken to the Wheaton health resort, where it was reported last night that they will recover. Mrs. Carlson was arrested. Yesterday a hastily called sanity commission adjudged her insane.

Due to Crop Failure.

"It all goes back to the crop failure last year," said Carlson. "You see, we had nice little farm of our own over near Batavia—it's only a few miles from here. We did pretty well, too; but last year everything went wrong. Some crops failed and a farmer could get no price for the others—not even what it cost to produce them—and so we had to sell the farm and rent here. all we had worked so hard for."

"She brooded over our troubles—she had such a hard time to make both ends meet. And it preyed on her mind that just when we had a little place of our own we should have had such bad luck and in one year lost all we had worked so hard for."

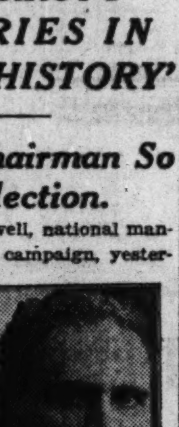
'MOST CORRUPT PRIMARIES IN CITY'S HISTORY'

McAdoo Chairman So Dubs Election.

David Ladd Rockwell, national manager of the McAdoo campaign, yesterday characterized Tuesday's Illinois Democratic primary as "the most corrupt election in Chicago's history."



WM. L. O'CONNELL. [Walinger Photo.]

In his statement making this charge he used words of William L. O'Connell, chairman of the McAdoo campaign in Illinois.

"Evidence of gross and palpable fraud and election theft will be presented to the proper tribunal," Mr. Rockwell declared. "There is a cloud on the boss' title."

Essentials Lacking.

His statement follows:

"There are, of course, two essentials to any election results. The first is casting the ballot, and the second, counting the ballot. If either is corrupt, or manipulated, there is a cloud on the title of the apparent winner.

"The primary in the city of Chicago Tuesday was aptly characterized by William L. O'Connell, chairman of the Illinois McAdoo campaign committee, as 'the most corrupt primary ever known in my experience in Chicago politics.'

"I understand Mr. O'Connell is preparing evidence of gross and palpable fraud and election theft which will be presented to the proper tribunal. There is a cloud on the boss' title.

Evidence of Fraud.

"One of the clearest evidences of the Chicago fraud is to be found in comparison of returns there with the returns from Illinois outside of Cook county, where the McAdoo-pledged slate of delegates at large ran considerably ahead of the boss slate.

"The strength of the McAdoo cause wherever there is an honest count is further shown by the fact that ten district delegates pledged to McAdoo are indicated on incomplete but conclusive returns as elected in the downstate districts, while ten other district delegates running uninstructed are sympathetic to the McAdoo candidacy, despite what Mr. O'Connell has characterized as the most corrupt election in Chicago's history."

CHICAGO PLAYS ACE IN FIGHT FOR SANITARY NEEDS

Old Documents Put O. K. on 10,000 Cubic Feet.

Washington, D. C., April 12.—[Special.]—The Chicago drainage district today played its ace when a delegation presented Secretary of War Weeks with documents showing that it's demands for withdrawal of water from Lake Michigan for drainage purposes were exactly those agreed on by Canada and the United States fifteen to thirty years ago.

A volume of excerpts from records of the negotiations which started in 1896 and led to the international treaty of 1910 between Great Britain and this country were given the secretary. They showed that the basis of every negotiation and of the treaty itself was that Chicago should be permitted to withdraw 10,000 cubic feet of water per second to assure sanitation, whereas the war department now wishes the limit held at 4,170.

Weeks' Mind Is Open.

Secretary Weeks admittedly was greatly impressed by the evidence. He declared that he had heretofore been unaware of these provisions in the negotiations leading to the treaty. He declined to commit himself as to the result, however, other than to say that his position was "unchanged." This he interpreted to mean that he had not yet reached any decision and was of an open mind.

Hearings on the matter will begin Tuesday before the house committee on rivers and harbors.

Chicago now is withdrawing 8,000 to 10,000 cubic feet of water per second in order to meet state and health requirements as to disposal of its sewage. The war department limit is 4,170. The Madden bill now before the house provides for 10,000.

Experts Seeing Secretary.

In the delegation which was closeted with Secretary Weeks for two hours were George F. Barrett, Louis J. Behan, Edmund D. Adcock, George M. Wisner, and Horace P. Ramey. The secretary also called in at times Gen. Beach, engineering chief, and Maj. Rufus Putnam, army engineering head in Chicago.

The first document presented to the secretary was an excerpt from the O'Hanley report in 1896, which stated that the works then being constructed by the Chicago sanitary district would withdraw 10,000 cubic feet per second and would lower the lake level six inches. This was cited to prove that the effects of such withdrawal had been known for years.

Next came a copy of the report of the international waterways commission in 1906, composed of three Canadian and three United States members and appointed to make a survey leading to the treaty. It recommended that the secretary of war be instructed to authorize, among other withdrawals, 10,000 cubic feet per second by the Chicago sanitary district.

Canada O. K.'d 10,000 Feet.

Next came a separate report from the Canadian section of this commission also approving the 10,000 foot withdrawal.

Another section states it is understood that in allowing Canada the larger amount to power purpose withdrawals, it is taken into consideration that the Chicago sanitary district will withdraw 10,000 cubic feet per second.

Body of Woman Taken from Lake at Belden

The body of an unidentified woman, about 50 years old, was taken from the lake at the foot of Belden avenue yesterday by the Hudson avenue police. She was clothed in a black skirt, white waist, lavender stockings, black shoes, with a dark serge coat over a black sweater. A receipt for $2.20, signed, "Tillie Herman," was found on her person.

ROBBED BY TWO MEN OF $40.

Andrew Stokes, 3147 South Halsted street, reported to the police that he was accosted by two men yesterday near 860 Townsend street and robbed of $40 in cash.

CHICAGO POLICE SET A RECORD IN SPEED ARRESTS

Four Times as Active as Manhattan Bluecoats.

Chicago police last year made nearly four times as many arrests for motor law violations as did the police of Manhattan borough, though the population of Manhattan is only about 15 per cent less than that of Chicago. Comparative figures were issued yesterday by Chief of Police Collins.

But even with four times as many arrests, the death rate in Chicago is much higher. Exact motor fatality figures for Manhattan last year are not available, so the percentage by which Chicago leads in auto deaths cannot be drawn, but the estimate is about 5 per cent per 100,000 population.

The Court Figures.

In 1923 a total of 54,705 persons were arraigned in the Manhattan Traffic court. Chicago Speeders' courts were jammed during the year with 192,000 cases, the figures show.

Stephen Senatus, 6 years old, 1522 Cornell street, was struck by an eastbound automobile late yesterday while he was playing in the street directly in front of 1505 Cornell street. The child was taken by Charles Boot, 1501 Elston avenue, to the county hospital, where he died shortly afterward. Carl Wolik, 831 North Paulina street, driver of the car, is being held by the police.

The body of a 9-year-old boy, killed on Friday night by an automobile, was identified yesterday as that of John Urkazicz, 1623 Washburne avenue. Inquiry made of the police by the boy's stepfather, Harry Suchek, brought about the identification. The automobile was driven by Dr. Meyer S. Coffler, 1042 South Oakley avenue.

Motor Bus Hits Garage.

Passengers on a loop bound motor bus were severely shaken when it crashed into the front of the Jackson Boulevard garage at 2043 West Jackson boulevard. The driver had swerved his vehicle to avoid crashing into a tourist car whose driver had cut sharply in front of the bus. The driver, Daniel Leviton, 5444 Indiana avenue, was not held responsible.

30 DEMOCRATS YEARN FOR HOME IN WHITE HOUSE

Race for Nomination Is a Free for All.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., April 12.—[Special.]—Competition for the nomination for President of the United States is unprecedented in the Democratic camp.

President Coolidge and Senator Johnson [Cal.] are the only contenders for the Republican nomination, but it is almost time to hang out the "standing room only" sign for candidates at the Democratic show.

To date thirty lifelong Democrats are listed as contenders for the nomination.

Here's the List—So Far.

Listing them alphabetically, in order to hurt no one's feelings, and explaining that the entries are by no means complete, as there are several counties yet to be heard from, we produce the following tentative and preliminary roster:

Newton D. Baker, Ohio, Wilson's secretary of war.

Charles W. Bryan, Nebraska, governor and brother of W. J.

William Jennings Bryan, Florida, three times Democratic candidate for President and Wilson's secretary of state.

Royal S. Copeland, New York, doctor and senator.

James M. Cox, Ohio, the most distinguished survivor of the catastrophe of 1920.

Homer S. Cummings, Connecticut, former chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Chicago's Mayor on Roll.

William E. Dever, Illinois, the mayor who mopped Chicago dry.

Josephus Daniels, North Carolina, Wilson's secretary of the navy.

John W. Davis, West Virginia, Wilson's ambassador to Great Britain.

Jonathan M. Davis, Kansas, foe of the Industrial court.

Edward I. Edwards, New Jersey, a senator who would make the country "as wet as the Atlantic."

Carter Glass, Virginia, a bone dry senator.

William R. Hearst, New York, editor and publisher.

David F. Houston, Missouri, Wilson's secretary of agriculture and secretary of the treasury.

Cordell Hull, Tennessee, representative and chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Thomas R. Marshall, Indiana, Vice President 1913-'21.

Now Comes Mr. McAdoo.

William G. McAdoo, California, Wilson's son-in-law and formerly secretary of the treasury.

E. T. Meredith, Iowa, Wilson's secretary of agriculture.

A. A. Murphree, Florida, educator and Bryan entry.

Pat M. Neff, Texas, governor.

John Barton Payne, Illinois, head of the Red Cross, Wilson's secretary of the interior.

John M. Parker, Louisiana, governor and foe of the Ku Klux Klan.

Samuel M. Ralston, Indiana, a senator who looks like Cleveland.

Joseph T. Robinson, Arkansas, Democratic leader of the senate.

George S. Silzer, New Jersey, governor and moderate wet.

Champion Vote Getter.

Alfred E. Smith, New York, the wettest governor and champion vote getter.

William E. Sweet, Colorado, a radical governor.

Oscar W. Underwood, Alabama, senator and former Democratic leader in both houses of congress.

Thomas J. Walsh, Montana, senator and "prosecutor" in the Teapot Dome investigation.

Burton K. Wheeler, Montana, senator and "prosecutor" in the Daugherty investigation.

It May Be Some One Else.

Each of the leading candidates is now declared ineligible to the nomination for some reason by large aggregations of Jeffersonians, and interest is beginning to center on the lesser known aspirants.

McAdoo is expected to lead the field on the first ballot, but only his most optimistic followers continue to predict his nomination since the disclosures that he was retained by Doheny for his influence with the Wilson administration. The drawback to John W. Davis is that he is a "Morgan lawyer," and to Underwood that he is from the south, which goes Democratic anyway. Al Smith is called too wet, and he is a Catholic.

That calls to mind the observation of Senator Jim Watson (Rep., Ind.):

"If it were not for the prevalence of religious prejudice in United States, for which thank God, Al Smith would be nominated and would sweep the country," the Republican leader said.

Family Sends Pope Palms; Won Right in 16th Century

ROME, April 12.—Following the tradition of Palm Sunday eve, Pope Pius was presented with a spray of palms, offered by the descendants of the old Bresca family. The Bresca family was granted the privilege of sending palms to the pope in the sixteenth century by special order of Pope Sixtus V.

EMERSON ONCE MARVELED AT SHERMAN HOUSE

'Magnificent,' He Wrote Thomas Carlyle.

BY AL CHASE.

What Ralph Waldo Emerson thought of the Chicagoan of his day, of this city, and of the palatial four story Sherman house, one of the predecessors of the present Hotel Sherman, has just been discovered in letters he wrote to his friend Thomas Carlye, unearthed yesterday by Manager Frank Bering from some old records of the hotel.

FRANK BERING.

Emerson was a guest at the first Sherman house on a lecture tour which he made through the west in 1857. He then wrote Carlyle: "The Sherman house shows no sign of the rough and uncouth, although it was the first hotel built in Chicago."

He Writes Again.

In 1866, after the close of the war, he was again in Chicago and stayed at the Sherman, and again wrote to Carlyle. This time he said:

"I am still stopping at the Sherman house, but the hotel has been rebuilt. The old one was torn down in 1861, and this new hotel is built on a scale of magnificence which one does not certainly expect.

"Just remember that the town of Chicago was laid out in 1830, and at that time there were twelve families here. In three years its population had increased to 500 souls; in 1837 there were 4,000 people in Chicago, and it was looked upon as a big city. In 1866 Chicago has 250,000, and it is the fifth city in size in America.

No Charge for Candles.

"This hotel is lighted with gas—and so, unlike English taverns, there is no charge for candles. I am told there is a bathroom on every floor, and the hotel is four stories high. These bathrooms are at the disposal of the guests, a nominal charge being made for towels and soap; but if you supply your own soap and towels there is no charge for the use of the water. It is also heated without expense, if you so desire.

"The people who come to this hotel are very earnest and active. Many of them I find quite intelligent, being brought up in the east."

DEVICNA HELD FOR ROBBERY.

Judge Francis Borrelli yesterday held Frederick Devicna, 21, to the grand jury under $25,000 bonds for the alleged robbery of $78 from Henry Parche, 1316 Washington boulevard.

COURT "DIRECTS" JAIL LOCATION FOR MOVIE MEN

Jail sentences were imposed by Judge Charles A. Williams yesterday on L. F. Callahan and William Bauer, officials of the Popular Motion Pictures Production company, who entered pleas of guilty to having swindled scores of would-be moving picture stars by promises of fame which never came true.

Callahan was sentenced to three months in the county jail and Bauer to six months. They pleaded guilty after a dozen witnesses had accused them from the witness stand of taking their money.

Mrs. Juanita Flower, Callahan's first wife, was called into court by Judge Williams to explain a letter she had written to a social service worker, in which she said the case had been "fixed," and that Callahan had told her he never would go to jail. Later Callahan denied having told her anything of the sort, and said she had several times been a patient at the psychopathic hospital.

He declared that Mrs. Flower, who has married again, met him at the Hotel Sherman a week ago and for the first time learned that he also had remarried. Most of their discussion concerned his marriage, he testified.

Bauer and Callahan, according to testimony of state witnesses, freely used the names of moving picture stars high up in their profession, telling their victims that they were negotiating contracts with the stars. The name of Miss Muriel McCormick, daughter of Harold F. McCormick, also was whispered by them in connection with the promotion of new "clients," the state charged.

Judge Williams suspended sentence on the men until Tuesday so they might "arrange their business affairs."

SOCIAL PUZZLES ON PROGRAM OF MEETING HERE

Sociologists, judges, psychiatrists, and medical men from all parts of the country will deliver addresses at the second social hygiene conference to be held Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of this week at the Women's City club and the Chicago Woman's club, under the direction of Dr. Rachelle Yarros.

Dr. William A. White, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's government hospital, Washington, will discuss the problem of sex delinquency. Dr. Thomas Galloway of the American Hygiene association is to speak on "Sex Education in the Home, the School, and the Community." Social diseases will be discussed by Dr. Ludwig Hektoen, Health Commissioner Herman Bundesen, and others. The conference is being held under the joint auspices of the Social Hygiene council, the Illinois League of Women Voters, the Chicago Woman's club, the Women's City club, the Chicago Woman's Aid, and the Catholic Woman's league.

'YELLOW KID'S' PAL NABBED BY DETROIT POLICE

Frank Tarbeaux, said to be the oldest confidence game man in America and a member in good standing of the "Yellow Kid" Weil-Fred Buckmeister gang, was arrested in Detroit yesterday and will be brought back to Chicago to face trial for swindling Albert A. Charles of Kokomo, Ind., out of $100,000.

This is the same offense for which Weil, now on parole, was sentenced to Joliet penitentiary.

Tarbeaux, who is 71 years old, is also known as Frank Tarbox, William Hall and William Hay. He is said to have posed as a "retired capitalist" in the various transactions of the Weil gang.

POLICE RELEASE WIDOWER.

After a coroner's jury had returned a verdict that Mrs. Mildred Vaughan, 22 years old, 8541 West Jackson boulevard, had died of a self-inflicted operation, the police released her husband, Cread Vaughan, from custody.

WELL, AH, FACES IN PORTRAITS ARE OUT O' DATE

Countess Korzybski Paints 'Em Sans Mug.

When she hears some one say, "It looks just like me, but it hasn't any face," Countess Korzybski knows her portrait has been a success, she explained yesterday to a group of prominent Chicago women who met at her apartment in the Drake hotel to view a collection of "symbolic portraits."

Don't paint features; paint personalities, is the artistic slogan of Countess Korzybski, who was formerly Myra Edgerly of Chicago.

Like Second Cousins.

Bored with the characteristic family portraits, which, the countess claims, "always looked like a group of second cousins, and just about as lifeless," she began to develop a new method of portraiture.

"I would go through a London gallery," Countess Korzybski explained, "and in my imagination cover up the features of each portrait with my handkerchief. The subject, without a face, usually had very little to tell about itself."

Accordingly, the American artist began to paint English nobility without faces. When the picture was completed, she painted in a face and called it a portrait. If, without features, the picture wasn't the "image" of the sitter, the artist destroyed that drawing and started over again.

Many Patronesses.

After doing "faceless" portraits of English lords and ladies, Countess Korzybski made symbolic portraits of Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, Mrs. George J. Gould, Mrs. Joseph Leiter, Mrs. Edward Barton Payne, Mrs. John Hays Hammond, and others.

Among the Chicago women who are patronesses for the countess' exhibit of symbolic portraits which opens today at the Congress hotel are: Mrs. P. D. Armour, Mrs. George W. Dixon, Mrs. Robert B. Gregory, Mrs. Charles H. Hamill, Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, and Mrs. Moses J. Wentworth.

VOTE SLACKERS SUSPENDED BY HEALTH CHIEF

Municipal employés who are not interested enough in the welfare of their city to vote whenever the opportunity is offered deserve no place on its pay rolls, Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen declared yesterday.

HERMAN BUNDESEN.

Ten health department attachés who availed themselves of the hours given all city employés last Tuesday to vote were suspended when it was learned that not only had they not voted but they had not even registered in their home precincts.

"If a man has not civic pride enough to exercise his right of franchise, there shouldn't be room for him in the functions of any governmental activity," Dr. Bundesen told the ten. "A person getting pay from a governmental agency should be the first to set a high example of citizenship. The highest type of good citizenship known, I believe, is found in the regular and conscientious voter.

"I may not require employés in the health department to be registered voters but I will be certain that none of them defraud the city of two hours' time to vote when they will not do so through their own negligence."

The ten employés, whose names Dr. Bundesen refused to reveal, were suspended for violation of a department order permitting "full time employés, time, not exceeding two hours, to vote, provided they make application in advance for such time off of their respective bureau chiefs, provided, however, that employés not registered or not voting shall not be excused from duty.

SMALL PARDONS QUESSE AND HIS 9 LABOR AIDS

"Janitors' Union Chiefs Unfairly Tried."

William G. Quesse, president of the Chicago Flat Janitors' union, and nine official associates yesterday cashed in on the pledge cards their organization initiated in the interest of Gov. Len Small's renomination.

The union men, all convicted after fair trial, were unconditionally pardoned by Gov. Small following a hearing before the state board of pardons and paroles.

Late last year, after the Illinois Supreme court had sustained the sentences imposed upon the accused, the janitors' aggregation circulated cards pledging members to support Small in his campaign for renomination. In addition, there were circular letters urging a petition for pardon by the governor.

Also Pardons Chef.

With the granting of the pardons Small also pardoned Gus Zeidler, who was convicted of robbing a bank at Madison, Ill., in 1918. Zeidler was paroled from the penitentiary and was serving as chef at the governor's mansion when he was rearrested and convicted on the charge of assault. He is still in the technical custody of the board under the first sentence.

Besides Quesse the men relieved of penalties of from one to five years in prison were Eugene Fosdick, recording secretary of the union; John D. Sullivan, secretary and treasurer, and Business Agents Claude F. Peters, Robert Osterberg, Frank McWaters, George Waters, John Mattis, Peter Lagey, and Gus Anderson.

The convicted men were active in behalf of Gov. Small in the recent primary and had associated with them in campaign activities for the governor many other labor leaders and officials of the state Federation of Labor.

Raber Expresses Opinion.

Edwin J. Raber, who was appointed by State's Attorney Crowe to oppose the pardoning of Quesse and his cohorts at the Springfield hearing of the pardon board, said:

"The whole hearing was cut and dried before it even started. Reams of evidence on which the officials of the union were convicted didn't interest the members of the pardon board. They sat through the hearing as a matter of formality. The pardons are a travesty on justice. The people of Chicago wouldn't believe the methods employed by the janitors' officials to intimidate and extort graft from building owners.

"At the hearing a special Pullman carload of misrepresentatives of labor attended to smoke screen the issue. Realizing they couldn't face the true facts in the case, they raised the old familiar cry that this was an attempt of employers to crush the labor movement. The stench of the pardon board's action is stronger than that arising from Bubbly Creek."

Small Gives Reasons.

In extending clemency Gov. Small issued a statement which said, in part:

"The case was tried in the Criminal court of Cook county at a time when there was and had been much newspaper comment hostile to these petitioners and tending to prevent a calm and impartial hearing.

"The trial was held at a time when hostility to trades unions had been stimulated by the press and feeling ran high; and it took place before a trial judge who refused to permit a change of venue even after it was charged that he was prejudiced.

"I am convinced, after giving both sides a full hearing, that to permit these convictions to stand would be a denial of the right to a fair trial before an impartial tribunal.

"Therefore, a pardon is granted relieving each of the petitioners from the convictions mentioned."

Evidence Charged Terrorism.

Evidence at the trial adduced by the state was to the effect that agents of the union demanded money from owners of apartment buildings on allegations of infractions of union rules. Where they were refused, it was shown that the buildings were bombed, owners were slugged, women frightened, and entire neighborhoods thrown into turmoil.

In a number of cases the state showed that milk deliveries were stopped and infants deprived of their nourishment in buildings where there were disputes between the union and the owners.

Gov. Small yesterday issued an unconditional pardon to chiefs of the janitors' union who had been found guilty of conspiracy but who did not serve any of the sentence. REVENUE GAIN TO OFFSET DEFICIT UNDER NEW TAX

Smoot Sees Business Improve.

Washington, D. C., April 12.—[Special.]—Estimates of revenues under the tax bill as reported to the senate from the finance committee show that a deficit of $50,989,444 is in prospect during the fiscal year 1925 if the measure becomes law by July 1, 1924. A surplus of from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000, however, is in prospect in the fiscal year 1926.

Complete estimates as to the effect of the various provisions of the bill are contained in a report submitted to the senate by Senator Smoot [Rep., Utah], chairman of the committee, on behalf of the Republican members. The minority report will be presented on Monday by Senator Simmons [Dem., N. C.] ranking Democratic member of the committee.

Business to Improve.

"It is the opinion of the committee," said Senator Smoot in the majority report, in connection with estimate of a deficit of $50,989,444, "that this apparent deficit will be wiped out by the increase in the revenue yield of the income taxes because of the improvement of business conditions which will result from placing these taxes upon an economically sound basis."

The estimates for the fiscal year 1925 do not contain any allowances for possible increased revenue due to a stimulation of business because of the adoption of the Mellon surtax rates. Under the finance committee estimates the Mellon surtaxes as incorporated in the bill will mean a loss of $20,000,000 in revenue for the calendar year 1924, and a loss of $226,000,000 in revenue for the fiscal year 1925. In the original treasury estimates at the time the Mellon program was first announced it was figured that the Mellon surtaxes when in full effect would mean a loss of only slightly more than $100,000,000.

Margin for Bonus.

This estimate applies to the fiscal year 1926. This means upwards of $125,000,000 additional revenue which would be sufficient to wipe out the apparent deficit of $50,000,000 and leave a margin of $75,000,000 with which to finance a soldiers' bonus.

Total ordinary receipts for the fiscal year 1925 under the tax bill as reported are estimated at $3,247,091,000, as against estimated expenditures of $3,298,080,444.

The majority report makes the following comment on the proposed schedule of normal and surtax rates:

"The revision of the schedule of rates will give material relief to all income tax payers and, because of the reduction in the normal tax rates, more particularly to the great majority of tax payers whose incomes fall in the lower brackets. The reduction and revision of the surtax rates are designed to fix the rates at a point where they can be effectively applied, that is, at the point of maximum productivity."

Pothier Held for Trial for Cronkhite Slaying

Providence, R. I., April 12.—Roland R. Pothier of Central Falls, R. I., former army sergeant, was taken into custody by a United States Marshal and committed to the Providence county jail to await removal to Tacoma, Wash., where he is to face trial on a charge of having murdered Maj. Alexander P. Cronkhite at Camp Lewis, Wash., in 1918. The arrest was made on a removal warrant issued by Federal Judge Arthur L. Brown.

COURT REFUSES TO HALT NOOSE FOR MURDERERS

Unless Gov. Small grants them executive clemency and changes their punishment to life imprisonment, Lucius Dolton and Henry Wilson, colored highwaymen, who murdered Policeman Vincent X. Skiba following a robbery two months ago, will be hanged in the county jail next Friday morning.

The last barrier standing between the men and the gallows, except the governor, was swept away yesterday morning when the Illinois Supreme court refused to grant a stay of execution pending a rehearing of the proceedings in the lower court.

Word that the stay had been refused was flashed to First Assistant State's Attorney George E. Gorman and Sheriff Hoffman shortly before noon. The latter directed Warden Wesley Westbrook of the county jail to begin preparations to carry out the sentence imposed by Chief Justice John R. Caverly a month ago.

Mr. Gorman also directed Prosecutors William W. and Milton David Smith to bend their efforts to combating a plea to the governor to save the men. It was learned that a number of relatives of the two murderers are planning to go before Gov. Small early in the week to plead for the two lives.

If the men are executed on Friday, the final chapter will be written to the speediest criminal trial that has taken place in the local courts in many years. Ninety days after the two men emptied their revolvers into the body of Policeman Skiba they would pay the price of murder.

CANVASS MAY SHOW MIRACLES IN JUGGLERY

Election Officials "Perfect" as the Angels.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Sundry persons and organizations have claimed the honor of renominating Gov. Len Small, but earned credit has been denied certain meek and lowly judges and clerks of election in Chicago. Their part may have been small but they did the best they could.

Believe it or not, one set of judges and clerks is reported to have been better than perfect. This super-perfect team operated in the Eighth precinct of the Fourteenth ward. The total number of Republican ballots cast in that precinct is reported to have been 110, but the total vote for Republican candidates for governor was 112. Senator Essington is credited with 24 and Gov. Small with 88.

Canvass Will Reveal It.

These returns are not official but the official canvass will reveal them and that begins tomorrow morning. Gov. Small in this precinct is credited with more votes than were cast for all three candidates for the Republican nomination for United States senator. In this precinct Senator McCormick received 18 votes, former Gov. Deneen, 51, and Mr. Jenkins, 3, according to the proclamation of the judges and clerks of the polling place.

In honest voting and accurate counting of the ballots it is extremely seldom in Chicago that the total votes of the candidates for any office will be as many as the total voters of that party. So infrequently does it happen that it is considered almost a miracle when it does happen.

But in the First precinct of the Thirteenth ward this miracle is reported. The total Republican vote cast there was 57 and the total votes counted for governor were 57—Essington receiving 20 and Small 37. No other office received all the ballots.

"Fifty-six" Uunanimous.

But that miracle is not as good as the one performed in the Fifth precinct of the Thirteenth ward. The total Republican ballots cast here were 56. The combined Essington and Small vote was 56. The total for the three candidates for governor was 112.

This exhibition of angels' perfection naturally surpassed the work of the judges and clerks in the Sixth precinct of the Sixteenth ward. There the total of Republican ballots was 89. This humble bevy of judges and clerks were able to make a perfect score for governor only. Essington was credited with 26 votes and Small with 63. No other office received the full vote.

Eighty-seven ballots were cast by Republicans in the Twenty-fifth precinct of the Twenty-sixth ward. Gov. Small is credited with having gotten 83 of them and the other 4 were tossed to Essington. Of course not so many voted for United States senator.

The twenty-ninth precinct of the Eleventh ward supplies one set of them. The total of Republican votes cast there was 192, but the returns show 134 for Samuel E. Erickson and 63 for Emil A. W. Johnson, candidates for clerk of the Superior court. Their votes combined appear to have been five more than were cast.

More Than Were Cast.

Another precinct in which it is reported that certain candidates received more votes than there were ballots cast is the first of the twenty-fourth ward. The total ballots were 86; but for state's attorney, Crowe received 58 and Holmes 36, making a total of 94. The candidates for surveyor and also for member of the board of review received 87 votes, while only 86 ballots are reported to have been voted.

The first precinct of the Fourteenth ward supplies some entertaining information. Gov. Small is there credited with having received 211 votes. That is not quite twice as many as were cast for all three candidates for United States senator.

Same in the Fourteenth.

In the Nineteenth precinct of the 14th ward Gov. Small received 242 votes, which is 92 more than were cast for all of the candidates for United States senator. In the Twentieth precinct of that same ward Small's vote was 201, which is 21 more than were cast for all candidates for United States senator. The 201 for the governor is more than six times as many as were cast for all candidates for clerk of the Superior court.

If the unofficial returns are truly indicative of the interest among the voters in the 14th ward, it is certain they were worked up to a white heat. In the Twenty-second precinct 219 ballots were cast for Small, as compared with 159 for all three candidates for United States senator. In the Twenty-third precinct 238 voted for Small and only 183 for all senatorial candidates. In the Twenty-fourth precinct 217 voted for Small, against 188 for all senatorial candidates.

In the twenty-sixth precinct of the Twenty-sixth ward, Small is assigned 222 votes, but the three senatorial candidates combined mustered only 123 votes.

Small Worker Arrested.

Richard O. Hillyer, a Small-Deneen worker in the Eighteenth precinct of the Twelfth ward, was arrested yesterday and held to the grand jury in bonds of $10,000 by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki for complicity in the theft of a ballot box containing 290 votes from that precinct on primary day.

Virgil J. Litsinger, a nephew of Edward R. Litsinger of the board of review, was charged with the same offense before Judge Jarecki on Thursday.

Hillyer refused to answer the court's questions on the grounds he might incriminate himself. He did admit, however, he had voted in the Eighteenth precinct of the Twelfth ward despite the fact he had engaged a room at 3517 Archer avenue and his wife and children reside at 6125 South Troy street, both of which addresses are outside the boundaries of that precinct.

Ballot Box in Canal.

A hearing on the charge was continued until April 22, the same day on which the charge against young Litsinger will be heard.

The ballot box, which was said to contain a preponderance of votes cast for Essington, Brundage and McCormick, is believed to have been thrown into the Drainage canal at 31st street, where a stolen automobile was found abandoned.

Flowers Cover Australian Warship Sunk by Treaty

SYDNEY, N. S. W., April 12.—[By the Associated Press.—With solemn ceremony the veteran warship Australia was sunk today twenty miles off Sydney, in accordance with the naval program under the Washington treaty. Laden with hundreds of floral tributes from the populace, the warship was towed to the scuttling point by tugs, accompanied by two Australian and five British cruisers. There its sea valves were opened. The cruisers fired salutes and airplanes circled overhead as it sank.

MONSIGNOR FRERI MADE BISHOP FOR MISSION SERVICE

New York, April 12.—Mgr. Joseph Freri, national director in the United States of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, has been appointed a titular bishop in recognition of his services to the missions of the Catholic church, it was announced today.

In 1900 the Vatican intrusted to him the task of organizing this work in the United States, and during the twenty-four years of his directorship of the society he collected nearly $13,000,000, it was stated.

Mgr. Freri now is in Rome in his capacity as a member of the international council of missions of the Catholic church, which acts in an advisory capacity to the pope in missionary matters.

FIRST HOSPITAL FOR UNMARRIED GIRLS DEDICATED

Commander Booth Presides at Ceremonies.

BY MAURINE WATKINS.

Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army, who delivered the dedication address yesterday afternoon at the opening of the Army's maternity hospital and home at 5018 North Crawford avenue, designed particularly for unmarried mothers, stressed the need of such an institution.

"This is not only a hospital but a home for the girl who by one mistake finds herself an outcast of society. These hospitals give not only the best of medical care but a home and mother—her understanding and compassion," she said.

Over 12,000 a Year.

The Salvation Army has been unusually successful in this line of work. Over 12,000 women a year pass through similar institutions under its management in different sections of the country, and over 80 per cent of these are permanently restored to society. The Chicago institution, which cost something over $280,000, and will accommodate seventy-five women and forty children, is the only one of the sort conducted by the Army in the lakes region. Although it serves that region particularly, many girls come to Chicago from distant points in order to find obscurity.

Maj. Louise Coggeshall of Long Beach, Cal., who served in the Army's first rescue home here twenty-seven years ago, invoked divine blessing.

Opens Congress.

The dedication services marked the official opening of the central territorial congress conducted by Commander Evangeline Booth and Commissioner William Peart. Over 1,200 delegates from fifteen central states are in attendance—all decorated with buttons marked "O. T. R.," which expresses the Army's stand on the modernist-fundamentalist controversy: "Old Time Religion."

The Army's next project in Chicago will be a home for business girls, according to their commander.

"That is my dream," she said with a radiant smile, "to have a residence that is a real home big enough for all girls. We have a small place now, but it is overcrowded, and we have a waiting list that is"—she hesitated, then went on rashly—"miles long! I have just opened two in California—Los Angeles and San Francisco—that cost half a million each, and Chicago must have one, too. These have every convenience; the rooms themselves are completely fitted, and, in addition, there are music rooms, library, studies, recreation rooms, gym, and reception halls, where the young girl may receive guests. And all of this is at the lowest possible rate—to meet the salary of the young business woman, the student, and the girl just entering upon an art or profession."

She will speak on "The Midnight Tragedy" tonight at the Gospel tabernacle, Halsted, Clark, and Barry streets. Tuesday night, dressed in the rags which she wore when she studied the slums of London, she will tell "the tale of a broken heart" in Orchestra hall.

1743-THOMAS JEFFERSON-1826

One hundred and eighty-one years ago today Thomas Jefferson was born, and citizens of the United States are celebrating that event in various parts of the nation. A wise thing to do, for there is no better way of deriving from the past the lessons which it contains for us than by the examination of the character and careers of our statesmen. If we were to do this deliberately, not only as to Washington and Lincoln, but as to Jefferson, Franklin, Marshall, Hamilton, and many others of the leaders of thought and action whose lives have marked our national development, we should be better able to preserve what is good in our heritage and perhaps to guide our footsteps into the future.

The life of Jefferson is full of significance for any one who is studying the problems of our day. He was a great man not merely because his accomplishments were important in their consequences—as for example his purchase of the great domain then known as Louisiana—but because of his influence upon the political thought of the American people from his day to our own. Jefferson was born April 13, 1743, and died on the fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the great declaration upon which his fame chiefly rests, July 4, 1826. During this half century, which included the military struggle for independence, the foundation of our constitutional system, and the beginnings of our life as a nation, Jefferson exercised an influence over events and over political tendencies perhaps unsurpassed, and for a long period unequaled, by the greatest of the founders of the republic.

Jefferson dictated his own epitaph, and it is interesting as an estimate by a great man of his own achievements. His title to the regard of posterity he based on the fact that he was "author of the Declaration of American Independence, and of the statute of Virginia for religious freedom, and father of the University of Virginia."

No mention of the fact that he was President of the United States for two terms, and might have continued in office if he had not chosen to follow Washington's wise and noble precedent and refused a third term. No mention of his purchase of the magnificent empire lying west of the Mississippi. No mention of his other high official honors, such as being Vice President, secretary of state, minister to France, member of congress, and war governor of Virginia, when his courage and wisdom in sustaining the strategic policy of Washington in the north, in spite of danger and sacrifice to Virginia and to himself, were of great moment to the common cause.

These were doubtless all honors or services of less enduring significance than the authorship of the statute of religious freedom or the Declaration of Independence, and there is a certain pride in ignoring them. But in considering Jefferson's career we do not forget that his successful attack upon the law of primogeniture and of entail was a step toward the democratic distribution of property which was important. We must admire also his recognition of the dangers to the Union of slavery, and his effort, however impracticable, to provide for its gradual removal.

The purchase of Louisiana was the act of a farseeing statesman worthy to be named in the epitaph of the greatest. But it was done in defiance of Jefferson's theory of constitutional authority, although Jefferson, rightly, took his theories very seriously. It was a conspicuous example of the truth that a great statesman, like a great commander, knows when to disobey.

But this editorial is not an attempt to do justice, even in brief summary, to the character and career of Jefferson. We may, however, refer to two general considerations which seem to us to have special value at this time: one is Jefferson's faith in the individual and his dislike of government interference with the liberty of the citizen; the other is what we may call Jefferson's pacifism and weakness in foreign affairs.

As to government and liberty Jefferson wrote some extreme things which his political conduct does not support, as, for example, his suggestion that a society existing without government, save that of opinion and taboos, like that of the Indians, enjoys in the mass "an infinitely greater happiness than those under the European governments" (of the eighteenth century). Yet he approved on the whole and decisively supported the constitution. However, Jefferson sincerely deemed that government best which governs least, and he used his influence generally against the extension of its powers, for among the blessings enjoyed by the American nation which he took occasion to name in his first inaugural address he declared the one thing needed "to close the circle of our felicities" was "a wise and frugal government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned." This, he declared, is "the sum of good government."

His philosophy was a radical individualism. It was shared by most of the intellectual leaders of America during the first half of our history, notably Emerson. It was a philosophy natural in a new country where opportunity lay all before the energetic and resourceful individual, and its effect unquestionably was a tremendous energizing of the nation and the accomplishment of a material progress unequaled in past history.

Jefferson believed passionately in the preservation of the freedom of the individual, in his liberty to act, to think, to speak, to worship according to his own conscience. He believed in local initiative and in state's rights as a measure of private liberty, fearing the growth of a great and remote central will and a bureaucracy everywhere invading the private life. He believed in obedience to the lawfully registered will of the majority, but not when it invaded the sacred guaranties he was instrumental in embodying in the nation's fundamental law for the defense of the individual.

When we turn to Jefferson's ideas and conduct in relation to the foreign relations of his country, we find him indulging much the same fallacies as our pacifists; except that he looked at the possibilities of war more frankly than they do. But, like Mr. Wilson, Jefferson thought he could talk a nation at war out of the pursuit of what that nation considered its vital interest. Great Britain and France were in a struggle for world power, and even for survival, as were the allies and Germany in 1916. Jefferson tried to negotiate with the inevitable, and the result was that the war came to us and found us wholly unprepared.

Jefferson's military ideas were all wrong. He had no more sense in this respect than William Jennings Bryan or Arthur Brisbane. His notion of abolition of the navy, defending our coast with gunboats and capturing Canada with ground springers led by incompetent generals, worked in 1812 as might have been expected; we were thrashed on the Canadian border, and Washington was burned by a handful of British from a squadron cruising contemptuously in the Chesapeake. Americans of today whose dislike of war inclines them to support pacifist obstruction to preparedness ought to study the administrations of Jefferson and Madison.

But Jefferson was no nonresistant or quietist. He favored the taking and keeping of Canada in case of war with Great Britain. He had no objection to the taking of Florida in case of war with Spain. He was willing to fight if necessary, like all Americans, including most of our pacifists, only, like them, he let his dislike of war obscure the duty and practical sense of preparation to fight, if fighting became necessary. So, like them, he really encouraged aggression, prepared the way for our humiliation, and brought about unnecessary sacrifice of life and property.

Our school books tell us we "won" the war of 1812. As an actual fact we got a bad draw. The unsound military ideas of Jefferson and his disciple, Madison, were mainly responsible.

PACIFISM IN THE CHURCHES.

We think the issues raised by pacifism in the churches as indicated by the memorial framed Monday in the Chicago presbytery ought to be met, not covered by compromises or evaded. They are issues vital to the welfare of the American people, present and future.

We understand the sources upon which pacifism draws from Christianity. "But I say unto you, that ye resist not evil: but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also. And if any man will sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also."

If the pacifists will take their stand strictly upon the doctrine of nonresistance—although in another instance than the sermon on the mountain we are told Christ flogged the money changers from the temple—if these clergymen insist our policy and course of conduct shall be formed upon the admonitions of Christ, we must ask from them a consistent insistence upon all his teaching, as, for example, the communism which is expressed or implied in it. Will the presbytery vote that all property shall be common, as in the primitive church?

Our point is that the churches have, wisely, we think, interpreted the sayings of Christ as ideals for the inspiration and comfort of the spirit of man, as ideals toward which we strive and hope the race will some day attain. The effect upon our civilization of the influence of Christ's idealism has been pervasive and beneficent. It has sublimated many instincts and relations, ameliorated the harshness of the evolutionary struggle, brought men steadily up to higher levels of living. But the altruism of Christ would have destroyed those who adopted it literally, and its very survival has been conditioned upon its limitation in practice.

We demand therefore of the pacifists who recognize this, and who are not willing to adopt in its full rigor the doctrine of nonresistance, that they approach problems of organized government and of international relations with proper respect for the forces which have their play in the common experience of the individual and of nations. We complain of them that they are willing neither to stand upon the literal doctrine of Christ nor to face the lessons of mankind's experience in its stern struggle upward from the jungle. They are not ready to accept the fate of the nonresistant, nor, on the other hand, to face resolutely the world as it has been for all time and still is, and to make our nation strong in will and in material power to resist aggression with effect.

We ask them to show some historical perspective in the consideration of the historic fact of war, and not to set up half truths and sentimental fallacies to obstruct a sane policy of self-preservation founded on an honest consideration of the forces moving men and nations in the actual world.

What we mean by the pacifists' lack of historical perspective or a proper consideration of the lessons of human experience may be illustrated from the memorial. We read that the "war system as a system must be speedily abandoned if civilization is to escape collapse." Well, if the term "war system" is not mere jargon, it has been in operation since the beginning of man's life on this earth, and civilization has not only survived it but has advanced steadily in spite of war, and in some cases because of it. The cry that our civilization will collapse if war does not at once disappear is hysterical, but even if it were true, it is not the disarmament of the American nation which will end war. It is not the American nation that is perpetuating a "war system" or imposing it upon any other people by our policy or the implications of our national life and character.

The obsession of the obvious terrors, cruelties, and terrific wastage of war dominates the pacifist mind, but a people that turns pacifist in a world in which force is still a human factor has never disarmed an aggressor by its example. If we will look back upon the scene of human history we shall see always the pacifist cities of the plain conquered by the virile tribes which have swept down upon them from the hills, the cities where wealth has accumulated and the will to defend it has decayed, where the citizen soldier has disappeared and the mercenary watches on the wall. This is the immemorial lesson of history, and no nation can afford to close its eyes to it.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

Skyland, N. C.—April is hesitating at the foot of Pisgah, which was snow capped the other day by a wind from the north. The bluebirds can go up against this wind, but the blossoms have a hard time of it, and if you want your spring up north you'll have to stop blowing down this way and allow a south wind to carry it.

Trailing arbutus is blooming under the azaleas, rhododendron, and pines, but the azaleas have only leaf buds. The red bud maple gives the valley of the French Broad and the slopes of the foothills the appearance of blossom time. The peach blossoms are ready to spread and the thorns are pointed with red. The honeysuckle against the wall is in leaf, and on the hill the shag bark hickory is out with the tulip-like bud of its leaf cluster, but chestnut and oaks are still the pale widows of last year.

A brown thrasher wakes the morning with a cascade of song, the master singer of the valley. The song sparrow is in the thorns. The cardinal calls from the slopes. The rose breasted grosbeak is in the pine needles, and the yellow hammer flashes in the orchard.

In early night Orion walks across the valley and follows the crescent moon and the evening star beyond the mountains.

FOR AN IMMIGRATION POLICY.

The Johnson immigration bill, designed to take the place of the present quota law, which expires automatically on June 30, is to be taken up by the house of representatives immediately. The bill proposes to restrict the present flow of aliens into the United States approximately by one-half, and to restrict especially the immigration from southern and eastern Europe in favor of that from northern and western Europe, of which stock the pioneers of America came.

Unrestricted immigration in the years prior to the great war was rapidly turning many of our greatest cities into foreign colonies. This was especially evident in some sections of New York, Boston, Cleveland, Detroit, and Chicago. It was especially notable in these cities that the colonizing immigrants, who herded together and maintained their racial consciousness and customs with consequent delay in becoming Americanized and a consequent tendency to work for the interest of their homelands rather than for America, were composed largely of southern and eastern Europeans. In 1913, the last year of unrestricted pre-war immigration, we received 254,000 such immigrants from Austria-Hungary, 290,000 from Russia and Poland, 265,000 from Italy, 10,000 from the Balkans, and 22,000 from Greece. Three-quarters of a million alien minded people, for the most part, colonized in American cities and extended European slums therein in one year.

Such immigrants constituted more than three-quarters of the total European immigration for the year. Is that a good thing for America? Does it promote a high standard of living, American principles, and American institutions? Are the interests of such people, which are now being expressed in opposition to the Johnson bill, the interests of the United States, or of the various foreign countries from which they come?

Such questions, and no others, are the ones to be answered by congress. What is for the best interest of the United States, and of American citizens? Is it to allow any such tremendous increase of foreign colonies here, or is it to greatly restrict any such increase, and especially the increase of those types whose history, racial consciousness, antecedents, and mental character make adoption of American ideas and education in American thought, customs, etc., difficult to the point of impossibility.

SHOWING THE WORLD WHAT NOT TO DO.

The Argentine republic is about to attempt an experiment in socialism and paternalism on a scale never before equaled except in the communism of Russia. The rest of the world may be thankful that the experiment is in Argentina, as they have been thankful that applied communism was tried in Russia, not in their own lands.

The new experiment is a law to give to every resident of the country, after twenty-five years of labor, a pension for life at the rate of full salary at the time of retirement. Assuming that all Argentinians enter gainful occupations at the age of 20 years, none hereafter will have to work beyond the age of 45. Nearly one-half of all men's and women's ordinarily productive years will be lost. The wealth of the nation will be reduced directly to that extent, and indirectly by saddling the maintenance of those thus made idle upon those remaining in production.

If the nation can survive that it can survive anything. If it can survive that, Russia has made a success of communism and is now the world's greatest nation. Looking upon such an experiment should give Americans new faith in their own intelligence and in democratic government.

There is one good thing about it. Its failure is inevitable, and its failure will destroy another wild socialistic dream of Utopia. The more such experiments are conducted outside the United States the more are our social theorists refuted by fact and the more stable must our government be.

A CLASS THREAT TO U. S. TRADE.

A feature of the McNary-Haugen bill for government intervention to fix prices on agricultural products and equalize farmers' costs to their receipts is an unlimited power to increase tariff rates on farm products. This little difficulty has been discovered in a provision of the bill whereby a power to declare emergency prices which would make it incumbent upon the President to proclaim new tariff rates in accord.

A possible precedent of tremendous proportions is involved. If such a bill should become effective, virtual embargoes upon various farm products and their derivatives would be possible and probable. With such a precedent, similar action with reference to other commodities could be expected.

Tariff barriers, based upon group or class needs and desires, such as the highest protectionists have never dreamed of, would be threatened. That is but one of the many dangerous features of the bill.

BAD MILK, ILLNESS.

"MILK from cow with a diseased udder made seventy-eight Seneca Falls children sick within two hours after drinking it," according to a report received yesterday by Dr. Matthias Nicoll Jr., state health commissioner.

"On March 10 the practice was started of giving milk to the scholars in the grade schools of Seneca Falls about the middle of each morning. The milk was obtained from a local bottling plant. On the third day 125 children and five teachers drank the milk served at school. Within two hours seventy-eight children and four teachers were taken seriously ill with pain in the stomach, nausea, drowsiness, vomiting, and diarrhoea. Many were so prostrated that they had to be carried to the cars which took them home. Only twenty-nine of the children who drank the milk showed no signs of illness on either the first day or subsequently. All but twenty of those taken ill at school were able to return to their classes on the second day.

Investigation of the bottling plant showed that the milk on the morning in question came from a different dairy farm from that of the supply on the first two days, and that one of the cows of this herd had an inflammatory condition of the udder. The owner of the farm admitted that he had noticed something wrong with the cow, but did not think it of sufficient importance to discard the milk. At the time of the investigation the cow had a temperature of 104 and the milk had a peculiar odor. Laboratory tests showed that the milk contained large quantities of pus and germs capable of causing the type of illness with which the children were stricken."

The above story is taken from the New York State Health News service without alteration. It is an illustration on a severe scale of what frequently happens on a minor scale.

Safe milk is the best of foods for growing children. Rapid growth demands a large amount of lime for the making of bone. Rapidly growing children find in milk the best source of lime for the maintenance of a proper lime reserve. Without it, the teeth become of poor quality and decay in spite of the best of care. Milk contains the growth vitamines and those which prevent scurvy.

It is rich in fat, carbohydrates, and protein. But these good qualities are offset by the dangers it may carry unless it is as clean as it looks. The bacteria which cause garget in the cow cause disease in the child who drinks the milk.

The farmer should not have milked this cow and sent the milk to these school children. Where farm supervision is lacking, pasteurization is a necessary safeguard. A school principal who cannot get pasteurized milk for his pupils should see that the supply is heated on the school premises.

SEEMS TO BE O. K.

P. D. D. writes: I am extremely fond of starchy foods such as potatoes, beans and rice, indulging in them to the extent of beans and potatoes at least once a day and rice about three times a week. I have continued this diet for the last eight months. Am I doing myself any harm in a continuance of this "bill of fare"?

I neither gain nor lose weight on it, having maintained the average weight for my height and age for the last two years.

REPLY.

If you are not gaining in weight, and if your urine is free from sugar, eat as you are doing now.

CLEAN, YET HAS LICE.

R. D. writes: Will you kindly tell me how a perfectly clean person gets body lice?

Also, a cure for same?

REPLY.

1. Lice get on people from people who have them. They do not breed in filth. The only relation between filthiness of the person and lice is that filthy people are indifferent to both filth and lice and, therefore, associating with them is hazardous.

2. Kerosene, followed by hot vinegar for nits.

Remember: Body lice live and breed in the clothing. They go on the body to feed.

Head and eyebrow lice stay closer to the skin.

SUN THE CARPET.

Mrs. T. C. writes: Can the germs in a carpet that a consumptive person has used in his bedroom be cleaned enough to be used in a family without endangering their health?

REPLY.

Yes.

Thorough sunning is generally sufficient.

IMMIGRATION LAWS.

Chicago, April 7.—[Friend of the People.]—I want to bring my parents to this country from Czecho-Slovakia. I have had word from immigration authorities that the quota for the fiscal year is filled. But in the immigration laws it says that brothers, sisters, parents, etc., of U. S. citizens will be given preference. I do not understand then, why they cannot come in this quota. J. S.

When the quota is entirely exhausted the provisions of the law placing certain aliens in a preferred class has no application.
HOWARD D. EBEY,
District Director, U. S. Immigration Service.

WOULD ADOPT CHILD.

Chicago, April 9.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Can a U. S. citizen whose occupation keeps him traveling all over the United States and occasionally to Europe, adopt a child living in Chicago?

2. His present address is New York. Would he have to come to Chicago to take out adoption papers, or could some one do it for him?

3. How would he proceed in the matter? J. A. E.

1. Generally, yes.

2. The statute merely provides that a petition shall be filed in the Circuit court of the county wherein the child resides. Your authorized attorney could probably file it.

3. The statutory provisions are too lengthy to be set out here, and we suggest the employment of an attorney.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

BROADWAY AND WILSON.

Chicago, April 8.—[Friend of the People.]—Broadway north of Wilson avenue was paved with concrete and creosote blocks about four years ago. It has been and is rapidly deteriorating. Large ruts and holes appear frequently and naturally are becoming larger. Surely the alderman of this district should be active enough to see that this, the main thoroughfare on the north shore, is kept in good repair. The same is true of Broadway south of Wilson. S. S. B.

The necessary repairs on Broadway in the vicinity of Wilson avenue will be made when our street repair forces are operating in the vicinity.
THOMAS H. BYRNE,
Superintendent of Streets.

RENT IS INCREASED.

Chicago, April 8.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a lease on a flat which expires May 1, with the sixty day clause scratched out before signing. The landlord notified me on March 10 that the rent was to be increased after May 1. Do I have to pay the increase or does my lease automatically renew? C. G.

You are bound to pay the increase if you stay. The lease does not automatically renew. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WHY GIVE CHARITY TO A FAMILY WITH A BANK ACCOUNT!

Chicago, April 5.—When a family that possesses a considerable bank account and a full larder allows some of its members to go hungry, we don't send more food into that household. Instead, we send an officer of the law there or summon the parents to appear in court.

The blackest blot on all of Germany's black record is that there should be any needy persons in that land today! For years some of us have denied ourselves that we might help the victims of her brutality in other lands. Is it too much to expect her to feed her own people? Just intimate that they be left to the "tender mercies" of their own race and plenty of Germans will arise to call you "heartless" and "cruel." They know their own kind all too well, evidently. To expect help from a German is to await the impossible. H. C. Schulter's attack on your editorial is an indirect criticism of his own nation.

During the war we had war gardens. Why doesn't Germany raise food in her wonderful parks and boulevards? We read in the papers of her wonderful paintings by foreign masters. Why not sell them to wealthy Americans?

Before the war I had three bank accounts. I have none at present. I own no home. Shall my rent be increased that the Germans may preserve their bank accounts and acquire homes of their own. We Americans are too sympathetic both for our own good and for the good of the world. Our generosity helps to develop parasites. Feed the German children today and they will be hungry tomorrow. Teach the Germans to feed their own and they will never be hungry again. PRACTICAL IDEALIST.

HOW MUCH SHALL BE SACRIFICED FOR PEACE!

Chicago, April 6.—I notice where Mr. Hoerman of Saugatuck, Mich., has saved up some choice rhetoric and quotations from the best hearth and home literature and sent them right in for you to print. He may live at Saugatuck, Mich., but he certainly has the range, and I hasten to say that his stuff is beyond criticism. Mr. Hoerman should let us hear from him often and should have his writings translated and sent to other parts of the world. They would sure bring good will and boost pacifism. [I bet he could do some translating himself!]

But what makes me "dizzy" is his naming La Follette along with Allinson. My, what strides this pacifism is making. They used to call him "Fighting Bob," and I never heard him give anything out about sacrificing honor for peace. Of course, I know he voted against our entering the war and thought we ought to "yes" the Reds when they pass the bull, but some of us up here in Wisconsin kinda thought that was because some one else thought the other way and Bob was afraid of losing a bout.

I can't really be satisfied yet, in spite of Mr. Hoerman's allusion. Won't somebody ask Mr. La Follette if he would give up honor for peace? No new fangled definition of honor, mind you; just the plain, standard kind that civilization has learned to recognize through twenty or more centuries of experience.

I know this would be a hard question to assign, but if you could find a first class bootblack who could wipe his shoes properly, Mr. La Follette might loosen up and tell. HOWARD H. HAHN.

RESENTING HILL'S JESTS AT "THE WELL TRAINED NURSE."

Chicago, April 7.—Any intelligent person with true knowledge of what the nursing profession means to suffering humanity would resent your publishing in your picture section of Sunday's TRIBUNE W. E. Hill's idea of "The Well Trained Nurse." No doubt the disgusting pictures and descriptions have their origin in some recent unfortunate experience of Mr. Hill's.

We know that in every profession there are always a few misfits. Unfortunately certain narrow minded, hypercritical, soured types of individuals judge the entire nursing profession by one misfit.

My own experience with the trained nurse leads me to believe that most of them are conscientious, loyal, honest, and sacrificing in the highest degree. I know a great many of my friends would not be here were it not for the trained nurse. ANNA BELLE KENDALL.

FOR THE JOHNSON IMMIGRATION BILL.

Delafield, Wis., April 6.—What I have read recently seems to indicate that the question of immigration is to be sidetracked in this congress. This is surely a lamentable situation since the present law expires in July and we must take precautions against a horde of foreigners flooding into the country and crowding us from our very homes.

The Johnson bill seems to be the best immigration plan. Many people seem to think it too strict, but it is exactly what we need, as it hits strongly at the low type eastern Europeans. Any student of economics can see the necessity for this. Economics show that the lower class, whose educational facilities are poor, increase in population much faster proportionately than the upper class. It is because they do not stop to consider how they can afford to raise their children, but go ahead with large families, disregarding their financial condition. The upper class, wishing to maintain their high standard of living, have only two or three. It is then clearly seen that at this rate the control of our country will soon pass to the children of the low class immigrants rather than to the high class Americans. If America is to stay American and be a great power, we must save it for the children of Americans and not allow the majority to become foreign. DAVID W. ECCLES.

LABOR AGENCIES PROVE NEED OF PROTECTING IMMIGRATION.

Chicago, April 8.—If any argument were necessary to prove that the Johnson bill should become a law, the employment agencies on Canal and West Madison streets would prove it. On almost all the offices are signs "Greeks wanted," "Italians wanted," "Foreigners wanted," and this while hundreds of Americans are seeking work. Another practice that is making workers discontented by the wholesale is the habit of refusing to employ men on the job and making them hire through an agency at a fee of $2 at least. When men apply in the mornings at the freight houses, lumber yards, etc., they are told no men wanted. When they come down to Canal and Madison streets, if they pay an agent $2, they can go back to work in the very same places. M. J. M.

LESS SWEARING, PLEASE.

Chicago, April 6.—I want to raise my voice against the awful habit of the American people of using profanity. One can hardly open a conversation with any man on the street or in business without hearing profanity or vulgar language. I cannot understand why this should be. I am not by any means a reformer or a moralist. Nevertheless, I protest against the terrible habit of using such foul and filthy language. What is this generation coming to? Why, even the children are learning such profane words from their parents and elders on the streets and in the workshops — language such as the daily papers would not dare print.

I am not self-righteous nor do I consider myself better and above my fellow men, but I do detest and abhor the abominable habit of using profanity. HERMAN CLIFFORD.

SCHWARTZ ASKS $400,000 FROM CITY FOR CLIENT

Action Delays South Park Improvement Plan.

ALD. SCHWARTZ.

Much ado was made in the city hall yesterday about $302,950. Two lawyers, Ald. U. S. Schwartz and Herbert J. Friedman former secretary and now an executive board member of the Municipal Voters' league are pressing a claim for that amount for a client.

The point at issue is a piece of property at 2255 2257 South Park avenue, for which the city has offered $97,050 and for which Friedman and Ald. Schwartz, in behalf of their client, are demanding $400,000. A prominent engineer has said the property is not worth more than $75,000, but it is needed in order that the south park board's lake front project can be completed.

Different Values Set.

Ald. Schwartz, representing the owner, D. B. Williams, a year ago wrote the south park board that the property could probably be obtained for $130,000. A committee of valuators was sent to appraise the property.

The estimates on the land value varied from $22,000 to $51,800 and the building value estimates varied from $22,500 to $50,000. A compromise figure of $97,050 was reached and this was offered Mr. Williams, who through his attorneys rejected it.

Condemnation proceedings were begun last summer and there has been some talk that unnecessary delays have been obtained by the defendant. This, however, was denied yesterday by Phillip J. McKenna, attorney for the board of local improvements, who said the matter would be on hearing next week.

Try to Speed It up.

He said that John J. Sloan, president of the board of local improvements, has demanded that all possible speed be used to bring the matter to a culmination in the court. George Donohue, assistant to President Edward J. Kelly, said the south park board was doing everything possible to expedite the litigation necessary to obtain the property for the great lake front project.

It developed in the city hall yesterday that neither Attorney Friedman nor Ald. Schwartz intended going into court on the case; they had asked Attorney Charles E. Erbstein to represent Mr. Williams in the court hearing.

An Old Building.

"I haven't looked into it yet," Attorney Erbstein said last night, "but if there's anything wrong about it I won't try it."

Attorney McKenna said the building had been purchased six years ago by the present owner for $40,000. It is more than forty years old, he said, and in a dilapidated condition. It is a "ramshackle building on 50x155 feet of land," he said, "right up against the I. C. tracks, and in a neighborhood abounding with factories."

AIR HERO KILLS SELF AS GLORY FADES IN BRAZIL

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 12.—[By United Press.]—A revolver bullet fired by his own hand today ended E. Pinto Martins' brief year of glory as a Brazilian hero.

The young engineer, discouraged by financial troubles and unable to live up to the reputation he had made for himself by accompanying Walter Hinton on his flight from New York to Rio de Janeiro last year, shot and killed himself "as a gentleman's way out of his difficulty."

For two weeks the aviators were wined, dined, and cheered as heroes. Martins, liking the rôle of a hero, kept up a play for cheers by frequenting the score of night clubs where dancing girls of a dozen nations vie with baccarat, chemin de fer, and roulette, in making Brazil's capital one of the gayest night life cities in the world. Debt and trouble followed.

HOUSE BONUS BILL APPROVED BY SENATE BODY

Democrats May Fight for Cash Clause.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 12.—[Special.]—Favorable action was taken by the senate finance committee today on the soldiers' bonus bill. Approval was given the bill in substantially the form in which it was passed by the house, only minor amendments being made.

The Democrats did not attempt to offer their substitute, but served notice that they would present it on the floor. They plan to offer an alternative cash bonus proposition to supplement the insurance provision of the house bill.

May Precede Tax Bill.

Whether or not the bonus bill will be given precedence over the tax bill on the floor of the senate will be decided on Monday. The finance committee will meet then to decide which measure should go ahead. The Republicans favor giving the bonus bill precedence and this probably will be done unless the Democrats and radical Republicans stand together in favor of the other course. While some Democrats favor taking up the tax bill first, it is not certain that all are a unit on the proposition.

The finance committee restored a provision giving yeomanettes who served in the navy the benefit of the bonus. A provision was eliminated under which notes representing loans secured by adjusted service certificates could be used as collateral for the issuance of federal reserve notes.

Provides for Insurance.

The bonus bill as approved provides for twenty year endowment insurance certificates. Only those entitled to less than $50 will receive cash. The basic rate of adjusted compensation is $1 per day for home service and $1.25 for overseas service. The ultimate value of the insurance certificate is 25 per cent in excess of the basic rate of compensation plus interest. Veterans may borrow on their insurance certificates from banks, which in cases of default may recover the money from the government.

Indications are that the bonus bill will be passed by the senate after a few days of debate. It is now regarded as quite likely that enough votes can be obtained to pass the bill over the President's veto.

TWO HURT WHEN BLAST WRECKS STAMP CONCERN

One man was perhaps fatally injured and a boy received head and face burns yesterday when an explosion occurred on the tenth floor of a building at 19 South Wells street. The exact cause of the blast, which wrecked the office of the National Stamp works, was not learned.

E. H. Hanson, 40 years old, 1651 North Lorel avenue, owner of the stamp works, was severely injured. He was taken to the Iroquois hospital, where it was said that he may die. Arthur Jones, 16 years old, a colored printer's devil, was badly burned by the fire and explosion.

The blast threw the occupants of the building into wild excitement. Girls who worked in other offices made frantic rushes for stairs and fire escapes. Windows were shattered and the furniture of the office was ruined. The report of the explosion was heard for blocks.

OBITUARY.

DR. HAROLD H. ROBERTS, a pioneer physician of Maywood, died at his home in that suburb yesterday. Dr. Roberts was 52 years old. Besides his widow, he leaves two daughters, Margery and Flora Jean, and two sons, Charles and Donald. Funeral services will be held on Tuesday afternoon.

MRS. MARY MALLOY, a pioneer Chicagoan who lived in the same residence at 125 Swan street for fifty years, will be buried Monday in Mount Olivet cemetery. Her son, Sergt. John Malloy, is assigned to the Harrison street station. Solemn high mass will be celebrated at St. Kilian's church.

Mr. Nelson was born in Sweden fifty-six years ago but came to Chicago at an early age and has resided here since. He was the possessor of a decoration given him by the King of Norway, The Knights of St. Olaf, for his work for the Norwegian government.

Besides his widow, Hannah C. Nelson, he is survived by two sons, Gerhard and Howard, and one daughter, Mrs. William J. Birk, all of Chicago. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 1:30 from Hultin chapel and burial will be in Rosehill.

JOHN C. VAUGHAN, PIONEER SEED MERCHANT, DIES

John C. Vaughan, president of the Vaughan Seed company and one of Chicago's pioneer merchants, died last night in his home at 4610 Ellis avenue after a illness of only two days. He was nearly 73 years old.

In the days before the Chicago fire Mr. Vaughan came here from Pennsylvania and peddled trees during the summer months to pay for his high school education. In 1877 he opened a floral shop in a basement site near La Salle and Randolph streets, and he was Chicago's first wholesale florist. Now his company has two large downtown stores, one of which was opened last week.

Mr. Vaughan leaves a widow, who is in Miami, Fla., and two sons, Dr. R. T. Vaughan, night warden at the county hospital, and Leonard H. Vaughan.

CARL LUNDBERG, BANK PRESIDENT, DIES AT AGE OF 52

Death was caused by double pneumonia. Mr. Lundberg was a widower, his wife having died a year ago. He is survived by two sons.

For twelve years Mr. Lundberg was a state senator, serving three successive terms. During that period he helped to codify the state insurance law, which is one of the best in American legislative history. He was 52 years of age.

The funeral will be held this afternoon from the Swedish Baptist church, 59th street and Emerald avenue.

"Hursen" Funerals In Your Neighborhood

Whenever you attend a "Hursen" funeral, you realize at once why it is that thousands of families in Chicago and its suburbs have chosen Hursen to "conduct the funeral," in preference to engaging some one else who happens to be located in the neighborhood.

It is always one's desire to give the utmost, in service and elegance, as a final expression of devotion. Small establishments cannot provide the service, the quality, the elegance of materials, the environments of a "funeral-home," the superb array of automobile equipment, as Hursen provides them.

All this remarkable service, and new and unusual elegance, cost you less, far less, than the charges you would have to pay anywhere else, without this Hursen super-elegance and unmatched service. It is this higher quality and low price policy upon which Hursen's, the greatest of all establishments of its kind in America, has been built.

This same Hursen policy applies to every funeral, large or small. You may imagine that your distance away from any one of Hursen's 3 funeral-homes is too great to assure you this service. This is not the case. Whether you live 1 or 20 miles away, this same "Hursen" service and elegance, is at your disposal. There is no extra charge for distance.

Waist and Hips Reduced Quickly with
New Kind of Girdle
The Madame X Reducing Girdle, at $9.85 and $11.85

The moment you put on this new kind of girdle your waist and hips look inches thinner—and you get thin while looking thin, for this new invention produces the same results as an expert masseur. Makes fat vanish with surprising rapidity while you walk, play, work or sleep, yet does it so gently that you hardly know it is there. No more heart-straining exercises—no more disagreeable starving diets—no more harmful medicines—no more bitter self-denials.

Actually Reduces Fat!

The Madame X Reducing Girdle is built upon scientific massage principles. It is made of the most resilient rubber—especially designed for reducing purposes—and is worn over the undergarment. Gives you the same slim appearance as a regular corset without the stiff appearance and without any discomfort. Fits as snugly as a kid glove — has garters attached—and so constructed that it touches and gently massages every portion of the surface continually! The constant massage causes a more vigorous circulation of the blood, not only through these parts but throughout the entire body! Particularly around the abdomen and hips, this gentle massage is so effective that it often brings about a remarkable reduction in weight in the first few days.

At last! A wonderful new scientific girdle that improves your appearance immediately and reduces your waist and hips almost "while you wait!" The instant you put on the new girdle the bulky fat on the waist and hips seem to vanish, the waistline lengthens, and your body becomes erect, graceful, youthfully slender! And then—with every step you make, with every breath you take, with every little motion, this new kind of girdle gently massages away the disfiguring useless fat—and you look and feel many years younger!

The Madame X Reducing Girdle takes the place of stiff Corsets, and gives you, with comfort, Fashion's straight, boyish lines. Makes you look and feel years younger.

HERBERT HOOVER PLEADS FOR FISH CONSERVATION

Natural Resources Are Wasted, Waltons Told.

Herbert Hoover, fisherman, and secretary of commerce of the United States, talked fishing and national conservation policies last night to 1,000 brothers in rods, as the second annual convention of the Izaak Walton league of America closed at the Morrison hotel.

The convention represented delegates from forty-two states. Secretary Hoover, who was introduced by George E. Scott, told his audience that they have an obligation, the perpetuation of the "greatest for calm and contemplative thinking—fishing—something this country so sorely needs right now."

Invited to Capital.

And when the Waltonians by their applause signified they accepted the obligation he had put upon them, the secretary promised them the support of the department of commerce, and asked them to send a delegation to Washington to determine upon new national policies.

"Our fishing troubles are comparatively new," he said. "They were not here when this government was founded, and so new policies are necessary. We must have new policies or we destroy that greatest of instructions for calm and contemplative thinking, which is the hope of our nation.

"There are too few fishermen among our public life," he added. "That is why we have no national policies now relating to fish, whether as game or as food."

Oil Greatest Menace.

Then Secretary Hoover switched to pollution both our inland and our coastal waters. He said that oil is the greatest menace to both. He told how vast quantities of oil are being discharged from manufactories and from ships, coating the waters with a thin film, under which no fish can live, coagulating into thick masses, which destroy the sea fowl that light in them, and finally sinking to the bottom to destroy the oyster bed.

"If they do not destroy our oyster beds," he said, "these slimy masses at least lend our oysters a piquant, asphalt flavor.

"Yes, oil," he added impressively, "is certainly the one factor which must be attacked at once."

And after the roar of laughter which this brought: "If some conservation of oil had been inaugurated a long time ago it certainly would have saved a lot of trouble."

He called upon members of fishing clubs with preserves to give some time and attention to the propagating of fish.

"I ask you to do this," he said, "because as I have told you, your true fisherman must have an affection for his neighboring fisherman and most especially for that barefoot boy from which we all started our fishing career."

He told of conservation by the department of commerce along the Mississippi river bottoms. Young fish are left to die in the stagnant pools along the bottoms after the annual floods recede. From these they are rescued by the department, fed for a time and then turned loose in the fresh waters of the rivers.

Others Speak of Danger.

Secretary Hoover, President Will H. Dilg of the league, Prof. B. Shimek of the University of Iowa, Col. E. A. Sherman of the United States forestry service, also spoke of the more serious aspects of fishing, the food fish industries, the wholesale pollution of our streams and rivers and coastal waters, forest fires and reforestation.

"If we can't have our great out of doors," said President Dilg, "we can't have a great nation—and we have left nothing of the spirit of the pioneers who made this country. I ask every one of you, I ask the nation to join our fight to save the fragments of the old America of our ancestors."

HOOVER ADDRESSES IZAAK WALTON LEAGUE

Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, was the principal speaker last night at the dinner which concluded the convention of the Izaak Walton league. Left to right: Will H. Dilg, president of the league; George Scott, and Secretary Hoover.

EXHIBITION OF SARGENT'S WORK IS OPENED HERE

Extraordinary Show at Art Institute.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The John Singer Sargent exhibition of portraits and landscapes opened yesterday at the Art institute, two days ahead of its scheduled opening.

It is an extraordinary show. The paintings must range over more than a quarter of a century's time in painting. What apparently is one of the earliest portraits is the adorable likeness of Robert Louis Stevenson, done as the author paces his study and stands a moment in creative thought.

The most impressive portrait is that of the artist, William M. Chase; the most tragic, Mrs. Charles Gifford Dyer; the most triumphant, Ada Rehan; the most alive, Mrs. Augustus Hemenway; the most subtle, Joseph Jefferson, and the most exquisite, the Hon. Mrs. Swinton. In this last portrait a beautiful chair covered in apricot almost shares honors with the sitter.

Aside from the portraits there are several pictures, some interiors, other landscapes. Possibly the best of these is "The Venetian Bead Stringers," a canvas remarkable for its lighting.

Another interior, "The Venetian Glass Workers," is fine, and, perhaps, more familiar to us, as it is, I believe, owned by the institute. A tropical landscape, heavy with color, stimulating and effective, is "Cypresses and Pines." The mountains are excellently brought within compass in the "Simplon." Another painting, "The Marble Quarry at Carrara," is interesting, and the "Moorish Courtyard" is beautiful.

The exhibition will remain open until June 1.

ALLIES PROTEST TURKS CLOSING FOREIGN SCHOOLS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Turkey, April 12.—[Jewish Telegraphic Agency.]—The allied governments in Turkey today presented a collective note to the Turkish government protesting against the closing of the schools maintained by non-Turkish groups in Turkey, in accordance with the law passed by the Angora assembly recently.

The note points out the serious inconvenience resulting from this closing and asks the Turkish government carefully to reconsider its attitude.

During a conference regarding the status of American educational establishments in Turkey, says a message from Angora, the American high commissioner, Rear Admiral Bristol, was informed by Vassil Bey, minister of public instruction, that the government had definitely decided to close all foreign schools where religious education was given.

BOLSHEVIKI FREE ZEPLIAK FROM MOSCOW PRISON

Catholic Prelate Arrives at Riga.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

RIGA, Latvia, April 12.—With his face emaciated and yellow and his long beard and hair snow white after his sixteen months in the notorious Baturka prison of Moscow, Archbishop Zepliak, formerly head of the Roman Catholic church in Russia, who previously had been sentenced to death by the communists, arrived at Riga yesterday. He left today for Warsaw, but will go to Rome to confer with Pope Pius shortly.

The appearance of the aged prelate had changed so that pupils who had studied under him at the Petrograd seminary failed to recognize him. At his arrival at the home of a former pupil, now Bishop Treasun, Archbishop Zepliak's first request was for a hot bath and a barber.

Then, clad in clean robes, the archbishop held mass in the Franciscan church to give thanks for his deliverance from the soviet jail.

The arrival of the noted churchman took Riga by surprise, and Archbishop Zepliak himself was the most surprised of all, as he did not know that he was being released until he was given an official soviet pass to cross the frontier.

Archbishop Zepliak was given no food or money for the trip, but his two Red guards shared their scanty rations with him.

HONORARY COLONELS VANISH BY RULE OF WAR DEPARTMENT

Washington, D. C., April 12.—There will be no "honorary colonels" in the United States army. Any such designation has been held to be unauthorized by army regulations, and the war department has decreed against the creation at this time of such a grade in the commissioned ranks.

Objections to the practice filed with the department were said today to have resulted in the decision. Hence, actresses and other persons now holding designations of honorary colonels bestowed by regimental organizations, formally or informally, are not to be recognized and the practice is to be terminated forthwith.

Janitor Will Be Tried for Zoe Wilkins' Murder

Kansas City, Mo., April 12.—Dillard Davies, Negro janitor, was held today for preliminary hearing on charges of murdering Zoe Wilkins. Similar charges against B. F. Tarpley and Charles Wilkins were dismissed.

RUSSIANSRESENT FRENCH PLEA FOR MERCY FOR SPIES

Moscow Tells Paris to Mind Own Business.

BULLETIN.

MOSCOW, April 12.—Roumania is reported to have declared a "state of emergency" throughout Bessarabia.

(Recent annexation of Bessarabia by Roumania, with approval of the Little Entente, stirred up some indignation in Russia, which would have preferred an autonomous or Russian state there.)

MOSCOW, April 12.—[United Press.] Russia today sent a sharp note to France, "rejecting indignantly" the latter's interference in the trial of anti-soviet spies at Kief.

The Russian note was in reply to one from Premier Poincare in which he urged clemency for the alleged spies on humanitarian grounds.

Georges Tchitcherin, soviet foreign minister, did not mince words in his reply.

"The soviet government rejects indignantly the attempt of the French Government to interfere in the trial," he wrote. "This is contrary to the most elementary respect for the sovereignty of other countries. The French government, moreover, is well aware of the criminal work of the Kief accused.

Charges Hostile Act.

"Because these Kief spies were in contact with the French intelligence service, now France attempts to protect her own spies under a mask of humanity.

"This is a hostile act. It comes in addition to other hostile acts, for example, the sanctioning by France of the annexation of Bessarabia by Roumania and the prevention of a Chino-Russian understanding.

"The soviet government is surprised that the French government disregards the feeling its deeds are creating among the Russian masses, who have not forgotten their sufferings and the damage caused by French interventions.

Watching France Closely.

"Now they see that the French government, contrary to other western powers, continues its hostile policy against the soviet union. The soviet government disregards attempts to interfere in the competency of Russian courts, but watches French acts closely.

Trotzky Back in Moscow.

MOSCOW, April 12.—[By the Associated Press.]—Leon Trotzky, soviet war minister, who has been absent for a long period in the Caucasus because of ill health, returned to Moscow today.

Regarding the Bessarabian situation, Trotzky declared Russia was striving with all means for a pacific settlement, but was by no means content to let the situation remain as at present.

CICERO, SUMMIT, CHICAGO HEIGHTS HOLD ELECTIONS

"Dark Horse" Wins in Quiet Voting.

Elections were held in three Chicago suburbs yesterday with no apparent trouble, either politically or physically. Summit, Cicero, and Chicago Heights citizens went to the polls and named their choice for a number of public offices and while in the first named town the contest was spirited to a degree, quiet marked the march to and from the polls.

Dark Horse at Summit.

Voters wrote the name of a dark horse on 243 ballots at Summit, resulting in the election of William Gorrison as trustee of the village high school. He defeated Frank Walkowiac, a newspaper man and trustee for the past nine years. Walkowiac received 389 votes and Gorrison 473.

John Walsh was elected president of the village grammar school and Frank O'Hern, Dennis Hayes, and M. M. Hennessey were elected trustees. The name of Walter Board was written on 243 ballots as an opponent of Walsh, but the latter received 359 votes. The other dark horses, whose names were not on the ballots were C. E. Eames and W. P. Wilhert, who were voted for against O'Hern, Hayes, and Hennessey. Eames and Wilhert received 237 and 228 votes respectively.

Cicero Non-Partisan.

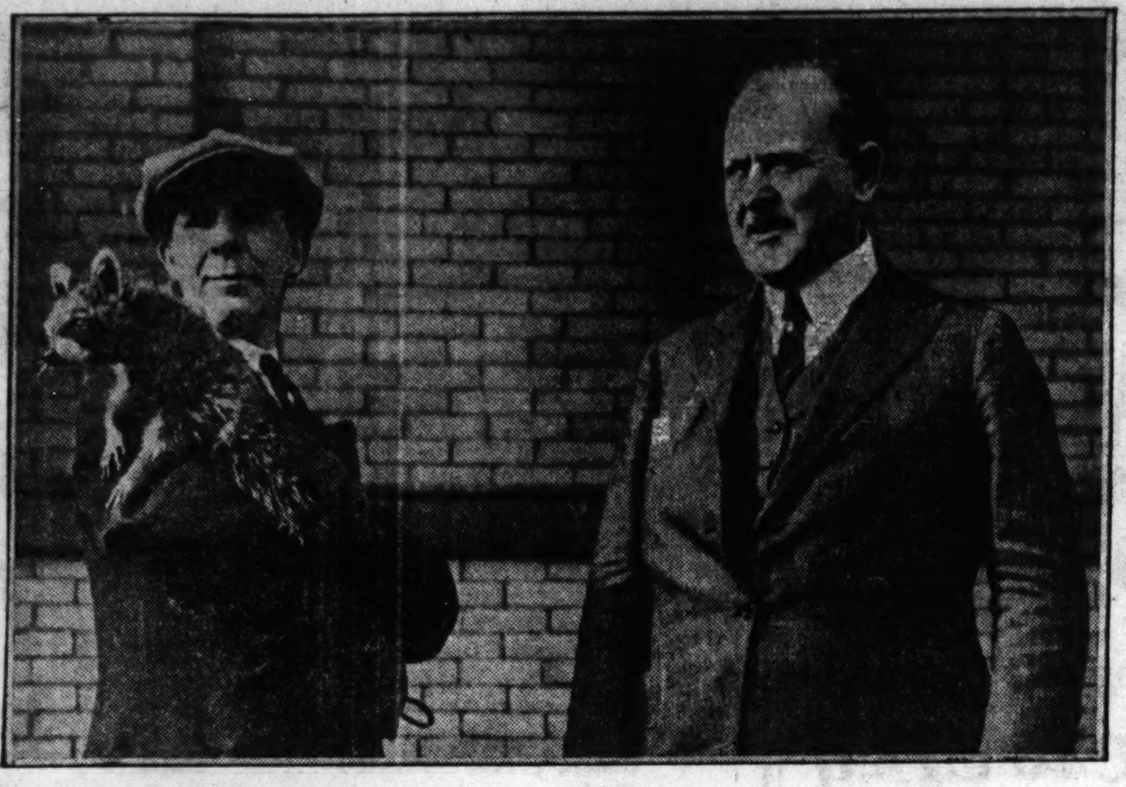
All was quiet and serene in Cicero as the citizens staged a non-partisan election and decided that Frank J. Petru, president of the board of trustees of the grammar schools, should be continued in office. Three men were selected from a field of seven for the offices of trustees of the grammar school boards. They are John Kupecek, Stanley Laszewsky, and Henry Armstrong. John J. Sherlock and Henry Langner were elected trustees of the high school board, winning over Leo Fredericks and Frank Kasweiczek. The vote was small.

George Whitefield, a jeweler, was elected to membership of the Bloom township in the uncontested election in Chicago Heights. Samuel C. Moore was named president of the village grammar school board and Simon Anderson, Phil H. Hay, and Mrs. Floyd Wallace were elected trustees. About one hundred votes were cast.

Evanston elected trustees in districts 75 and 76 and voted favorably on a bond issue of $250,000 to purchase the old high school building at Elmwood avenue and Dempster street, to be taken over for the intermediate grades next fall, when the structure is abandoned by the high school authorities.

Waukegan township reëlected its high school board yesterday. Elam L. Clarke defeated County Judge Perry L. Persons for president and William F. Weiss, Charles R. Whitney, John E. Reardon, and Mrs. William I. Lyon were returned as members of the board.

Wilmette Back Door Robber Captured



[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Wilmette's police force captured a mascot and a robber at the same time when they nabbed Mr. Rac Coon. That gentleman had aroused the ire of Chief of Police Albert Denman and Patrolman Henry Branigan because irate householders were calling up every morning to report that their iceboxes had been depleted of pies, cakes, eclairs, milk, pudding, oysters, and what not. Mr. Coon, being held a robber from necessity and not choice, was adopted when arrested.

Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, today conferred with President Coolidge on the vacancy on the seventh United States Court of Appeals, and recommended the appointment of Representative Everett Sanders [Rep., Ind.] as federal judge for that state.

Alibi for Soiled Shirt—"Laundry Wagon Stolen"

Are you sans a clean shirt this a. m.? The Woodlawn Laundry company offered a possible explanation last night when it reported that a wagon containing $5,000 worth of clean linen had been stolen.

DRY AGENTS MOP UP 13 WET SPOTS IN HARVEY RAID

Prohibition agents descended on Harvey, Ill., yesterday and as the clock struck the noon hour raided thirteen saloons and blind pigs, obtaining one of the biggest hauls of poison moonshine and other strange concoctions in the history of the department. Banana oil, kimmel, alcohol, beer, wine, a little good whisky, much "rank poison," and other drinks not yet analyzed or named were seized by the twenty-five operatives, who were under the leadership of Maj. Hamlet C. Ridgway, group chief of the Illinois prohibition department.

Between twenty and thirty barrels of beer were poured into the sewers while crowds of hundreds of the foreign element gathered to watch, muttered, and for a time threatened to mob the dry agents. With the exception of one saloonkeeper, the owners of the raided places were Poles. Some tried to fight. Two places, hearing of the raids, closed their doors and the agents had to batter them down.

WHY WOMEN LIKE THE BELMONT

Women who have a certain standard of fine living, who have never been satisfied with a residence hotel, go out of their way to state how well they like The Belmont.

The reason for this is evident to anyone who has even a superficial acquaintance with The Belmont. Because the object here has been not so much to surpass in degree the luxury and convenience admirably exemplified elsewhere, but to create a residence hotel different in character, with standards of its own, wholly congenial to the art of fine living.

One might cite as an instance the living quarters. Here you will find all the pleasant modern conveniences, of course; you will be especially pleased, however, with the individual character of each article of furniture as much as with the decorator's taste. You will be delighted, too, with the spaciousness of these chambers. They are made to live in.

It's a notable fact that guests of The Belmont do a great deal of entertaining in their own living rooms, although the hospitable Lounge on the main floor is quite unique for its informal elegance and restful charm.

Speaking of the appointments, the spaces, the decoration, the atmosphere of the kitchenette suites, a guest of The Belmont (a woman, of course) remarked—"nothing has been forgotten, everything has been done well."

The tariffs are relatively low; patrons of The Belmont will tell you they are surprisingly reasonable for what they cover.

(A Business Editorial)

"I'LL ASK MY BANKER."

The chance of an investor to make huge profits with a small sum has been estimated at one in a million. Yet there are few persons who have never had an increasing desire to hazard their savings in the hope of a magic road to wealth.

Knowing this human trait, there are smooth-tongued individuals who make an easy living by luring such savings away. They specialize in promotions with seemingly bright futures but little or no assets. If a purchase is made, all they leave is a beautifully engraved stock certificate and a good chance for a rude awakening.

A safeguard against such unscrupulousness is a connection with a good bank. Even for small savings customers, officials thereof willingly and speedily advise as to the worth of an investment.

To the demand "sign now," no matter how alluring the proposal, the response should be:

"I'll ask my banker."

GOVERNMENT OF GERMANY BOWS TO DAWES PLAN

Calls State Premiers for Final Approval.

and is unwilling to risk possible failure by prolonged discussion by the allied nations. It is hardly expected here, however, that this procedure can be followed so simply as indicated by M. Poincare's supposed instruction to M. Barthou.

Opens Up Political Questions.

The experts' report goes further than mere economic conditions within the purview of the reparations commission and introduces political questions such as the relaxation of the French hold on the Ruhr and the question of future guarantees to France, which will have to be subjects of discussion by the premiers. It is hoped, however, that these questions may be divided so as to permit the application of economic features of the report at the earliest possible moment, leaving the others to be worked out in detail.

News also has been received in London that the French war office has made an important report to M. Poincare on the question of military control in Germany. This report recommends that in place of Gen. Nollet of France, now in control of armaments in Germany, Prime Minister MacDonald be invited to name a British general. The French contend this would disarm the criticism that the French control is oppressive and brutal because the French desire revenge on Germany.

It is doubtful, however, if Mr. MacDonald will accept this without a very close study, as it would be regarded here as an effort "to pass the buck" and commit Great Britain to issues of which the majority of the people do not approve.

French Less Enthusiastic.

PARIS, April 12.—[By the Associated Press.]—"Prompt and prudent" sums up the comment of today's evenings newspapers on the decision of the reparation commission to recommend approval of the experts' plan. They expressed much surprise that the reparation tribunal took so little time in reaching an agreement.

The commission's prudence in handling the report is the quality upon which, after a day's reflection, the newspapers lay especial stress. The approval of the plan, it is emphasized, amounts to only adherence in principle. Taken generally, the tone of the comment is less enthusiastic than had been expected.

Some of the commentators implied that reservations were made other than that expressed in the official communique, "that Germany must first accept." The Temps says that, apart from the delays which may be involved through German casuistry or protracted intergovernmental negotiations on the political issues, prospects loom for a lengthy discussion within the commission itself.

Gen. Dawes Visits Rome; Received by Mussolini

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

ROME, April 12.—Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, head of the reparations experts committee, arrived in Rome this afternoon. He was received by Premier Mussolini a short time later. THE TRIBUNE learns that Sig. Mussolini expressed his satisfaction with the experts' report, which is called the first real move toward the solution of the reparations problem.

HUSBAND LOVED TOO MANY GIRLS, WIFE DECLARES

Asks Divorce from C. M. Dering.

Women, many of them, including a prominent moving picture actress, have played alluring parts in the existence of Charles Maxwell Dering, wealthy securities broker, according to the story told yesterday by his wife, Mrs. Chrystal Murray Dering, 626 Waveland avenue, testified in her divorce suit before Judge Joseph Sabath in the Superior court.

A letter from him to his wife was introduced in evidence. In it Dering asked to be allowed to devote himself to his wife with a "service born of pure love."

The letter resulted in a temporary reconciliation, she said, but later Dering "followed a movie girl all around the country."

Dering said after the hearing that the "movie girl" is dead and during the hearing her name was kept secret.

Dering's Letter to Wife.

"Dearest Little Sweetheart," Dering's letter to his wife, under date of Sept. 9, began, continuing:

"I should cover my face with shame for daring to call you such an endearing name, especially when I am enclosing in this letter my confession of infidelity to you.

"Some way, despite my action, I find it possible that some day you will find it possible to forgive my sin and extend to me the opportunity of righting, so far as a man can, the awful wrong I have done you.

"No sooner was it committed than I hated myself for a low down skunk. Did God give you to me and let me think I no longer loved you, and then loosened his hold on me enough so I could do this wrong in order to open my eyes to the 'wonder wife' you are?"

When reconciliation finally failed, the wife told the court, Dering's tone changed and he accused her of being too fond of "his very best men friends," she declared.

"One woman's husband came to the house looking for Mr. Dering," the plaintiff said. She told of having seen a letter written by Dering to a woman in which he said he was being divorced and would soon "be free to come to her."

Will Grant Divorce.

At the end of her story Judge Sabath ordered the attorneys to draw up a decree of divorce awarding Mrs. Dering custody of the two sons, Charles Maxwell Jr., 10, and Philip Rogers, 7. Alimony was fixed by agreement at $300 a month.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, April 12.—[By the Associated Press.]—The official returns from the parliamentary elections show that the government party suffered a defeat. The house will be composed of 55 Laborites, 44 Liberals, 27 Conservatives, and 20 Independent Liberals. According to the newspaper Kobenhavn, the Laborites, with the assistance of the Independent Liberals, will form a new government under the premiership of T. Stauning, chairman of the Danish Socialist party and former minister without portfolio.

BAKED enamel finish! This five passenger Jewett Brougham retains its glossy finish for years. No other car at any price offers you a body built and finished like this Brougham. Body is built of separate steel panels over wood frame—wood, because wood absorbs vibration, eliminates noise. Each steel body panel is dipped three times in finest black enamel, and baked at high temperature, with a rub after each coat—then fastened to the wood frame.

Use this car in all kinds of weather—in hot summer suns or in coldest wintry sleet and snow—the lustre stays. A wash brings out the gleaming black finish all over the car that you see only on the fenders of other cars. Years should elapse before repainting is thought of.

It's beautiful inside, too. Fawn-colored velour upholstery, comfortable seats. Both front seats fold; easy entrance and exit, either side.

For Business or Family Use

Smart as this Brougham is for family use, it is equally adaptable to business. By a clever arrangement, the rear seat cushion is removable. This allows ample carrying space for large packages, heavy luggage, or samples.

Jewett Six is a sturdy six—not a "light" six. Touring car weighs 2805 lbs.—200 to 400 lbs. more than "light" sixes—and the Brougham weighs in proportion. Paige-Timken axles front and rear; all-steel universal joints; 6-inch-deep frame.

More Power Than "Light" Sixes

Jewett's cylinders are 3¼x5 inches, giving 249 cubic inches piston displacement—17 to 47 per cent more power than "light" sixes. Drives from 2 to 60 miles an hour, or more, in high; takes most every hill in high; picks up from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 7 seconds in high. (Try that with any other car.)

Jewett gives you every traffic advantage. Parks in 16½-foot space at the curb; turns around comfortably in a 42-foot street; enters or leaves your garage on but a 14-foot alley.

Unique Among All Cars

Jewett is unique among all cars. It offers a combination of mechanical advantages and superiorities not found in any other car—the ideal combination of roomy comfort and convenient size; sturdy construction; wonderful power; amazing performance—moderately priced. Drive this Brougham. Call us now and arrange for a demonstration. ([illegible])

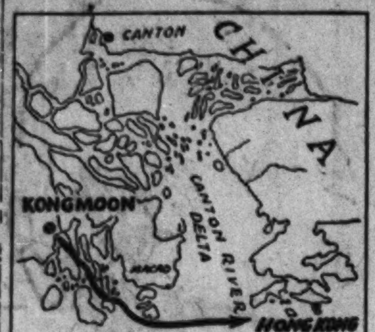
KILLED BY PIRATES



HONGKONG, April 12.—[By the Associated Press.]—A large number of Chinese passengers aboard the steamer Tai Lee, bound from Kongmoon for Hongkong, were fired upon and robbed in the Canton river delta last night in the first piratical attack since promulgation of the new anti-piratical regulations.

Pirates, posing as passengers, invaded the engine room, while confederates on the river bank simultaneously opened fire on the craft. The robbers ordered the engines stopped in the hope the craft would drift aground. While special guards and European officers were returning the fire of the pirates ashore, members of the gang on board the Tai Lee robbed passengers and ransacked their quarters.

A Chinese woman passenger was killed and several others were wounded. Three of the pirates were also killed.

MOTHER AND BABY FOUND DEAD.

Alexandria, La., April 12.—The bodies of Mrs. Ulysses Carricult and her 6 months old baby were found today in the Carricult home at Bunkie. The woman's throat had been cut. There were no marks on the child's body.

Ten dollars is being paid daily for the best letter and $5 for the second best letter received by THE TRIBUNE on this subject. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address contributions to the Prize Letter Contest Editor, care THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Tribune Square, Chicago, Ill.

Today's best letter, the $10 prize winner, follows:

"Say, if I win that $20,000, I am afraid I would go straight up and never come down. Henry Ford wouldn't have anything on me. I wouldn't buy any peace ships or Muscle Shoals, but I would be awfully independent just the same. First I would put about $15,000 in good safe bonds. Then I would fix out the kids in what they need. There is only six of them, and maybe you think it don't take real money to keep them going. If I had anything left I might take a few days' vacation and get my artificial leg fixed up. It needs it bad, but I can hardly afford to lose the time at present. J. R. S."

Today's second best letter, the $5 prize winner:

"If Baby (9 months old) and I (23) would get the prize! O, if we only could! Daddy was killed six months ago and we are all alone. We would go to Boulder, Colo., where we used to live, and buy a nice little home with the money we already have. Then we would invest the $20,000 in something good and safe, say at 5 per cent. That would bring $800 a year. With no rent to pay we could easily live very comfortably on that! M. O. S."

EVELYN NESBIT FIGHTS THAW'S LIBERTY APPEAL

Philadelphia, Pa., April 12.—Evelyn Nesbit, divorced wife of Harry K. Thaw, filed a petition in court here today opposing Thaw's possible release from the Penn hospital for mental and nervous diseases. Thaw goes on trial here Monday seeking his liberty.

The petition is in the interest of Evelyn Nesbit's son, Russel William Thaw, 14. The petition states "the boy has an expectancy in any estate Thaw may leave" by right of descent and asks that these rights be protected.

It also says that Thaw is mentally unfit and if released "will dissipate his own estate and the life interest in his father's estate."

Thaw has repudiated the boy's legitimacy, but Miss Nesbit contends he is Thaw's son and bears a striking resemblance to Harry. The court has made no decision on the petition.

DIES OF HEART DISEASE.

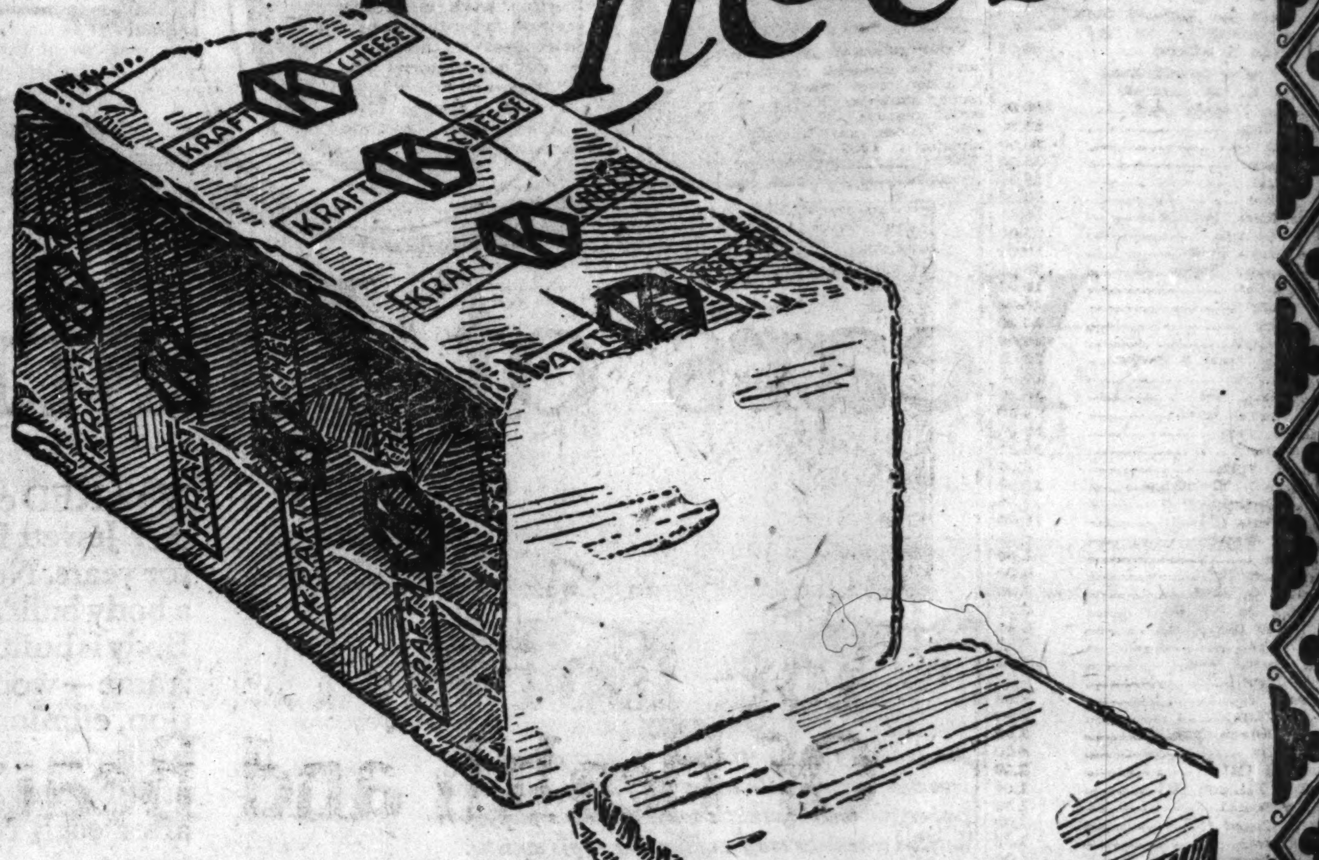
100% Cheese



KRAFT CHEESE
Decidedly Better

If you could choose from the best of America's cheese; then if you could cure it and age it until it was fully matured—ripe, rich and mellow—you would think it a rare privilege.

Yet you can have just such cheese, if you buy Kraft Cheese, for we do all this for you. Not only select it, and ripen it in our country plants, but we pasteurize this choice cheese for further purity and blend it for the inimitable Kraft flavor. That's why it's so impossible for imitators to approach the Kraft quality.

There's no rind, no waste, no drying out; for Kraft Cheese is 100% good cheese.

Four Varieties: American, Pimento, Swiss and Brick, sold by the slice, pound or loaf

Red Letter Day.

Yesterday was a red letter day in the history of the fund for the purchase of Gilbert Stuart's portrait of Washington. The first 3,000 of the 750,000 Dollar Day subscription blanks were finished, and their distribution was guaranteed by members of the Municipal Art league. The day's contributions to the fund totaled $716.50.

Mrs. Paul Schulze founded the Gold Star Mothers' club yesterday when she sent in a contribution in memory of her son, Capt. Walter H. Schulze, who died for his country.

Rotarians in Drive.

Many Rotarians contributed to the fund, and in the list "[R]" appears after their names.

In a letter to all troop leaders, Mr. Stephenson called on the 10,000 Boy Scouts of Chicago to fulfill their pledge of distributing the Dollar Day certificates.

Members of the Southern Woman's club were at the Art institute yesterday, dressed in colonial costumes, and sold many reproductions of the Washington picture.

Antanas Zemaitis, well known Lithuanian artist, whose paintings are now on exhibit in the Transportation building, will donate the proceeds of the sale of one of his own paintings to the fund.

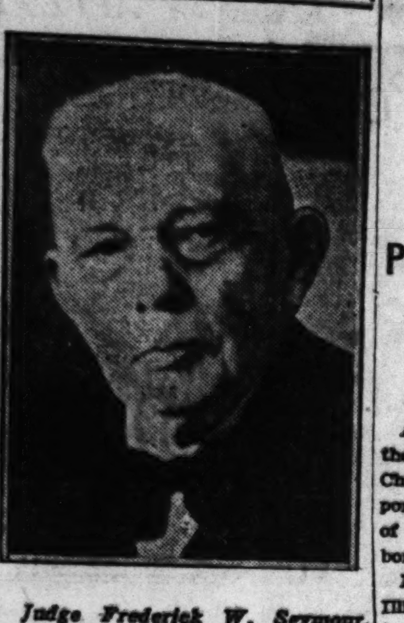
91ST MILE POST



Judge Frederick W. Seymour, Maywood's oldest resident, prominent G. A. R. man and one of the oldest Masons in the state, will celebrate his ninety-first birthday tomorrow. Born in the east, he made the trip to California in a covered wagon when 18 years old. Returning to Michigan, he enlisted in the 22d Wisconsin volunteers, took part in twenty battles, was wounded four times, and finally was taken prisoner by the confederate forces. He carried the first American flag into Atlanta when it surrendered. He was an employe of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad many years and served as Maywood's police magistrate sixteen years.

GUN TOTING COLLECTORS NABBED.

Three collectors who imagined revolvers were the strongest argument to present to a debtor, were locked up at the detective bureau yesterday charged with carrying concealed weapons. The men, Fred Goldenberg, John Holden, and William Fredericks, were arrested at 1069 Bingham street.

MIDWEST FACES BUSIEST YEAR FOR BUILDERS

Plans Insure Prosperity for All Industries.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A season of unusual prosperity in the industrial region dominated by Chicago is forecast in the latest report of Barney Cohen, district director of the United States department of labor's employment service.

Immense construction programs in Illinois and its neighbor states promise unprecedented activity for the builders of the middle west. What little unemployment exists in the district is confined chiefly to unskilled labor, and this surplus is expected to be absorbed when weather permits construction work to get under full speed. Mills and factories are speeding up and some communities report shortages of skilled labor.

Calls for farm help are coming earlier than usual this year. A shortage of hands already is reported in Michigan and Wisconsin.

Report in Illinois.

Concerning the general situation in Illinois the survey says:

"Employment conditions are improving and various industries throughout the state are commencing to call for additional help. A slight decrease in employment was reported in the packing house industry. Construction work is getting well under way and indications are this will be a record year in this line. Contractors are getting material and machinery on the ground and will begin an active campaign of road building as soon as weather permits. Although weather is unfavorable for farm operations, there are calls nearly every day for farm help.

Detailed reports include the following:

Chicago industrial district (including Cicero and Chicago Heights).—Small shortage of highly skilled mechanics in the machine industry. Increased activities and employment in building material plants and quarries. General employment is reported in building industry, with especially pressing demands for bricklayers and plasterers. Three new bus routes were opened in Chicago this month, affording employment to a considerable number. Chicago steel mills report heavy orders for the coming three months in practically all lines. One steel company is operating almost to capacity, with twenty-five of twenty-seven blast furnaces in.

Favorable reports were received from East St. Louis, Peoria, Springfield, Bloomington, Decatur, Danville, Elgin, Rockford, Quincy, Aurora, Cairo, Moline, and other places.

Situation in Indiana.

General.—Employment conditions are fairly well balanced throughout the state, with the possible exception of a surplus of common labor. However, this surplus will be absorbed as soon as road and street work starts. Building programs in the various cities are gradually commencing, and there is little unemployment among building tradesmen.

Good reports came from Indianapolis, Fort Wayne, South Bend, Lafayette, the Calumet industrial district, Anderson, Kokomo, Michigan City, and others.

Michigan Needs Farm Hands.

General.—Builders are about ready to open their spring and summer schedules and will employ a considerable number of tradesmen who have not had steady employment during the winter. It also means that the shops will lose some men who belong to the building trades but put in their winters in the factories. Several of the larger automobile plants are making changes in models and are building additions, thus making it necessary to close portions of their plants temporarily. At Houghton there is a surplus of surface laborers and a shortage of several hundred mine laborers. Mines are operating about 50 per cent at this point; several are closed due to a shortage of miners. Iron ranges are going strong.

Detroit industrial district (including Hamtramck, Highland Park, and Wyandotte).—Slight surplus of unskilled labor. Two large automobile factories are working some departments overtime. Building active, consisting of several new office buildings, apartment houses, and private homes. Shortage of married farm hands, and the farmers are beginning to call for single men for general farm work.

There were reports of general activity from Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Lansing, Muskegon, Jackson, Saginaw Bay City, and other points.

Wisconsin Wants Farm Help, Too.

General. — The most noticeable change in the employment situation in the last month has been the increased number of calls for farm help. Factory employment has been rather dull and several concerns have laid off a number of employés. While work alonbg the building lines has not opened up yet, indications point to a busy season.

Milwaukee Industrial District (including West Allis and Waukesha).—There was a slight improvement in employment conditions in Milwaukee the last month. A surplus of common labor still exists. Inquiries for farm hands have increased and there is a shortage. The metal working, woodworking, and shoe manufacturing lines are showing encouraging prospects. There is as yet little demand for help in the building trades line. Demands have dropped somewhat for women workers, except domestics. There is a surplus of women for clerical, factory, and day work.

Racine, Ashland, Green Bay, Kenosha, Oshkosh, and other points reported generally favorable conditions.

Ohio Sees Prosperous Year.

General. — Employment conditions generally are good throughout Ohio, and indications point to a prosperous year. Increased production reported in the automobile and rubber industries. More new factory buildings are being erected or planned in the northern half of Ohio than any time since 1917. At least $18,000,000 worth of industrials construction and $30,000,000 worth of electric power construction are in progress or contemplated for 1924.

From Cleveland, Cincinnati, Dayton, Youngston, Canton, and elsewhere there were proof of sustained activity.

FOUND DEAD IN ROOM.

Emil Erickson, 69, was found dead in his room at 614 West Adams street yesterday morning. Supposed alcoholism.

The Holland Furnace Cannot Be Sold By Dealers

Every Holland Furnace Customer MUST Be Pleased

People Expect More of a Holland Heating System

Than of other systems and would be sure to complain if they did not get more. This is exactly what we want them to do.

Not long ago we discovered that we had a customer in Canton, Ohio, who was not completely satisfied. In a short time we heard about it in Detroit, and three days later we heard about the same Canton complaint from people living in Chicago. Upon looking it up we found that the fault was our own, and we remedied it, forthwith.

But this illustrates why we cannot afford to have even one customer who is not delighted with his Holland Heating System.

If, while you are reading this advertisement, you can think of any Holland User who is not well pleased, you would be doing us a great favor by giving us the name and address.

Every Holland Customer holds a Holland Contract or a Bond that is worth a great deal of money to him, and he must be pleased. We are directly responsible to him for everything pertaining to the installation of his heating system as well as for the manufacture of it.

Holland Furnaces—manufactured by loyal workmen in two of the most efficient factories in the world; Holland Installation—done by our own trained Installers; Holland Engineering—done by skilled, courteous engineers, right in the home that is to be heated!

There is no loophole left in the way of success. And that completeness of service explains precisely why the Holland Furnace Company is the Largest Installer of Furnaces in the World. There are those who do a thing pretty well and seem to "get away with it." Then someone does it right and makes an outstanding success.

The Holland System is recognized by millions to be far more convenient, healthful and economical than either steam or hot water and is known to heat the house uniformly and steadily, which the system known as "hot-air" certainly does not do.

The Holland is not a pipeless Furnace. It is a complete pipe system, with cold air returns from rooms above the basement.

Are You Protected by the Holland Bond?

If not, let a Holland Man tell you just what it will cost for your home.

Remember, the Holland Heating System has been proven to use less fuel than any other system, so you are not spending money when you buy the Holland—you are making a paying investment.

Time Payment Plan If You Prefer

You can pay cash and get a fair discount, or, if you wish, you can buy on the easy payment plan. Any Holland man can give you all of the particulars and it will not obligate you in the least. You will enjoy talking with a Holland Man. He is required to be courteous and clean, as well as skilled in his profession.

In the list below (there is not one dealer in the whole list) you will find the right Holland Branch Office to call up. Do it today! You will always be glad you did it.

Does your present furnace need a little fixing? If so let a Holland expert take care of it for you at the fair Holland prices.

Free Book

"The Whole House Comfortable and Clean" is an attractive new book—a guide you should have in furnace buying. Send the coupon to us or get in touch with the nearest Holland Branch today. No matter how many furnaces we make, their installation depends entirely upon the number of trained men available.

Look at the list of Holland Service Branches printed at bottom of this page. The Holland man in your city will give you valuable information on home heating.

INDIANS "DOPED" TO NOSE OUT YANKS

PURPLE TANKERS WIN NATIONAL MEET

BREYER, HOWELL EACH LAND TWO EASY VICTORIES

Navy Team Paddles to Second Honors.

Annapolis, Md., April 12.—[Special.]—Northwestern university distanced competition in the swimming championships of the National Collegiate Athletic association, held at the naval academy yesterday and today, in connection with the tryouts for collegiate swimmers for the final Olympic tests in Indianapolis on June 2, 3, and 4.

The Purple took all the free style events here this afternoon, Howell in the 400 and 1,500 meters and Breyer in the 100 and 200. These, with Corbett's second in the 1,500, made up a string of triumphs which was unapproached. Naval academy was a weak second in team honors, Rule taking first in the back stroke event, while a second and a third were also registered. Olmstead of Williams was first in the breast stroke competition and Galbraith of Rutgers held his honors as a fancy diver.

Breast Stroke Race Close.

Only one event, the breast stroke, resulted in a close or doubtful struggle. Though Olmstead, the eastern champion, took a good lead at the start, he was challenged by Czerwonky of Wisconsin, who cut down the margin steadily in the last two laps, losing by two feet. Both pulled away from Allen, the fast Navy plebe.

The west took all three places in the 1,500 meter race, the longest ever contested here. Howell had an easy time of it, gaining three laps on the field, the course being a little over thirty-two laps. His teammate, Paul Corbett, was second and Johnny Moore of Indiana was third.

Hayes of Princeton attempted to hold Howell in the 400 meter event, but was left behind at the middle distance, the Northwesterner increasing his lead rapidly in the last half of the race.

Galbraith Wins Diving.

A clever and graceful trio of divers was made up of Galbraith of Rutgers, eastern collegiate champion; Bird of Minnesota, and Moser of Princeton. The Rutgers man won. Summaries:

100 meter, free style—Won by Breyer, Northwestern; Wyckoff, naval academy, second; Klingman, Iowa, third. Time 1:01 6-10.

400 meter, free style—Won by Howell, Northwestern; Hayes, Princeton, second; Moore, Indiana, third. Time 5:28 9-10.

200 meter, breast stroke—Won by Olmstead, Williams; Czerwonky, Wisconsin, second; Allen, navy academy, third.

100 meters, back stroke—Won by Rule, Navy academy; Coles, Brown, second; Draper, Princeton, third. Time 1:19.

200 meter, free style—Won by Breyer, Northwestern; Hayes, Princeton, second; Wyckoff, Navy, third. Time, 2:27 9-10.

Fancy diving—Won by Galbraith, Rutgers, 105.0 points; Bird, Minnesota, 97.19 points, second; Moser, Princeton, 96.69 points, third.

1,500 meter, free style—Won by Howell, Northwestern; P. Corbett, Northwestern, second; Moore, Indiana, third. Time, 22:41.

JOHN V. BURNS, WHITE SOX FAN, DIES SUDDENLY

John V. Burns, staunch White Sox rooter, died yesterday following an acute attack of angina pectoris while he was entering the office of Dr. A. J. Breslin, 366 East 47th street. Burns was a great friend of President B. B. Johnson of the American league and Owner C. A. Comiskey of the Sox, and for years was proprietor of the Fisher Building bar, one of baseball's unofficial headquarters. Mr. Burns was a constant attendant at the Sox games.

SIKI REFUSES TO ACCOMPANY MANAGER TO U. S.

HAVANA, Cuba, April 12.—José Maria Lombardo, Panama featherweight, and his manager, trainer, and promoter, sailed today for New York on the steamer Siboney. B. H. Levy, manager of "Battling" Siki, also departed on the Siboney, leaving Siki in Cuba, as the Senegalese refused to go. Levy stated that whenever Siki decided to "take up training seriously" he would come back or send for him.

COL. MANNING IN SOCCER POST

Peter J. Peel, president of the United States Football association, announced yesterday that Lieut. Col. G. R. Manning of New York has accepted the position vacated by ex-Secretary T. W. Cahill on the Olympic committee of the association and on the American Olympic committee and that George Collins of Boston has accepted the position of manager of the American soccer team for the Olympic games.

Jap Davis Cup Player Lands in California

San Francisco, Cal., April 12.—Takeo Harada, tennis champion of Japan, arrived today from Japan and will leave for the east next week. He plans to enter Harvard in the fall, but will represent Japan in the Davis cup matches and Olympic games.

St. Paul Promoter Offers $10,000 for Fulton-Wills Go

St. Paul, Minn., April 12.—Jack Reddy, St. Paul promoter, late today wired an offer of $10,000 to Paddy Mullins, manager of Harry Wills, to have Wills meet Fred Fulton in a ten round bout here May 6.

SMACKS OF BIG LEAGUES' OPENING

Bill Barrett carried home the tying run for the White Sox in the exhibition game with the Giants yesterday in the sixth inning of a game which the Sox finally won, 2 to 1, in the tenth inning. Barrett was on second when Clyde Crouse hit down to Jackson. Jackson threw Crouse out at first, but Barrett, seeing the Giant infield asleep, rounded third and beat Terry's throw to Snyder at the plate by a yard.

IN THE WAKE OF THE NEWS

WELCOME, FRANK CHANCE.

WELCOME back to Chicago, Frank Chance!

When Kid Gleason, an honest rough diamond of baseball ability, determined to retire as White Sox manager there were two men with whom south side fans could be satisfied as his successor. You were one of them.

We have not forgotten your peerless leadership of the Cubs in the days when they were winning league and world's titles, nor have we forgotten your own part in their exploits.

You had great players working with you then. You will not find as great baseball talent now at your disposal. The White Sox have not been themselves since 1919. We do not expect you to win a pennant this season—nor next season. It takes longer than that to build up championship squads in these days of spirited competition.

What we hope you will do is to put back in the White Sox that old White Sox spirit which carried to a world's flag against your own Cubs in 1906, which won another world's title in 1917 and should have won still another in 1919. You are a disciplinarian, and you know when your players are delivering

We're not going to hurry you, but revival of that old White Sox spirit is what we expect from you, Frank. Then we'll begin to talk about pennants.

My Treasure Trove.

These wonders for my pleasure I command:
A flash of fire from a jewel rare,
A tale that trickled from a dextrous pen,
Or famous picture by a master hand;
A strain of music lends its liquid note,
A tapestry of ancient, cunning weave,
The tinkling of an oriental gong,
Queer odds and ends of things from lands remote.
Treasures I claim, gifts of a law divine,
In curio shop, museum, anywhere—
Privilege is mine to look on them at will.
Possession to the rich—their beauty's mine.
Adrienne.

Let George Do It.

"Why don't you tell these winter book players they are taking all the worst of the price?" inquires a Helper.

Why should we? They don't have to accept the price unless they want to. We talked a chap out of taking 12 to 1 against Zev in the future book a year ago. He isn't over it yet. Besides, it's sort of fun to have a modest wager down on a colt—even if the price is ridiculously short—and follow his preparation for the big Kentucky race.

Might as Well Let Them Alone.

Friend Harvey: What'll we do with them—our young people, I mean? Daughter and her young man went to the kitchen to assemble the usual Sunday evening tea. Going out for a drink of water, I arrived on the scene just in time to see daughter implant a kiss on each cheek of her young man, who appeared to regard it as nothing unusual. Noting my presence, but unabashed, daughter roguishly remarked, "Why, hello, pop, I wasn't expecting you." C. J.

Being a Good Girl.

Won't you please tell that Helper of yours that all this stuff about being a good girl is the bunk? I read all that dope and thought maybe it was O. K. While I was trying it out the little devil next door married the guy. I. M. Blue.

RECORD CROWDS SEE MAJORS BATTLE IN PRE-SEASON GAMES

SOME 61,500 fans paid their way through the gates to see eight major league ball clubs in inter-league games yesterday. This should give fans an indication of what the coming season will be. The annual city series at St. Louis between the Cardinals and Browns had the best crowd, 23,000 paid admissions being taken in at the opening game. The Philadelphia series game between the Macks and Phillies drew 15,000 and a similar attendance was recorded at New York, where the Yankees and Brooklyn Robins battled. Cold and rain held the Giants-Sox crowd down to 8,500.

STEEL CLUBS GET OFFICIAL O. K. OF U. S. GOLF BODY

Pine Valley, N. J., April 12.—Steel shafted golf clubs were approved for use in all national championships and all competitions under auspices of the United States Golf association at a regular meeting of the executive committee of that body here today.

The steel shaft was recommended for approval by the implement and ball committee of the association after exhaustive tests. In giving its opinion, the implement and ball committee stated the steel shaft as at present manufactured does not afford any playing advantage over the wooden shaft.

It was pointed out that the use of steel for shafts would tend to conserve the supply of hickory now used for wooden shafts. The executive committee, in approving the steel shafts, reserved the right to alter or amend its ruling in event any departure is made in the manufacture from those submitted for tests.

Cornelius S. Lee, secretary of the association, announced that the ball tests still are being conducted under auspices of the implement and ball committee.

Members of the executive committee are of the opinion that the ball ultimately recommended for adoption will be lighter and larger than that now in use.

Twelve different sizes and weights of balls are under test. There is no intention that the "floater" type of ball will be recommended for adoption.

The executive committee fixed Sept. 12 to 13 as tentative dates for the Walker international cup contest, and appointed Robert A. Gardner captain of the American team. To assist him in selection of the personnel of the team W. D. Vanderpool and William C. Fownes Jr. were named.

It was decided that the contest would take place in the New York district.

BRINGS HARMONY

SANCTION of steel shaft golf clubs by the United States Golf association today removed the only open difference between that body and the Western Golf association, which, after thorough trials two years ago, authorized the use of steel shaft clubs in tournaments.

CHANCE DRIVES SOX TO 2 TO 1 WIN OVER GIANTS

Mostil Scores Winning Run in Tenth.

BY FRANK SCHREIBER.

The "Uncle Tom Cabin" spring series between the White Sox and Giants is even up. With Manager Frank Chance in command for the first time this season, the Sox hustled out yesterday and annexed a 2 to 1 victory in ten innings of close combat in the south side park.

The teams now are tied, each having won four games, while one contest resulted in a deadlock. The final tussle will come today.

A wild heave by Rookie Bill Terry ended yesterday's encounter in favor of the locals. After Mostil's double opened the tenth, Bill scooped up a sacrifice bunt laid down by Hooper, and in an attempt to flag Mostil at third, threw the ball over Long George Kelly's head. Mostil scampered in.

Both Teams Show Class.

For the opening ball game of the season the contest was exceedingly torrid. The pitching was all that could be expected from hurlers in the well known "mid-season" form, while the defensive work, lacking three breaks by the Giants, was brilliant. The Sox completed the battle errorless while McGraw's boys were charged with three miscues, the final of which by Terry was disastrous.

Charley Robertson was trotted out as the first Sox flinger, and toiled only three innings, the short workout probably being his top-off drill to prepare him as the opening day pitcher. During his reign the Giants were helpless, but they employed their bats with a little better effect against George Connally. Connally yielded the lone Giant tally in the fifth inning but after that wasn't pressed. Ted Lyons finished up after a pinch hitter had been employed for Connally in the ninth.

McQuillan Is Injured.

Black Hughie McQuillan was the first New York slabber, but knocked himself out of the pastime in the fifth inning. Caled to slide into third base in the Giants' half of the session McQuillan slid flat and was knocked kicking when his neck hit the corner of the bag, and he was done for the day. It may have been fortunate, for the Sox had been hitting McQuillan hard, gathering six blows off him in the four innings he worked.

Dennis Gearin, the wee southpaw, came on the scene in the Sox fifth and went the rest of the distance. He yielded the tying run to the Sox in the sixth when Bill Barrett outguessed the New York infield and raced in from second base while Crouse was being retired on an ordinary infield out, and was charged with defeat in the tenth.

Some 8,500 fans turned out in the welcome act to Chance and the Sox, and shivered through the matinee. Score:

CROWD OF 23,000 CHEERS SISLER AS BROWNS COP

St. Louis, Mo., April 12.—Before a crowd of 23,000 that overflowed Sportsman's park, the St. Louis Browns defeated the Cardinals 4 to 1 in an exhibition game today opening the season here.

President Ban Johnson of the American league was among those who cheered George Sisler, new manager of the Browns, when he took his old place at first base. Sisler got two hits in four times up and played a stellar game throughout.

Rogers Hornsby scored a home run for the Cardinals in the fourth with no one on, and Ken Williams did the same for the Browns in the sixth.

HINSDALE BEATS AUSTIN ON TRACK

Led by Borsan, who scored 29 points, Hinsdale High school track team yesterday defeated Austin, 82 2-3 to 30 1-3, at Hinsdale. Borsan placed second in the 70 and 220 yard dashes, won the 60 yard low and high hurdles and broad jump, and tied for first in the pole vault. Anderson scored 20 markers for the losers.

6 Year Old Fan Killed in Fall from Signboard

GIANTS SHOULD REPEAT IN NATIONAL LEAGUE BUT WILL HAVE TOUGH JOB KEEPING THE REDS DOWN

Cubs Placed Third and White Sox Fifth, but "Expert" Has His Alibi All Ready in Case Something Happens to Upset Dope.

FOREWORD.

TRYING to predict how the teams in the two major leagues will finish at the end of the 1924 season is a thankless task at best. If one happens to make a strike he immediately is put in the class of "experts" and stays on the pinnacle until he makes a poor guess, when he falls with a thump in the estimation of the fans, who as a whole are much better "experts" than some of the writers who give their best days to chronicling incidents of the diamond. There are too many "ifs" entering the national pastime for any one man to be sure his predictions will hit the mark. He can study the strength and weakness of the different teams as they line up for the opening game and make a pretty fair guess on how they should finish, but a thousand things may crop up as the season progresses that will upset the "dope" and the "expert's" efforts go for naught. Thereafter and forever comes the laugh from the fans. The appended predicted standings of the teams in the two leagues is printed after a careful study of the squads on their training trips, and if they are found incorrect when the flag falls the writer's alibi is presented right now—IFS UPSET THE DOPE.—Sporting Editor.

BY FRANK SMITH.

[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE New York Giants under the management of the veteran John J. McGraw, ably assisted by the inimitable Hughey Jennings, should win the pennant in the National league, but it seems sure they will not go under the wire first without knowing they have had the hardest fight ever chronicled in the national pastime.

And what team will give them the fight? There is but one guess—the Cincinnati Reds, who, if Pat Moran still were alive, should be given the preference over the Giants. In making this statement, we wish it understood that we are not criticizing in advance the ability of genial Jack Hendricks, who we confidently believe will make a success of a job thrust upon him at a moment's notice, a job not hunted by him. There were others who sought to handle the reins over the veteran team and only time will tell if the morale will hold up under affable Jack.

Cubs in Third Place.

The Chicago Cubs are picked to land in third position, one jump ahead of where they finished a year ago. These youngsters under the direction of Bill Killefer are a much improved lot over what they were last season, when they gave the enemy a tussle in every game played—win, lose or draw. They appear even more peppery this year and with the confidence born from experience gained playing together for a season, the Killefer gang will be tossing a bomb into the camp of the enemy when least expected. They will be up there fighting all the time and it behooves their closest rivals to watch every step.

Trailing the Cubs should be McKechnie's band of Pirates from Pittsburgh. Many critics have openly stated that this crew would be in the pennant race, with a mighty good chance of capturing the gonfalon. It cannot be denied that they will be up there fighting and early in the season probably will be seen hanging on the top rung, kicking off the Giants, Reds, and Cubs, only to succumb later to superior strength and strategy. The makeup of the Pirates lacks the stamina required for the grueling battle scheduled for the parent organization.

It's Up to Hornsby.

Topping the second division should be Branch Rickey's gang of Cardinals. The team certainly is no stronger than it was a year ago, in spite of some glowing accounts emanating from the training camp. True, Rogers Hornsby is back, having declared he has discarded his last year's trouble with his manager, but will he forget and give his best to the team as he has promised? Time alone will tell. Men rarely forget or forgive a fistic encounter.

Brooklyn steps into the picture in sixth position. Bespectacled "Skinny" Robinson has not improved his outfit over last year and had Dave Bancroft been able to secure some pitchers from the grab bag after his transfer from the Giants, the Beantown crew, placed in the seventh slot, easily could be moved up a notch. The Braves will be trouble makers all year for their rivals and no team should go into battle with Bancroft and his crowd in the belief that he has a victory packed away.

The Poor Phils.

The least said of Fletcher's Phils, the better. The former Giant has a thankless job on his hands, and as long as the present owners are in the saddle, there appears little likelihood of team improvement.

Undoubtedly there will be a lot of National league fans who will differ on the choice for pennant winner. The reason for the choice, in a nutshell, is that McGraw has a reserve team that would make the Phils look like selling platers. Every position on the team is protected in event of accidents, and his pitching will be greatly improved over last year.

As against this, the Reds are made up of veterans who are liable to crack under the strain, and the continued good morale is food for speculation. It is not believed the pitching staff can do better than it did last year when, led by Luque, it set up an enviable record. However, we will not be angry if Jack Hendricks and his Reds upset our dope.

STRANGE as it may seem to a lot of American league fans, the Cleveland Indians, under the guidance of Trapshooter Tris Speaker, are chosen pennant winners in Ban Johnson's circuit. This prediction is made in spite of the fact that the World's Champion Yankees are still on the map. The Miller Huggins crew is placed second and reasons for this sort of decision will be narrated herewith.

Sixteen and one-half games behind the leaders at the finish of last season, the Indians are showing a comeback this spring that will startle the fans, once they glimpse the lads in action. Speaker has a wrecking crew the equal of which never has been seen in recent baseball history. The six leadoff men each hits better than .300 and the pitching has improved 50 per cent. The defense as the season opens is impregnable. The team as a whole shows the biggest improvement in the league.

Yanks Are Too Cocky.

The Yanks admittedly are the Indians' nearest rivals and they will lose the pennant unless they change their self-satisfied manner. They already act as if they had the flag tucked away and go about their daily affairs with the apparent belief that all they have to do is play the games scheduled, collect their monthly checks and plan the world's series campaign. These stars make up a tough team to defeat, but they are going to be a very much surprised lot when they face some of the pitching to be dished out to them this season. It will be a whole lot different than it was a year ago when they ran off with the rag.

Where the Indians exude pep from morning until night, the Yanks go about their work in such a lazy fashion that spectators become tired. It will behoove the Yanks to get a move on themselves. They are but little improved over last year and are in for the surprise of their prima donna lives.

Tygers in Third Place.

Ty Cobb's Tygers are no more fierce than they were a year ago and are placed in third position with the same number of games won and lost. The weak spots in the infield which handicapped the team in 1923 have not been strengthened and the Georgian's crowd will step into the race with the same strength as he developed last season. It will be a gang, however, that never will quit. It boasts a bunch of dangerous men behind the willow who are liable at any minute to break up a game.

Connie Mack has declared time and again that he will finish no worse than second place. There is no question but what the elongated manager boasts a team that will throw fear into the hearts of his adversaries. He finished fourth last year, has added strength this season, but when the curtain falls he should have about the same games won and lost. The lads will start with a dash that may carry them to the front for a time, but Connie will witness them fall before the mightier.

Sox May Land Fifth.

The White Sox are picked to land at the top of the second division, probably more from civic pride than from their ability to land there by brain and brawn. Frank Chance will go into the race with practically the same team that so disappointed Bill Gleason and Charlie Comiskey at the fag end of last season. He will have added strength on the slab, but that about lets him out. The P. L.'s ability as a manager may make up for some of the needed strength on the field.

The writer believes that George Sisler's St. Louis Browns are a bit stronger than the Sox, but the Mound city boys are set down behind the locals for the reason that it is believed Sisler will not be able to go through the whole season as a player as well as manager. He will start, but it is hard to tell when his eye disability will force him to withdraw to the side lines. The boys are with the young manager to a man, and if morale alone won pennants, Phil Ball would be ordering a flagstaff.

Red Sox Much Improved.

The strengthened Red Sox are given seventh place, with the Washington team at the bottom of the ladder. Lee Fohl was handed some men during the winter who closed up some gaps in a weak team that Chance pulled out of the selling plater class with little help from his former boss.

Our sympathies go out to Stanley Harris, the youthful manager of the national capital's club. He hasn't a thing better than was handed him this spring. It is understood that he will have full sway over the players, but it is hard for any one knowing Clark Griffith to believe that he can keep his hands off. If he does butt in, which is a prediction in many corners, then the stuff is off.

PRE-SEASON VIEWS OF BASEBALL OFFICIALS

WITH the opening of the 1924 campaign of the major league clubs only two days off, baseball leaders are forecasting another record season for the national pastime. President B. B. Johnson of the American league declares that the 1924 American league season will see one of the closest contests in the league's history, while Owner C. A. Comiskey of the White Sox and William L. Veeck of the Cubs assert that their teams are stronger than last year and will be pennant contenders.

KENESAW M. LANDIS

Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis made the shortest statement on record.

"I have nothing to say. These preseason statements are the bunk. Good-by."

JOHN HEYDLER

New York, April 12. — [United News.]—The New York Giants are stronger than they were at the close of last season, but all the other clubs in the National league are stronger, too, even the Phillies and Dodgers. Therefore the fight will be closer and the Giants will have a very hard time winning their fourth league pennant.

This was the formal benediction of John Heydler, president of the National league, pronounced yesterday as a sort of "Let 'er go" signal.

BAN B. JOHNSON

"Another close race and a great season await the American league. Just how the campaign will finish cannot be forecast, but I look for the Yankees to make a strong bid for the title again. Cleveland, Detroit, and St. Louis also should make a strong fight.

"Boston, with Lee Fohl as manager, is a greatly improved club, while Clark Griffith, with Stanley Harris as his manager, is confident he will have a ball club in the title running. Connie Mack and his hustling young Philadelphia club cannot be overlooked, while the White Sox will be capable of putting up a strong fight."

CHARLES A. COMISKEY

"The White Sox will be battling for the championship. With the return of Frank Chance to Chicago and with the club strengthened by many new young men, I can't see anything but success for the Sox.

"Chance can have any player he wants whom it is possible to purchase. Money will be no object in building up the Sox.

"The young men brought up this season in the training camp have been pleasing to me. I look for a strong team, a team which, led by the fighting spirit of Chance will be near the top if not the champion when the season closes."

WILLIAM L. VEECK

"One of the greatest races in the history of the National league, with the clubs in the fight all the way, that's what I believe of the 1924 season of the National league.

"New York, in my opinion, has slipped just enough, while Cincinnati, Chicago, and Pittsburgh have strengthened sufficiently to make it a great free for all. I am positive that the Chicago Cubs of 1924 are much stronger than they were last year and that they will be strong enough to be in the running from the jump to the close of the season.

"The 1924 club is a better hitting, better fielding, and better base running club than we had in 1923."

Firpo Hears Call of U. S. Coin; Will Sail Soon

BUENOS AIRES, April 12.—[United Press.]—Luis Angel Firpo, South American boxing champion, who returned today from a short trip to Montevideo, has booked passage for the United States, probably on April 24, it was reported here.

Jap College Baseball Champions Land in U. S.

Seattle, Wash., April 12.—Meiji university baseball team, Japanese intercollegiate champion for 1923, arrived here today for a series of games with American colleges and independent teams.

CUBS CLOUT BALL ALL OVER K. C. FOR 13 TO 6 VICTORY

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Kansas City, Mo., April 12.—[Special.]—Killefer's Cubs clouted the pill all over the pasture again today and trounced the Blues in emphatic style for the fourth straight time, the margin being 13 to 6.

Just by way of a change, a southpaw was trotted out against the major leaguers, but he went the way of his right handed predecessors. The left hander happened to be Herb Thormahlen, one time Yankee, and after five rounds he staggered out of the picture under a burden of nine runs and as many hits. Then came one Ahmens, a rookie, and the clouting continued until the Bruins had grabbed themselves fifteen blows.

Alex Has Easy Time.

The veteran Alexander oiled up his wing for his last appearance prior to the regular season and simply toyed with the Blues, except in the sixth, when a grounder took a lucky hop over Cotter's head and helped the locals to three runs instead of the one they deserved.

Alex desisted after the sixth and Ray Pierce, the college southpaw, took a hand for the three remaining chapters. The squatty youngster was a bit disturbed by the fact that a number of his home folks were watching, but nevertheless hurled fairly good ball.

Pierce had to contend with a few fluky hits and an error by Barrett, but on the other hand Cliff Heathcote, who relieved Statz in center for the last half of the game, saved the rookie considerable anguish by making a beautiful running catch of a drive to deep center with the corners loaded and two out in the eighth.

Perfect Day for Gabby.

Gabby Hartnett, the human pepperbox, put on a regular field day for himself, and came up smiling with two triples and a brace of singles. He started the scoring with his first triple in the second frame, after which Statz doubled and a couple gents erred for two runs.

In the fourth Leo made the circuit again. He singled a run across and then scored himself on a double by Alex. In the next inning he singled in the wake of hits by Adams, Miller, and Vogel, and in the seventh tripled again, only to die on third when Michaels, the kid shortstop, lined out to second base.

Killefer turned his speed merchants loose on the bases and they pilfered six sacks on Old Lew McCarthy. Three of these were copped by Grantham, who played only six innings. He stole second in the third and in the fifth chapter raced from first to third on two consecutive pitches. Heathcote did the same in the eighth.

Heathcote Finds Batting Eye.

Incidentally Heathcote has been busy with his bat since Otto Vogel threatened his reign in right field. Prior to today Heathcote had been called in three times as pinch hitter and produced a single, double, and triple. Today he played three innings and in one of two attempts with stick slapped a two bagger to left center.

WE'LL GIVE 'EM A FIGHT FOR THAT PENNANT: CHANCE

"Say that was quite a ball game," Manager Frank Chance declared after seeing his White Sox hand the Giants a trimming yesterday.

"All of the boys are in great shape and from the way they went along yesterday you can bet we're going to give them all a battle for the flag. Those pitchers sure look good. We'll beat 'em tomorrow and cop this sprigg 'championship' so we'll enter the regular season champs, anyway."

Chance watched the contest from the bench bundled up in a big overcoat. He didn't get the chance to visit Owner Comiskey in the hospital yesterday, but indicated he would make his call this morning.

Manager McGraw of the Giants visited Owner Comiskey of the Sox at Mercy hospital, where Comsy is recovering from a recent operation, yesterday morning, and talked over plans for another European tour of the Sox and Giants next fall.

McGraw visited Europe last fall and while on the trip looked over the possibilities of another tour for the teams and yesterday laid his information before the Sox owner. Nothing definite was planned, however, but it is known that Owner Comiskey is not unfavorable to the plan.

The Giants' manager declared that he was greatly pleased that the Sox have Frank Chance as their manager and expressed the opinion that the old rivalry between the New York and Chicago National league clubs would be transferred to the Sox and Yankees.

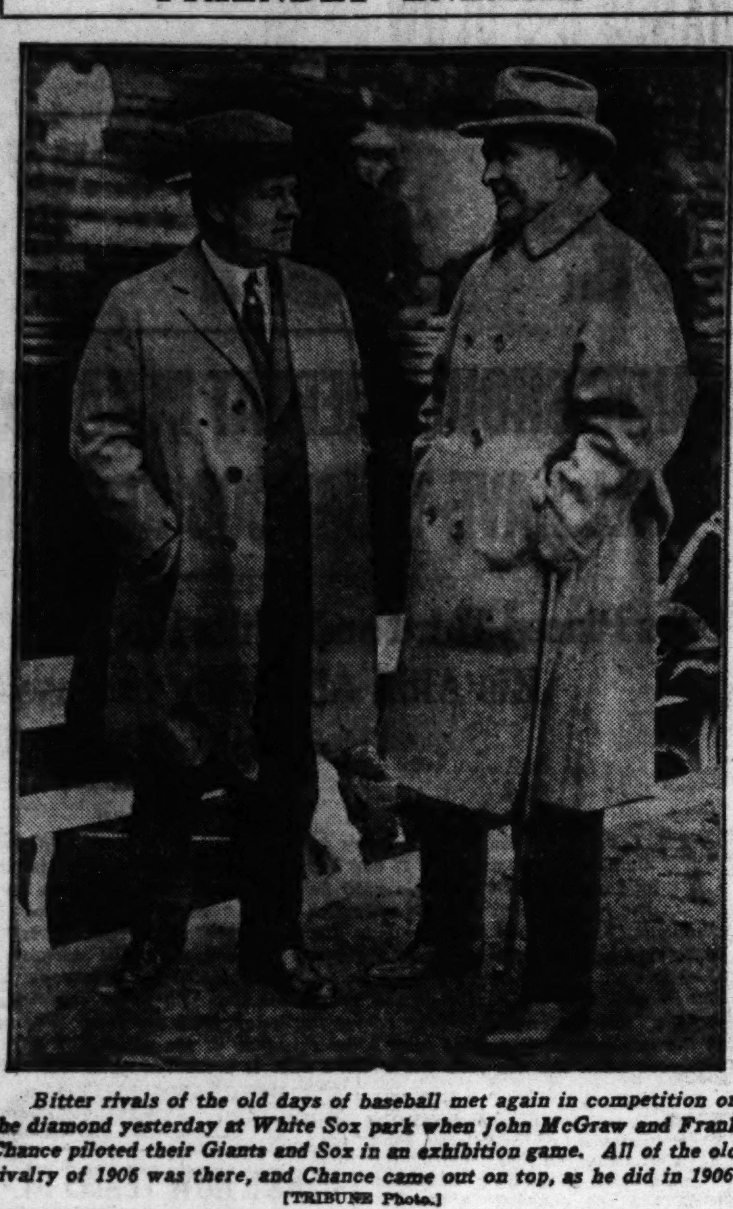
FRIENDLY ENEMIES



Bitter rivals of the old days of baseball met again in competition on the diamond yesterday at White Sox park when John McGraw and Frank Chance piloted their Giants and Sox in an exhibition game. All of the old rivalry of 1906 was there, and Chance came out on top, as he did in 1906.

SQUARES AND NIESENS IN EXHIBITION TODAY

The Logan Squares will present practically a new lineup over last year's squad when they clash with the Niesens in the opening exhibition game of the season between the two clubs at Niesen's park, Kilpatrick avenue and West Lake street, this afternoon.

In addition to Charley Pechous, who played with Toledo in the American association last year, and Cliff Happenny last year with the White Sox, Cal has Lea Murphy, last year with the Beloit Fairies, Herb Kelly, Forrest Paddock, Roger Kilby, Dick Cantwell and Ernie Dennis. Kelly still is on the coast and will report for the opening game of the Midwest league season April 26.

The Niesen's also will have a strong squad, Manager Billy Niesen keeping the majority of his last year's squad, strengthened by several new players. Paddock and Cantwell are slated to hurl for the Squares with Murphy and Dennis catching. Dolly Gray probably will do the mound work for the Niesens.

N. U. NINE DROPS FIRST GAME TO PURDUE, 6 TO 5

Lafayette, Ind., April 12.—[Special.]—A hit by Allsopp, Purdue second baseman, in the eighth, with two Boilermakers on base, brought in two runs and brought Purdue a one run victory over Northwestern here this afternoon, 6 to 5.

Both played rather good ball, the hitting being featured by Christman of Purple. He got three hits in four trips to the plate, all being extra base drives. He got a triple in the first inning and a two base drive in each of the sixth and eighth innings.

Capt. John Campbell, Purdue pitching ace, performed well, while Bengsten did almost as well for the visitors. The Purdue hurler tightened in the ninth, when Northwestern had a chance to win or tie after Dempsey's double. He reached third on a fielder's choice, but Hert, another pinch hitter, was thrown out at first by Ware, Purdue third baseman, for the third out of the inning. Score:

SERVICE POLO TEAM TO FACE BRITISH ARMY

New York, April 12.—[Special.]—While the historical international polo matches to be played in September between England and America at Meadowbrook are occupying the center of the stage, the announcement that the British army authorities have cabled a challenge to the American army for matches in 1925, coupled with an invitation to play them in England, is interesting polo followers, who have come to look upon our army team as internationalists really belonging to the public.

Proof of the rapid spread of polo is piling up in the office of the United States Polo association, where a mass of material has been coming in for the use of the 1924 volume of the Year Book, which will be issued early in May. In the light of the army's achievements, the service will have a most prominent place in this, the "polo Bible."

GARDINER WILL REFEREE TRIBUNE BICYCLE DERBY

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

When the third annual bicycle Derby of THE TRIBUNE A. A. is held in Humboldt park on May 25, Arthur Gardiner, one of the greatest sprints riders the bike game has ever produced, will again act as referee, while other officials will be men well known to all followers of bicycle racing.

Gardiner has acted as chief official of the previous Derbies, and under his instructions and friendly advice the races have been conducted without criticism. Like other men interested in the promotion of amateur sports, Gardiner has willingly consented to act in the important capacity.

"Fitz" to Be Starter.

Another official, who has been a tireless worker for the promotion of practically every branch of athletic endeavor, is Julian T. Fitzgerald, western representative of the Amateur Bicycle League of America. He has held important offices in some of the country's leading athletic associations. Fitz, as he is affectionately known, will act as starter and assist in the preliminary arrangements of the races.

Fitzgerald may be rightfully called the father of skating in Chicago and the middle west. He has fought many battles for Chicago and western skaters and the same is true of athletes in other branches. He is never too tired or too busy to devote many hours to the promotion of a worthy event, especially one which concerns the growing generation. Through his tireless efforts athletes have been sent to the Olympic games, and no event is too big or too small for him to tackle.

James J. McComb, secretary of the West Chicago parks commissioners, has already issued a permit for the Derby, which will be held under the sanction of the Amateur Bicycle League of America. Edwin T. Farrar, president of the board, always has been in sympathy with any event which will afford amusement for the thousands of persons who frequent the public parks of the west.

Course to Be Protected.

William Stocker of the west parks police will have the course properly protected to insure safety of contestants and spectators, while Supt. William Barclay will take the necessary precautions to have the course in shape so that riders may put forth their best efforts without danger of spills caused by holes or obstructions.

As the middle west trials for the American Olympic bicycle team will be held on May 18, followers of the bike racing game will have an opportunity to see the section's representatives in the world's games in action. Those who make the Yankee team will ride from scratch in the twenty-five mile handicap, the feature of the Derby.

Aside from the Olympic tests, three other Derbies, to be promoted by local clubs, will be held in advance of THE TRIBUNE races. These contests should leave the riders in the best of condition to pedal for the merchandise certificates which will be given the winners of the various places and those who win time prizes in the handicap.

Races for All Classes.

Races for all class riders will be held in addition to the handicap, which is thrown open to all riders, who will be handicapped according to performances in previous races. The program will open with a two and one-fifth mile race for novice riders. Class A riders will cover two laps, or four and two-fifths miles. The race for class B experts will be over a similar distance, as will the one for class C riders.

In addition there will be a two and one-fifth mile race for girls and one of the same distance for boys under 16 years of age. In the handicap event of twenty-five miles the limit riders last year were given time allowances of five minutes.

Starting on May 1, an entry blank will appear on the sports pages of THE TRIBUNE for the benefit of those who wish to enter. Team entry, however, may be made by classifying the entrants and sending them on one piece of paper to THE TRIBUNE. Such list must be signed by one of the officials of the organization which the riders represent.

Swaney, another freshman, finished fourth. Crawford took the 120 high hurdles in :15 6-10, one-tenth behind the record, and Meder vaulted an even 12 feet, failing of a university record by one-fourth inch. FEW HIGH SCHOOL GRID STARS MAKE GOOD AT COLLEGE

Columbus, O., April 12.—[Special.]—Most high school stars who win copious praise from the home folks sparkle only on the offense, says Dr. John W. Wilce, Ohio State football coach, in commenting on the failure of high school stars to shine in intercollegiate gridiron competition.

"Intercollegiate football emphasizes defensive tactics," Dr. Wilce explains, "so that such players are up against a much sterner defense than they were accustomed to in their high school days. The college player, however, must fit into his team. The athlete who starred in one particular line in high school must be able to adapt himself to the college team's style of play, and as a rule can't hope to get by on ability in one small field."

Last fall there were twenty-two high school captains on the freshman squad. Only eleven made their numerals.

TWENTY FOR A QUARTER

GOLF ON THE BATTLEFIELDS

Ancient Game Usurps a Still More Ancient Pastime.

Devotees of the Royal and Ancient game will soon be swinging the driver and the mashie over the historic fields of Yorktown, Virginia.

A three million dollar resort hotel is in course of construction in the vicinity. As an adjunct to the hotel there will be two eighteen hole standard golf courses and a five hole practice course for the neophyte to try out his prowess on.

One of the long courses will extend directly across the battlefield. The third tee will be almost on the exact spot where Cornwallis surrendered his sword to Washington.

In the near distance as the player passes on in his round he will be able to see the old houses where the American and the British commanders had their headquarters during the siege. Moore House where the terms of the surrender were made, is still standing and will be right on the border of the course.

The ancient redoubts, gun pits and trenches are scattered over the territory and will be traversed by the new fairways, although it has been definitely stated that none of these historic excavations will be used for bunkers. Suitable tablets will be put up, to identify these spots.

Imagine the plight of the dub, accustomed to plow up greens and fairways with his mashie!

Up comes a sodden chunk of sod and there in the hole a rusty old bayonet of perhaps, who knows, the gaping skull of some warrior of a bygone day?

In a year, the greens committee ought to have quite a valuable collection of relics.

Beer—not near—was responsible for the remarkable victory of White Bud, a 66 to 1 shot, last spring in the Lincoln Handicap in England, according to the mare's trainer.

Several weeks before the race, the mare, during a trial run, became excited. She clinched the bit and ran away. As a result she became so nervous that she refused to eat. After trying numerous foods on her, the trainer resorted to beer.

White Bud changed her mind about the hunger strike immediately and stuck to her new diet, taking two pints of the elixir every day for a period of three weeks before the race.

Then she ran, proving that there was considerable life in the old girl yet.

18.2 BALKLINE GOLF

Can Ball in the 18th "Pocket."

An interesting golf problem occurred at Pinehurst last year when two opponents in a four ball match played their putts at the same time. The balls collided and one caromed into the hole.

The incident occurred on the home green with the opposing sides all even. Earnest efforts to determine the winners of the match in a manner satisfactory to all concerned, proved unavailing.

What would you do under the circumstances?

AERIAL GOLF

Bomb Sights Replace the "Driving Eye."

A novel aeroplane golf match was staged at the Olympia Country Club near Chicago as part of the celebration of the opening of the Club's fourth eighteen hole course which made the Olympia the largest golf club in the world.

The contest was staged between nine pros and nine amateurs, who played on the ground.

The pilots of the aeroplanes flew over the course and dropped balls as near the putting greens as possible. The opposing players then holed out from where the balls fell.

KENTUCKY DERBY SHAPING UP AS ANYBODY'S RACE

BY FRENCH LANE.

Another open race for the Golden Jubilee running of the Kentucky Derby on May 17 is in sight and there may be as many as a score of America's prize 3 year olds figured to have a chance to win up to post time on the day of the race.

It also may be another record breaking field which parades to the post on that gala Kentucky May day, a field, larger than the one of a year ago, when twenty-one horses ran it out for Uncle Sam's most coveted turf honors.

A careful survey of the 152 Derby candidates will show that owners and trainers of perhaps fifty of them are still looking to the Derby as their ultimate goal. And there may be happenings between now and Derby day that will warrant the pointing of some for the rich stake which now appear entirely out of the running.

May Be as Open as Last Year.

In this huge field the eastern pride and unbeaten Sarazen and the Chicago owned Wise Counsellor have been the outstanding favorites since winter book speculation opened nearly two months ago. But there are a dozen others that are so well fancied at this stage of their training that wise students of the turf will frankly admit the race looks to be about as open now as it was at this time a year ago when it was generally agreed that it was the most open event in the history of the classic.

The unusual short price which most winter book layers have been willing to offer against Sarazen and Wise Counsellor has made wagering on this pair almost prohibitive, but even if the odds on them were more liberal, which they undoubtedly should be, it likely would not have stopped the wave of support which has swept to a dozen other Derby possibilities.

Black Gold, Better and Better, St. James, Mad Play, Senator Norris, Stanwix, Transmute, Diogenes, Mr. Mutt, Beau Butler, Battle Creek and Chilhowie have been stoutly supported lately.

Look for Many Contenders.

Other candidates are rounding into racing form and as the time flies by some one or another is likely to be bobbing up with a time workout or an early season victory which will add him to the already long list, which students of form will contend have a chance to run away from the Wise Counsellors and Sarazens when the Kentucky Jockey club's golden trophies are at stake.

The winner of Maryland's Preakness, to be decided the Monday before the Derby is run, may come west a decided favorite. But this is not always true, the case of Vigil a year ago being the best argument against it.

A victory for Wise Counsellor in the Preakness would make him the post time favorite on Derby day. But even if he should win the Preakness in impressive style he will go back west to the Derby to meet the mighty Sarazen and an outlay of western Derby timber that will not be sent east for the Preakness.

The west, which has won only a couple of Derbies in the last ten or a dozen runnings, figures it can get about all the revenge it has coming if one of its representatives can capture the Golden Jubilee number and the honors that go with it.

Wise Counsellor, of course, is the west's chief hope at this time but there are many others that cannot be overlooked at this early stage.

Field Narrows Down.

While many things can happen during the next month, close to a hundred of the candidates seem to be eliminated even as possible starters at this time. Two weeks more and others will fall by the wayside. From the way the field of eligibles shapes up now the horses that go to the post are likely to come from the following list:

PLANS FOR CLUBHOUSE AT HAWTHORNE READY

Some inkling was given yesterday in an announcement by the Chicago Business Men's Racing association of the way the clubhouse is to be operated at Hawthorne track this season.

It not only involves the construction of the new clubhouse at the west end of the present Hawthorne stands but the formation of what is to be known as the Hawthorne Jockey club, under whose direction the affairs of the clubhouse and the social program at Hawthorne will come. It will be an entirely separate body from the Business Men's Racing association, which will control the racing proper.

Limit Membership to 100.

The clubhouse membership will be limited to 500. A membership will involve an expenditure of $100 for initiation fee and annual dues of $100. Members will not be liable for additional obligations, the Chicago Business Men's Racing association taking responsibility for all operating expenses, according to the announcement.

The memberships are to carry with them free admission to the holder and lady at all Hawthorne gates and the right to issue guest cards which will be honored at the regular rate of admission.

Clubhouse Plans Drawn.

Drawings for the clubhouse, which, according to officials of the Business Men's Racing association, will cost about $75,000, have been completed, and the contract may be let when General Manager Joseph A. Murphy arrives on Thursday from the Bowie track in Maryland, where he has been serving as an official. A committee then will be named for the disposal of the clubhouse memberships.

Railroad officials in Chicago yesterday estimated that close to forty special trains will operate from Chicago and other cities in the middle west to Louisville for the Kentucky Derby on May 17. They also estimated that the travel from Chicago alone may total 15,000. Last year 10,000 from Chicago made the Derby trip. Passenger agents are urging Derby visitors to depart as early in the week as possible.

While dates for the Chicago racing season have not been announced, a booklet issued yesterday by the Chicago Business Men's Racing association, says the season will extend approximately over 51 racing days. It will be featured by the revival of the Chicago Derby, which will carry $15,000 added money, and by ten or a dozen other stake and handicap events.

The Washington varsity and second crews will go to Poughkeepsie, where the varsity will seek on the Hudson river in June to uphold its national title, which it wrested last year from the United States naval academy. After that race the varsity is to be broken up, and from the whole squad is to be made a light crew to contend on the Schuylkill river at Philadelphia three days after the Poughkeepsie event, for the honor of rowing in the Olympics at Paris. The Schuylkill race is to be about one and three eighths miles.

McKINLEY NINE HANDS 8-5 BLOW TO ENGLEWOOD

Driving Kaplan off the mound in the first inning, during which four runs were rushed over the plate, McKinley High school nine yesterday defeated Englewood in a pre-season battle at White City park, 8 to 5. MacDuff hurled superior ball for McKinley and allowed only four hits during the five innings of the game.

In addition to his work on the hill, MacDuff contributed two hits, one of which was for an extra base, driving in three of the winning tallies. Santucti registered two blows for the victors. Score:

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Margaret Petersen, 5821 West Erie street, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

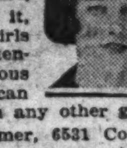
What summer sport do you think appeals most to women?

Where Asked.

Central Y. W. C. A. lobby.

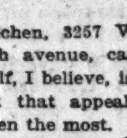
The Answers.

Miss Alice Dunmore, 1005 West 69th street, artist's model—I think swimming is the finest summer sport for women, and it is certainly the most popular. Dancing is fine, but that's not a sport. Swimming and golf — those two are ideal.

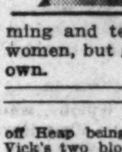


Miss Cleo Evans, 556 East 91st place, hairdresser — I don't know, unless it is tennis. The chances are, if we only knew it, there are more girls and women playing tennis at the various courts than you can find participating in any other game.

Miss Frieda Zimmer, 6531 Cottage Grove avenue, stenographer—I believe swimming is the most popular sport among women, and it ought to be, for it is much fun. Most women like to display a good coat of tan in summer, and a coat of tan is far better than a coat of paint—don't you think?



Miss Mae Henza, 2518 South St. Louis avenue, supervisor—I believe tennis appeals to more women than any other sport that one could mention. It is an ideal game for women. An hour or so on the court tires you out, gives you a healthy appetite, and fits you for a good night's rest.



Miss Anna Heinichen, 3257 Wentworth avenue, cashier—Golf, I believe, is the sport that appeals to women the most. It is in every sense of the word a great game, fit for a queen, or any other woman. Swimming and tennis are good sports for women, but golf has a meaning all its own.

$8,000 ASKED BY 'STRANGLER' FOR ROMANO MATCH

"Strangler" Lewis, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, and Michael Romano, the Italian, will grapple for the world's title at the Coliseum on April 29 if Promoters White and Coffey will guarantee the champion $8,000, with a privilege of 40 per cent of the gross receipts.

Such was the result of a conference here yesterday between Billy Sandow, manager of the champion, and the promoters. In addition, the head lock will be barred, giving fans an opportunity to judge whether Lewis is a real champion and commands other holds.

Final Answer Tomorrow.

Sandow left last night for Kansas City and will wait until tomorrow at noon for a final answer from the promoters.

White and Coffey are dubious about the $8,000 demand. They realize the wrestling season is about over, and it is a big question in their minds whether enough money could be realized to pay expenses.

Pick Steinke's Opponents.

Paul Martinson, Beck Olson and Big Bill Beth, three of the largest of the local crop of grapplers, have been chosen to furnish the opposition for Hans Steinke, the giant German, in the feature event of the wrestling show to be conducted by the Uptown Chamber of Commerce at the Broadway armory on Wednesday night.

According to conditions of the contest, Steinke must pin all three inside of an hour.

SUTTNER FOOTS IT TO NEW WORLD 400 METER MARK

Buffalo, N. Y., April 12.—Melvin Suttner, former Syracuse university middle distance star, established a new world's indoor record for the 400 meter run here tonight, covering the distance in :49 4-5. The former record of :50 2-5 was made by Jake Driscoll of Boston.

CLEAVES PRINCETON PILOT.

Princeton, N. J., April 12.—Stephen C. Cleaves of Oil City, Pa., brother of Jack Cleaves, star of Princeton's undefeated 1922 football eleven, last night was elected captain of the basketball team for next season.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

In the account of the wrestling show at First Regiment armory Friday night THE TRIBUNE stated that Wayne Munn had defeated Dick Daviscourt. It should have read Bob Managoff instead of Daviscourt.

U. S. PICKS NET STARS FOR DAVIS, OLYMPIC PLAY

New York, April 12.—[Associated Press.]—Selection of players who will represent America in international court competition this season was announced today by the Davis cup committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association.

The committee picked four man and four woman stars for the first organized attempt this country has ever made to lift Olympic laurels, and, departing radically from previous custom, named a "Davis cup squad" of fifteen ranking stars from whom the defenders of the international team trophy will be drawn.

Tilden Heads List.

William T. Tilden of Philadelphia, national champion, heads both the Olympic team and the Davis cup selections, in spite of the prospect that the Olympic player-writer rule bars him from competing at Paris. His Olympic team mates are Vincent Richards of Yonkers, N. Y., who also faces the player-writer barrier; Watson M. Washburn of New York, and R. Norris Williams of Philadelphia. Williams was named captain and Washburn alternate leader.

The women's Olympic team is composed of Miss Helen Wills of Berkeley, Cal., national champion; Miss Eleanor Goss of New York, Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup of Wilmington, Del., and Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman of Boston, who will act as captain.

Must Observe Rules.

The Davis cup committee explained that it had considered the player-writer rule thoroughly, and, while admitting it might bar both Tilden and Richards, pointed out that in inviting them to join the team it had been stipulated they must, if the invitation be accepted, conform to such interpretation of the Olympic committee rule as shall be made by the Davis cup committee.

The Davis Cup squad is composed of Tilden, Williams, Fischer and Wallace Johnson, of Philadelphia; William M. Johnson, Robert and Howard Kinsey, and Clarence Griffin, of San Francisco; Richards, Hunter and Washburn, Dr. George King, Frank T. Anderson and Hugh Kelleher, of New York; and Harvey Snodgrass, of Los Angeles.

MAROON TENNIS STARS OUT IN OPEN THIS WEEK

Aiming at another Big Ten championship, University of Chicago tennis experts have taken up outdoor practice after spending the winter keeping their wrists limber in Bartlett gymnasium.

Three veterans, Mike Hunt, Kim Valentine and Capt. Eddie Wilson, will compete again this year and in addition are a dozen others, several showing particular prominence. These include Bob Pollak and Julius Milenbach, one of whom probably will be paired with Capt. Wilson in doubles. Hunt and Valentine are likely to play the season together, having similar styles of play. Harry Mitchell is showing good form in early drill and may be used in the place of either Pollak or Milenbach.

Dr. Dudley B. Reed, Maroon tennis coach who has piloted Chicago to over a dozen championships on the courts, also has his eyes on Jack Long, Bob Koerber, Don Alexander, Robert Long, Joseph Cohn, Drake Shaffer, Willard Balhatchett and Austin McCarty. The Maroons meet their first adversary April 25, playing Butler college at the Midway courts.

ICE STARS TURN TO BIKE RACING FOR SUMMER

Two of Chicago's star ice skaters have turned to bike racing for the summer. Harry Kaskey, who skated on the United States Olympic team, and Francis Allen of the Austin-Columbia A. A., winner of the 1924 TRIBUNE Senior Silver Skates Derby, will open the bike season today, competing in the fifteen mile handicap race of the Magnar A. C. in Rogers Park.

Allen is well known as a bike racer. With George Cadotte he won the amateur team race held last fall as a preliminary to the opening of the six day bike race at the Coliseum. Last summer Allen placed fourth in the thirty-five mile race at Aurora and won a number of local races. Kaskey is getting into the bicycle sport for the first time, although he by no means is a novice rider. The field will include more than sixty riders.

In addition to the bike event, roller skating races will be held. Races for boys and girls in 12 and 16 year old classes and a ten mile senior race make up the roller program. The races will start at Devon and Western avenues.

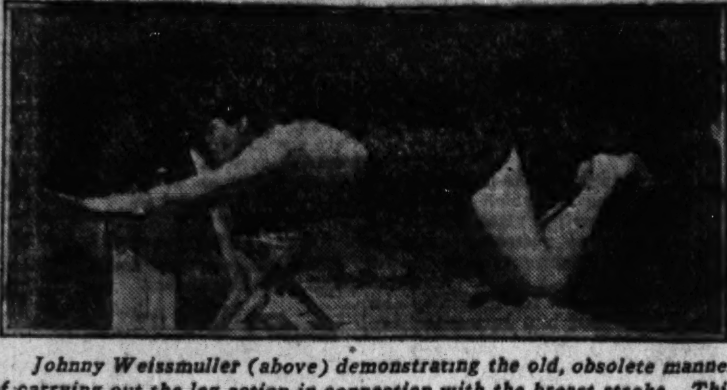
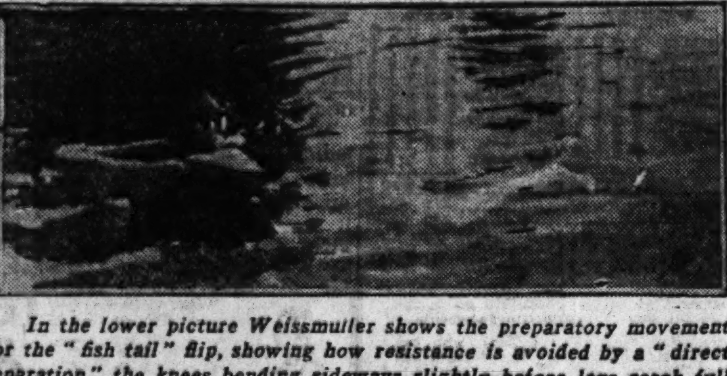
"FISH TAIL" FLIP WINS



Johnny Weissmuller (above) demonstrating the old, obsolete manner of carrying out the leg action in connection with the breast stroke. This "frog kick" shows how resistance is caused by bringing legs forward and downward before thrusting back.



In the lower picture Weissmuller shows the preparatory movement for the "fish tail" flip, showing how resistance is avoided by a "direct separation," the knees bending sideways slightly before legs reach full spread position, which in the new stroke is not the start of a "wedging" drive, but the climax of a movement like snapping a pair of whips or flipping two fish tails.

Bachrach, Olympic Swim Coach, Perfects New Stroke

When Robert Skelton's new world's record for the 200 meter breast stroke in the seventy-five foot pool at Milwaukee was flashed over the wires, no mention was made of two important facts. It was the first time an American had taken an international breast stroke mark held by a German, and it was done by the use of a new leg action, the "fish tail" flip, the efficiency of which renders the "frog kick" obsolete.

Honors for Skelton's achievement are shared by Coach William Bachrach of the Illinois Athletic club, recently appointed head coach of the American swimming team for the Olympic games.

Coach Bachrach reveals the secret of the new leg action, by which Skelton was able to better by 1 4-5 seconds the record held by H. Rodemacher of Germany for the first time in his forthcoming book, "The Outline of Swimming."

Germans Invincible.

German swimmers have always been invincible in world's record breaking and in the Olympic games before the war in the breast stroke.

This explains the importance of the achievement, but how about the stroke?

"The great propelling burden in the breast stroke," says Bachrach, "is thrown upon the legs. The old style of leg action, the so-called frog kick, requires tremendous leg power for the wedging drive. The Germans, through generation after generation of universal practice of the stroke, were able to develop the leg power.

"For some reason, we have never been able to find American boys endowed with legs strong enough to 'frog kick' calls for a three count make the best of this stroke. The action of the legs. The stroke I have taught Skelton is done in two counts."

Diminishes Resistance.

The new stroke diminishes the resistance created on the first count when the knees are bent downward and the legs are brought forward almost to what would be a squatting position on land, the feet being kept together.

"In the new stroke, resistance is avoided by a 'direct separation' of the legs," Bachrach explains. "It requires a double jointed type, as the legs are rotated at the hip socket so the knees bend, not downward, but outward. They bend only slightly, enough to form a part of the whip snapping action. The legs are carried out to the full spread position, which point forms the tip or climax of an action that is like snapping a pair of whips or flipping two fish tails.

"There is no 'wedging' drive in this stroke. The accentuation comes on the inward flip of the foot, which is especially limber, and then the feet are allowed to coast together in a follow through."

Faricy Uses Stroke.

John Faricy, who attracted considerable attention as a breast stroke swimmer at University of Minnesota, began to break American "world's records" after joining Bachrach's squad. He says his increased speed is due to Bachrach's instruction in the new style of leg action.

You may wonder why the secret has not leaked out before. That may seem hard to explain. Probably the best reason is that most people are poor observers. It would take an expert who knew what he was looking for to see the differences in action.

NEW GOLF NOTE TO BE SUPPLIED BY SUNSET RIDGE

BY JOE DAVIS.

Ten young men with a strong desire to play golf together on the same private course, which would be operated on as conservative a basis as consistent with good management, came to the conclusion there were a sufficient number of congenial young men of similar inclinations on the north shore to organise and support a club which would stand out as distinctive in the annals of Chicago golf and which also would be exceptional in its personnel.

This idea was the foundation of the Sunset Ridge Country club, incorporated a little over a year ago, and now a going concern with 250 members, which is the present maximum.

They Tee Off.

The ten men organized themselves into a committee on location, and after several months found 132 acres west of Winnetka. They obtained a sixty day purchase contract, and each of the ten paid his membership fee, to provide a fund for organization expenses and earnest money on the purchase.

They had teed off, but the next shot was a long one, as it was necessary to obtain within sixty days sufficient members, together with their remittances into the trust fund provided for their protection, to make the initial payment of $47,000.

There were three elements which were appealing to prospective members: an exceptionally good land purchase, a firm intention that no club member should commercialize his connection with the club, and a determination to avoid group or clique control.

No Borrowed Capital.

Sunset Ridge is unique in the matter of organization, being without the assistance of borrowed capital, while its membership is composed of active young men who have set up an ideal that they can expect to have the best golf at a reasonable expense.

The annual dues are $125, with an additional $25 to be known and set apart as "land tax," which will be used to pay incumbrances or indebtedness against the real estate.

The fine eighteen hole course, designed by William Diddel of Indianapolis, will be ready for play next month and at the last meeting the contract for the clubhouse, to cost approximately $50,000, was unanimously ratified.

To finance the building it was voted to authorize an issue of $65,000 in two year 7 per cent junior mortgage bonds and 60 per cent of the issue was subscribed for at the meeting by 40 per cent of the membership who were in attendance.

Membership Is Restricted.

Having started with the idea of providing enjoyable golf, the members turned down a proposition to increase the membership to 300.

The efforts of the club to reduce the high cost of golfing will be watched with interest by other local clubs. The slogan of the club has been "no assessments."

The course measures 6,554 yards, with a par of 35—35—70. The officers of the club are: President, Forest R. Lowrey; vice president, Howard R. Walton; treasurer, William J. Hough; secretary, Charles F. Hough, 69 West Washington street.

THE WATER WAS WET, THE AIR WAS COLD, SO HE MAY GIVE UP GOLF

HAMILTON, N. Y., April 17.—Golf proved a hazardous pastime to Donald G. Carberry of Westfield, N. J., a Colgate senior, today. When driving from a tee near Taylor lake Carberry's driver flew from his hands out into the lake. Taking a boat, he attempted to retrieve his club with a pole, but the boat capsized. Companions feared he would drown, as he could not swim, but the water proved to be only six feet deep, whereas Carberry stands 6 feet 6 inches.

COLLEGE POLO TITLE PLAY TO OPEN ON MAY 3

New York, April 12.—[Special.]—Announcement of the schedule of games for the intercollegiate polo championship at Fort Hamilton has been made by Maj. Gen. Robert Lee Bullard at Governors island. It follows:

Preliminaries—May 3, West Point vs. Cornell; May 6, Yale vs. Pennsylvania Military school; May 7, Harvard vs. Virginia Military institute; May 8, Princeton vs. Norwich.

Semi-finals—May 10, winners of first and second games play; May 13, winners of third and fourth games play.

Finals—May 17, championship game between winners of semi-finals.

All teams this year will be well mounted on their own ponies, and polo enthusiasts figure this as anybody's championship clear through to the finals.

For the opening clash between West Point and Cornell it is hoped that the corps of cadets from the military academy will be present. These, together with the Cornell representatives will give the game a real college atmosphere.

Capt. Arthur Warren, aid de camp to Gen. Bullard, the polo representative for the Second Corps area, states that the subscription for guest boxes is exceedingly large and every indication points to capacity crowds at Fort Hamilton all through the tournament.

WOMEN LOOK TO NATIONAL PARK GOLF TOURNEY

Expansion of the women's public park golf movement to a point where it will be possible to stage a national champion was among the prospects held out by Mrs. E. D. Alcombrack, president of the Women's Public Park Golf Association of Illinois, at a luncheon yesterday at the Sherman house.

Another prospect, that of a course exclusively for women in the forest preserve, was advanced by President Robert W. McKinlay of the Cook County Municipal Golf association.

Membership Increases.

Mrs. Alcombrack pointed out that the association, which started two years ago with a membership of four clubs, now has a membership of seven, and that the increasing interest shown in golf by the women of other cities led to the hope of being able to establish a national championship along the same lines as the public parks championship of the United States Golf association.

In addition to Mr. McKinlay, Ransom E. Kennicott, chief forester of the forest preserve; Chick Evans, and J. G. Davis made speeches.

Hundred Golfers Attend.

This was the first luncheon held by the association and over 100 golfers were present.

Mrs. Alcombrack announced the following dates:

One day invitation tournament at Edgebrook, June 16; Illinois state championship at Columbus park, June 23 to 28; Cook county at Jackson park, July 28 to Aug. 2; women's city championship at Jackson park, Aug. 25 to 31.

Curtis B. Schatz of Wheaton, a former member of the Aurora Country club, has signed with the Crown Point club of Indiana, which will open this summer. He is a brother of Bill Schatz, now with the Fort Harrison club of Terre Haute, Ind.

$200 to $400 Saved
On This Light-Six Touring Car
By our matchless facilities—our enormous production

HERE is a car priced at $1,045. Built by ordinary methods it would cost you from $200 to $400 more.

It is in scores of ways the leader of its class. No rival car compares in the value that it offers.

Let us tell you how we give that value, then urge you to see this car.

A sensation

Studebaker is today the world's largest builder of quality cars. Studebaker success is the sensation of Motordom.

Sales have almost trebled in three years. Last year, 145,167 people paid $201,000,000 for Studebaker cars.

There are tremendous reasons for this rush to Studebaker cars. And every man who buys a car should know them.

72-year traditions

The Studebaker name has for 72 years stood for quality and class. To build an ordinary car under that name is unthinkable.

Our assets are $90,000,000—all at stake on serving you better than all others.

We have $50,000,000 in model plants, equipped with 12,500 up-to-date machines. We have 23,000 workers, under profit-sharing plans which lead them to stay and develop.

We spend on engineering $500,000 yearly. We employ 1,200 men to give 32,000 inspections to each Studebaker car in the making.

We are lavish

We are lavish in things that count.

We pay 15% bonus on some steels to get them exactly right. We use genuine leather in our cushions. We use curled hair.

We use more Timken bearings in this Light-Six than any competitive car within $1,500 of its price.

Our bodies are beautiful creations. The finish and coach work show the final touch. But we build them in $10,000,000 body plants of our own, and pay for these extras in savings.

Studebaker Light-Six
Touring Car—$1,045

Same steels as we use in the costliest cars we build. More Timken bearings than in any competitive car within $1,500 of this price.

Genuine leather cushions, ten inches deep. Curled hair filling. All-steel body.

One-piece, rain-proof windshield. Attractive cowl lights. Standard non-skid cord tires.

Transmission and ignition locks. Perfect motor balance. Curtains that open with the doors.

By far the greatest value in this class.

Mail coupon for book about it

We machine all surfaces of our crankshafts and connecting rods, as was done in the Liberty Airplane motors. No other maker of cars at our prices does this. The result is that perfect motor balance, lack of vibration and long life.

Where we save

We save by enormous production—150,000 cars per year. Our major costs are all divided by that enormous output. It is utterly impossible for smaller makers to compete.

We save by modern plants, mostly built in the past five years. We save by up-to-date machines. By building our own parts and bodies.

See what this car offers

Come see what this Light-Six offers. How it excels in scores of ways any rival car.

Built with the same steels, the same care and skill, as the costliest of our cars. We have only one grade of chassis.

See its beauty, its comfort, its luxury. See how we have studied your every desire.

Do that and you will choose this car, if you have in mind a price anywhere near this.

Send for the book

Mail us the coupon below. We will send you free our new book that will inform you on five simple things which reveal the value of a car. For instance—

It will enable you to look at any car and tell whether it's been cheapened to meet a price or offers true quality.

It will tell you why some cars rattle at 20,000 miles and others don't. It shows one single point in a closed car which measures whether you're getting top or medium quality. The book is free. Clip the coupon below.

STATISTICS SHOW GRIDMEN LIVE LONGER

Delaware, O., April 12.—[Special.]—Refuting the oft-made charge that intercollegiate athletics, especially football, are physically detrimental to those participating extensively, statistics gathered by the Ohio Wesleyan Transcript, students newspaper, show that of twenty-nine Wesleyan gridiron captains elected since the sport was introduced in 1890 only one is dead.

The former football leaders have gone into a variety of occupations althought complete returns on this could not be secured. Eleven have gone into business, three each into education, law and the ministry, while two are doctors and two are Y. M. C. A. workers. Probably the most interesting career is that of Morris W. "Billy" Ehnes, who is now treasurer of the committee on conservation and advance of the Methodist Episcopal church, with offices at 740 Rush street, Chicago. Ehnes captained the famous 1897 team which, under the coaching of Yost, defeated Ohio State and tied Michigan. Following his graduation he became a missionary in Africa and was later executive secretary of Ohio Wesleyan before taking up his present work.

GREENLEAF AND HOPPE 3 CUSHION MATCH IS SOUGHT

Following the challenge made Friday by Augie Kieckhefer to meet Willie Hoppe in a three cushion match, L. A. Bensinger yesterday made an offer of $2,000 for a three cushion match between Hoppe and Ralph Greenleaf, the pocket billiard champion. The players can split the purse as they see fit. It is proposed to stage the event in Chicago about May 20, by which time Hoppe will have finished his tour of the Pacific coast, which he will make in company with Jake Schaefer.

Just how Chicago fans would take such a match is problematical, as Greenleaf never has demonstrated his skill at three cushions in tournament play. Hoppe would not have a ghost of a show against Greenleaf at pocket billiards, and it looks as if the balkline champion would have no trouble in winning from Greenleaf at three cushions.

What the Chicago billiard fans want is a three cushion match between Hoppe and one of the recognized leaders in the latter game, and Kieckhefer is their favorite to oppose Hoppe.

DUNDEE'S PARIS BOUT OFF; WANTS TOO MUCH COIN

PARIS, April 12.—Johnny Dundee's demand for a guarantee of $50,000, with training expenses and three round trip tickets between New York and Paris, has caused Dave Solal, the French boxing promoter, to abandon the idea of a match between Dundee, world's featherweight champion, and Eugene Criqui, at the Paris velodrome June 1. The offer from Solal was $25,000 for a twenty round bout.

Gets Other Offers.

New York, April 12.—Offers of $25,000 for Johnny Dundee to risk his 130 pound title at New Haven in June against Kid Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., and of $15,000 for a contest against Bobby Garcia in Baltimore, were announced by Manager Johnston today.

SWEDISH MISSION PLACE FIRST IN CHURCHES' MEET

Humboldt Swedish Mission, scoring 54 points, last night won the third annual Northwest Church A. A. track meet at the Division Y. M. C. A. Second place went to Irving Park Presbyterian, which tallied 41 1-5 markers. Hope Lutheran and St. John's Lutheran were third and fourth with 19 and 17 1-3 tallies, respectively.

S. Thompson of Irving Park Presbyterian church captured high point honors with 14½. One hundred and thirty-one boys and men, representing twenty-three churches, competed.

Woods and Waters

by BOB. BECKER

GETTING ACQUAINTED WITH SALVELINUS.

ONCE a trout fisherman always a trout fisherman seems to be the rule, judging by the reports from some of the stream anglers who went to Florida this last winter to try the salt water fishing and came home still faithful to their old favorite Salvelinus fontinalis, the brook trout. One of these anglers said that there was no experience in salt water fishing equal to that of exploring, wading and fishing a brook trout stream and playing with the scrappy red spotted trout that hang out in the eddies, riffles and pools.

Certainly nature has placed the brook trout in a setting equal to its beauty and fighting qualities, as it loves the clear streams, lakes and ponds. To us the brook trout more than any other fish symbolizes roaring, turbulent streams and rivers clear as crystal and almost as cold as ice. Of course, at the head of the list of such streams is the Nipigon in Canada, with its rushing, dangerous stretches of water and huge bowlders. In such a setting only the brook trout fits in and flourishes. It feeds on small fish, flies, and worms, and hence can be fished for in a number of ways.

In the early spring before winged insects have appeared on the water the brook trout feeds on larvae and worms. Later on, when the red spotted fellows begin to go after insects, is the time when the fly fisherman glories in his pet stream and the gamey qualities of his favorite fish as the art of fooling old Salvelinus with an artificial fly is fun to the nth degree.

The brook trout favors the deep spots under the banks of the stream, the eddies, riffles and pools near rocks and fallen trees. These are the places to fish, and sure as shootin' the big boys will be hanging around these spots. Spring holes at the head of streams are also great places. Last summer Doc Ovitz took us up to the headwaters of a little stream in Forest county where several big spring holes meant home sweet home to streams are also great places.

On the Nipigon a fellow could pick out the roughest, wildest stretch of water in the river, but if there was a bowlder out there forming a little pool or eddy you could invariably find a trout in it, head upstream, watching for something to eat. Just below one of our camps a big rock loomed up in the middle of the stream. It looked like a millions dollars—a sure place for a big fellow. One afternoon we saw a guide carrying out to this rock a Milwaukee fisherman who was landed high and dry on this rock. When this chap came past our camp later in the afternoon he had a 4¾ pound brook trout taken from that likely pool in the heart of white water.

Fishermen who have yet to experience the fun of angling with the fly fisherman's methods and outfit will find that this game will give them plenty of sport. Certainly the fisherman who knows how to do both fly and bait casting is getting a whole lot out of his angling days, as where one method leaves off the other begins, as far as fun with trout and bass is concerned.

EASTERN BOXER SERIOUSLY HURT IN BOSTON BOUT

Boston, Mass., April 12.—Wolf Larsen, New York heavyweight, is in a serious condition at a hospital here as a result of punishment he took in a contest last night with Hambone Kelley, Boston heavyweight.

Larsen was knocked out in the sixth round and had to be carried from the ring and rushed to a hospital. He was operated on about ten weeks ago for appendicitis and surgeons fear that blows to his body opened some of the internal incisions.

It was one of the most fiercely contested bouts ever seen here. Kelley left the ring with a broken left wrist, sustained in the second round.

HAMMER TO MEET ZIVIC.

Ever Hammer is to box Jack Zivic, Pittsburgh lightweight, for ten rounds in New York April 29 on the program of bouts to be held in Madison Square Garden for the American Olympic fund.

MANDELL TO TRY TENDER PAWS IN E. CHICAGO BOUT

Sammy Mandell of Rockford, matched to meet Jack Bernstein at Louisville on May 16, the night before the Kentucky Derby, has signed to meet Bill Henry of South Chicago at East Chicago on April 21. They will box ten rounds, making 133 pounds in the afternoon.

The match was closed after Mandell had his hands examined thoroughly by a physician, who asserted there will be little danger to them if Sammy docs not attempt too much boxing while training. Manager Eddie Long is eager to have Mandell engage in at least one fight before the Louisville affair and this is the chief reason why he closed with Henry. The Rockford battler will be in Chicago tomorrow to start training at the Arcade.

Warnie Smith, the Oklahoma cowboy, who gave Morrie Schlaiffer of Omaha a lacing at East Chicago last Friday night, has signed to meet Eddie Morris of Sioux City, Ia., April 25. The bout will be held in Sioux City and the weight will be 148 pounds.

Charley Glaser, local featherweight under management of Frank Clark, will go to the coast to fill some four round engagements.

Matchmaker Floyd Fitzsimmons, who has announced May 31 as the date of the clash between Georges Carpentier and Tom Gibbons, stated that prices for the show will range from $5 to $25. Although other places are under consideration, everything points to the mill being held in Michigan City, where Fitzsimmons' arena now is being repaired. Fitzsimmons, who is acting as matchmaker for a syndicate which is putting up the money to guarantee the purses, is figuring on a July 4 show with Harry Greb, middleweight champion as one contestant.

Spalla Signs with Tex for Two Bouts in America

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, April 12.—Erminio Spalla, European heavyweight, who is a passenger aboard the steamship Western World for New York, told the newspaper men here that he had signed engagements with Tex Rickard, American promoter, to meet Floyd Johnson and Quintin Romero-Rojas while in the United States.

OVEREXERTION IN RING CAUSES DEATH OF YOUNG BOXER

WILMINGTON, N. C., April 12.—Moore, 21 year old featherweight of Wrightsboro, N. C., died in a local hospital today from overexertion in a fight last night with Ralph Varn of Wilmington. He collapsed in his dressing room after leaving the ring and died without regaining consciousness. Physicians said death was due to cerebral hemorrhage brought on by overexertion. A coroner's jury exonerated his opponent.

COACH CLARK TO TEACH.

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 12.—William J. Clark, coach of the Princeton university baseball team, has been engaged as instructor in baseball at the University of Michigan summer school. Clark formerly caught for the New York Giants. He will replace Ray Fisher, Wolverine baseball coach, who has been granted leave of absence.

LEGAL BATTLE LOOMS IF CARP PASSES UP GENE

New York, April 12.—Georges Carpentier must fight Gene Tunney before he fulfills a contract to meet Tommy Gibbons or an injunction will be sought against the Gibbons match, Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, declared today.

Gibson said his contract with the Frenchman had a prior clause in it whereby Carpentier's first fight in America must be with Tunney. This match is slated for the week of June 16 in New York or Jersey City.

New York, April 12.—[Special.]—Dr. Emanuel Lasker of Germany tightened his hold on first place by taking a hard fought game from his namesake, Edward Lasker of Chicago, in the nineteenth round of the international chess masters' tournament today. The German won after fifty-one moves. José R. Capablanca of Cuba, his nearest competitor, however, also moved up a notch by defeating Dr. Tartakower of Austria in thirty moves.

Alexander Alekhine of Russia defeated David Janowski of France in fifty moves and F. D. Yates of England won from Richard Reti of Czecho-Slovakia in an abbreviated game of twenty-four moves. The other game, between Marshall, the American champion, and Maroczy of Hungary ended in a draw after thirty moves.

The game between the two Laskers proved a struggle from the outset, although Dr. Lasker had the edge early. As a result of Edward Lasker's weaker pawn position, Dr. Lasker was able to win one pawn in the middle game. He pressed that advantage right through to the ending, with rook and knight opposed to rook and bishop.

The complete score of the Capablanca-Tartakower game follows:

K. OF C. QUINTS DECIDE CHAMP IN GAMES TODAY

Basketball games in the Knights of Columbus league championship series will come to a close today with the usual three games carded at 132d armory, Madison and Rockwell streets. In all probability, Marquette, which went through the four previous title battles undefeated, will cop the league crown this afternoon.

Despite the fact Marquette is favored to win, it must overcome Barry to clinch the bunting. The Commodores have been showing marked improvement in recent games, and give every indication of providing a bitter struggle. In the other games, Calumet will face O'Connell, and Auburn Park will oppose Columbus.

Victory for Barry would throw Calumet, if it wins today, and Marquette into a tie.

THORNDALE WINS BOWIE HANDICAP

Bowie, Md., April 12.—The Prince George handicap, with $5,000 added, drew a large crowd to the Bowie track today. Benjamin Block's 3 year old Thorndale, favored by light weight, won by two lengths from Rama, with Reparation third, four lengths behind Rama. Reparation, Rama, and Thorndale dominated the running throughout, but the heavy weight told on Reparation at the end.

Despair, heavily backed to win the second race, was left flatfooted at the post.

Colorado H. S. Star Hurls Javelin 176 Feet 6 Inches

Fort Collins, Colo., April 12.—William Lankford, 17 year old high school student here, established what is claimed to be an American interscholastic record when he hurled the javelin 176 feet 6 inches in a dual track meet today between Loveland and Fort Collins High schools.

Another Prep Record.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 12.—The eight man, one mile relay team of Hollywood High school lowered the world's high school record for the one mile relay in the annual Los Angeles city track and field meet here today. The time was 3:03, which was 6 3-10 seconds faster than the time made by another Hollywood relay team a year ago.

TOO MANY FOULS BRING CHANGE IN BASKETBALL CODE

New York, April 12.—Minor changes in the basketball playing code, to assure a greater uniformity in interpretation and to eliminate wholesale fouling, have been made by the joint basketball rules committee representing the National A. A. U., International Y. M. C. A., and the National Collegiate A. A.

While the changes will not materially affect the style of the amateur game as now played, they will tend to clarify the code by shifting the burden of proof to the offense instead of the defense, thereby giving officials a tangible basis for a decision instead of making technical violations a matter of judgment.

One Important Change.

The most important change from the players' point of view makes guarding from the rear, where there is resultant contact, a personal foul. This makes the rule more binding, and decision becomes mandatory instead of arbitrary.

The rule pertaining to running with the ball was clarified by specifying that the ball must leave a player's hands before the pivot foot leaves the floor.

The jumping rule which compels a player to have his hand behind his back while jumping was modified so that in the event the offended team gets possession of the ball after the violation play shall continue without interruption, but, in the event the team making the violation gets possession, the infraction shall be called.

Change Time Limit.

A substitute who has been sent into the game must actually participate before he can be withdrawn. The time element in games played in quarters was changed so that between the first and scond and third and fourth quarters but one minute shall elapse.

The duties of the umpire were expanded so that an umpire can call out of bounds on his side of the court and can also toss the ball up in scrimmage.

One change in the membership of the committee was announced when J. S. Chandler of Ames, Ia., was elected to fill the vacancy of Z. G. Clevenger of Indiana university, who resigned.

JAY GOULD SAILS FOR LONDON PLAY

New York, April 12.—Jay Gould, national amateur court tennis champion, sailed today for London to play in the international matches for the Bathurst cup.

FOR PLAYERS OF WHIST
by A. R. METCALFE

WHIST REQUIRES EVERY MENTAL FACULTY.

Deschapelles, the great French player, said of a deal at whist: "Every single faculty of the mind, one by one, is successively engaged in the operation, every class of mental agency and every shade of intelligence are in some degree called into action, and the continual change in the faculty employed prevents too laborious exertion of intellect, keeps up the excitement to the end, and produces the highest degree of pleasure."

The situation which occurred in the first of the deals which follow is one which is usually recognized only by experts. It occurs so frequently, however, that its proper handling should be learned by all. The hands were as follows:

West secured 10 tricks.

A player afflicted with the quick trick complex would have passed the west hand; north and south would have bid precisely as they did, and won the game and rubber. If players wish to introduce so many mechanical contrivances into the game, they must be reconciled to the loss of many rubbers.

The bid of three hearts by west was rather tall, but the rubber was at stake and west considered it almost a certainty that his partner's support was based upon the strength in the trump suit.

At trick two the real situation which confronted the declarer was as follows: One of the missing aces was in the south hand and the other almost certainly held by north. And the queen of spades was the only card of that suit remaining in the south hand. In order to secure game it was of vital importance that the ace held by north should be played before the declarer lost his last trump. His play at trick three and four was the beginning of this endeavor, which he wished to develop before his purpose became clear to the adversaries.

Having located the ace of diamonds in the south, the declarer had no further interest in that suit until he had forced out the ace of clubs.

After the seventh trick the spade suit ceased to be a menace and game a certainty. Had north refused to win the seventh trick the declarer would have led another club, and if allowed to hold that trick also, switch to his suit of diamonds. South was helpless after the ninth trick, all his remaining cards being clubs and diamonds as the declarer had foreseen.

RUNNERSUP BEAT HIGH-LOW GUNS AT LINCOLN PARK

Lincoln Park traps yesterday staged a unique event in which the high and low guns of the 100 target race competed in a shoot-off with the next high and low for the trophy. In the shoot-off, Eric Hall and W. E. Little, the two runners-up, defeated Hank O'Day and R. Mitchell, the high and low guns, 45 to 43, out of a possible 50. O'Day's total for the 100 target race was 96, Hall's 94, Little's 71, and Mitchell's 63. In the twenty-five pair doubles, C. O. Armes, Hall, and W. L. By the narrow margin of one target, South Shore defeated Onwentsia and won the eighth monthly team shoot of the League of Chicago Country clubs yesterday at Oak Park. The winners turned in a team total of 478, against 477 for Onwentsia.

H. B. Henry of Onwentsia had high net score of the day. Each contestant shot at 100 targets, 16 yards' rise, added target handicap, and Henry turned in a 97. H. A. CHICAGO SCHOOLS IN WISCONSIN RELAY CARNIVAL

Madison, Wis., April 12.—Entries have been received from a sufficient number of high schools outside of Wisconsin to guarantee the success of the first annual University of Wisconsin interscholastic relay carnival to be held at Camp Randall on May 3.

Washington High school of Cedar Rapids, Ia., has entered a team in five of the six relay events; Hyde Park and Senn High schools, Chicago, have both entered their relay teams, as have Rockford and Waukegan, Ill., and the Riverside High school, Milwaukee. Inquiries from several high schools in Missouri, Kansas, North and South Dakota, Indiana, Michigan and Minnesota indicate that fully ten states will be represented by many of the best high school athletes in the middle west.

Hupmobile

Crankshaft: Drop forged steel, double heat treated. Unusually heavy construction. Weighs 57½ lbs. and carefully counterbalanced. Given both a standing balance (static) and running balance (dynamic) on the most modern equipment obtainable. All bearing surfaces large diameter. Crank pin sections bored to provide for positive high pressure lubrication. Three large bronze backed, babbitt lined bearings, all bored at one time to insure perfect alignment, and then hand fitted to crankshaft. It would be much less expensive, but not nearly as satisfactory, to use a lighter crankshaft, not counterbalanced, not bored for lubrication, and to use plain die-cast babbitt bearings, not hand fitted, and not backed by bronze.

Quality-Proof

That Shows Exactly How Finely The Hupmobile Is Manufactured

The inside of a motor car is what determines the worth of your investment. Because that is so, the Hupmobile presents in a new way quality-proof to the buyer before he pays his money.

Quality-proof pertains to Hupmobile parts. It is made up of the parts which you can't see in the completed car. It is on display in our salesrooms all the time.

It establishes, in the surest, most positive way in the world, that Hupmobile quality is unique and superior for a car of its class.

It shows you clearly that parts cannot be more finely made, or of finer materials, no matter what the cost.

It shows you these things, even though you may not be an expert in motor car manufacture.

Come and see Hupmobile quality with your own eyes before you sign an order for any car.

If you want a permanent, fire-safe roof, do these three things now.

Read this advertisement about the remarkable economy and merits of this method of re-roofing.

Ask one of the dealers listed in the column at the right for recommendations, prices, etc.

Send the coupon in the lower corner back to us for booklets and further information.

Re-roof for the last time
— right over the old shingles

Simple and efficient! Just lay Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles right over the old wooden shingles. No need to tear off the old roof. No dirt! No clutter! And in almost no time you have a new and beautiful asbestos roof that will shelter your home for years to come.

For home roofs

Whether Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles are laid on a new house or right over old shingles they can be depended upon to safeguard the house from fire and weather for years to come.

For flat roofs

Such buildings as the Detroit Public Library, above, find Johns-Manville Built-Up Asbestos Roofing a dependable asset in protecting a valuable structure.

For sloping roofs of Industrial Buildings

Such buildings need roofing protection against fire, smoke, alkali, as well as against weather. Nothing could be more satisfactory than a roofing with a basis of rock—which is Johns-Manville Asbestos Roll Roofing.

Save money by this method

You save the cost of tearing off the old shingles. You save the cost of having them carted away.

But these savings, desirable as they are, seem only incidental when you consider the far greater savings you make by having, at last, a permanent asbestos shingled roof on your house. You need never worry about roofing repair bills. When you re-roof with Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles you have re-roofed for the last time. Their first cost is their only cost—and this first cost is surprisingly low—especially so with the savings effected by this method of re-roofing.

Double-roof protection, too

You not only save money by not tearing off the old roof, but you actually have a better roof by leaving it on! The old roof, underneath the new, becomes a protecting, insulating blanket. Dry wood is an excellent insulator. You are quite likely to find the upstairs rooms warmer in winter and cooler in summer because this two-fold roof helps to keep outside temperatures outside.

No more wear and tear on your purse. You pay your last roofing bill when you buy Asbestos Shingles.

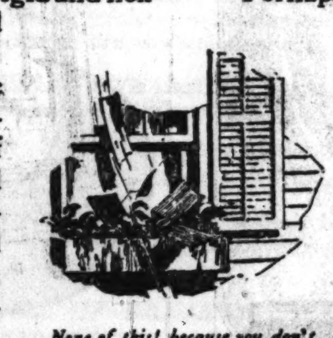
Two kinds of Asbestos Shingles

Johns-Manville make two kinds of asbestos shingles—rigid and flexible. Either can be laid over the old roof.

Johns-Manville Rigid* Asbestos Shingles are solid slabs of asbestos rock fibre and Portland cement—literally compressed rock. They come in several soft-toned colors, and in two shapes.

The second type of shingle is the Johns-Manville Flexstone Asbestos Shingle. This shingle falls within the popular price levels of the slate surfaced composition shingle. But instead of a rag-felt base, such as these other shingles have, Flexstone Shingles are built upon a dense layer of asbestos rock fibre. This gives a strength, a fire safety and a durability that is not obtainable in any other flexible shingle.

Flexstone Shingles are furnished in rich shades of red, green or blue-black—whichever you prefer.



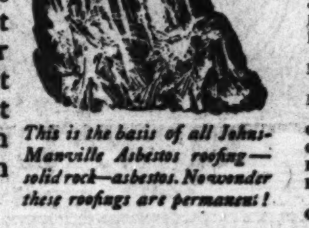
None of this! because you don't tear off the old roof there's no litter around—no broken shrubbery nor ruined lawns!

Important!
A roofing of asbestos for every type of building.

Perhaps you are interested in a building, other than your home, for which you want the protection of asbestos.

Besides the Asbestos Shingles, our line includes Built-Up Asbestos Roofings for flat roof buildings and Asbestos Roll Roofings, both slate-surfaced and plain, for all types of sloping roofs, industrial buildings, sheds, garages, farm buildings, etc., and that comfort-giving material for lining walls, floors and roofs, Johns-Manville Housline, which insulates your house against heat, cold and noise.

The Dealers and Contractors listed here can tell you what type Asbestos Roofing best meets your needs. Consult the one nearest you, and fill in the coupon below.



This is the basis of all Johns-Manville Asbestos roofing—solid rock—asbestos. No wonder these roofings are permanent!

Improvement Plan to Make Chicago Bright Light King

Better Roads Bring New "White Ways" to Illinois.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

CHICAGO'S night life will be brightened several million candle power and the hazards chased from hundreds of dangerous street intersections this year as a result of street lighting improvement programs already launched by the city and its various park boards.

Admittedly one of the most important steps in the protection of both automobile owners and pedestrians, the big lighting improvement will also add materially to Chicago's attractiveness for the thousands of motor tourists who use the city as a gateway to the west and northwest and will help to wring the last drop of value from community investments in paving and boulevard improvements.

More than 5,000 new type street lights will be installed by the city, according to Engineer Hale of the department of gas and electricity. Models of the improved light have been installed along Morgan street between 80th and 83d streets for public inspection. The department suggests that motorists in the vicinity of these models drive down the through street and give the new lights the once-over. City authorities will be glad to receive written criticism, suggestions, or letters of approval from the drivers sufficiently interested to make the inspection trip.

These new residential district lights are of the lantern type and set on posts 12 feet 6 inches in height. The old style lights employ ten foot posts with two 100 candlepower units at the intersections. About five times as much light is thrown over the intersections by the new system, which employs two 50 candlepower units at the corners. Much the same type of light has been installed in Saginaw avenue between 83d and 85th streets.

Both installations are part of the experimental program ordered by the city department for the approval of Chicago motorists. Illuminated "stop" and warning signs have also been installed at various points on the south side as a part of the general study which will eventually make Chicago the best lighted city in the world.

The south park board is coöperating in the city-wide study through installation of a number of new light models. On the west side the West Chicago park commissioners are working steadily on a systematic lighting improvement program which will practically double the efficiency of all of the west park boulevards. Columbus park lighting is an example of the approved plan. Austin boulevard also shows what the completed system will offer.

Lincoln park commissioners have installed a number of new model boulevard lights along the middle drive of the park and a new type warning signal at the intersection of the new one way drive and Sheridan road opposite the Belmont harbor. To the north the Rogers park commissioners have provided a striking model of better street lighting in the new system which illuminates Sheridan road from Devon avenue north. On this stretch of boulevard pedestrians are always visible from the driving seat of an automobile and the dangers of night driving have been practically eliminated.

Chicago's experiments in better lighting have drawn inspection parties from many other Illinois cities and towns where the economic value of the new state pavements is an open question in the minds of local merchants. With the rapid completion of the state's primary road system, business interests in many communities are discovering that new methods of merchandising are demanded in order to cash in on the state's pavement investment. A paved through route, they have found, must be made to pay its way through the increase in business that it brings to adjoining property. Progressive communities are holding their local business and increasing transient trade by installing new "white ways" in their business districts, furbishing up the store fronts and making their town more attractive to the motorist.

They have found that the prospective automobile buyer cares little for a twenty mile run when the town at the long end of the run offers better shopping or amusement attractions. Lights are the chief item in this stage setting and the whole state is preparing for a burst of brilliance in consequence.

The general lighting improvement is another marked advantage that may be chalked up to the credit of the automobile and better roads.

The Younger Set

The majority of automobiles in Germany are said to be owned by young men in their 20s. The older, sober German thinks twice or more before burning up his money in imported gasoline.

Goddess of Speed Gets Her Tribute from French Aces

PARIS, April 12.—Lady Luck, the flirting vampire of automobile racing drivers, waved a talkative wand today over a group of French pilots who have competed in the great 500 mile International at Indianapolis and who are planning to return again for the twelfth annual race, which will be held, as usual, May 30 this year. Then the conversation began:

Arthur Duray told of the hearty laugh he had on Lady Luck after the Indianapolis race in 1914. He went to the track with a three litre Peugeot, which he borrowed, a misfit collection of wrenches, and four spark plugs.

Against larger and more powerful cars he finished second to Rene Thomas in a Delage, and might have been able to outrun his countryman in the final dash had he a trifle more confidence in his makeshift creation of speed.

After the race Duray jubilantly shipped his car back to France. It was unpacked, cranked, and put on the road. Five miles from the start a connecting rod broke and smashed his motor to smithereens.

He could laugh, for he had many French francs in his money belt, exchanged for the healthy American gold pieces he got for second money in Indiana, U. S. A. Duray still chuckles with—not at—Lady Luck. He's for her.

But Andre Boillot, famous brother of the renowned Georges, one of the most noted of all drivers and an aerial hero who met his end in war, has only frowns for the mythical lady.

In 1919 at Indianapolis he had but five laps to run and he was right up in the first line trenches for a hub-to-hub finish when a wheel broke on his car, ditched him, and scattered into other hands a healthy sack of money awaiting his safe crossing of the finish wire. He'll never get over it—and blames Lady Luck.

Other French pilots have had their ups and downs in Europe and America as a result of Lady Luck, but all agree that the "man worth while is the man who can smile when everything goes dead wrong"—and then point to Ralph de Palma, who, leading by a comfortable margin five miles from the finish of the Indianapolis race in 1912, was thrown out of the event by engine trouble. He smiled his prettiest as Lady Luck frowned upon him only a few miles from triumph and $35,000, and leisurely pushed his car to the pits.

The crowd caught the sincerity of his act and cheered him more than Joe Dawson, his victor.

Since then the De Palma Smile has been universally recognized and applauded, even though Ralph has not won a race in years.

NEEDS SHOCK ABSORBERS

Try this on your favorite beach. It was originated recently by Dorothy Donnelly, one of Ocean Park's beautiful bathing gals, who found a new thrill in the sport. She calls it "sandplaning" and says it's the nearest thing to flying—when the air is "bumpy."

High Speeds Eat Into Old Records for Fuel Economy

FEW motorists pause to consider in these days of good roads and refined automobiles that they are driving faster than they did five years ago, with a consequent sacrifice of gasoline economy.

Tests and calculations show in different instances that a car driven at fifty miles an hour and having a certain body shape requires 22.6 horse power to overcome the wind resistance alone. This same car driven at thirty miles an hour requires only 4.8 horse power to overcome wind resistance. Another car with a different body shape requires 10 horse power at fifty miles and only 2.1 horse power at thirty miles.

If the drivers who persist in traveling at higher speeds would remember these facts they probably would cease to wonder why they don't seem to get the gasoline mileage they expect. Since many states have raised the limits on speed and mile after mile of trunk highway has been opened to motorists, the average driver has increased his rate of travel without realizing it.

The modern car travels more comfortably at thirty miles an hour than the older ones did at fifteen. It is probably this factor of increased comfort which has made the average driver forget that it takes practically as much power to overcome inertia and wind resistance as it ever did.

WATCH THE BULBS.

Always be sure to have the right sized bulbs put into the headlights when they need replacing, otherwise an unnecessary strain will be put on the batteries.

Rickenbacker

A · CAR · WORTHY · OF · ITS · NAME

An Open Challenge!—

To Any Automobile In The World

IT HAS BEEN PROVEN in the most exacting tests—in which all cars, American and European, were invited to take part—that Rickenbacker has the best brakes ever built into an automobile.

THIS KNOWLEDGE, all engineers and all manufacturers have.

IF ANY PLEADS IGNORANCE, then the Official Data is available to him for the asking.

BUT THE PUBLIC does not know—yet!

THOUSANDS of otherwise well informed people are still accepting cars with brakes only on two rear wheels.

NO SANE MAN would do this did he know all the facts.

FOR HE IS BUYING A CAR that is already, in the mind of its own maker, an "obsolete" model. He is buying excess depreciation.

AND WORST OF ALL, he is putting the safety of his loved ones, as well as himself, in jeopardy.

FOR; NO CAR IS SAFE in present-day traffic with less than 4-Wheel Brakes.

WE MAINTAIN that we would be derelict in our duty to automobile buyers did we not make every effort to give them the knowledge that is right now in the possession of engineers and manufacturers.

PROOFS so conclusive as to leave no room for doubt or controversy.

WE HAVE THE FIGURES—but we cannot publish them.

BECAUSE in the only official contests so far held, it was stipulated in advance that no maker would publish the competitive figures.

THAT WAS THE ONLY WAY to get any 2-brake car to enter the contests—that the facts—the comparative figures—be kept from the public for the present!

AND NO WONDER!—for every test proved that any 4-Wheel Brakes, are just twice as effective—twice as safe—twice as certain—under all conditions—as the best 2-Wheel Brakes.

PROVED THAT the best 2-Wheel Brakes are not as good as the worst 4-Wheel Brakes!

JUST READ THAT AGAIN—so you will get its full import!

NO WONDER THEY INSISTED the figures be kept under cover.

THEY ARE NOT KIDDING THEMSELVES about the deficiencies of the old system of Brakes. They know they are only "50 per cent brakes!"

NOW WE ARE ANXIOUS to bring these figures out into the sunlight.

RICKENBACKER HAS everything to win—nothing to lose—by any tests that can be made in public.

IF OTHERS ARE SINCERE in their claims—then they also have nothing to lose.

SO WHY NOT COME OUT in the open and prove which type of brakes (2 or 4) are the best; and which 4-Wheel Brakes are the World's Best?

WE KNOW—AND THEY KNOW—that is why we are so anxious to have you know.

The Challenge

WE HEREBY CHALLENGE any automobile in the world to equal the performance of Rickenbacker Brakes in a series of Public Tests;—and any car with 2-Wheel Brakes to equal Rickenbacker performance within 50 per cent.

WE STIPULATE that all records must be available to daily newspapers and trade journals everywhere.

TESTS TO BE MADE on the streets of this city, or Washington, D. C., under the auspices of the A. A. A. and certified by U. S. Bureau of Standards.

THEY SHALL INCLUDE not only speedometer readings and road measurements to show quickness of stops, but also charts by the "Decelometer."

(THE DECELOMETER is an instrument developed by the U. S. Bureau of Standards and is the most accurate known.

IT REGISTERS not only the rapidity of deceleration (quickness of stopping) but it also proves which car stops with least shock or jar to chassis and occupants).

IT PROVES SPRINGS as well as brakes. And tires too.

WE INVITE all cars foreign and American, especially 2-Brake cars of every type.

RANGE OF TESTS shall cover, in addition to quick stopping, the ability to decelerate from high speed, and with brakes set hard, turn a sharp corner on wet asphalt.

WE WOULD PREFER that the brake tests be preceded by a drive of several hundred miles over rough mountain roads—rougher and steeper, the better—so as to shake up all connections and disclose inherent weaknesses, if any, in the different types; then twenty-five miles through dense city traffic.

THEN WITHOUT ADJUSTMENT—without touching brakes—make the tests suggested.

EVERY MINUTE of such tests, each car to be under observation of a competitor—of course.

ANY KIND OF TIRES—any kind of treads—inflated to any degree of hardness.

RESULTS OF PREVIOUS TESTS prove these factors make no material difference—so tires you use will not matter.

What Will the Answer Be?

WE CAN TELL YOU NOW—and so can any manufacturer who has kept in touch with official tests that have been made during the past few weeks.

SO SURE ARE WE of what will be proved, we are willing to give you the answer now.

THOSE TESTS WILL PROVE that 4-Wheel Brakes are one hundred percent better than 2-Wheel Brakes.

THEY WILL PROVE that there is no material difference in 2-Wheel Brakes—whether acting direct on wheels or through transmission shaft.

THEY WILL PROVE that balloon tires do not add to effectiveness of 2-Wheel Brakes.

OFFICIAL TESTS ACTUALLY SHOW them to be slightly less effective on 2-Brake cars.

"BALLOONS" ARE TIRES—not brakes. Cannot in truth or reason be advanced as substitutes for 4-Wheel Brakes.

THAT, SIZE OF BRAKE DRUMS does not matter—any size will prove equal to stopping the wheels. And when you have done that you are through.

THAT, ON WET ASPHALT, Rickenbacker 4-Wheel Brakes will actually stop the car quicker than on the very same surface when dry.

THERE IS A SURPRISE FOR YOU!—yet it only proves what Rickenbacker has been saying for two years.

AIN'T IT A GRAND and Glorious Feeling to know that you can now drive along as fast as the law allows, on a water-soaked street, and yet be able to stop almost instantly—quicker than if it were dry.

AND IN LESS THAN HALF the distance that you can stop with 2-Brakes!

THOSE TESTS WILL PROVE that the best brakes in the world are of the internal, expanding, rigid-shoe type, on all four wheels and mechanically operated.*

AND—Having Differential Gear Equalizers to guarantee that all four take hold uniformly at all times and under all conditions.*

FOR, IT HAS BEEN PROVEN, that the answer to the last ounce of effectiveness is to be found in perfect equalization.

NINE MONTHS AGO we said in an ad which created a profound sensation:—"Any Car Without 4-Wheel Brakes is Obsolete."

WE MAINTAINED that in the mind of any person who knew the facts, 2-Wheel Brakes were even then as obsolete as the "One-Lung" Motor.

JUST AS TRULY "OBSOLETE" as was the single cylinder car from the day the first multi-cylinder car was produced.

THE ACCURACY of that assertion was challenged. And in no gentle terms.

EVERY SPECIES OF ARGUMENT—and evasion—was used to discredit it by makers who would save millions could they but stem the tide of demand for 4-Wheel Brakes.

TO AN AMAZING EXTENT they succeeded too!—we still see people buying cars with only fifty percent braking capacity!

WHAT WILL THEY DO when the car ahead of them has brakes on all four wheels—and is compelled to stop as quickly as it can?*

THEY USED TO ASK our salesmen what a 4-brake car would do when it stopped quickly, and the car behind couldn't.

YOU SEE, 4-Wheel Brakes were the exception then.

TODAY—TABLES ARE TURNED—hundreds of thousands of cars now have 4-Wheel Brakes.

SO QUESTION NOW IS—what will the man behind do—if he has only 2-Wheel Brakes?

JUST THINK! Last July, when Rickenbacker announced this epochal improvement, only two American cars had 4-Wheel Brakes.

TODAY 35 MAKES HAVE THEM and every week another is announced.

120 DAYS HENCE—August first at the latest—you will be able to count on the fingers of one hand the prominent makes that will still adhere to the "obsolete" type.

FOR WE INSIST IT WAS obsolete from the day that insiders knew the tremendous superiority of 4-Wheel Brakes.

IT IS ONLY A MATTER OF TIME till buyers also learn the truth.

WE WANT TO HURRY that time.

WE WANT EVERY BUYER TO KNOW what all engineers know—what has been proven—and can be proven over and over again, as often as cars with 2 and 4-Wheel Brakes can be brought together.

WE CAN'T IMAGINE by what process of reasoning anyone would today accept a car without 4-Wheel Brakes, any more than he would buy a single-cylinder car—or one with a crank-starter!

RICKENBACKER HAS, in the most rigid and exhaustive tests ever made, proven that it can out-perform any other car made in America or Europe.

TWELVE CARS TAKEN right off the assembly line proved just as perfect in operation—some of them slightly more so—as the test car which had been adjusted with utmost care. Showing that Official test car was just a fair average.

WITHOUT PREVIOUS NOTICE we will let a competitor come into our showroom, pick any car from stock and use that car in the official tests!

COME ON! Let us turn on the spotlight.

LET THE PUBLIC SEE and judge for themselves.

Meantime

WHILE YOU ARE WAITING for 2-Brake cars to accept this challenge, we suggest you make a few tests on your own hook.

A RICKENBACKER SIX is at your disposal any time. Drive it yourself if you like—no trick handling is necessary.

INSIST THAT THE OTHER FELLOW bring his car along and prove the quality of his brakes against Rickenbacker's in any test you can think of.

YOUR AMAZEMENT will be inexpressible.

AND AS A RESULT—YOU will be numbered among the Elect who enjoy Pride of Ownership of a Rickenbacker Six with 4-Wheel Brakes.

> "Rickenbacker never will build another automobile without 4-Wheel Brakes. Nor will this product ever be equipped with any but internal expanding, mechanically operated brakes."

Study of Balloon Tires Discloses Operation Secrets

Air Pressure Depends on Load and Type of Tire.

WHAT is a balloon tire? asks the India Rubber World in a recent issue, and proceeds to explain its findings in the following timely article:

Considerable confusion already exists in the tire trade, and still more in the public mind, as to the proper answer to this question. The term has been commonly applied to a great many sizes ranging from the 29x4½ and 30x5 six-ply so called "taxicab" tires, requiring an inflation pressure of about forty pounds, to the 34x7 four-ply thin sidewall tire designed for inflation pressures as low as eighteen or twenty pounds.

Leading tire manufacturers have, therefore, become apprehensive lest the public, hearing of the successful use of balloon tires at inflation pressure as low as eighteen pounds per square inch, will jump to the conclusion that all tires termed "balloons" can be used at this low pressure, and that the results will be disastrous. To offset this tendency some are recommending, even for "true" balloon tires, a pressure of about thirty-six pounds, despite the fact that at this higher pressure much of the cushioning value of the balloon tire is lost and punctures are said to occur oftener because of the higher unit pressure between trie and road.

The immediate need of a table of approved inflation pressures for the various sizes which can be marked clearly on each tire is obvious in order to prevent bringing these new tires into bad repute before their advantages under correct usage have been realized.

Meanwhile it is well for everybody to note the marked distinction which exists between balloon tires and "balloon type" tires. Balloon tires are manufactured for wheels and rims of three new and special dimensions only —namely: 20, 21, and 22 inch.

Pending further action by the Tire and Rim association it has been decided that dealers be advised to recommend to customers inflation pressure of twenty to thirty pounds, depending on the load.

It is the opinion of the tire executive committee of the Rubber Association of America that the automobile industry is in a period of transition with respect to the trend toward smaller diameter wheels. Many car manufacturers, because of material and equipment conditions, are unable to see their way clear to redesign present products so as to use only the balloon tire sizes previously recommended as standard by the tire executive committee.

It is believed, however, that the question of balloon tire standardization will gradually work itself out in the direction of small diameter rims and a lesser number of cross sections for each tire size. It is also thought that the quickest way to effect balloon tire standardization is for tire manufacturers to coöperate fully with car manufacturers in their experimentations to solve their standardization problems.

Both balloon and "balloon type" tires are straight side and no expense is connected with changing from regular cords to "balloon type" tires on cars equipped with straight side rims. In the case of cars using clinchers, the cost of the change over is only that ordinarily incurred in changing from clincher to straight side rims. On the other hand, in changing from regular cords to balloon tires on cars already in use, either new wheels or new rims are necessary, usually new wheels. On Cadillac and Lincoln cars the rims cannot be changed and new wheels are required.

"Balloon type" tires can be applied with no alterations whatever to cars having sufficient fender and body clearance. This clearance must be measured between the tread of the tire and the fender at the top, forward, and rear ends of the latter, also between the side of the tire and the side of the body between the side of the tire and the outer edge of the fender. Some cars have more fender and body clearance than others, and for that reason single and double oversize "balloon type" tires are made to fit the most commonly used rims.

The single oversize "balloon type" tire can be used in all cases, but when attempting to apply the double oversize, careful measurement of all clearances is necessary, not forgetting the use of chains in winter and that heavy loading of the car may produce sufficient sag in the springs to cause the fenders to strike the tires in crossing obstacles. The effect of these larger tires on the gear ratio and effective power is also to be considered.

Proper inflation pressure depends as always on the load, but contrary to the former practice the front tires require about five pounds more pressure than the rear tires when the car is empty, due to the weight of the engine. A low pressure gauge should be used and the inflation uniformly maintained. For ideal comfort in a Lincoln four passenger phaeton, for example, thirty pounds front and twenty-five pounds rear is about right.

How They Spread.

Export merchandising methods employed by automobile manufacturers were outlined to Columbia university students by George F. Bauer, secretary of the foreign trade committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Some companies, Mr. Bauer pointed out, use export commission houses as a means of extending overseas business, others maintain special departments at the factory, while a third method is the organization of subsidiary companies abroad with the sales program stimulated from assembling factories in the important foreign centers.

SO THIS IS CALIFORNIA!

Yessir, despite all denials that may filter in, the unterrified photographer swears this is California in winter. The picture was snapped in the mountains 50 miles from San Diego and goes to show that, in some parts of the golden state at least, they enjoy something other than "soft hail" in winter.

Women at the Wheel

No finer compliment could be paid to the Wills Sainte Claire than the unanimous endorsement of the women who drive it—

The extreme ease with which the car is handled—the touch of a toe on the wonderful hydraulic four wheel brakes—the pressure of a finger on the sensitive steering wheel—the eager alertness of the motor—the inspiring feeling of confidence and security, in the jam of city traffic or on the long reaches of the open road—all these appeal with peculiar force to the woman driver and offer to her a new and delightful experience in motoring—

And—entirely aside from the truly wonderful performance of the Wills Sainte Claire is the fascinating beauty of its outward appearance—

There is a charm to the graceful sweep of the body lines that is distinctively new in motor car design.

There is a rich harmony to the color combinations and an atmosphere of luxury and refinement in the interior finishing that meet the most exacting demands of discriminating taste.

The Wills Sainte Claire is offered to you in seven new body styles, equipped with hydraulic four wheel brakes (Lockheed) specially designed, and with perfectly balanced balloon tires.

A demonstration, with yourself at the wheel, will prove one of the most pleasing experiences of your life.

INTERNATIONAL MOTOR TRUCKS

Automobile Comfort in Steering

International heavy-duty trucks now have a perfected steering gear which is a complete departure from present-day truck steering design. If you know the cramped quarters and the scant attention invariably given the truck driver—and if you realize what it means to you in day-after-day hauling to maintain the driver's comfort, efficiency, loyalty, general morale—this exclusive improvement will interest you.

The International driver sits naturally and comfortably as in the finest passenger car. The small illustration shows how this is accomplished without sacrifice of loading space. To drive an International is to like it. May we have an opportunity to show you this new and exclusive feature?

At the right are given briefly a number of other outstanding features which combine to make the International reputation for low-cost hauling. In connection with these, note the fact that the International Harvester Company has been building motor trucks for nearly 20 years and that its history of high-grade manufacture goes back just 75 years beyond that. Today it has three great factories devoted exclusively to motor truck manufacture, and distributes its trucks through 93 Company-owned branches in principal cities.

Heavy-duty Internationals are built in 3000, 4000, 6000 and 10,000-pound maximum capacities.

International Speed Trucks are built to carry loads up to 2000 pounds.

Suitable bodies for every business.

Busses are furnished in a variety of chassis and styles of bodies to meet every passenger transportation need.

We will be glad to give you names of users in your own line of business. Write, phone or call on one of our Company branches, Sales and Service Stations or Dealers for full information on our new models.

International exclusive-design steering gear. Sturdy worm and gear just under cowl puts the wheel in driver's hands at 30-degree angle.

Other International Features:

Life Guarantee on Crankshaft and Main Ball Bearings: We guarantee that the crankshaft in the heavy-duty International will not break, and the main ball bearings will not break, wear out or burn out during the life of the truck. No other truck carries a guarantee like this.

Removable Cylinders: International design eliminates reboring cylinders or replacing complete cylinder blocks. International was first to use this type of construction.

Rear Auxiliary Springs, Exclusively International: These springs, inoperative under light loads, come into action when needed. Assure correct spring flexibility under varying loads.

Free Inspection Service: Every International owner is assured free inspection service at regular intervals for the life of his trucks. This valuable working service, backed by our 93 Company branches and their service stations, is unique in the automotive industry.

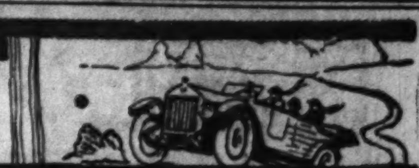
MOTORDOM



Race for Big Auto Production Slows to Normal Speed

Used Car Problem Looms Ahead for Motor Makers.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., April 12.—[Special.]—With the close of the first quarter of 1924 automobile builders, after a careful checking up, found that the period was the greatest productive first quarter on record. If the pace set since Jan. 1 could be maintained, a final count Dec. 31 would show that the 5,000,000 mark had been exceeded by nearly 250,000 cars and trucks.

The official number of cars turned out since Jan. 1 totals 1,040,755. This was 19 per cent above the first quarter a year ago. The March figures, slightly above those of one year ago, were 356,509. This was about 2½ per cent drop from February's enormous output. Heavy production in February, unfavorable weather conditions on the Pacific coast as well as in various other sections of the country, slowed up sales considerably during the second and third weeks of March. Dealers, as a whole, are well supplied with cars, and prompt deliveries are assured throughout the whole country. Dealers have provided themselves with sufficient cars this spring since many were unable to make deliveries a year ago on account of the unprecedented demand.

Every mail brings added applications for space for the automotive maintenance equipment show to be held in Detroit May 19-23, during the national automotive service convention and the World Motor Transport congress.

Judging from names so far received the show will be a representative and well rounded collection of equipment necessary in the automobile repair shop. People most interested are automobile factory officials, service managers and engineers, automobile distributors and dealers and their service managers and shop superintendents.

New York bankers who are concerned with the large volume of credit tied up in automobile manufacturing and selling operations are carefully watching what they consider a noticeable lull in automobile buying. Any signs of the approach of the much feared "saturation point," it is indicated, will be followed by drastic measures to prevent "freezing" of loans, which undermined the financial position of the industry several years ago.

But according to Edward S. Jordan, president of the Jordan Motor Car company, the "saturation point" feared by New York bankers will never be reached until every one has an automobile and none ever wear out.

"The awakening of the automobile manufacturers," he says, "to the necessity of regulating production in keeping with the financial resources of the dealers' organization will restrain production sufficient to avoid any slump which would come as a penalty for overproduction."

The used car problem is giving dealers throughout the country cause for considerable thought, to say nothing about the worry. Anybody, they claim, can sell a new car, but it takes a high class salesman to dispose of a used car to the entire satisfaction of the buyer and the dealer.

Dealers are fully awake to the perils that face them in the trade-in problem, and have concluded, both individually and collectively that the only thing between them and financial disaster is a strict retrenchment policy. Practically every available inch of wareroom space is now occupied by an overaccumulation of used vehicles.

Dealers are without an alibi—they admit they themselves are directly responsible for the "jam" in which they find themselves. Their desire to make a big sale showing, quick turnovers with the factories gorging them with new cars.

Many dealers are now bemoaning what they claim is the unfair attitude of the buying public. Buyers of new cars are "shopping," and disposing of their vehicles to the highest bidder. They are claiming that one car in a certain class is as good as another, and are satisfied to deal with the salesman who offers the most money for their used car, which in hundreds of cases, is greatly in excess of its actual value. But the salesman, in order to make a deal, is willing to take the loss, and he is left with but slight margin, if indeed any at all, and an old car on his hands instead of a new one.

The Question.

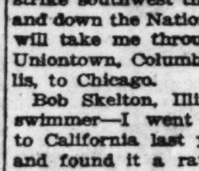
Where do you plan to go on your automobile vacation tour this year?

Where Asked.

Michigan avenue link bridge.

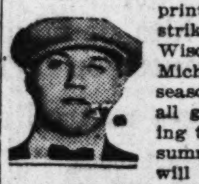
Answers.

William E. Hammond, New Orleans, La., executive—We are striking northwest on a tour of the great national playgrounds, taking the trip in easy stages to Yellowstone park. Better roads in the northwest have made the trip possible now for my wife, baby, and myself, and we look forward to weeks of the finest outing in our lives. Our route will take us over a great circle with the northernmost part of the trip coming during the warm weather. It will bring us back into Chicago.



Otto Rockman, 506 East 48th street, supervisor — I have made all arrangements to drive to New York City and return. The roads from Chicago to New York are wonderful and there is more to see in this trip than almost any other offered in the country. My route will take me to Detroit first, then to Buffalo by boat, and on to New York by way of Albany. Returning, I expect to strike southwest through Philadelphia and down the National highway, which will take me through the mountains, Uniontown, Columbus, and Indianapolis, to Chicago.

Bob Skelton, Illinois Athletic club, swimmer—I went out to California last year and found it a rather tough drive. I must have hit the roads at their worst on the way to Los Angeles. This year I expect to take a shorter pleasure trip to the east. The roads are better that way an dthere is wonderful scenery and points of historic interest along all of the routes. Me for the east.



July Borella, 635 North Wells street, printer — I want to strike north into the Wisconsin and north-Michigan woods this season. The roads are all good up there during the late spring and summer and tourists will have to get up early to beat the scenery. The fishing is another inducement for the trip. I suppose there will be about a million people think the same way that I do about the northern tour.

Bob De Vere, 4416 Sheridan road, boxer—I am heading northeast into Vermont and Canada for the summer vacation. Hunting and fishing will go alon gwith this tour through the wonderful pine woods. A trip through that country up there ought to add ten years to a man's life, and the driving is good all along the line.

Spring's the Time to Insure the Car, Says This Expert

"During the next month will be the critical time for car servicing," is the warning issued yesterday by R. A. Armstrong, service manager of the Oakland company, "as this period marks the transition from winter to summer driving. Owners of any make of car can save themselves money and trouble by giving their car a thorough overhauling, at this time.

"The radiator should be drained and the circulating system flushed out to remove all the alcohol solution and sediment. At this time it is advisable to inspect the radiator hose connections as alcohol solution used during the winter deteriorates the rubber. If leaks are found new connections should be installed.

"The crank case should be thoroughly drained and flushed with a light quality motor oil. New lubricating oil should be used to refill the oil system, and if the car requires a lighter oil for summer driving this should be used. Inspect the oil in the transmission and rear axle, adding more if necessary. Fill all dope cups or use dope "gun" on all oil connections, such as shackle bolts, universal joints, etc.

"Test engine to see if it overheats. Should it do so, it may be caused by improper timing, carburetor adjustments, water circulation, water pump or fan belt not functioning properly. If a rich gasoline mixture has been used during the winter be sure that the carburetor adjustment is changed.

"Check and adjust tappets; clean spark plugs, if an excess of carbon is found have cylinders cleaned and valves ground. Inspect wiring and see that all connections are clean and make good contact. See that battery is filled with distilled water to the proper level.

"Tighten all loose nuts, particularly body and shackle bolt nuts. See that brakes are properly adjusted and relined if needed; focus head lamps and have tires inflated evenly and to the specified pressure.

"The work as outlined will be amply repaid in a freedom from road breakdowns and expensive repairs during the spring and summer."

WORK-BENCH WISDOM

BY ERWIN GREER.

Lubrication Tips.

THE average car owner is prone to follow the instructions which he finds in the book which accompanies his car, and he is careful to do nothing unless he finds a suggestion in a magazine or in that same book of instructions.

He fills the base of his engine with lubricant when oil is necessary, as indicated by the gauge, and he is careful to see that the oil flows through the gauge, and he is careful to see that the pressure remains at a certain figure while the engine is running. The instruction book does not always advise the owner further regarding the oiling system.

You may have liquid in the base of your engine, but is it a lubricant? Many times this liquid is a combination of cylinder oil and water. Its lubricating properties are poor, and should the bearings burn through lack of oil the owner is very apt to blame the oil for the trouble. He immediately buys oil of another grade or oil that is made by another manufacturer, without, however, knowing the reason for his trouble.

Depending upon the type of engine, oil in the base should be changed regularly. Old lubricating oil should be drawn out from the base and thrown away and new put in, for at least every thousand miles of riding. In some cases it is advisable to renew the oil much oftener.

Make a point of cleaning it with light oil every time the lubricating oil is renewed. Put in about one quart of light oil and turn the engine over by hand, with the petcocks open, a dozen turns or so. The light oil will loosen the particles of grease and have a tendency to drive out the dirt. It is not advisable to run the engine while the light oil is in the base. It may do no harm. On the other hand there is a possibility that it will damage the engine.

After the engine has been cleaned in this way, draw off the light oil, and while the drain cocks are still open turn the engine over two or three times in order to drive the light oil from the system. Clean the pump strainer, if there is one, and then put in a good grade of oil.

COVETED TROPHY.

The prize trophy of the Indianapolis speed classic is a vase seven feet high, representing half a ton of sterling silver and valued at $20,000. It will be the permanent property of the driver who wins it three times. Tommy Milton has won it twice.

Gasoline Jugglers Struck by Latest Safety Campaign

Association Warns That Gas and Dynamite Are Related.

WARNING motorists that gasoline is now a greater hazard because it is less feared, the American Automobile association has issued a bulletin from its national headquarters in Washington that marks the beginning of a drive on what is termed "contemptuous carelessness."

Because "nothing happens," the bulletin states, the average motorist reaches the hazardous conclusion that "nothing will happen," and as a consequence he lets down on precaution and actually encourages trouble.

"Gasoline is much more dangerous to the motorist than it ever was," the A. A. A. paper explains, "for the simple reason that the majority of motorists take undue liberties with it. The story got out that gasoline is less volatile, and from this the motorist seems to have reached the conclusion that he can be reckless with gasoline and still be safer."

This explanation is said to dovetail with the experience of the leading insurance companies writing automobile fire coverage. While the companies enjoyed a more profitable year than formerly, it is stated, the losses by fire are still excessive and still far beyond the conception of the average motorist.

"We are out to forestall the sort of carelessness that develops from contempt," declares Thomas P. Henry, president of the association. "When a motorist reaches the point where a danger no longer looks like one to him he has reached the danger line. Knowledge of the facts is the only thing that will keep him on the safe side.

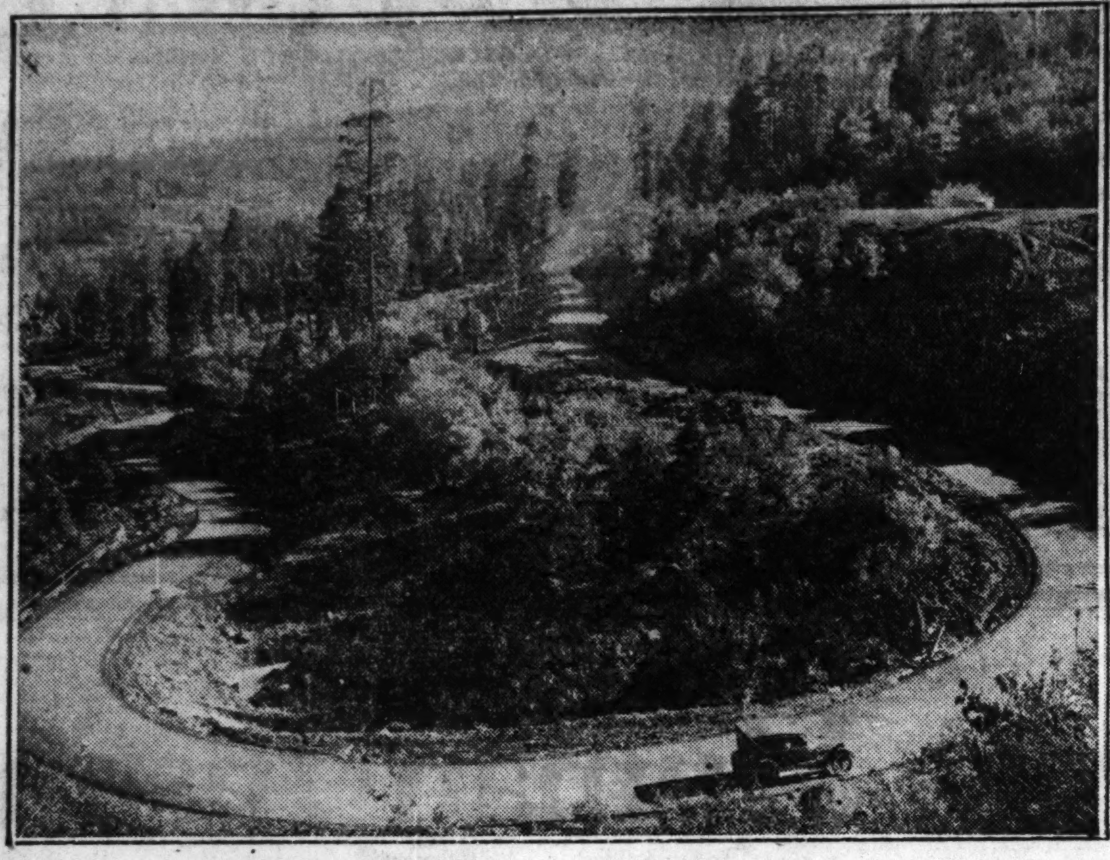
"Investigation of accident causes has developed the fact tat many drivers are deliberately careless in the belief that so long as the other fellow has good brakes there's nothing to worry about. This same reasoning—or lack of reasoning—applies particularly to the matter of the gasoline hazard.

"It has come to the attention of the A. A. A. that one motorist actually went so far as to light a match when seated in a Ford sedan in order to read the number of gallons of gas in the tank as indicated on a measuring rod. Nothing happened, but that is just the trouble. This motorist will take further liberties next time. And that will be the end.

"A very large percentage of automobile mechanics now smoke while working on cars, even when tinkering with carburetors and vacuum tanks. Motorists see this and conclude that gasoline has ceased being dangerous. Because nothing happens they acquire a certain contempt for its known hazards. It isn't long before they apply the straw that breaks the camel's back."

According to the bulletin, the vapor from a gallon of gasoline when mixed with the right proportion of air produces a hazard equal to eighty-five pounds of dynamite. Because this vapor does not always develop when gasoline is exposed, it is pointed out, a lot of tricks can be done with the gas tank without any immediate results. What happens, however, is that the full hazard invariably asserts itself when the motorist treats gasoline with the greatest contempt.

OVER THE HILLS AND FAR AWAY.



Here is one of the reasons why the west acts as an irresistible magnet for millions tof tourists each year. It shows a typical highway loop in the Siskiyou mountains on the Pacific highway in southern Oregon, where every turn in the road brings new and delightful vistas and scenic surprises.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

THE strong financial position of the H. H. Franklin Manufacturing company is indicated by its balance sheet for 1923, just published. Fixed assets amount to more than $9,600,000, against which very liberal reserves have been set up. There is no fixed indebtedness. Patents and good will are carried on the balance sheet at $1. The ratio of quick assets to quick liabilities is 3.27 as compared with 2.55 a year ago.

Every second day a finished car awaiting shipment in the Packard factory is seized by the company's engineers and, after a 500 mile road test, is completely disassembled. The plan, newly instituted, is designed to insure perfection in every part and to act as an extra check against the precision of factory assembly and inspection.

Reports of a slowing down in the demand for new cars seem to be refuted by the March new-car registration figures for Cook county, according to Clarence E. Eldridge, manager of the Chicago Reo branch. These figures show that there were 6,736 new passenger cars registered in March this year as compared with 5,732 in March, 1923—an increase of 17.5 per cent. Reo sales, he reports, show a gain of 78.4 per cent over the month a year ago.

Gardner's February production was exactly double that of January, according to a late report from the St. Louis factory, and March production was 110 per cent greater than that of February. Plans for the coming months call for further increases.

New quarters at 5206 Broadway have been completed for the Smithson and Raymond company, formerly located at 5051 Broadway, and a new display of Packard cars is featuring the opening. The company has added complete service facilities for the benefit of north side patrons.

Easy Riding.

A new type of air suspension of automobile bodies is being used in England, wherein the body floats on a type of encased rubber tubing in such a manner that it acts much the same as a pneumatic tire, permitting the car the same resilience afforded by the pneumatic tire, while at the same time the wheels themselves are shod with less expensive rubber tires.

No Insurance on Millions of Cars, Figures Indicate

IN 1923 automobile owners in the United States spent approximately $294,000,000 for automobile insurance. This is an average of only $21 a year for every motor vehicle in this country, or about one-seventh of the cost of full insurance for a medium priced car in New York, for example, in which city $150 covers just a moderate amount of public liability insurance, as well as the usual theft and fire protection.

In other words, millions of automobile owners evidently carry no insurance at all, and additional millions merely protect themselves against theft and fire, and some property damage, while they neglect entirely the vastly more important hazard of personal liability.

In most cases this is due to the heavy cost of automobile insurance, which runs about $3 a week for the average car owner. Because of this lack of insurance, hundreds of thousands of motorists use their cars only in fine weather and on good roads. They prefer to walk or use public service transportation rather than take unnecessary chances in rain, snow, at night, and in heavy traffic.

A Car Such as You've Never Driven Before!

YOU haven't the faintest idea of what this big, handsome Six will do until you try it out.

Here's a car for crowded places as well as the open road.

Take it through traffic where you need quick action and easy handling. Note its saucy confidence as it weaves effortlessly in and out at walking speed.

No choking—no balking—no sputtering, here.

With the flash of the semaphore—give it gas. Feel it leap from under you like a thoroughbred given the rein. See how it leaves the crowd behind. Then you realize there is a difference in driving a Peerless Six.

4-Wheel Brakes for Safety

Yet, instantly when needed, the hydraulic 4-wheel brakes bring you to a safe, smooth, skidless stop.

Now out to the open road! Let 'er go until the telephone poles look like a picket fence. Climb the long hills without a thought of shifting gears. Don't mind the ruts for this sturdy car is built for hard, gruelling service.

You've never seen a Six perform like it.

The deep upholstery snuggles against you. Absolute relaxation holds you in its soothing grasp. You are rested as the Peerless Six piles up the miles. Riding becomes an actual luxury.

Surely, to own the Six is to possess a car that is truly Peerless.

For whether it's an Eight or a Six—after all it's a Peerless.

Radio Fans Get Closeup of the Farmer at Work

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

PASSENGERS on board the good ship Rural-Urban who heard Arthur C. Page's radio address "Two in the Same Boat" broadcast by THE TRIBUNE, Zenith station, last Tuesday night, have been hustlig around ever since trying to find an oar to do their share in paddling the lifeboat. Mr. Page, editor of Orange Judd Farmer, gave radio fans one of the best interpretations of the interdependency of city and country that farmers and urbanites have ever heard.

ARTHUR C. PAGE.

Speaking under the auspices of the W-G-N's farm and garden radio program, he told how they depend upon each other. He said: "Some of you folks in the city have never been on a farm, and some of you on the farm know little about the city. Yet each of you depends on the other, whether you know it or not. You are in the same boat."

Early in the Morning.

Then came a little visiting. The radio fans were taken by Mr. Page out to see the dairy farmer at milking time. "Early in the morning," he said, "long before daylight, when the last echoes of midnight jazz bands in Chicago have scarcely died away, the dairy farmer in northern Illinois, or in Wisconsin, is hustling around with the big job of milking and feeding cows. He has to move his work on schedule in order to get the milk on the train or in the motor truck so it will arrive in Chicago on time. That bottle of milk you find on the doorstep every morning has been over a long road and represents a vast amount of effort that you never see."

Zipping through the air at lightning speed he came back to the city with the fans. "I wonder," he said, "if people in the city have any conception of the length of time it takes and the amounts of planning, or the amount of capital invested, to put on the market the pork chop for the dinner table or the crisp, lean bacon that is served for breakfast. It takes a year to produce a hog to marketable size and age.

"Many a farmer in the middle west is starting today the work which will result in the ham or bacon or pork chops that you will buy two years from now. If it is beef, it takes even longer. So you see farming is rather a slow and steady job."

Many listeners turned away from their receiving sets with the remark, "I didn't know that," when Mr. Page reminded them that "every single item of human food, with the possible exception of fish (and table salt, which isn't a food, anyway), must be produced through the partnership of the farmer and the soil, the sunshine and the rain.

"I have been talking about the farmer as a producer, but he is of no less importance as a consumer. How many of you who are listening tonight derive your income in whole or in part from railroading?" asked the speaker. "Do you realize that the things that are hauled from farm to city, or from the city to the farm, make up the largest amount of freight that is hauled by the railroad? How many of you make your living from some form of mercantile business? Do you realize the farmer is one of the largest consumers in the world for all kinds of merchandise?

"Perhaps you think he buys only overalls and gum boots. As a matter of fact, he buys automobiles and trucks in tremendous quantities. He buys electric washing machines and electrical equipment of other kinds. He buys enormous quantities of steel in the form of implements, fencing, and machinery of many kinds. He buys an enormous number of cameras and photographic films, because there are more things worth taking pictures of in the country anyway. He has to buy immense quantities of lumber and building materials, because a large part of his business depends on having satisfactory buildings to house his live stock and grain. He is one of the world's largest users of cement, which he uses in a variety of ways. Yes, and the farmer today is one of the best and biggest customers for radio equipment, especially here in Illinois, close to the big broadcasting stations.

"You people in the city, and you in the country, have largely the same problems, whether you realize it or not, and if either one of you should attempt to put yourself ahead by pushing the other one back, you might succeed for a little while, but not for long."

Deserves Square Deal.

Mr. Page said food is the cheapest thing on the market. The price of food in general ought to be such that the producer can maintain a good wholesome American standard of living, educate his children, and do it by working a normal number of hours in a day.

"If you folks in this city can work only eight hours, and the man in the country has to put in ten to twelve hours, working just as hard, besides a couple of hours of chores which don't count as a part of the day's work, there must be something wrong with the arrangement. The price of food ought to be such that it will permit the farmer to maintain fair working hours.

"Chicago is built on agriculture," concluded Editor Page, "and a great deal of agriculture depends on Chicago. Thousands of farmers within the radius of my voice tonight make their living by producing and selling food and other products to people in Chicago, and thousands of people in Chicago make their living from the things they help to produce that are sold to farmers. There ought to be the closest bond of sympathy between this great city and the great agricultural territory which surrounds it, the greatest agricultural territory in the world. It is a most excellent sign of national health when folk in Chicago and you folk out on the farm begin to understand each other, to realize there should be no antagonism between you, but that you are in the same boat—that when one profits you both profit; when one loses, you both eventually lose."

DOWN ON THE FARM.

"WHEN A FELLOW HAS A REAL FRIEND."—Tiny squealing porkers that are left motherless on Uncle Sam's farm, at Washington, D. C., are too valuable nowadays to be neglected. It's John's job to round them up and feed them on warm milk until they are able to root for themselves. Thousands of dollars' worth of orphaned pigs could be sent to the market instead of to the boneyard every year if hog raisers would take the time to feed them. Start a pig orphanage this spring, and see if it doesn't pay. Send your "down in the farm" pictures to the Agricultural Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. [Wide World Photo.]

GARDEN NOTES

Wood ashes sprinkled over the vegetable garden just before a rain will put potash in the soil in a hurry. It makes a good fertilizer for fruits and flowers, too.

One of the best ways to hold moisture in the soil—the moisture that falls during the night—is to stir the garden soil early in the morning before the sun begins to warm up things and the moisture escapes.

Ogle County Herds Top Illinois' 1923 Production Record

Ogle county, Ill., leads all other counties in the state in the number of high producing herds and cows for the last twelve months, according to condensed monthly reports sent out by the dairy extension offices at Urbana, says John Potter, official tester in that district. The county's herds won nineteen places among the ten highest herds each month, more than any other county, the tester claims. Out of ten high cows each month, Ogle county placed forty-four animals during the year. Forty-one were owned by Rock River farms and three by Sinnissippi farm.

Recently the Ogle County Cow Testing association finished its second year's work, having tested 409 cows during the last year. The tests enable dairy farmers to pick out unprofitable producers. Twenty-five cows out of the 409 were disposed of because they were not paying a profit above the feed bill.

The Rock River farm's herd made the highest production records in the yearly herd average and the largest number of high cows. To give some idea of the high standards being set in Ogle county, Mr. Potter says that last year this herd was first with 63 cows averaging 11,905 pounds of milk and 410 pounds of butterfat; this year the average of 75 cows stands at 12,458 pounds of milk and 424.5 pounds of butterfat.

The herd at Sinnissippi farm made an average of 11,380 pounds of milk and 397.5 pounds of butterfat. There were seventeen cows on test in this herd. Last year this herd averaged 10,320 pounds of milk and 352.6 pounds of butterfat.

Twelve pure bred and grade cows owned by Kump and Estes averaged 10,085 pounds of milk and 363.4 pounds of butterfat.

Fourteen herds were tested for a full year in the county and six of them made a record of more than 300 pounds per cow, according to the tester's report.

Stark County Farmers Buy First Corn in 46 Years

Farmers in Stark county, Ill., are buying corn this season for the first time in forty-six years, according to Judge W. W. Wright, speaking recently before members of the agriculture committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Judge Wright, an extensive grain producer and breeder of shorthorn cattle in both Illinois and Iowa, says many farmers emptied their crops before cold weather ended, and have to buy corn this spring as a result of a local drought that struck his county last summer.

POULTRY TIPS

If you have eggs incubating, it is important to keep your eye on them about the eighteenth or nineteenth day—something interesting begins to happen about that time. Leghorn eggs usually pip on the nineteenth day and hatch the next. If the eggs are from the heavier breeds, the pipping and hatching are usually about a day later. Of course, if the temperature of the incubator is allowed to run high, the hatch may be earlier, but there will probably be some wrynecked chicks.

Game Refuge Bill Backed by Farmers

Keen interest is being taken by farmers in the game refuge bill now before congress. Thousands of hunters, acting individually and through their associations, are backing the bill with the farmers. The measure provides for the buying of areas for public shooting grounds, through a fund collected from license fees, so that wild game, particularly water fowl, can be protected.

Farmers, as well as city sportsmen, realize that unless they take a definite part in protecting wild game, shooting in the future will have to be limited to clay pigeons and tin cans thrown into the air as flying targets.

The bill has been recently discussed in regional meetings of farmers throughout the country.

Oakland is the only Light-Six with 4-Wheel Brakes
Standard Equipment on All 1924 Models at no extra cost

You wouldn't knowingly buy a car that wasn't up-to-the-minute, any more than you would pay good money for a house lacking essential modern features.

By the same reasoning your new car should certainly have four-wheel brakes—a proved safety essential in a truly modern automobile. The owners of hundreds of thousands of cars thus equipped would never go back to any less effective braking system.

The True Blue Oakland is the only light-six on which you get four-wheel brakes as standard equipment. These brakes—sound, simple, easily adjusted—give a new and satisfying assurance of safety under every possible driving condition.

Many Other Exclusive Features

Oakland also is the only light-six with permanent top, special Duco finish, controls on steering wheel, special glass enclosures and many other exclusive features.

If ever there was a car which sells itself, it is this year's True Blue Oakland Six. Don't choose your next car until you see it. If you haven't examined it—ridden in it—you haven't any idea how much ability and goodness you can purchase at its low price.

Blood will tell

IN PLANTS, as in people and finely bred cattle, "blood will tell." What the plant will be depends upon what the parent was.

The reason that Ferry's purebred Seeds can be depended upon to produce true to name and type is because they are from ancestors known to be sound and true. At our stock seed farm we have been watching parent and grandparent plants for many generations. Every plant that did not grow true to type was weeded out.

Let this watchfulness on our part be the foundation for your faith in Ferry's purebred Seeds. And what a satisfaction there is to have faith in the seeds you plant—and to have that faith justified by results.

Ferry's purebred Seeds are on sale at "the store around the corner." Make your selections to-day from the familiar Ferry Box.

Write for Ferry's Seed Annual. It is full of garden facts. Get it now before you plant.

CHICAGO WOMEN THINK
They keep posted. They make their husbands leave THE TRIBUNE at home every morning so they can keep posted. And their husbands get other TRIBUNES at the corner stand.

WOMAN WEDDED TO TWO HELD ON FRAUD CHARGES

Neither Husband Accuses Her of Bigamy.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 12. — Mrs. Anna Beswick, alleged bigamist, was held in $5,000 bail today on charges of defrauding two men of $5,000. Three men whom she accused of blackmailing her through threats to reveal her dual existence were also held.

Detectives were investigating the various operations of Mrs. Beswick It is alleged that seven years ago she served a term for forgery, and that on another occasion she was said to have been jailed for defrauding friends and merchants.

Confronted with the three men she accused of extortion before her hearing, Mrs. Beswick engaged in a verbal battle with them, claiming they were "framing" her, while they in turn said she was "framing" them.

Admits Bigamous Marriage.

In a confession to detectives, Mrs. Beswick is said to have admitted marrying William C. Martin, 55, a bank official and president of a cold storage plant, although her first husband, Samuel E. Beswick, 63, is still alive and she is not divorced from him.

She stated she was the mother of eighteen children, although Beswick said the number was fifteen.

Her apprehension was brought about by Ralph Hawthorne, a chauffeur, and William Schuman, who claimed Mrs. Beswick owed them $5,000 which she had borrowed after representing herself to be heiress to a large estate.

Husbands Do Not Accuse.

Despite her confession of dual marriage, no charges were preferred against the woman by her first husband or Martin.

The three men held she accused of blackmailing her when they discovered she had two husbands through her continual use of their taxicabs to journey between her home and the residence of Martin in Fox Chase, a suburb.

To detectives she stated the men had extorted money from her which she in turn obtained from Martin. She placed the amount at $50,000, although this was subsequently denied by the assistant district attorney, who said Martin had told him the sum was $15,000.

SORORITY GIRLS BEST STUDENTS AT N. U., REPORT

Non-fraternity men at Northwestern university stand higher in their studies than members of the Greek letter societies, and sorority co-eds stand still higher according to scholarship figures published yesterday.

"A" is worth 3; "B plus," 2.25; "B," 2; "C plus," 1.5; "C," 1; and below 1 is "not passing," according to the university method of grading. On this basis, the average rank of all girls in sororities—not including freshmen, was 1.4605; that of the non-fraternity men, including freshmen, 1.1838; and of fraternity men, again excluding freshmen, 1.1232.

The fraternity and sorority members took hope when university authorities declared their standing higher than last year, while the non-fraternity group had slumped a little.

2,000 TEXAS FLIES SENT BY EXPRESS TO SEE 'THE HUB'

Dallas, Tex., April 12.—Two thousand Dallas common house flies are on their way or have arrived in Boston. They traveled by express in special shipments, the last consignment leaving here three days ago.

Just what Boston wanted with 2,000 flies from the south is not known here. The order was received and filled by F. C. Bishop, chief entomologist of the United States department of agriculture in Dallas. A private business concern in Boston asked for the flies. The order was difficult to fill, as flies of the variety wanted are scarce here as yet this year.

Drops Dead While Cranking His Auto

Exertions attending the cranking of his automobile proved too much yesterday for Elmer Wurster, 23, 2145 Warner avenue. He grasped the crank, turned it several times as the machine stood in front of his home, then dropped dead. Police said they believed heart disease was the cause.

GREECE TO VOTE TODAY; REPUBLIC OR MONARCHY?

Martial Law to Be Proclaimed.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, April 12.—Greece is feverishly awaiting tomorrow's plebiscite which will choose between monarchial and republican form of government. Great excitement prevails throughout the country as the contending factions make their final pleas to the voters.

Airplanes today flew over the principal cities dropping pamphlets urging the populace to vote for a public.

Premier Papanastasios and several other ministers told THE TRIBUNE they were certain the plebiscite would result in a victory for the republic by a majority of 3 to 1.

Will Proclaim Martial Law.

Martial law will be proclaimed throughout Greece, including the city of Athens, at midnight tonight.

This action is taken by the royalists as indicating that Premier Papanastasios' government is determined to force the republican administration on the people regardless of the result of the plebiscite.

Arrest Royalists as Plotters.

Gen. Leonardopolous and eight other ranking military and naval officers were arrested today as being implicated in preparations for a royalist coup to turn the plebiscite against the government.

It is charged that the attack by bandits on a train on which the premier was returning from a political tour was an organized attempt to kidnap the official. High army officers were arrested in connection with the attack.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 12.—More than 2,000 head of dairy cattle in the San Fernando valley north of Los Angeles will be slaughtered in the widespread and intensive campaign against the foot and mouth disease. Five new outbreaks of the epidemic have been reported within the last twenty-four hours, all in the San Fernando district. The infection spread from a drove of hogs which contracted the disease, it is believed after they had eaten Los Angeles garbage.

'MILLIONAIRE KID' FOR TWO WEEKS ON STOLEN CASH

Squanders $14,000 in Tips, Then Goes to Jail.

New York, April 12.—[Special.]—For two weeks George Lister was the "Millionaire Kid" on Broadway, with $14,000 he stole from the American Express company in Sausalito, Cal., when he absconded as cashier. Today he is under arrest—"broke." He borrowed a nickel subway fare to give himself up and was arrested on the way.

Lister was held in $25,000 bail by Magistrate Oberwanger in Tombs court for a hearing on April 19.

Most of the $14,000, Lister says, is in the pockets of waiters, cabaret singers and doormen along the gay white way. He passed it out in tips ranging from $5 to $100. His boast when arrested was that he didn't spend a penny of it on himself, but used it to "make others happy." He still wore the brown business suit in which he disappeared.

Friends Go When Money Goes.

Lister, who is 34, and lives at the Hotel Manhattan here, reached the end of his financial string a few nights ago with a $100 tip to a jazz orchestra leader for playing a favorite tune. Then his friends began to disappear. He decided to give himself up.

He was just a few feet from the office of the express company when Detective Sergeants Fay and Fitzpatrick, who had consulted company officials on the case, recognized him. Questioned, he admitted his identity.

Under his arm he carried a bag in which he had stolen the money. He turned it over to the officers.

Blames Flight on Companions.

Lister disappeared March 10. He blamed it all on the fact that he had become associated with a crowd of bootleggers. He said he tried to commit suicide a few days ago, but that after he had turned on the gas "some one" turned it off.

"I posed as the son of a rich man," Lister said. "I wanted to make every one on Broadway happy. I think I succeeded until my money gave out. I tipped every one in sight. And I didn't spend a cent on myself."

A SIX Coupe at $1075

Most Popular Oldsmobile Ever Built

SINCE its announcement last October, the model 30 Oldsmobile Six has achieved a great success. The public recognizes the wholly unusual value offered in this six—a value well typified in the coupe.

Here first of all is a Fisher body—which speaks volumes for its quality. We could lay bare the frame of the coupe and show you the splendid workmanship of Fisher craftsmen. We could show you how the fine hardwood frames are mortise-wedged, glued, screwed and bolted. We could become very technical in explaining the scientific bracing of all the parts which are subject to strains, but all this quality can be taken for granted when we say—Body by Fisher.

As for performance—we want you to drive this car. Then you will appreciate the value of this joint product of Oldsmobile and General Motors.

COMPO-BOARD, the wood core board, has been made and used for over thirty years. Millions upon millions of feet have been used in building and for hundreds of other purposes. Some of the wood fibre and other types of wall boards have come and gone, but Compo-Board is still here and is selling in larger volume today than ever.

When Compo-Board is used for building or other purposes, records show the owner is always satisfied.

Price is of small consideration when utility is considered.

Don't Experiment With Untested Materials

We can show you many rooms lined with Compo-Board put on thirty years ago. These walls have been papered, painted, kalsomined and finished in every way known, with uniform satisfaction to owners.

Why experiment using doubtful materials when you can use Compo-Board and get positive results?

Just think that question over and write us for samples, prices and full information.

Compo-Board is composed of three parts: The specially prepared covering, Nos. 1 and 5, the wood core, No. 3, the cement Nos. 2 and 4. Standard panel width is four feet and thickness one-quarter inch. You can buy any length you desire from six to sixteen feet.

The wood core which distinguishes Compo-Board from ordinary types of wall board is composed of slats put in indiscriminately as to grain thus preventing warping, buckling, shrinking or cracking. Compo-Board is moisture proof. For wall lining, partitions and hundreds of other uses it has no equal. Compo-Board is handled by lumber dealers everywhere.

Your Apartment Deserves Good Want Advertising

IT CANNOT draw the interest of the best prospects without the best presentation to them. It cannot interest as many prospects as it should unless it is offered to the largest possible group. It cannot be rented in the minimum time unless it is advertised in the medium which is read first by those seeking apartments.

Tribune Want Ads give your apartment all the benefits obtainable by the use of the best in Want Advertising. Mrs. C. H. Douglas, 4750 Lake Park Ave., found them efficient when she offered her apartment for rent.

EUROPE LEADS USING AIRPLANES IN COMMERCE

BY SCRUTATOR.

Some interesting facts and figures on the possibilities of commercial aviation are presented by Prof. Edward P. Warner of Massachusetts Tech.

Under present conditions he places the practical limit for commercial speed at 100 miles an hour, with eighty to ninety miles as the most advisable running time, for airplanes on land routes. This is a reduction of 50 per cent in running time as compared with a rail trip of similar distance.

Competition with ocean steamships may be looked for from the dirigible, which now is capable of 5,000 miles continuous flight at sixty miles an hour.

The airplane service seems destined for the long flights, as there is so much less to be gained on the short runs, when the time needed for reaching the airports on the outskirts of cities is taken into account. For instance, between Boston and New York the saving in time over the rail trip is only 40 per cent.

From Chicago to New York the time for a commercial airplane trip would be about nine hours, a saving of over half the time required by rail. In Europe the short lines between cities, not on the longer routes, have been abandoned in the last year or two, while the growth of the longer services has continued.

There are now about twenty regularly established European routes, practically all of them international. France and Britain are leading in establishing long routes, because of their colonial empires and the separation of their dominions by seas, mountains, deserts, and jungles.

Reversing the facts as to almost every other transportation or communication service, Europe leads in private aviation enterprises, while the United States has only one notable aviation service comparable to the European routes in traffic, the air mail.

The percentage of reliability of the air mail service (the ratio of distance flown to distance scheduled) for the entire year is now 96. For the summer months it is 99. Frequently performance has been 100 per cent for a whole month. What form of transportation is more reliable?

The last available records for the London-Paris air service give a reliability percentage of 95 per cent, and for the London-Amsterdam service of 89.

The cost of the air mail service is now from 70 cents to $1 per airplane mile.

Figuring an average cost of 80 cents per mile, planes using the same engines equipped to carry nine men and the pilot, could, if the number of passengers averaged seven per trip, carry them at 11.4 cents per mile. A rate of 16 cents per mile would give a margain of 30 per cent for profit and selling expense.

British air lines are charging from 7 to 12 cents per mile and the French rates were about 5½ cents per mile, before the recent gyrations of the franc.

All these lines are subsidized, and while the subsidies are large in comparison to commercial revenues, they are not very great, according to present standards of government expenses. One French line received 6,419,000 francs subsidy and had revenues of only 529,400 francs. But the total French subsidies in one year were only 25,366,865 francs for 1,391,000 miles flown. British subsidies are about $500,000 per year.

Of the 40,000 passengers carried on the London-Paris flyers, about half have been American tourists and business men. This line has so far carried three times as many passengers as any other.

Diversify Your Investments.

One of the important things for the investor to consider is diversification of investments. It is not prudent to put all of one's funds into one security, or even into one type of security. No matter how desirable a certain security may appear, it is always conceivable that at some future date conditions may arise that will weaken it, or even, possibly render it worthless. To have everything tied up in one company, for instance, is to take an unnecessarily large risk, for the failure of that company would mean the failure of his entire investment.

Investing everything in one type of security even has its risks. If one invests in a number of different companies all engaged in the same industry, any condition which affects that particular industry adversely may cause a weakening of all his securities.

The careful investor will divide his funds over a number of different securities and ones which are not likely to be similarly affected by the same conditions. If, then, something goes wrong with one he still has a large proportion of his investments unaffected.

In these days it is possible to get a very large number of the highest grade bonds in denominations as small as $100. If one has $1,000 to invest, it is safer to buy ten $100 bonds (of equal grade) in different companies than to buy a $1,000 bond in one company.

To have well diversified holdings it is desirable to divide one's funds up among the various types, such as public utility, industrial, railroad, real estate first mortgage, and government securities. In each of the first three classes he should select several different companies and in the case of industrials these companies should be engaged in different lines of business. In the case of government bonds, high grade foreign government bonds may be included as well as United States bonds. Municipal and state bonds also may be included if desired.

The point is to so widely distribute the risk that if one security should collapse the others will not be caught in its fall. If this practice is followed, and due care exercised to select only high grade securities in each field, the danger of loss is minimized.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Stock prices started upward at the opening of yesterday's market on a resumption of Friday's short covering operations, but the rally was checked by a fresh outbreak of selling in the motors and motor accessories, which carried most of those issues to new low records for the year. Oil, rail, and copper issues offered the best resistance to selling pressure, most of them closing fractionally lower on the day. Norfolk and Western crossed 129 in the early trading, but fell back later to 127⅞.

Studebaker was the principal target of bear attacks, being hammered down nearly 6 points to 84, the lowest in two years. Other new lows in that group were recorded by Chandler, Yellow Mfg., Chicago Yellow Cab, and Spicer Manufacturing. Buying support for U. S. Steel, Baldwin, and American Can was limited, with the result that they closed about 1@2 points lower on the day. Steel closed at 96½ after having sold as high as 97⅞.

Woolworth, which broke more than 50 points earlier in the week on the announcement of the new recapitalization plan, rallied 4¼ points to 297. Other merchandising issues did not fare so well, Julius Kayser and Consolidated Textile sagging to new lows on reports of a curtailment of operations. Seneca Copper, which has sold as high as $6.25 a share this year, broke from $2.25 to $1.00 in response to receivership proceedings against that company.

The demand for stocks for borrowing purposes after the market closed indicated that the short interest today was one of the largest in history. While accurate figures are unobtainable, many observers estimated that bears were short of more than 2,000,000 shares of stock, including, it was reported, a large block of rails.

Establishment of new peak prices for the year by most of the French governmental and municipal bonds in the face of a general downward tendency featured the bond market. Gains in the French obligations ranged from substantial fractions to about 2 points, and other European government issues moved up in sympathy. Prices of domestic liens fluctuated within narrow limits.

Trading in the common stock of the National Tea company was inaugurated yesterday on the New York curb exchange. The price ranged between $322 and $325. There are 20,000 shares of nonpar common stock. The company operates a chain of 536 stores. Net profits last year were $1,088,893 and net sales were $31,292,239.

The New York financial district hears that directors of the General Motors corporation plan to readjust the capital structure by issuing new common stock at a $6 annual dividend basis and exchanging one share of new for each four shares of the old. The present issue of 20,000,000 shares was said to have been found unwieldy.

An offering of bankers' shares representing the stocks of the leading Edison companies operating in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Boston, St. Louis, Milwaukee, and Los Angeles soon will be made simultaneously in New York and London. The holding company for the shares acquired and deposited in trust against which the bankers' shares are issued will be known as the United American Electric Companies, Inc.

An option has been arranged extending seven and one-half years to purchase Mutual Oil company stock at $14.00 per share through conversion of Sapulpa Refining company 6½ per cent bonds or depositary certificates. Sapulpa bonds are to be accepted at par with an adjustment of accrued interest and fractional shares in cash by Mutual Oil. This refers to the first $600,000 of face value in bonds presented.

Stocks of zinc decreased 5,118 tons in March, according to the American Zinc institute. In February the surplus dropped 3,505 tons, making a total decrease of 8,623 tons in the last two months. On March 31 stocks amounted to 32,074 tons, compared with 37,192 tons on Feb. 29 and 40,697 tons on Jan. 31.

Net operating income of seventy telephone companies in the United States for the month of January totaled $11,664,542, compared with a net operating income of $11,643,620 for the corresponding month in the preceding year.

There were 397 commercial failures in the United States this week, according to figures compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., compared with 401 last week and 362 during the corresponding week last year.

The directors of the Sherwin-Williams company have declared an extra dividend of ½ of 1 per cent in addition to the regular 2 per cent quarterly dividend. Both are payable May 15 to stockholders of record April 30.

The American Smelting and Refining company has reduced its price on lead from 8½c to 8¼c a pound.

United Cigar stockholders have approved the plan to change the par value of $60,000,000 authorized common stock to $25 a share from $100 and exchange four shares of new stock for each old share.

Barring unforeseen developments, dividend payments on the 8 per cent preferred stock of the Panhandle Producing and Refining company should be resumed on July 1 next, R. B. Jones, president of the company, announced yesterday.

RAILROAD NOTES

Officials of railroads operating east from Chicago and St. Louis said that while the total freight tonnage was not quite so heavy as a few weeks ago, the general situation is not much changed. Traffic conditions continue favorable and there is little congestion. In the south the traffic conditions show no great change.

The International Great Northern railroad, a Texas concern, applied to the interstate commerce commission for permission to issue $1,809,000 6 per cent thirty year first mortgage gold bonds. The money will be used to reimburse its treasury for expenditures made in 1923 for road improvement.

A recommendation that the Okmulgee Northern Railroad company be denied permission to build two extensions totaling fifty miles was made in a preliminary report by commission examiners. The commission itself will take the final decision.

Refunding plans of the Baltimore and Ohio are reported under way. The financing involves $131,034,000 in bonds of the railroad company due next year.

The Canadian Pacific railway has sold to the Bank of Montreal $12,000,000 ten year 5 per cent collateral trust bonds, which are secured by $15,000,000 of the company's consolidated debenture stock.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

There was very little net change last week in local unlisted securities. In sympathy with the trend of the listed markets a number of the more speculative issues receded to slightly lower levels. Some issues showed a higher range, and at the close the entire list was in very good tone.

Great Lakes Transit declined some 4 points to 34½ bid, 36½ asked. The Bucyrus issues were weak, common closing at 58 bid, 60 asked, off 3 points, while the preferred closed at 100 bid, 102 asked, off 2 points. The closing quotation of 183 bid, 185 asked, on Northwestern Yeast represented a decline of approximately 2 points. Butler Bros., after selling at 33, relinquished ½ point, but later improved to a close of 32⅞ bid, 33⅛ asked. On few sales Beatrice Creamery lost 2 points, closing at 61 bid, 62 asked. Sales of Kellogg company ranged between 20 and 20½.

Some few sales of Interstate Iron and Steel were reported at 59½@61, off 1 point. Goodman Manufacturing was weak, stock being offered at 53, with buyers at 50. Elgin National Watch was fractionally higher at 46 bid, 47 asked. Brunswick-Balke-Collender was an exception to the general trend, advancing from 108 to a close of 110 bid, 111 asked. Burroughs Adding Machine was also strong, being 2 points higher at 133½ bid, 135 asked. Bids of 60 for Sullivan Machinery failed to attract possible sellers. Standard Cap and Seal was wanted at 22, with limited offerings at 24, up 1 point. Some transactions of By-Products Coke were reported at 37@39. Sales of Creamery Package nonvoting stock ranged between 30½ and 31½, and of the full voting shares between 31 and 31½. Wahl preferred was quoted 86½ bid, 88 asked throughout, with little stock changing hands.

Prices in the motor and accessory group were again lower. Ford of Canada was off some 9 points at 440 bid, 443 asked, while Motor Products declined some 2 points to 67 bid, 69 asked. Paige-Detroit was weak, receding 2¼ points at 13¼ bid, 13¾ asked. Motor Wheel and Timken Axle were fractionally lower at 8¾@9 and 4¾@5, respectively. Edmund Jones was without feature at 38 bid, 39 asked. McCord Manufacturing was quoted 4 bid, 4½ asked, with little stock changing hands.

Losses were general throughout in the sugar group; closing bid and asked prices follow: Columbia, 6½@6¾; Godchaux preferred, 37@41; Holland-St. Louis, 4@4½; Michigan, 5¾@6; Utah-Idaho, 3¾@4.

Public utility shares were spotty, losses in a number of issues being offset by substantial gains in others. American Light and Traction common sold off 3 points to a close of 129 bid, 130 asked. Commonwealth Power corporation common was erratic, breaking from top sales at 81½ to 75½, then rallying to a close of 78¼ bid, offered at 78¾. The preferred was steady between 75½@77. Offerings of Illinois Traction common found ready sale and the closing quotation of 83 bid, 85 asked, represented an upturn of 4 points. Tennessee Electric was also strong, improving 2 points to 33¼ bid, 33¾ asked. American Power and Light common advanced from 240 to high sales at 254. This gain was partially eliminated later, closing at 247 bid, 250 asked.

Bank stocks were quiet, with few important price changes. Union Trust advanced 5 points to sales at 365. Stock was offered at this figure at the close, with buyers at 360. State Bank of Chicago was wanted at 500, with no stock offered around that price. Continental and Commercial National was steady at 305 bid, 310 asked. Central Trust Company of Illinois was quoted 232 bid, 236 asked. National City was again quoted 176 bid, 178 asked, with little stock changing hands. Some few transactions of First National were reported at 455. National Bank of the Republic was wanted at 206, with sellers at 209. Bids of 234 were general for People's Trust and Savings, with small lot sellers at 240.

McNARY-HAUGEN BILL IS CAUSING COMPLICATIONS

Washington, D. C., April 12.—[Special.]—Possible complications in connection with adjustments of tariff duties under the McNary-Haugen bill, creating a $200,000,000 export corporation to buy and sell surplus farm products, are pointed out in a report submitted to the house ways and means committee by the tariff commission.

The report relates only to the feature of the bill which authorizes the secretary of agriculture to determine the rate of tariff on farm products necessary to maintain ratio prices and to recommend such duty to the President, who by proclamation shall make it effective.

Difficulties which are cited as possibilities include a conflict in the method of determining duties between the rule laid down in the McNary-Haugen bill and in the flexible tariff provision of the present law, and danger that foreign governments will protest.

ROB RAILWAY TICKET OFFICE.

Centralia, Ill., April 12.—[Special.]—Two masked bandits entered the waiting room of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad station at Salem, eighteen miles northeast of here this morning, and at the point of revolvers forced the operators to admit them to the office, where they scooped $70 from the cash register and escaped.

FORTUNE GIVEN AWAY, HE NOW REFUSES LEGACY

New York, April 12.—Charles Garland of Buzzard's Bay, Mass., who inherited $901,000 from his father and then gave it away, has refused another legacy.

His grandmother, Anne Louise Garland, died a year ago, leaving a $68,000 estate, and a will bequeathing $1,240 each to Charles and his brother, James, of Warwick, England.

In Surrogate's court today Lorenzo Semple of Mount Kisco, N. Y., complained that neither of the brothers had replied to repeated letters from him, as trustee and executor of the estate, asking them to accept the bequests.

100,000 Shipbuilders Idle; English Lockout Starts

LONDON, April 12.—[By United Press.]—One hundred thousand shipyard workers today were idle as a result of a national lockout which went into effect last midnight, striking Southampton shipyard workers refusing to accept employers' terms.

With practically third of the day's hog receipts "directs" and many loads held off of the market, on the strength of unusually light receipts throughout the west, which usually indicates moderately small local supplies for the near future, week-end offerings were cleared early at steady to 5c higher prices.

Demand favored the limited number of desirable weighty butchers, which topped at $7.65, highest of the week and within 10c of Monday, March 31, the year's top. Average price held steady at $7.45, due to poorer quality, being 10c above mid-week and 5c under a week ago.

Shipment of hogs from Chicago increased, while receipts showed a marked falling off, leaving 111,600 for local consumption last week, the smallest supply for local slaughter in about six months and 41,200 less than the corresponding week a year ago.

Hog Receipts Smaller.

Hog receipts last week totaled 159,300, smallest since the week ending Oct. 6, being 4,400 smaller than previous week, 23,500 smaller than a year ago, and 23,300 larger than the ten year average.

Estimated average weight of hogs for the week at 234 lbs. equaled previous week, but stands 5 lbs. lighter than a year ago and the same as the ten year average. Average price of hogs last week figured $7.40, being 10c below previous week, 80c under a year ago and $4.80 under the ten year average.

Average price of good native beef cattle last week moved up 30c to $10.05, standing highest since last October, $1.20 above a year ago and $2.15 above corresponding week of 1922. It was a supply and demand proposition with receipts unusually small and local and outside inquiry brisk. Price range maneuvered considerably, some beef steers closing 50@75c higher while week's top at $12.40 showed only 5c gain over previous week. Quality graded poorer than usual. Native butcher stock advanced 10@25c, while calves declined $1.00 during the week.

Sheep Arrivals Small Too.

Soaring sheep and lamb prices established new high marks during the last week when offerings at 54,100 were smallest since last June and unusually light for this time of year. Practically since the middle of previous week, barring a slight reaction of inbetween kinds at the close of last week, prices have ruled on an upward trend, in spite of bearish attitude of packers. Closing sheep prices were 25@50c above a week ago, with lambs up 15@25c.

Average price of aged sheep last week figured $10.40, highest weekly average since June, 1920, and $2.35 above a year ago. Lamb prices averaged $16.30, highest since May, 1920, being 30c above previous week, $3.05 above a year ago, and $2.85 above the ten year average. Top lambs sold at $17.10 and ewes at $12.50.

Estimates for Monday.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 21,000 cattle, 57,000 hogs and 17,000 sheep, against 18,614 cattle, 61,475 hogs, and 16,022 sheep a week ago, and 20,715 cattle, 48,406 hogs, and 17,004 sheep, a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 55,000 cattle, 150,000 hogs, and 70,000 sheep, against 56,232 cattle, 161,072 hogs, and 92,186 sheep, a year ago.

Steel Production Less in Youngstown District

Youngstown, O., April 12.—There will be another decrease in production of iron and steel next week in the Youngstown district, according to operation schedules today. Thirty of the fifty-one independent open hearth furnaces will be operating as against thirty-four this week. The Youngstown Sheet and Tube company will blow out another blast furnace for repairs. Eighty-four sheet mills will run as against ninety-six this week. Corporation tinplate plants have curtailed operations to five days a week.

The independent industry as a whole in this district will operate at about 70 per cent of capacity and the corporations plans at about 85 per cent.

Seneca Copper Corp. Put Into Hands of Receivers

New York, April 12.—Federal Judge Learned Hand today appointed receivers for the Seneca Copper corporation in a suit brought by the Portage Lake Hardware company, which claimed to be a creditor for $4,932, and alleged that other creditors were threatening suit for various amounts. The complaint sets forth that the Seneca and Gratiot mines in Keweenaw county, Mich., valued at $6,000,000, are on a production basis and by next July 1 will have a daily output of 2,000 tons of raw ore. The corporation also operates a refining plant in Houghton county, Michigan, valued at $325,000.

PRODUCE MARKETS

A good business was on in produce on Saturday, with no change in prices of butter, eggs, or poultry, the tone of the markets being easy, however, with ample offerings. Potatoes sold at 5c decline with arrivals 68 cars and 231 cars were on track.

COTTON MARKETS

NEW YORK, April 12.—COTTON—Prices moved irregularly, with a sharp advance early, and a reaction, with the close well toward the bottom, showing gains of 2 to 19 points, the latter on July delivery. Early strength was due to the advance in Liverpool and to the report that Germany has accepted the Dawes plan.

Lack of official confirmation of the latter brought selling and a sharp recession in prices. Better weather over the south and southeast, where complaints of too much rain have been made of late, were important factors. The strong tone of the foreign markets, with a better trade in Manchester, is attracting attention. Spot prices are strong. Prices follow:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.	Last year.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright: 1924: Fairchild News Service.]

MANCHESTER, England.—The Federation of Master Cotton Spinners has decided to continue on part time working schedules until September. This only applies to mills using American cotton, those using Egyptian having some orders on hand. The master spinners say that the few offers they have received from recent inquiries have been for unworkable business.

PUTNAM, Conn.—The mills of the Manhasset Manufacturing company have been sold to William S. Cherry of Providence for $475,000. The new owner will resume operations in a short time.

SYDNEY, Australia.—New regulations for the import of cotton seed and raw cotton have been announced by the minister of health to take effect at once. Permission of the ministry must be obtained for all imports and they must be disinfected on arrival. In the case of seed, it shall be under supervision while being grown and the crop will be considered in quarantine until released by the director general of health.

NEWS OF THE CROPS

Number of brood sows on farms in Missouri on April 1, as estimated by the department of agriculture, is 733,000, compared with 874,000 last year. North Dakota has 10 per cent more than a year ago.

"Condition of winter wheat gradually grows poorer south from Columbus," wired Burton Hungerford from Hillsboro, O. "In the Chillicothe territory and southwest to Hillsboro it will not average better than half a stand."

Oats seeding in Missouri was only 28 per cent completed on April 1, according to an official report, compared with 58 per cent last year. Indications are for an acreage of 1,462,000, against 1,380,000 acres in 1923, which is considerably under farmers' plans as indicated by the March returns.

A record corn crop in Argentina is assured this year, according to a Buenos Aires cable to Russell's News. Corn picking continues favorable.

It was the general belief of directors of the Kansas Wheat Growers' association, who met at Wichita, Kas., Friday, that the state had the prospect of a winter wheat crop equal to the record returns of 180,000,000 bu in 1914.

About 10 per cent of the wheat fields in Bartholomew, Marion, Decatur, Johnson, and Shelby counties in southern Indiana have such thin stand that they are scarcely worth saving, according to R. O. Cromwell, the Lamson Bros. & Co. crop observer. Sixty per cent of the fields have a satisfactory stand. Preparation for corn in full progress.

COFFEE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, April 12.—COFFEE—Futures opened at an advance of 12 to 21 points on buying for New Orleans and local trade account promoted by firmer Brazilian cables. The close was 2 to 10 points net higher. Sales estimated 20,000 bags. Closing: May 13.85c; July, 12.90c; September, 12.25c; October, 12.12c; December, 11.85c; March, 11.63c. Spot coffee quiet. Rio 7s, 15¼c; Santos 4s, 18¾@19¼c. Brazilian port receipts, 44,000 bags; Jundiahy, 22,000 bags.

GERMAN STAND TOWARD DAWES BOOSTS GRAINS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Action of the grain markets in holding up in the face of depressing news continues to puzzle the traders.

Prices were slightly easier for wheat early, but there was no material pressure on the market. The close was ½@⅝c higher with strong evidence of buying of futures for foreign account, presumably for Germany.

The probably acceptance of the Dawes report by that country was construed in some quarters as the most bullish factor that has developed in months. Corn was ¼@½c higher, with oats up ¼@½c, and rye ¼@⅝c.

Grains Lower for Week.

Saturday's bulge, while closing the grain markets well toward the outside figures of the week, was not sufficient entirely to offset the full decline as compared with the finish of a week ago. At the last wheat was off ⅝@1¼c, corn ⅞@1½c, and rye ½@⅝c. Oats, however, were ⅜c higher to ½c lower, the former on May which developed independent strength. Lard was 5@7½c lower for the weeks, ribs 7½c higher and bellies unchanged to 2½c higher.

Export business in wheat the last few days has been materially in excess of the quantities reported, according to some traders in a position to know, which accounts to some extent for the resistance that has been shown to the depressing news. Sales for the day were in excess of 300,000 bu Manitobas, and France was reported to be taking cargoes on passage. The trade look for a good reduction in the visible supply to be shown in Monday's statement.

Milling Demand Slow.

General cash demand for wheat in America is rather slow, and sales of 100,000 bu were made to go to store. Crop reports showed little change, with favorable comments received from the southwest, while in the states east of the Mississippi river the outlook is spotted. May finished at $1.02¼@1.02⅛, July at $1.04@1.03⅞, and September at $1.04⅞.

Corn Undertone Firm.

At no time did May corn drop under 77c, the finish of the previous day, and the undertone on the whole was firmer with the finish at 77½c. July was 78⅜c, and September 78⅝c. Further sales of cash corn from Omaha were reported, and the trade look for a good reduction in the visible supply for the week. Country offerings were not large. Eastern demand here showed no improvement.

May Oats Act Tight.

May oats developed independent strength with further business in cash grain a factor. Cash houses were moderate buyers and found offerings light at times. Minneapolis stocks decreased 500,000 bu for the week, and a large part of the 4,000,000 bu held there are sold for shipment.

Rye was dull but somewhat firmer in sympathy with wheat. No. 2 on track sold at 1c over May.

Provisions were dull, but firmer with a moderate domestic cash demand. Lard closed 5@10c, ribs 5@7½c, and bellies 12½c higher. Packing of hogs at Chicago for the summer season to date is 1,027,000, against 1,119,000 last year. Prices follow:

CORN RECEIPTS LARGER

A larger movement of corn was on last week, with a gain of 930,000 bu at primary markets, or an aggregate of 3,901,000 bu. But it was 449,000 bu less than last year. Total receipts of all grains at primary points was 209,000 bu more than the previous week, but 5,271,000 bu under last year's and 338,000 bu below the five year average.

Chicago received 2,247,000 bu for the week, or 387,000 bu more than the previous week and 779,000 bu under last year's. Corn and oats increased for the week, but all grains showed losses from last year.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Export sales of wheat at the seaboard yesterday were estimated at 300,000 bu, but the business probably exceeded this figure, as the full amounts taken abroad are not being given out. Sales Thursday and Friday, not previously reported, were fully 1,000,000 bu, and there was 40,000 bu via the gulf. A charter was made for 280,000 bu at 14¼c from Philadelphia to Hamburg, April loading.

Chicago handlers sold 5,000 bu wheat, 11,000 bu corn, 15,000 bu oats, and 5,000 bu barley to the domestic trade, with 100,000 bu wheat, 100,000 bu oats, and 5,000 bu rye sold to go to store.

No change in cash wheat prices was shown at St. Louis, Kansas City, or Omaha for the day, with a fair demand. No. 2 red on spot here was nominally 1@2c and No. 2 hard 1@9c over May. Receipts 22 cars.

Cash corn was up ¼@½c here, in sympathy with futures, and the basis on spot was firm at ¼c under May for No. 3 mixed and 1¾c over to ¼c under for yellow, while No 4 mixed was 1½c and yellow 1@1½c under May. Receipts 82 cars. Outside markets unchanged to 1½c higher, the latter at St. Louis.

Offerings of cash oats were not large and spot prices ¼@½c higher, with No. 2 white 2@3c and No. 3 white 1½@2c over May. Receipts 42 cars.

GRAIN TRADING LIGHTER

Trading in grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade is light and the volume reported from day to day means little, as it is mainly between local professionals.

Commission house business has seldom been lighter. It is so light, in fact, that working forces of commission houses are being reduced and several houses are to retire from business shortly. Business, as reported by the grain futures administration on Friday, with the last three ciphers omitted, follow:

	Apr. 11.	Apr. 10.	Apr. 4.
Wheat	13,508	12,257	13,882
Corn	10,610	14,250	13,116
Oats	2,137	2,022	2,137
Rye	474	1,551	295
Total bu.	26,729	30,040	29,430

Sales for the week ending Friday follow:

	Last week.	Prev. week.
Wheat	76,642,000	79,576,000
Corn	69,021,000	107,544,000
Oats	9,509,000	14,122,000
Rye	3,949,000	1,910,000
Total bu.	155,121,000	203,152,000

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

Trade sentiment in wheat and corn largely is bearish, but there is so little selling pressure other than by shorts that the markets become oversold several times during the day and rally sharply on the numerous covering movements. The disposition of the traders is to look for lower prices, but big declines or advances are not expected at present. It frequently happens, however, that the markets do many things that are not expected.

Covering of wheat and corn at the close was attributed to Howell, who, it is said, was going to Florida.

Cash interests were active in buying May and selling July wheat at 1⅝@1⅞c difference. They have been trying to widen the spread to 2c of late with indifferent success.

Weakness in the Kansas City wheat market was attributed to favorable crop reports and it widened its discount under Chicago ⅝c for the day. All the reports from the southwest are favorable. The largest crop since 1914, says a message to J. E. Bennett & Co.

One of the largest of the local traders says the poor eastern demand for corn keeps him off the buying side. Duluth is said to be offering corn at Buffalo at 3½c over Chicago May.

George E. Marcy, president of the Armour Grain company, returned yesterday morning from California. He says the California wheat crop is very poor.

The primary movement of wheat suggests a decrease in Chicago wheat stocks for the week. It will be no surprise to see a small decrease in corn. May oats are showing more strength and are difficult to buy, while the limited local trade is disposed to sell the preferred futures.

The acceptance of the Daws report by the German government is regarded as one of the most favorable moves toward a general settlement of conditions abroad and is expected to bring about an improved condition. This is one of the factors that tends to make the average trader go slow on the selling side.

The senate agricultural committee approved the McNary-Haugen bill and the Norris bill yesterday. Both bills are for the alleged benefit of the farmers.

"Wheat farmers face a difficult problem," says William C. Wiegand of J. Rosenbaum Grain corporation. "Repeated advice to return to pre-war production has not found fertile ground, largely because of the effervescent efforts of legislators to do something for agriculture. Guaranteed war prices are more or less responsible for vastly increased production on our continent and the return to normalcy is slow."

Wheat business in the United Kingdom shows some improvement, says Broomhall. Fair sales of Manitobas and Argentine wheat have been made and the demand from the continent appears more active. Liberal quantities of Manitobas continue to be put forward, with shippers showing a disposition to meet buyers. Substantial sales of Argentine wheats have been made to the continent.

No. 2—Adequate Yield]

Be very careful to purchase only securities which are produced by an investment house of long standing and the highest reputation. "Securities" of every sort and description are freely offered in the newspapers and through the mails. Many of these offerings are sound, but the investment field is immense and the chances of error are innumerable.

Over $500,000,000 was lost last year by investors who bought blue sky expectations. Bankers do not lose money in this way. They investigate before they invest.

Sixty-eight bankers throughout the Middle West buy for their own accounts and recommend to their clients STRAUS BROTHERS 6½% First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds.

STOCKS WEAKEN, EXCHANGES FIRM AS WEEK CLOSES

The New York Times.

New York, April 12.—[Special.]—The stock market was weak and the foreign exchange market strong today, thus leaving week-end financial judgment ambiguous on the prospects of the Dawes reparation plan. Wall street was disposed to argue that the unexpectedly prompt assent of the reparations commission had galvanized a moribund market momentarily on Friday but that its effect had "worn off" today.

On this supposition, it might be supposed that similar galvanic operations would occur at intervals hereafter; for there is reason to expect that France will indorse the plan, that England will cautiously approve it, and that Germany will accept with certain conditions which probably will be met.

Future of Market Uncertain.

It would then remain to be seen whether the stock market would rise because of the era of promise opening in Europe, or would decline because "all the good news was out," or would do nothing at all because it did not know what to do.

Financial markets respond emphatically to an unexpected turn of events, but are always slow in responding even to the most important news of a favorable nature, if that news is in line with general expectations and if its good effect on the financial position is likely to be slow in the practical unfolding of its consequences. Even in that somewhat analogous "presidential year," 1900, enactment of the famous gold standard law in March was followed by a declining stock market, whose eye was fixed on imaginary trade reaction and on imaginary political uncertainties.

Bears Hammer Few Stocks.

Today's declines in stocks were of irregular scope and distribution, and their origin was transparently professional. It was not a market which could be taken altogether seriously, being in fact made up of entirely visible operations for the decline in four or five industrial stocks, with the rest of the list moving only fractionally.

While all European exchange rates held firm, the franc went above the previous level of the year; reaching a price, 6.07½ cents, which has been matched in only four weeks since last June and which, although 2⅝ cents above the low price of last month, is only ⅝ cent below the price of a year ago. The curious aspect of the situation seems to be that while belated "bears" and prospective tourists are pushing up the franc by their bids, the Bank of France is proportionately increasing its own reserve of dollar and sterling exchange.

New York Loans Drop.

Loans and discounts of the New York clearing house banks dropped $14,453,000 this week, according to the weekly statement issued today. Demand deposits decreased $20,983,000 and time deposits were down $2,029,000. The reserve account showed an increase of $2,573,120. Details of the statement, with comparisons, follow:

A renewal of selling pressure against the Yellow issues and Stewart-Warner was the feature of trading in Chicago stock in the week-end session yesterday. Stewart-Warner was hammered down to 70½, a new low mark for the year, but rallied to 72 at the close, showing a net loss for the day of 2⅝. Yellow Taxi was driven down to 56 and closed at 57½, a net loss of 2½. Yellow Manufacturing dropped to 75, a new low for the year, and closed at 76¼, a net loss of 2¾. Trading in other issues was light and price changes were narrow. On small sales Boone Woolen declined a point, and Booth Fisheries preferred was off 5 points from the last previous sale some time ago.

—and then they want goodness too

ACCORDING to the official registration figures for March, Reo in Chicago again outsold all cars of the same average price or higher.

The change in car buying habits that this fact implies seems to be growing more complete every month.

The buying attitude of six years ago has almost entirely disappeared.

During the war years there was so little progress in mechanical design and construction that purchasing on appearance and price became common, especially because many were buying their first automobile.

Today, however, the great majority of new cars is bought by those who have had experience with two, three, or even four automobiles.

These experienced purchasers still want a favorable price; they still want the utmost in appearance and comfort; but they are equally insistent on excellence of mechanical design, construction, and workmanship.

Low upkeep and long life

They have had enough experience with upkeep and operating costs to seek to diminish them as much as possible. To make sure of getting what they want, many naturally turn to Reo, especially if they know a Reo owner.

Because of the exceptionally long life and low upkeep costs of Reo cars, the Reo owner buys fewer automobiles in his lifetime than those who still have the habit of disregarding the importance of mechanical goodness.

But every Reo owner inspires more Reo purchases than he makes himself.

His fact-supported enthusiasm is undoubtedly the most powerful single reason why Reo now outsells in Chicago all cars of the same average price or higher.

Five additional reasons

Second, and almost equally important, is the approval of the woman driver, invariably won by the easy steering and delightful handling of the Reo.

The third is the Reo dual foot control. This provides the only system of braking that is really instantaneously available in emergencies. It makes use of the ready foot instead of depending on the unready hand.

The fourth is the Reo freedom from oil-pumping because its cylinders are ground instead of being merely reamed.

The fifth is the Reo freedom from carbon trouble because of its ground cylinders, alloy pistons and giant intake valves.

Sixth is the fact that the Reo was the first moderate-priced automobile to offer genuine balloon tire equipment—not "balloon-type" or "semi-balloon"—but genuine balloon tires.

Drive a Balloon-shod Reo

If you are one of those who have never really investigated the reasons for the appeal of Reo cars to Chicago buyers, come in and look at a Reo chassis and a Reo motor—and take a ride on genuine balloon tires.

There is only one other way of gaining a true conception of the striking advantages offered the motorist by these new tires—and that is by actual experience by driving or riding in a Balloon-shod car.

We suggest that you telephone or call to indicate the time most convenient for you—and we will be glad to assign you a Balloon-tired Reo to drive over the roughest going that you can find in town or country.

Extracts from letters written by Reo owners in Chicago

"I have driven three different Reo Touring Cars. For six years I drove one without replacing a single part. I have had a new Reo Phaeton for the last year and have driven it 8000 miles without a repair of any kind.

"I have had six different makes of cars and not one can come up to my Reo in any test."—A. E. Pickett, 184 Keystone Ave., River Forest, Illinois.

"I have driven other makes of cars up to the $5000 class, but for every-minute service, 100% performance, riding comfort, absolute dependability and low upkeep expense, I have never seen any car equal to it."—Wm. H. Nieder, 750 East Sixty-third Street.

"It has been through my recommendation that quite a few of my associates have purchased Reo Cars. I have had three Reo Passenger Cars in about the last ten years, and the amount of repairs necessary has been very nominal—also gas and oil consumption has been very low."—J. Pomaranc, 607 East Sixtieth Street.

"I have driven my new Reo fifteen thousand miles and have not spent a cent on maintenance or repairs."—W. W. Drew, 6243 St. Lawrence Avenue.

"I purchased my Reo Phaeton March 23, 1923, and to date have driven it 18,971 miles. I cover all my territory in the car from Chicago to Boston, Mass., and on all sorts of roads. I have never yet been stuck with the Reo.

"During this period I have not had a single penny of expense nor has anything been done to the car in a mechanical way, except to adjust the brakes on two different occasions, and once to adjust points on distributor.

"I still have the original set of tires and they show no sign of wear and look as though they will last another 20,000 miles.

"I have been driving cars for the past twenty years, and consider the Reo car the best buy for the money of any car on the market."—S. N. Levin.

"Unknown to you I interested two close friends and neighbors. It has been a matter of great satisfaction to me, that after my recommendation, both owners have found such complete satisfaction in their cars. One who has always driven two cars and has made a practice of high priced makes states he is Reo sold for the future.

"The only unsatisfactory feature that developed in connection with the car is my wife's desire to use it. This has developed so seriously that the only solution I can see is another Reo."—Earl P. Press, 4809 Broadway at Wilson Avenue.

"Prior to our purchase of Reos, my mother, my brother and I were each driving cars of other makes. My mother purchased a Reo touring car in the Spring of 1922. On the basis of the performance of that car I purchased a Reo sedan in the Spring of 1923. After watching the performance of the touring car and the sedan my brother purchased a Reo sedan. These purchases were not made because of sentiment, but were made because of our belief that the Reo is the best value on the automobile market today.

"Since purchasing my sedan in April, I have driven it 10,000 miles and have subjected it to every possible kind of test. Without mentioning the various mechanical features of the car which have contributed to make the car stand up under the tests, it is sufficient to state that it is my opinion that the Reo today represents the greatest value of any automobile at or near its price."—Beverly B. Vedder, Monadnock Block.

"We have had three different makes of cars and none of them afforded us the pleasure of smooth riding, abundant power, quick acceleration and freedom from vibration that we find in our Reos.

"The dual brake control is a feature worthy of very favorable comment and its value can only be appreciated after one has driven a car that is not equipped with this control."—M. and S. Wenk, 15 E. Washington Street.

"We have had a Reo Phaeton since August, 1922, practically the first Phaeton on the Chicago market. Since that time we have covered over 20,000 miles with absolutely no work on engine, no carbon removed, or valves ground. The car has been to the service station for inspection and each time has come out without any work being done on the engine. The only necessary work being to replace broken spring and new brake lining.

"We get high mileage on gas and oil, the car needs very little service and handles herself wonderfully, especially in heavy traffic and is very easy on the driver."—E. E. Stamp, 7244 S. Carpenter Street.

"I have been driving a Reo Cuban Gray Sedan since last April and have driven it a little better than 15,000 miles.

"I was looking this car over Sunday, and it is an actual fact that the paint on it today looks as good as the day it was taken out of your salesrooms.

"The combination of mixtures in this particular color seems to stand the sunshine and the bad weather. When I got this car, the early part of this year, we had a lot of bad weather."—L. L. Arnold, 7600 Clyde Avenue.

"I have purchased at different times four Reo automobiles and can truthfully state that Reo is the best value at the price.

"I have had ——— and ——— and in my estimation they are not to be compared with the Reo for the reason that there are practically no broken parts to be replaced and I do not find any necessary.

"I merely add oil and gasoline and find that that is all the attention necessary.

"The riding qualities are wonderful and a child really could operate the car."—W. B. Davis, 3711 South Ashland Avenue.

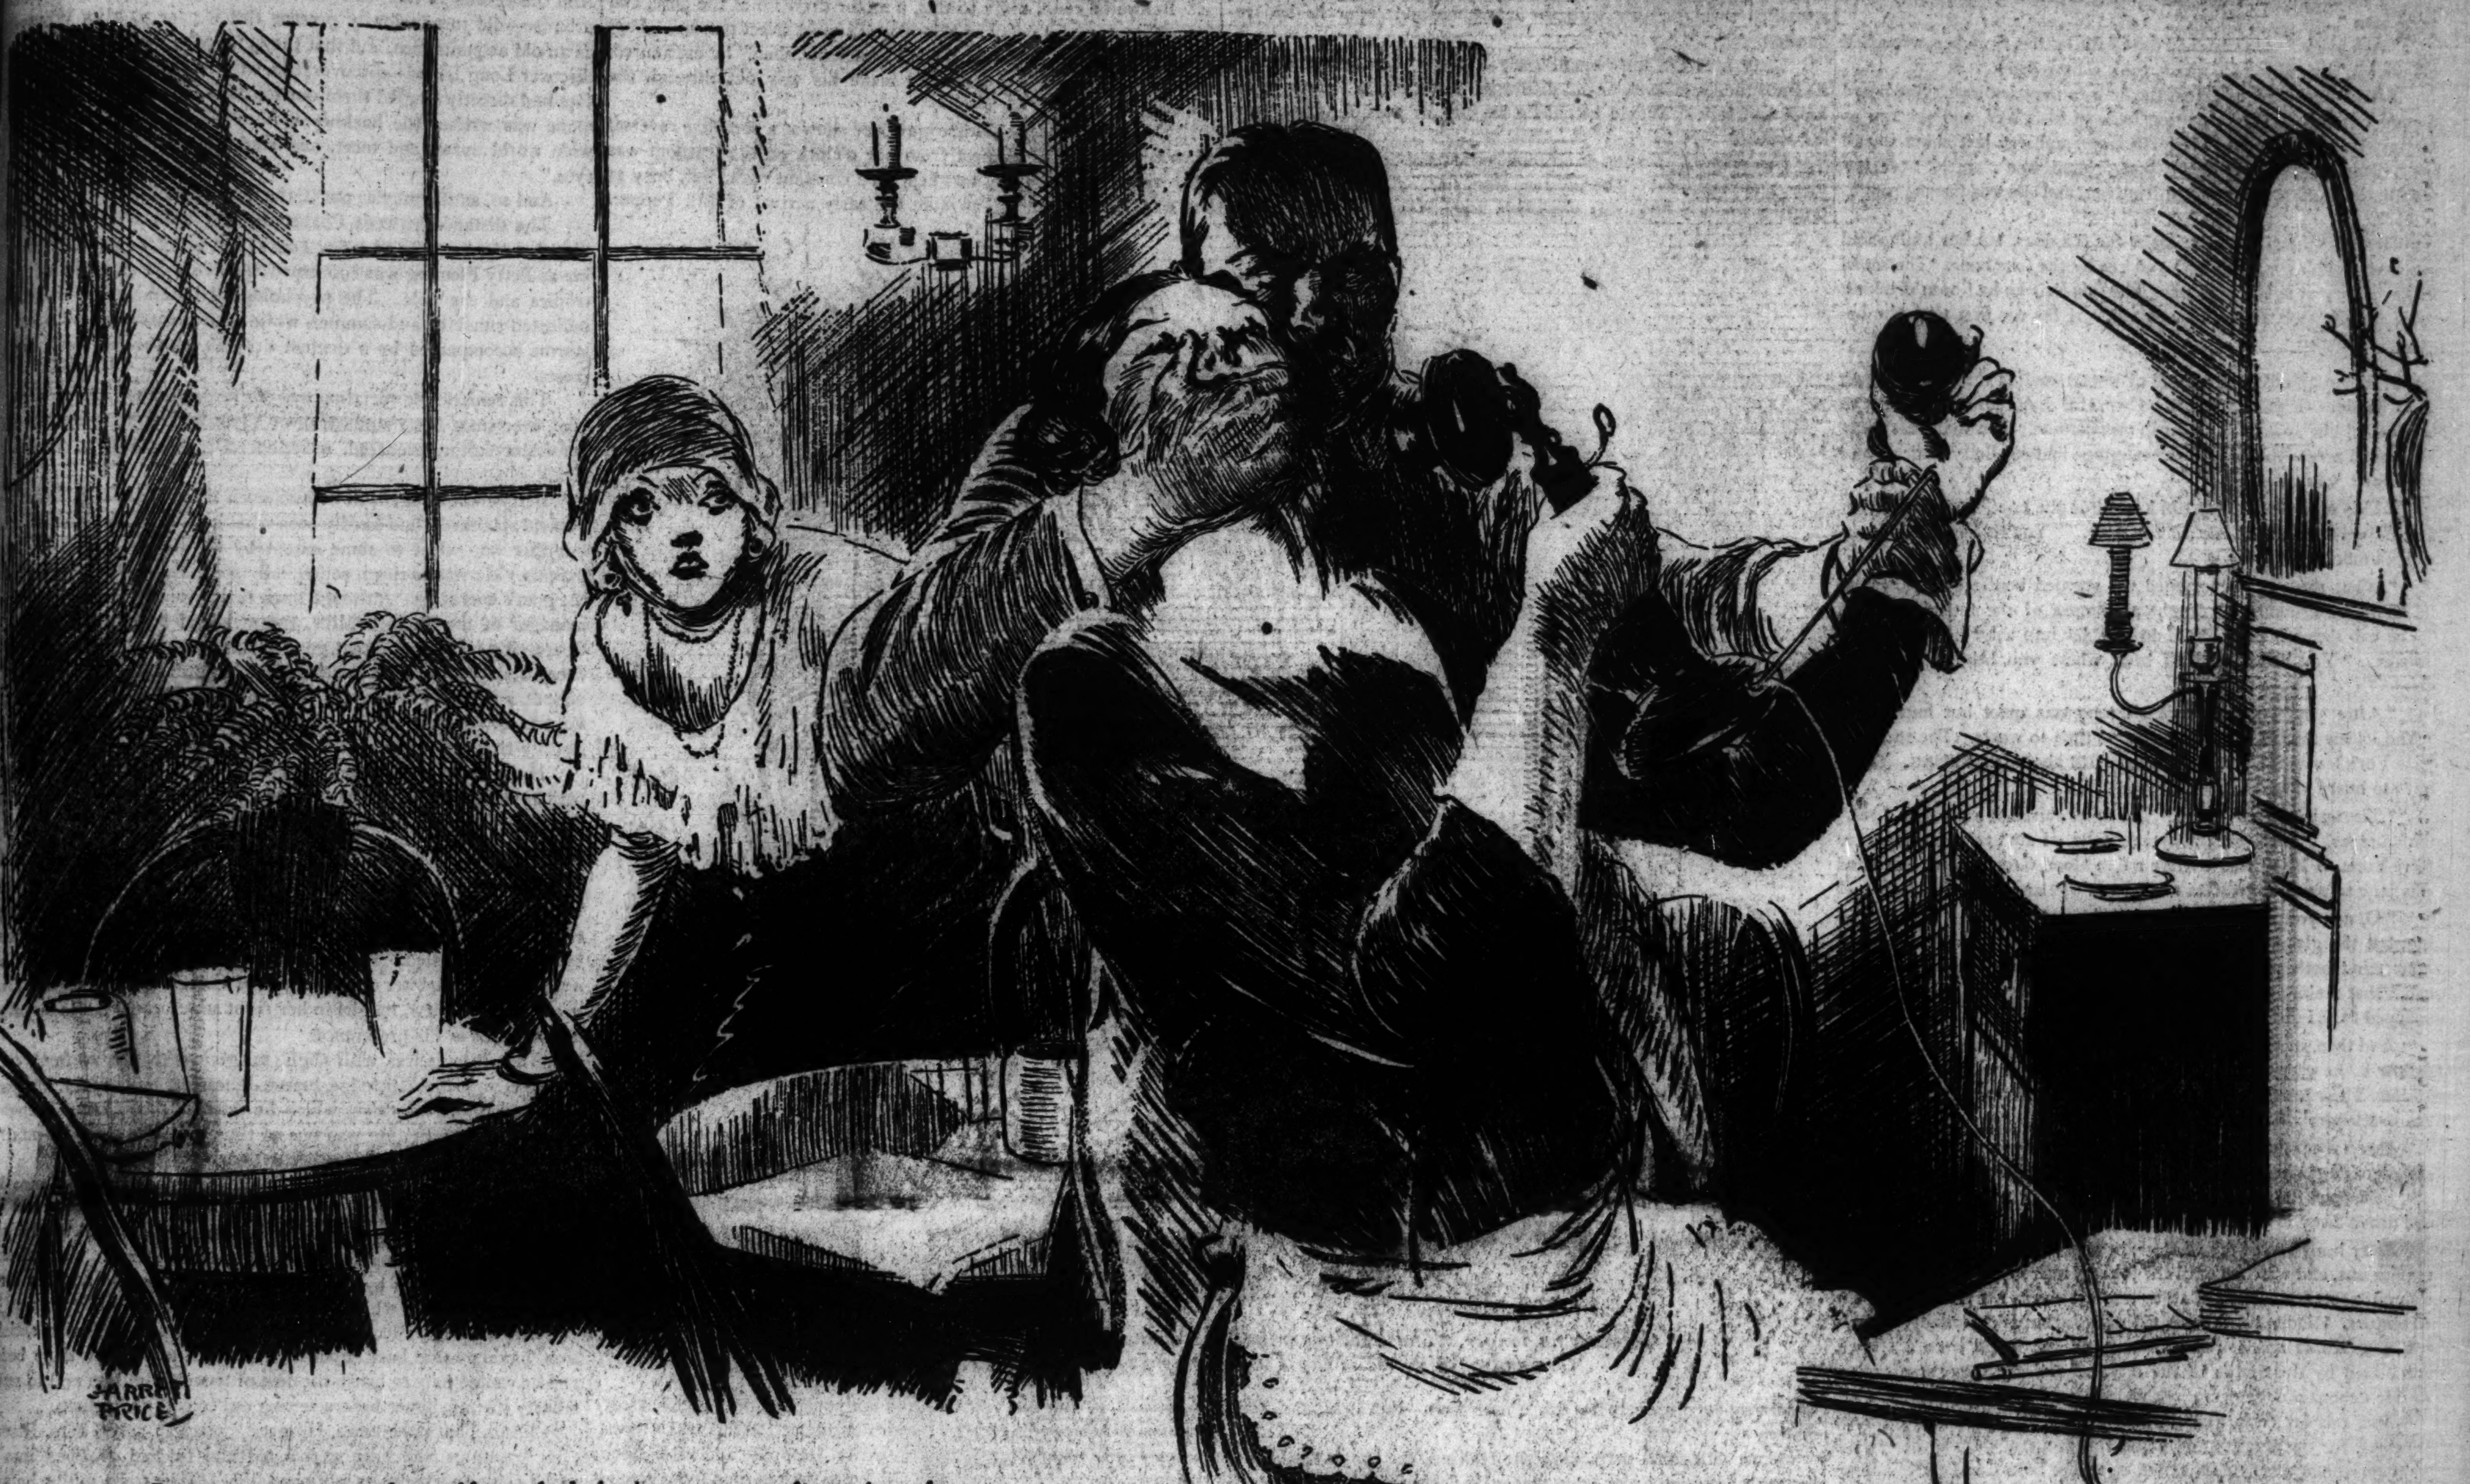
Waffles and Pepper by Mrs. Wilson Woodrow



Betty ran as fast as she could, reached the instrument, and was just about to call the village policeman when a heavy hand was clapped over her mouth.

A Joyous Tale of a Taxicab Lochinvar, a Couple of Villains, and a Lady in Distress

SOME girls are born to flapperism; some achieve it; some have it thrust upon them. Betty Fleming was one of those who are congenitally disqualified for the flapper estate.

The vivid stripes and plaids of sports things faded her completely out. At games she was a dub; on parties, merely a filler-in, a nonentity, one of the ladies of the ensemble. Her little hands were never made to manipulate a cigaret; she preferred her ginger ale without a kick in it; upon her lips undergraduate patter became strangely twisted. She could not even essay a timorous "Damn!" without blushing.

It was a bitter moment when she finally admitted this; but with that strength of character which is the invariable attribute of the shy, sweet, trailing arbutus girl Betty unhesitatingly made her gesture of renunciation.

"You might as well face it," she told her rebellious reflection in the mirror. "You're a throwback to early Victorianism. You can't compete, or even keep in the procession. All that is left for you is to live up to your type and become a sweet, womanly woman."

So, following the Frenchman's advice, "exploit your defects," she sternly abjured the ways of modern feminism and the lure of the great outdoors—to the distinct betterment, all text books on health to the contrary, of her appearance. Hard muscles, tan, a peeling nose were, in fact anathema to her fragile, blonde beauty.

She no longer tried to dance all night and top off with a roistering five o'clock breakfast of ham and eggs and buckwheat cakes and maple sirup; but often had her prayers said and was in her little white bed before the activities at the country club were fairly started. She ceased attempting to interlard her conversation with pep and profanity, but, instead, learned to listen with a tell-me-more-more-more-about yourself look in her wide sapphire eyes. She appeared on the beach, or at the tennis courts or links only as a spectator, choosing rather as her metier the shadowy corners of verandas and solitudes-a-deu in secluded retreats of lawns or gardens. Yet she found, strangely enough, that her unconventional conventionality scored. Hitherto unnoticed, she now could give odds to all the blown and blowsy maidens of her circle.

Playing her line, she adopted frills and laces and modesty and tiny slippers as her portion. And then she discovered—quite by accident and as the reward of a kind action—that the costume which most enhanced her charm was the trim, black frock, white apron, and butterfly bow of a waitress.

Her father, a banker of Coatesville, Connecticut, had been called away on a business trip to the west; her mother accompanied him; and Betty, during their absence, elected to stay with a distant cousin, Miss Sarah Whitredge, who lived in the old homestead of her family down on Long Island. Both the house and its mistress were steeped in ancestral traditions; and it is possible Betty hoped to pick up a few points.

Ancestral traditions, though, do not afford much nourishment; and in the face of a steadily dwindling income Miss Sarah had been forced to adapt herself reluctantly to the methods of the moment. She took stock of her marketable assets. There was her old colonial dwelling, with the highway passing directly before her door and many motors traveling thereon. There was her big drawing room, with its wainscoted walls and polished floor. There was her cook who had lent a new meaning to the coveted family recipe for waffles and also understood to perfection the rare art of making tea. The unification of these items resulted in an inconspicuous sign over the gate, "Waffles and Tea."

Her fame spread by that unsurpassed advertising medium with which no printed slogan has ever been able to compete—word of mouth. To take tea at Miss Whitredge's became the smart thing to do, and the profits of her first season exceeded her most sanguine expectations. But now, just as spring was at its height again, Miss Sarah was taken down with an attack of inflammatory rheumatism, and upon the heels of this calamity Delia, the waitress, departed without warning.

Betty, arriving upon this scene of disorganization, promptly stepped into the breach and, in spite of her cousin's protests, insisted upon donning appropriate costume and preparing to serve the customers.

But the same malign influence that had sent the mistress to bed and the maid packing seemed to incite the motors to whiz past the door without stopping. The waffle eaters proved few and straggling, and at the zenith of the afternoon, when trade should have been at its briskest, the long room, with its doileyed tables, was empty.

FINALLY, after a long period of waiting, Betty, standing at the window idly watching the shadows cast by the westering sun, saw a dejected looking, jaundiced taxicab draw up before the gate. She drew back hastily to avoid being seen. A dawdling waitress lounging in the window was something Miss Sarah could not have countenanced.

Peeping out, though, from behind the curtain, she could see a man and girl emerging from the cab; and at the sight of them Betty's nose crinkled disparagingly. These were obviously not the folk Whitredge house was accustomed to serve—a big, dark man with a purplish tinge to his carefully massaged face, a lithe girl who tripped over her long, gray draperies as she got out. Betty noted the red hat dipped down until it showed only a gleam of hair so long gilded that it had become a strange, dry orange in color; a face whitened by many successive layers of powder since it had been washed that morning; vermilion lips, and shoes that matched them and the hat.

On the two came through the gate with its crimson ramblers arching over their heads, and up the path bordered by prim rows of bright spring flowers. Betty was uncertain whether she ought not to run out and shoo them from the place as she would any other stray mongrels. Just as they reached the steps the man lurched a little and the girl caught his arm with a shrill crescendo of laughter.

Still a public house must serve the public as they come. Betty hurried to the kitchen. "Orders for two," she roused up the somnolent cook dozing in a rocking chair and then came back. Her patrons had taken a table near the window.

"Awful solemn and quiet, ain't it?" she heard the girl commenting.

"Class," returned the man. "Got a reputation. Anyhow, you'd better eat something: we both had." He grinned significantly and the girl giggled.

Betty stood demurely at attention.

"Waffles," said the man; and, jocularly, to the girl: "Want some tea?"

She made a dissenting murmur and he turned to Betty, eying her with bold admiration.

"I'll tell you, sweetness. Bring us the waffles and a coupla bottles imported ginger ale. Got it? All right, then; and two long glasses."

Betty bowed and departed, returning presently with two covered waffle dishes, the glasses, and the bottles. As she started to open the ginger ale the man, drawing a flask from his pocket, unscrewed the top and began pouring a generous portion of its contents into his companion's glass.

Miss Sarah, austere and high nosed, seemed to rise before Betty and stand there in visible form. The color rose to the young waitress' cheek and she spoke firmly.

"I'm sorry, but that is not allowed here."

The man, who fulfilled Betty's idea of a bootlegger, looked up with a nice blend of raillery and insolence.

"Cut out that 'verboten' stuff, sister. Place is empty, ain't it? No one'll be any the wiser." He brought out a roll of bills and, peeling off five dollars, laid it on the cloth. "You just turn your back."

WAFFLES AND PEPPER - - - - - - By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

Betty pushed the money toward him with a disdainful forefinger.

"Sorry," she repeated curtly. "Drinking is not permitted here."

"Drinking?" He jeered. "This is just a little harmless celery tonic. Try it yourself, if you don't believe me."

But Betty's nostrils had caught the sickly sweet odor of gin and she obstinately stood her ground.

The man became impatient. "That'll do from you," he growled. "Hand over that ginger ale."

"I shall not hand over the ginger ale, and I shall ask you to leave now."

"Ask away." He snatched one of the bottles from her, wrenched off the cap and, filling his glass, took a long drink.

Betty's heels clicked across the floor to the telephone. She heard a rumbled oath and the scraping back of his chair, and she ran as fast as she could, reached the instrument, and was just about to call the village policeman when a heavy hand was clapped over her mouth, the receiver was wrested from her, and she was pushed roughly back.

Her next thought was to make for the door, but her bullnecked customer held her penned in the corner by the telephone. The scowl he gave her was ugly, menacing. She saw that he had been drinking more heavily than she had suspected, and for the first time she became frightened.

AND then an olive gray angel of rescue vaulted through the open window—a young man who wore a chauffeur's coat and cap but looked like a football player in masquerade. The swift, easy way he flashed across the room was avenging; and so, Betty remembered afterward, was his face.

"This way out!" He laid a hand on the bootlegger's shoulder, and twisted him about toward the door. "You're forgetting yourself, Cuthbert."

"What the——?" exclaimed the startled bootlegger. Then, as he wriggled around and caught a glimpse of the intruder's face: "The cab driver! Say, where do you get into this?" he started to bluster. "You chase yourself back where you belong, Buttinski, or——"

"After you." The chauffeur's tone was quiet but imperative. "And let me remind you that we've no time to waste. The train for New York leaves Bellehaven station in just about ten minutes. You'll have to hurry to make it."

"The train to New York?" The other stared at him. "O, I see," with a sneer. "Well, get this, young fella. I ain't taking no train to New York. I hired you to drive me to Good Ground, and I ordered this jane to serve me waffles and ginger ale, and, by golly, I'm——"

"O, no; you aren't," interrupted the young man. He was smiling, but the gleam in his gray eyes was frosty. "You've changed your mind both ways. And as there's now only eight minutes to catch that train, you're going to get a move on you. You, too," he snapped to the girl still sitting at the table.

And then, in some dexterous fashion, so quick that Betty couldn't follow it, he caught the man and propelled him rapidly out of the house. Their progress didn't seem in the slightest degree impeded by the bootlegger's frantic struggles.

Down the path and through the gate they went, the scarlet hatted girl stumbling after them. The chauffeur, throwing the man into the cab, held open the door for her to follow; then he mounted the box and drove away in the direction of the station.

Betty hung out of the window, heedless of Miss Sarah's martinet regulations, and watched until the jolting, saffron vehicle disappeared around a corner. Now that it was all over, she thrilled to the adventure. Hidden beneath that demure, arbutus personality of hers was a strain of ardent romanticism, and she found herself stirred, fascinated by the drama of the incident and the opportune arrival of her debonair deliverer.

But the fat cook was tugging at her frock, almost tearfully pleading for the details; and while she was still deep in her recital of them, the taxicab again rattled up to the house, and the chauffeur appeared in the doorway.

"Not in a dead faint, or anything like that?" he inquired cheerfully.

Betty realized her wasted opportunity. An 1837 heroine would have been found gracefully swooning, with an agitated attendant waving burnt feathers before her nose. Still, should one really desire to impress a taxicab driver?

Whether it was this latter consideration, or regret at her oversight, she answered a trifle viciously.

"Fainting?" She threw up her chin, casting pose to the winds. "If you hadn't come in when you did, I should probably now be in a cell for murder. That big carving knife in the kitchen was strongly in my thoughts."

Hardly the sentiments of a clinging vine; but they seemed to meet the young man's approval.

"Self-defense," he nodded. "Or, at any rate, a clear case of justifiable homicide. I almost wish I hadn't interfered."

He was looking at her as one who has suddenly discovered a rare treasure. He was even slightly awed, and Betty was not unconscious of it.

"I—I came back to give you this," he stammered, holding out a ten dollar bill. "He didn't have time to pay when he left, but he's an honest man—under pressure."

"But he didn't owe anything like that."

"So he said. But the train was just pulling out, and we didn't have time to haggle. You can charge up the rest to disinfecting the place of his presence."

She thought of Miss Sarah lying upstairs, waiting to count her profits—the meager profits of that dull afternoon—and she took the money. Then the reflection came, that he would undoubtedly expect her to divide the excess with him.

It really all belonged to him, after she had deducted the amount of the order and possibly any tip she might have received; but somehow she hesitated about offering it. Reason and experience both told her that it was absurd to imagine any New York taxi driver refusing a gratuity; yet some intuition warned her that in this case it would be a mistake.

She felt like Alice in Wonderland; the customary values and relations were all jumbled. It was easy enough to conceive of a gentleman as a taxi driver, a gentleman who had come down in the world—even Russian grand dukes were doing it—but nothing could seem less down and out than this particular young man. He had the air of one sitting on the peak of the universe, surveying its lesser altitudes with an unimpaired confidence.

And while she debated the matter, she little dreamed how easy it was to read her varying expressions.

"You're worrying about me," he grinned, "and it isn't worth your while. You keep that; it's no more than your due. I got mine, my fare and a tip, too—also under pressure."

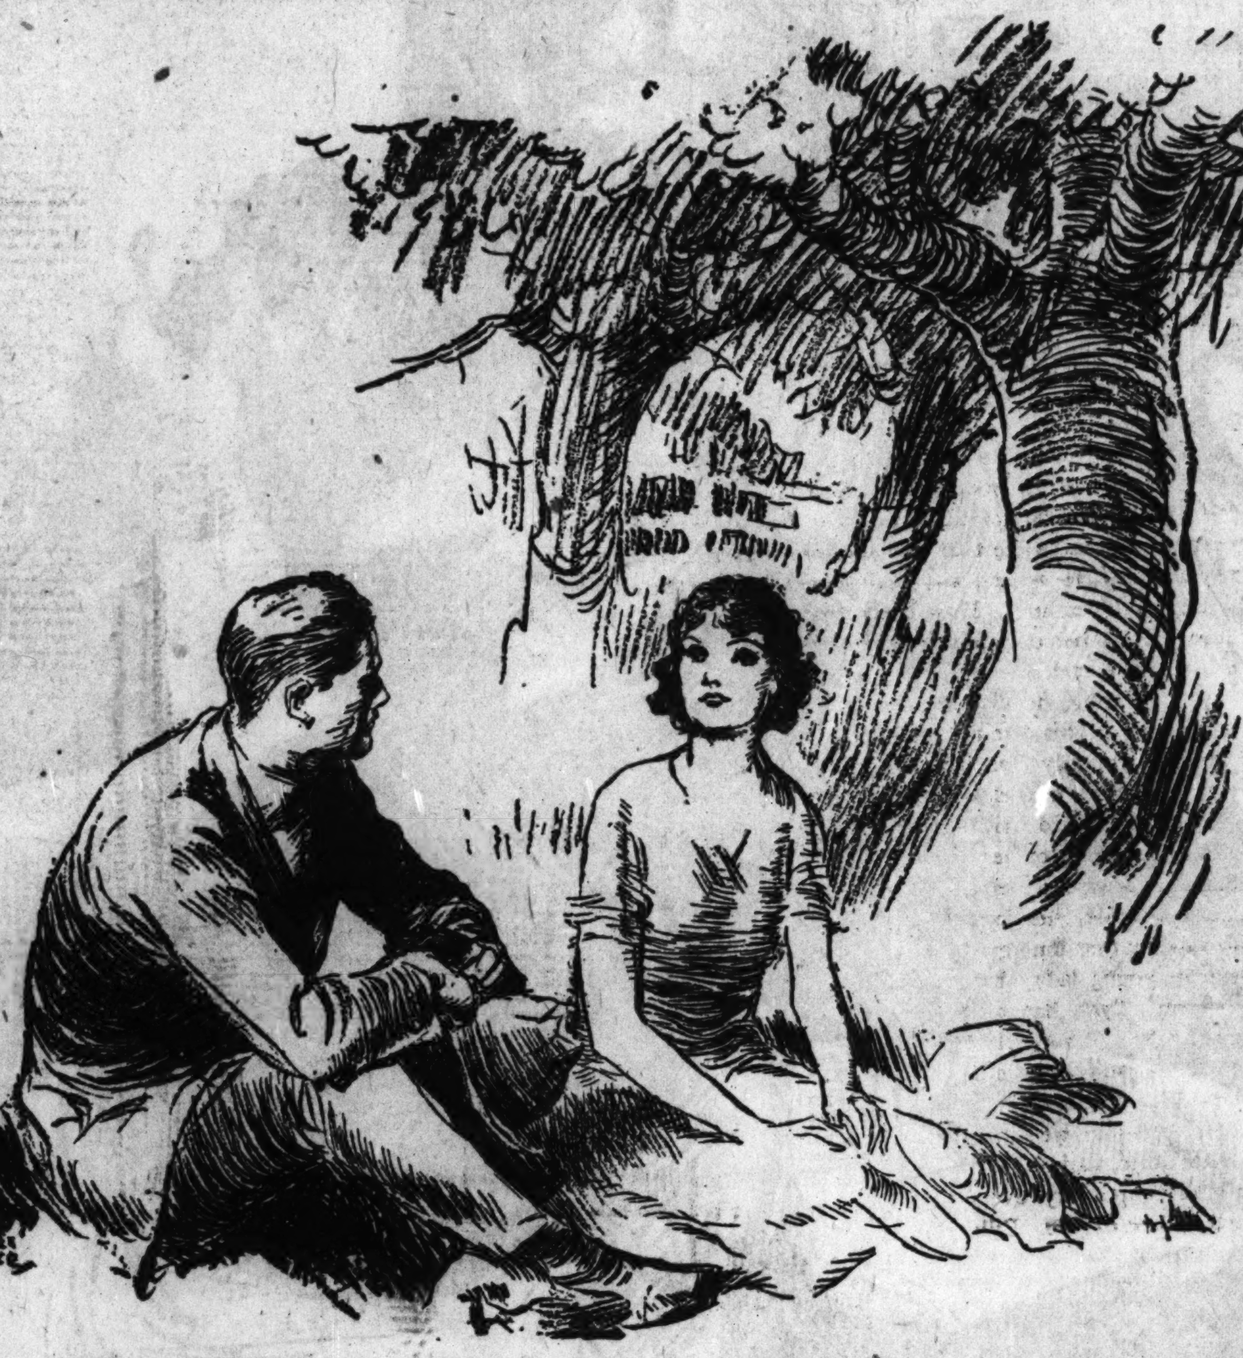
"But I want to do something." Her voice was relieved. "There are," she smiled at him, "those two orders still waiting in the kitchen."

She meant merely to suggest that he could enjoy them both; but the words were no more than out of her mouth before he stepped to a nearby table and drew back a chair for her, clicking his heels together and bowing as he stood behind it.

She caught her breath, and slipped into it. In this topsy-turvy wonderland one might as well take things as they came. And, after all, there was nothing especially out of the way in a waitress' having tea with a chauffeur.

"The cook will serve us," she said, "if you step to the kitchen door and tell her what we want." And the cook, impressed by his manner, baked fresh waffles for them with her finest artistry, and sprinkled them lavishly with the cinnamon and sugar he had requested.

Betty waited a little breathlessly. Would the adventure retain its high romantic level, or did disillusion await her in the use of his knife and fork? Would he cuddle his cup, or possibly drink from his saucer?



"Cabman no longer. The bootlegger had me canned. Still, there are compensations. Cassandra is mine. May I suggest that we two go a-Maying?"

She relaxed. No attack on food could have been more faultless, easy, and restrained. The mystery deepened. An exiled nobleman cruising for taxi fares was nowadays a commonplace; but a young American so obviously to the manor born—that was a different matter.

And with equal perplexity, she realized, the gray eyes fixed on her with flattering ardor from across the table were pondering possibilities.

"Mother and all her succession of cooks never made such waffles," he murmured as he finished; then abruptly: "How come, that you are juggling a tray, Lady Clara Vere de Vere? Sociological experiment, a desire to lead your own life, or did the comforts of home just pall? I admit, they often shine brightest in retrospect."

She was amused, her eyes, demure, blue gentians, twinkled at him.

"How come, yourself?" she countered.

HE grinned tantalizingly. "A direct answer might tend to incriminate or degrade me. Anyway," he shook his head, "I am inclined to think that after today Othello's occupation will be gone."

"You mean," her laughter changing to quick sympathy, "that that beast will have you fired?"

"What matter?" He shrugged indifferently. "I am promised a better job at the end of two months, and until then, with reasonable economy, I can manage to scrape along. I have knocked down enough on my grinding employers to cover the interim.

"No, on the whole," he decided, "I shall not let myself be fired. I shall resign. But before I leave, I shall buy the old bus, and I shall make a practice of dropping down here every day. After this afternoon's experience I am inclined to think this place is in need of a bouncer."

Betty thought of Miss Sarah's horror at the mention of such a thing, even if she understood the term.

"Visitors like that man and woman are rare here," she said primly. "Whitredge house, let me remind you, is exclusive, patronized entirely by the gentle and refined. And I am afraid, I am much afraid, that Miss Sarah would draw the line at your chauffeur's uniform."

"Ah!" he rejoined. "But let me remind you that tomorrow this cap and coat, the badge of servitude, will be laid away in mothballs. The chrysalis will emerge a butterfly. When I appear, I shall be disguised as a lordly spendthrift—a spendthrift with an uncontrollable addiction for waffles and tea."

"You don't know Cousin Sarah," Betty broke in, and then blushed confusedly. But apparently he failed to notice the slip of the tongue.

"You think," he said, "that she may look askance at my weakness, may censure me for my gluttony? True; but if she has any business instinct whatever, she will hardly turn me out. Mark my words, I shall become an habitue. And the first rule of an habitue at any eating place," he glanced at her significantly, "is to know the name of his waitress."

"It strikes me as more important," she said, "that the waitress should first know——"

That quizzical sparkle showed again in his eyes.

"I am enrolled at the garage as Bill Pepper; my own name, too, as it happens. And I can assure you that, unless our friend of this afternoon prefers an assault charge against me, I am in no danger from the law. Won't you take me on faith at that for the present, and reciprocate?"

She hesitated a moment.

"My name is Betty."

"Betty!" he repeated. "I realize now that it has always been my favorite name. Betty—er—Whitredge?"

"No matter." She flushed a bit vexedly at his recalling that slip of the tongue. "The first name of a waitress is all that counts."

"But you haven't yet explained, why a waitress?"

"And I don't intend to," she flashed back at him. "If you can be mysterious, so can I."

Before he could reply to this, a motor drew up at the gate, and from it descended a party of Miss Sarah's most select patrons. Pepper promptly took the hint. "Until tomorrow, then," he murmured, and, rising, bowed, and hurriedly made his way out through the kitchen.

The next afternoon Whitredge house showed a complete reversal of mob psychology. Almost from one o'clock on the tearoom was full, even crowded. Betty was kept on a constant rush; but, busy as she was, she did not fail to note the early arrival of Bill Pepper. And she had to confess that he had not boasted vainly of his ability to meet the standards of Miss Sarah's clientele; for this was a transformed Bill Pepper, correct as to attire, leisurely and reserved of manner. He lingered along, ordering from time to time fresh batches of waffles; but as there seemed no cessation in the steady patronage, he finally gave up and left. His one lapse from faultless punctilio was when he whispered as he paid his bill:

"I hoped to stay them out, but I'm not quite an anaconda. God grant that tomorrow may be another dull day."

But although the morrow answered his impious prayer, it did him little good; for when he put in his appearance Betty was not there. Her place was taken by a waitress who aroused no puzzling questions, so patently was she a waitress and nothing more. Also, there was a high nosed, gray haired lady of imposing appearance, whose hovering presence prevented him from making any inquiries.

He ordered his waffles mechanically, and ate them gloomily, beset by the sinking fear that the idyl, so auspiciously started, had met an untimely end, and Betty was gone. But some slight experience with the tactics of the opposite sex brought in time more comforting reflections. She was hardly likely to have abandoned the game at such an interesting stage. He did not flatter himself that he had proved so attractive to her as she to him; but he had certainly aroused her curiosity, and she would never dream of leaving until that was satisfied.

As he pondered this suggestion, he lifted his eyes from his plate and gazed thoughtfully out through the open window. It was a glorious evening, with the sun sloping down to the west in a cloudless sky. Off at the side of the house was a row of lilac bushes, and behind this a blur of pink, apple trees in blossom. A girl with any sense of the eternal fitness of things wouldn't miss such a setting.

He took a chance and, paying his bill, departed decorously by the front gate; then, strolling down the walk outside as if with no particular purpose in view, sought a gap in the hedge beyond that screening row of lilacs. He found it, and, pushing his way through, thanked the kindly star that had guided his steps aright.

SHE was sitting on some cushions under the apple trees, a large hat on the grass beside her; and she looked like a picture out of an old fashioned book of beauty.

"This," said Pepper as he came toward her, "is not life. It is a movie, with the subtitle: 'The tired drudge gains a brief respite from her wearing toil'—and quite naturally, in a French frock. I didn't know before that those things were true. I thought they were conceived and executed in a delirium."

She laughed delightedly. "Is it any more moviesque than that you should guess just where to find me? Next subtitle: 'Nor hedge, nor waffles could stay the knightly cabman from succeeding in his quest.'"

"Cabman no longer," corrected Pepper, dropping down beside her on the cushions." "As you apprehended, the bootlegger took his mean revenge and had me canned. Still, there are compensations. Cassandra—that's the old bus—is now mine, and by tomorrow will be transformed even as you and I. She feels the call of these Long Island roads, the urge of spring in her withered carburetor. May I suggest that we three go a-Maying?"

"Certainly," she agreed mockingly. "You may suggest anything. But Miss Whitredge will probably have other ideas. I am her guest."

Bill recalled the high nosed, severe looking spinster of the tearoom, and for a moment his face fell; then he leaned over and took her hands with a sudden resolution.

"Even Miss Whitredge could hardly object to a brief afternoon drive with your fiance," he said. "Since we are living in movies, let me offer to your approval that time tried movie title: 'Came love to them amid the apple blossoms!' And love, you know, will always find a way."

There is no need going into details. It is only results that count. And the results in this case were that Betty—consenting to a compromise—did mendaciously present Bill Pepper to Miss Whitredge as an old acquaintance, and that they did, with the aid of Cassandra, discover Long Island—discover, too, with thousands of their ilk, that fate had directly singled them out for association, and that for them alone was written the hackneyed line: "Two shall live the whole wide world apart, and meet, and read life's secret in each other's eyes."

And so, as the movies put it, the days passed on.

The distance between Coatesville and Bellehaven, as the crow flies, is only a matter of a few hours; but in atmosphere, at least so far as Betty Fleming was concerned, the two were as far apart as the tropics and the pole. The psychological barometer at Bellehaven indicated sunshine and summer, while that at Coatesville was set for storms accompanied by a distinct drop in temperature and nipping frosts.

This remarkable variation was due largely to Mr. Horace Trench, who, ever since Betty's outbreak of Victorianitis, had been her most persistent suitor, prepared, metaphorically speaking, to sit out all rivals.

Betty's encouragement of him, even when judged by Dora Copperfield standards, had hardly been what could be called enthusiastic; but this was offset to some extent by the hearty approval of her parents. He was to them, colloquially speaking, the snake's hips and the gnat's eyebrows. Although but a little over thirty, he was general manager of the Sheldon Mills, the principal business enterprise of Coatesville. He was quiet, good looking, settled, impeccable from every standpoint. One could go on interminably enumerating his virtues, and Mrs. Fleming had done it so persistently that her daughter was driven to the conviction that a faultless man was the most faultily tiresome being on the face of the earth.

Her visit to Long Island was really a strategic effort to evade a plainly impending proposal from him; but, as always, she found her ingenuity thwarted by his suave persistence.

IN the present instance, not having received any answer to his daily letters for over a week—a distinct blunder on Betty's part—Horace, a bit nettled, decided that he had given quite enough rope to the lady of his choice, and that the question between them must be definitely settled. Not that he had any particular doubt of the outcome. The arbiter elegantiarum of Coatesville, and eligible from every point of view, no girl in her right senses could fail to be proud and flattered at his preference.

Therefore, it was with slight misgivings that he set forth on a surprise visit to Whitredge house, rehearsing on the way his part in an agreeable interview which he intended should occur between Betty and himself. He was one of those men who always mentally frame and arrange an event in advance.

But Mr. Trench was no more immune than mice and men in general to that adversity which attends the best laid plans; and his return to Coatesville was almost precipitate, the avowal to which he had given such systematic forethought still unuttered. Yet, although discomposed, he was by no means defeated. He had another string to his bow, and one which he regarded as extremely effective.

Mr. and Mrs. Fleming were at home, he reflected with satisfaction, having come back from their western trip a few days before, and he waited only to brush the dust of travel from him and to snatch a hasty bite of dinner before setting out to call upon them.

"And what's the news, Horace?" placidly asked Mrs. Fleming after greetings had been exchanged and he had dropped into the porch chair to which she motioned him. "The town might be swallowed up by an earthquake, and James," with an injured glance at her husband, "would never think of mentioning it."

"No particular news," returned Trench, pausing with dramatic effect to light one of Mr. Fleming's excellent cigars, "except that I took a run down to Bellehaven this morning."

"No? Really?" Mrs. Fleming dropped her knitting in her lap. "And you saw Betty, of course? Tell me how she is. She telephoned yesterday that since Cousin Sarah seemed to need her so badly, she thought she would stay a week or two longer."

Horace looked down at the glowing tip of his cigar. "Miss Betty is well," he replied guardedly; "very well."

The mother beamed. "She always thrives so on the sea air. And Sarah Whitredge? Better, I hope?"

"Miss Whitredge is improving, I believe." He paused again, and, laying down his cigar, rubbed his hand across his forehead. "I am in an uncomfortable position," looking from one to the other of them. "I hate to appear a talebearer, and yet there is something I think you ought to know. Of course," with what was meant to be a deprecating smile, "my own feelings must be taken into account. I may be making a mountain out of a molehill. You will be the best judges of that."

"What on earth are you talking about?" Mr. Fleming frowned bewilderedly; and Mrs. Fleming, clasping her hands in vague alarm, muttered nervously: "Horace, you are not trying to tell us that anything has happened to Betty?"

"I hope not," with an attempt to be reassuring. "But it is better to give you the facts. When I arrived at Whitredge house this morning, I found that Miss Betty was not at home. She had gone driving, they told me; so I sat down on the porch to wait for her return. After an hour or two," his lips tightened at the recollection, "she drove up in a red and green taxicab. She was sitting on the front seat beside the driver. They both got out and stood talking together on the sidewalk. Supposing there was some difficulty over the fare, I went out to settle the matter, and—well, Betty introduced me to the cabman as a friend of hers."

Mr. Fleming choked, and leaned forward almost out of his chair. Mrs. Fleming merely sat thunderstruck.

"He was driving the cab and had on a chauffeur's coat and cap," continued Horace; "but I naturally thought it was simply a lark on the part of some young fellow, an acquaintance she had made down there, and the more so when she urged him to come in with us and have waffles and tea on the porch. But not a bit of it," grimly. "He assured me that he is a licensed cab driver, recently employed by one of the big New York companies but let out by them and now operating on his own. He and Betty had just been out picking up trade by taking people to nearby beaches, he told me, and both of them seemed delighted with the success of——"

The banker relaxed. "They were kidding you, Horace," he declared with heavy jocularity.

"Unfortunately, they were not." Trench could afford to overlook the gibe. "I took the trouble, Mr. Fleming, on reaching New York, to call at the office of the cab company the young man had named, and found his story verified in all essential details. He had been discharged for an unprovoked assault upon a customer."

Mrs. Fleming collapsed with a low moan of consternation. The banker seemed petrified.

"And you think," he finally managed to stammer, "that my girl and this roustabout are—are——"

"Well, they call each other Bill and Betty," said Horace drily. "The affair may not be exactly serious yet, but it is certainly tending that way."

"She must come home at once." Mr. Fleming roused up, and banged his fist down on the arm of his chair. "Martha, get her on the telephone, and tell her to take the first train in the morning. We'll cut this thing short before it's got a chance to go any further."

"Listen, Mr. Fleming," Trench leaned forward persuasively. "Betty is an old fashioned girl, and the old fashioned ways of breaking up such an affair by locking a daughter up or taking her on a long trip was never effective with that kind. Then, too," he hesitated briefly, "there is a personal angle to the question. If you call Betty to account, or create an unpleasantness in the premises, she will instantly realize that I am responsible for your knowledge of the facts, and will be quite apt to regard me unkindly. That is something I would like, if possible, to avoid."

Mr. Fleming nodded comprehendingly; Mrs. Fleming began babbling eagerly that Betty should never know of his intervention, and that no doubt when she returned home and was once more among her own circle she would realize the unsuitability of such an acquaintanceship and be bitterly ashamed of it.

His point gained, Horace was about to leave; but the banker detained him to put some anxious questions in regard to the mills. He had heard a persistent rumor since reaching home, he said, that there was a possibility of a shutdown. Was there anything in it?

Trench pursed up his lips. Confidentially, he admitted, there was. As Mr. Fleming knew, things were in a pretty bad way. The Burleson mills in a neighboring city were a stiff competitor and pushing them hard; and old Sheldon, the owner of the local plant, was about ready to give up the fight. Why not? He was a man of enormous wealth, with many irons in the fire. With him this was only a minor interest; and he could hardly be expected to continue a losing venture.

"As for myself," Horace hastened to explain, "I would not be greatly affected one way or the other. I have Mr. Sheldon's confidence, and he is pretty sure to look out for me. But I would regret it deeply for the sake of the town. I have many pleasant associations here, and it would be a real grief to me to have to go away."

The banker assented gloomily.

"It would be Coatesville's death blow," he said. "Take the Sheldon mills away and what is left? Like you, I could get along; my outside investments are sufficient to keep me and my family. But it would be a financial jolt, there's no denying that. And even more, I'd hate to see the town wrecked and a lot of good neighbors driven to the wall."

BEFORE Trench could respond to this there came the sound of wheels on the drive before the house, and into the gleam of the porch lantern flashed Cassandra, resplendent in red and green, and parked directly behind Horace's shining, decorous roadster. It was as if some rakish, wrinkled gypsy crone rubbed elbows with a lady of the haute monde.

Out of the taxicab tumbled Betty and came running up the steps. At the sight of Horace standing there, an odd, little, understanding smile perked up one corner of her mouth; then she hugged her parents in turn.

"The return of the prodigal!" she exclaimed gayly. "After I saw Horace this morning, I decided not to wait as I had intended, but to come home at once. So I pressed Bill and his bus into service, and here I am. I had an idea"—she glanced up challengingly at Trench—"that I should find you here."

"Er—just dropped in to talk over a bit of business with your father." His assured manner for once had forsaken him. "But you'll want to be to yourselves now." He grabbed uncertainly at his hat, and extended his hand to Mrs. Fleming. "So I'll——"

"No. No." Betty cooed a protest. "I want you to stay. There's something that's got to be settled among us, and your help will be needed, Horace. In fact, you're the one that counts."

She deftly captured his hat as she spoke; and since this left him no other recourse, he forced an indulgent smile and dropped back into his chair. Then, with her circle complete, she leaned against one of the pillars of the veranda, and commenced.

"First, I must tell you about Bill Pepper," she said. "He's the taxi driver that Horace met down at Cousin Sarah's this morning, as he may have mentioned. I don't believe that Horace could appreciate him on such short acquaintance. But—O, daddy—mother—he's been giving me the most wonderful time down there, and he's the nicest man I ever knew. Why, he saved my life—or pretty nearly saved it, anyhow." And she glowingly recounted the story of the encounter with the bootlegger.

Her father, as he listened, assumed what Betty called his thunderstorm expression.

"The idea of Sarah Whitredge allowing you to act as a waitress!" he exploded. "No wonder the fellow presumed on it. She is to blame for the whole unfortunate"—he broke off abruptly at a sharp nudge from his wife.

"I would hardly call it presumption," she said rebukingly. "It seems to me praiseworthy of the young man to have come to Betty's assistance."

"Spoiling for a row, more likely," growled Mr. Fleming, not to be restrained. "That's his kind, apparently. Didn't Horace just tell us that he got discharged by the cab company for beating up an unoffending customer?"

Poor Trench squirmed at such a fatal disclosure. Tact and diplomacy seemed hopelessly lost in the shuffle. But Betty manifested only amusement.

"O," she laughed lightly, "but that was the case of my bootlegger. He reported the affair to the company; and to save me from being dragged into it, Bill wouldn't defend himself and got let out. But he isn't going to be a taxi driver any longer. That is what I wanted to talk to you about. After he met Horace this morning and learned that he was the head of the Sheldon mills here, he said he believed that was the place for him, because then we could be together. So, daddy, darling, you've got to persuade Horace to give him a job."

Mr. Fleming gasped and sputtered. Mrs. Fleming seemed about to swoon. The velvet glove, so to speak, was off. This called for stern, barehanded repression. To have their shame paraded under the eyes of all Coatesville. And as a millhand. Never!

"Of course," Betty continued coolly, "if he doesn't get work at the mill he will have to keep on driving his taxi. But he will come to Coatesville just the same."

Involuntarily, Mr. Fleming's eye turned toward the bedizened Cassandra standing before the gate. He looked helplessly at Mrs. Fleming; but she looked as helplessly back at him. He swallowed hard, and surrendered. Of two evils, choose the lesser.

"Er—Trench—— Since the young man seems set on a berth in the mill, do you suppose it could be managed?"

Now Horace had been as averse to the proposition as either of the others, and was already framing the excuses he could give to Betty—slack employment, no vacancies, old hands being laid off daily—but he saw the dilemma poor Fleming was in. Moreover, the suggestion came to him that possibly it would be the quickest means of fading Bill Pepper out of the picture. Hard work and a loose chap of that sort were not apt to agree; and Horace could see to it that the work was made not only hard but disagreeable enough to sicken anybody.

His cold eye glittered; but he allowed no hint of his purpose to show in his gracious response.

"Delighted, sir, if it will be of any satisfaction to Betty. Sweet of her to want to help the young man along, and I only hope he will prove worthy of it. If he calls at my office in the morning, I will see what can be done for him."

"But there's no need of waiting," exclaimed Betty. "He's out there in the cab. I'll call him in, and you can settle the matter right now." And, springing down the steps, she tore out to the roadway to return a few moments later with Bill Pepper in tow.

IT was a distinct shock to the three upon the veranda. Hardly likely, of course, that the cab would be standing there without its driver; yet so taken up had they been in the discussion that they had given no thought to his presence. Certainly, to have him thus unceremoniously thrust upon them was more than they had bargained for. Trench especially was furious. Under Betty's eye, and with the desire to hold her esteem, he could not afford to be ungenerous either in regard to wages or the quality of employment he offered.

Afraid of betraying his true feelings, he made the interview as short as possible, and then hurriedly took himself off. Bill Pepper, at Betty's invitation, dropped into the chair he had vacated, and in spite of the somewhat frigid atmosphere remained.

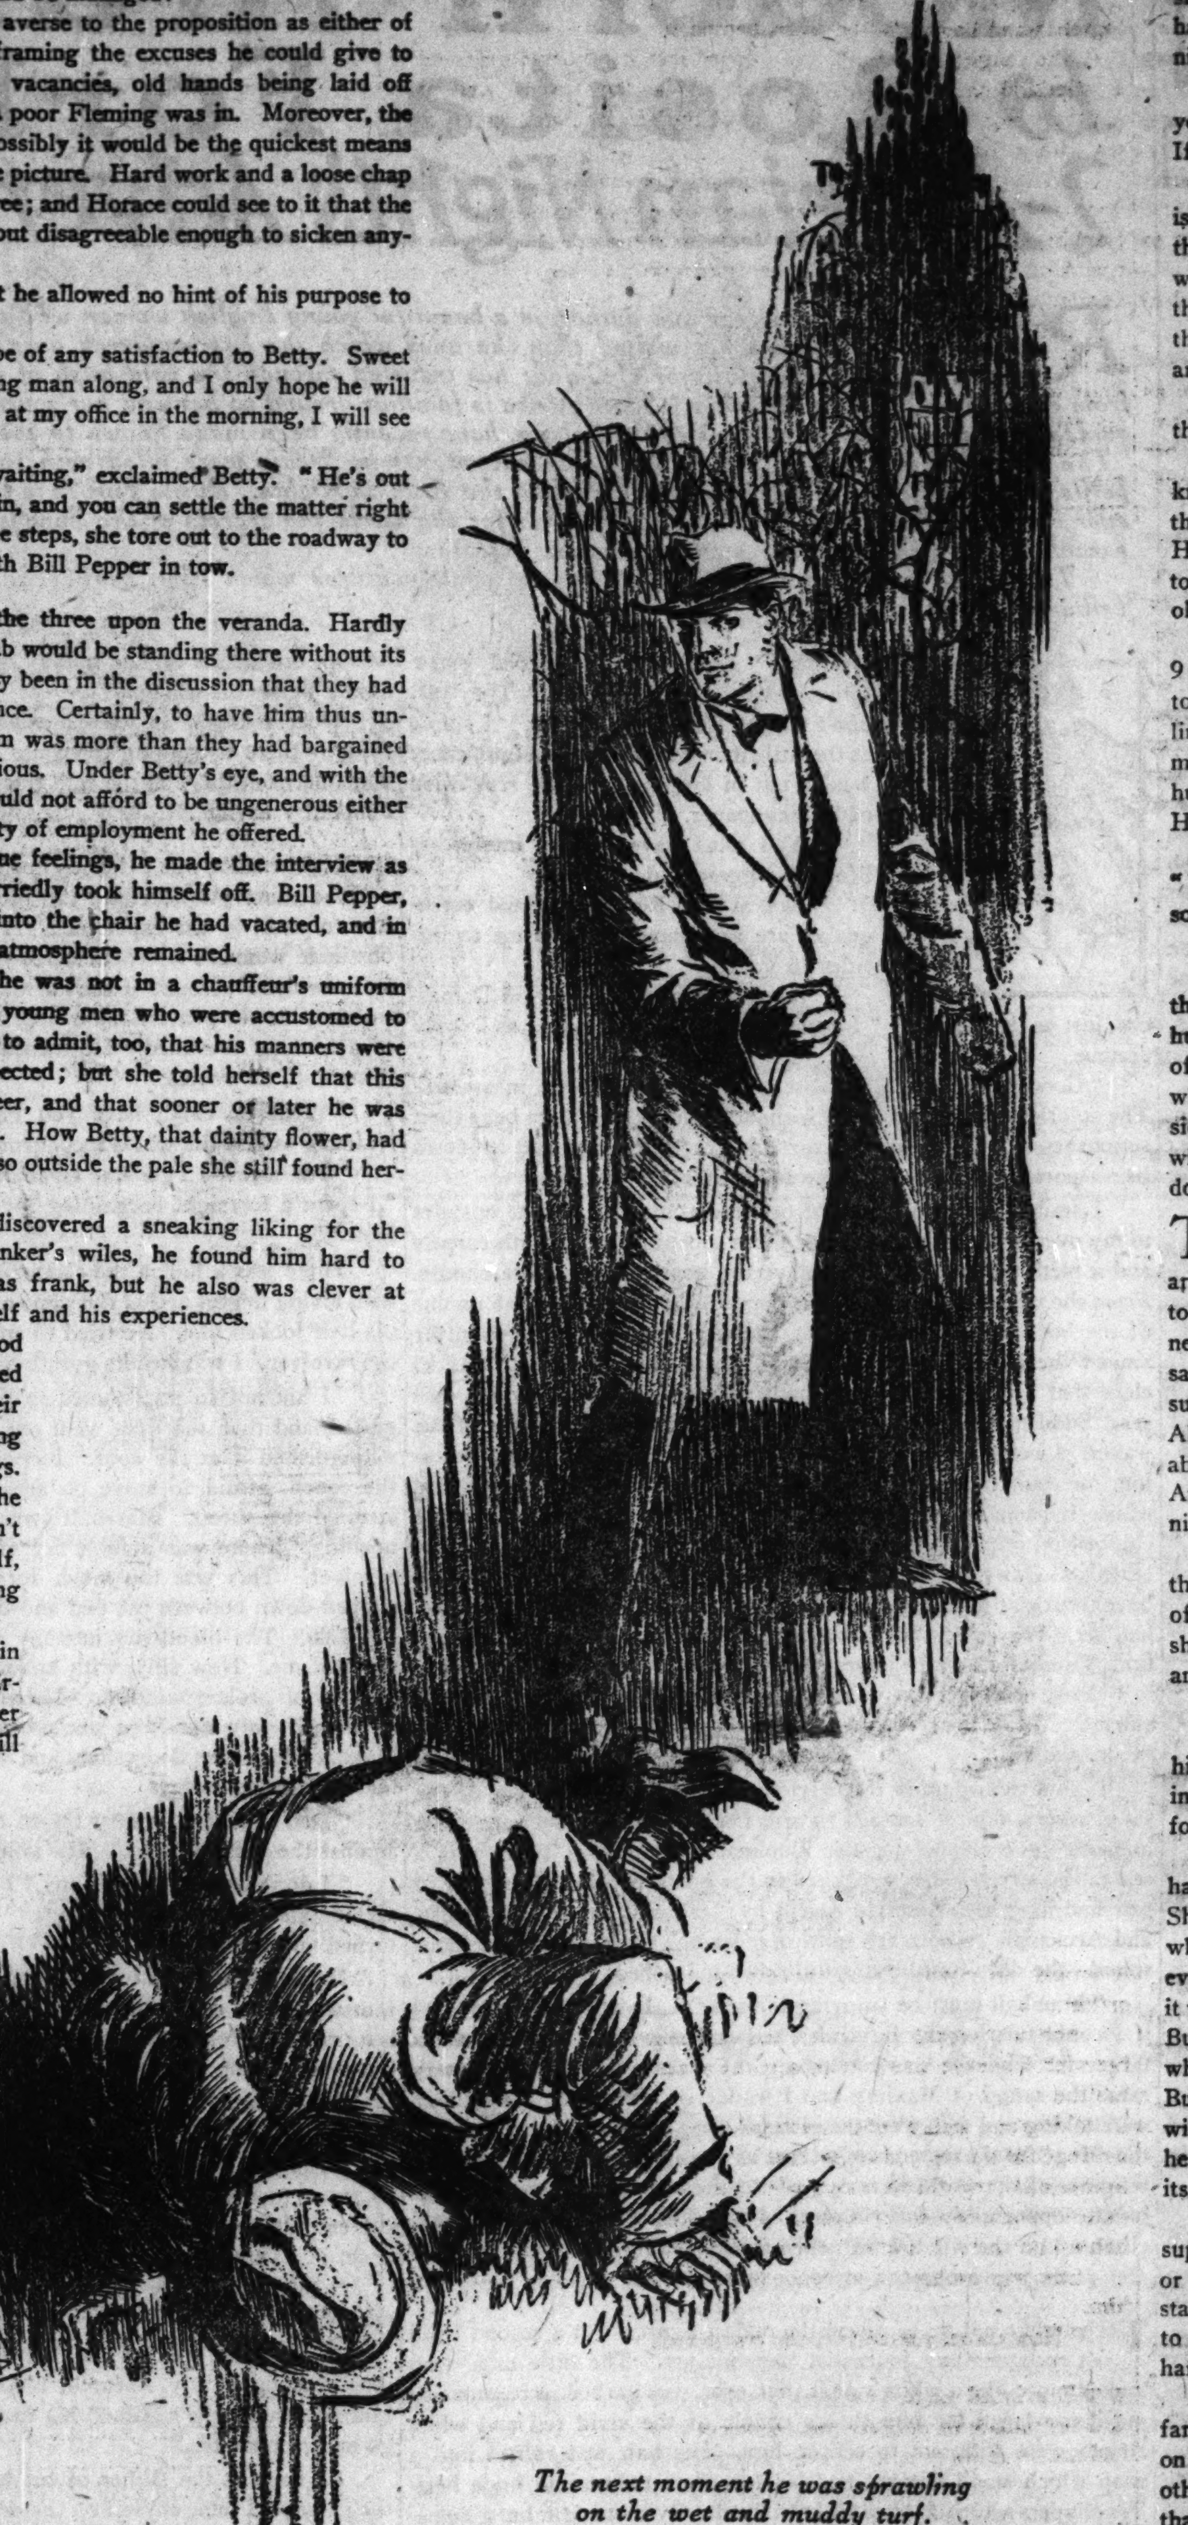
To Mrs. Fleming's relief he was not in a chauffeur's uniform but was garbed as any of the young men who were accustomed to appear at the house. She had to admit, too, that his manners were much better than she had expected; but she told herself that this must be only a deceptive veneer, and that sooner or later he was sure to disclose the cloven hoof. How Betty, that dainty flower, had ever been attracted to a person so outside the pale she still found herself unable to comprehend.

As for Mr. Fleming, he discovered a sneaking liking for the lad, although, with all his banker's wiles, he found him hard to plumb. Pepper apparently was frank, but he also was clever at turning the subject from himself and his experiences.

After he had finally said good night and left, both parents turned as with a common purpose to their daughter; but it was Mr. Fleming who managed to get first innings.

"Look here, young lady," he demanded sternly, "you haven't gone and made a fool of yourself, have you? There isn't anything between you and that fellow?"

"Nothing, but that we're in love with each other, daddy darling. Don't have apoplexy over that, though, either of you. Bill and I are not exactly engaged. Neither of us is such an idiot. But when he makes good—and he will—well, I shall not be married to Horace."



The next moment he was sprawling on the wet and muddy turf.

And, leaving them to sleep—or, rather, not to sleep—on that, Betty tripped blithely away upstairs.

In the outcome, however, their anxiety over the situation proved somewhat exaggerated. Instead of being an incubus to them, Bill Pepper, in spite of Trench's sneers and innuendoes, was taken up by Coatesville eagerly and enthusiastically. Had one of the flappers attempted to wish a taxicab driver on them the town would have known what to do; but for Betty Fleming to indulge in such an eccentricity threw them into confusion, and before they quite knew how to take it, Bill walked in and made a place for himself. His was not a personality, somehow, that one could successfully snub or put down. It was not long until Horace Trench saw his authority openly flouted, his position of social arbiter in danger of usurpation at the hands of the newcomer.

Contrary to expectation, too, Bill worked steadily on at the mill, cheerfully indifferent to the extra tasks piled upon his shoulders and all the efforts of the general manager to sicken him with the job.

Indeed, he had not been in Coatesville more than a month before Betty began to notice a marked slowing up in his lighter activities, and a deeper absorption in his duties at the plant. His evenings were no longer given over to dancing and frivolity, but were spent for the most part in the haunts of his fellow workers, or alone in his room engaged upon a series of calculations. Even when he was with Betty he was often preoccupied and silent, lines of deep concentration in his face.

"What are you grousing about all the time, Bill?" she finally pouted. "You're not a bit of fun any more."

"I'm not grousing, Betty. I'm merely following the excellent counsel of the correspondence school advertisements, and studying to fit myself for a place higher up. Do you never read how 'Ed Deson used to be one of the most shiftless men in our shop, but now, after only six lessons, he plays golf daily with the boss'? Who knows? Perhaps, if I apply myself diligently, even Horace will some day recognize my merits." He smiled, but Betty noted that it was only a smile of the lips; his eyes were puzzled, reflective.

"Fact is, Betty," he confided to her more seriously, "conditions out there at the plant have got me interested. There is no good reason that I can see why the Burleson mills should be crowding us out of existence; plenty of room for both in their respective fields. Yet our sales and production both keep steadily dwindling, while theirs go up. I have been trying to get the lowdown on the cause of it, but," frowning, "so far, I must confess, without much success. However, I've stumbled onto a clew at last which may lead me somewhere; and if, while following it up, I see a little less of you, you'll understand, won't you, dear, that it's not inclination that's wrong with me, but a desire to make a ten strike for us all."

Betty was not entirely satisfied; but since Bill seemed to make such a point of it, she ultimately, like a dutiful sweetheart, told him to go to it.

WHEN two weeks had passed, though, with scarcely more than an occasional glimpse of him, and when, moreover, there was to be a big dance—an extra special event in honor of something or other—at the country club, she felt that complaisance had reached its limits; and, seeking him out, informed him that he simply had to be among those present.

"Fair enough," agreed Bill with a grin. "I was just beginning to think that a night off was coming to me; and we'll make it a good one. See that you don't save any dances for Trench. I bespeak all his in advance."

"Thank heaven, I won't be asked to save any for him," said Betty. "He isn't going to be there—or, at least, not until very late. He met mother down town only a little while ago and was all cut up about it; said an important business conference had come up for Friday night which he could not escape or postpone."

"Eh? What's that?" snapped Pepper. "An important business conference? Friday?" He looked at Betty with a regretful shake of the head. "Sorry, my dear, but those dances of yours will have to go to the highest bidder. I have a hen on myself for Friday night."

"O, Bill!" she wailed. "I think that's perfectly sneaking of you. And I'll tell you, I've stood for all the neglect I'm going to. If you don't keep your promise and come to that dance, I'll——"

"No; you won't, honey," he broke in upon her. "Because it isn't this dance that counts. It's our whole future—yours and mine—that I'm playing for; and unless I am much mistaken, Friday night will see the trick turned. But, 'sneaking' is the word, all right, at that," he admitted with a little laugh; "for this is a gumshoe job of the first order. So don't ask me any questions now, darling, but wait and see me bring out the rabbits from under the hat."

"We-ell," Betty yielded. "But understand, Bill Pepper, this is the last time."

Friday evening saw the heaviest downpour that Coatesville had known in years. But although it cast a damper over the gayety at the country club, it did not seem to affect the spirits of Bill Pepper. He was blithely whistling as he sloshed through the flooded streets to the shabby garage where he kept Cassandra and, mounting to his old seat, drove off to the railroad station.

Ordinarily but one or two cabs made a practice of meeting the 9:30 train up from New York, as the traffic was generally light; and tonight, as he expected from the weather, his was the only one in line. Consequently, the lone passenger that alighted—a stout, elderly man with gray sidewhiskers—had no other choice, but climbing hurriedly in, directed that he be driven to the bachelor home of Horace Trench.

"Wait," he said curtly when they reached their destination. "I shall want you to take me back to the station to catch the 11:15 south."

Bill nodded. He had intended to wait anyhow.

From his vantage point under the trees along the curb, he saw the visitor admitted by Horace in person, and then the shades were hurriedly drawn before the windows of the library. But the shadows of the two men upon the blinds were plainly visible, and any one who suspected the purpose of the interview could have gained considerable significance from their movements. Also, the sash of one window had been raised to admit the air, and Bill did not scruple to do a bit of eavesdropping.

TWO hours later, the rain having stopped in the meanwhile, and his mysterious caller having departed, Trench made his belated arrival at the dance. As he drove his shiny car up the winding road to the lighted up club, he was feeling in excellent spirits. His business—which had been causing him some anxious moments until he saw just how that evening's conference turned out—had been consummated to his entire satisfaction. Now he was free to himself. Also he had an idea that Betty recently had been less distant. Probably her silly infatuation for the Pepper person was wearing off. And things certainly seemed to be coming his way. Perhaps tonight, he——?

He was humming softly as he backed in to park his car. And then he got a disagreeable turn at the sight of Cassandra there ahead of him. A still more disagreeable turn awaited him; for a bulky shadow disengaged itself from the shadows of the dripping branches and stepped forward.

"Trench, I've got something to say to you."

It was not just the proper way for an humble employe to address his general manager; and Horace started to walk by without replying. But Pepper reached out and, catching him by the shoulder, forced him to listen whether he would or no.

"I sized you up for a crook when I met you down at Bellehaven," he said; "and after I learned that you were running the Sheldon mills up here, I thought I would take the trouble to find out what your game was. It didn't require much time to discover that everything was being muddled; but I still couldn't decide whether it was through purpose or incompetence. There you had me stumped. But tonight I got the goods on you. Managerial sabotage; that's what you've been up to. And tonight you drew your pay from old Burleson, our chief competitor. Maybe I shouldn't tell you, but I've wired Mr. Sheldon to come up here tomorrow and listen to me before he closes down a plant that should be the best paying industry of its kind in the country."

"Listen to you?" sneered Horace. "What attention do you suppose old Sheldon will pay to a wire from a disgruntled employe, or to any slanders against me from such a source? Your record stamps you—a discharged taxicab driver." His anger suddenly rose to an explosive pitch. "Trying to threaten me, are you? Take your hand off my coat, you lout, and stand out of my way, or I'll——"

He foolishly drew back his fist as he spoke, but he never got farther than to draw it back; for the next moment he was sprawling on the wet and muddy turf. He scrambled up again and made another furious pass, but this time he landed in a puddle; and after that, there was, of course, nothing left for him to do but leap into his car and drive, drenched and cursing, home.

Bill Pepper, though, went inside and danced with unwearied zest until daylight; then, fit and smiling, appeared shortly before noon at the railroad station to meet the up train from New York.

Horace, looking distinctly worried and with a dark bruise under one eye, was also there in response to a telegraphic summons from his chief; but he had only time to cast one malevolent glance in the direction of Pepper before the train pulled in.

In some way, though, Pepper managed to get ahead of him as Mr. Sheldon stepped to the platform. The latter stopped and surveyed the debonair figure in his path.

"What's the meaning of this fool telegram you sent me?" he demanded sternly, yet with the suggestion of a twinkle in his eye. "Some new deviltry you've got into. Last I heard about you, you were carrying on with some waitress down on Long Island."

"Still am," said Bill laconically. "Only, she's here."

At this point Horace edged in. "Ah, Trench." Mr. Sheldon extended his hand. "How are you? This is my son, William Pepper Sheldon IV. I don't know what he's doing here, but he says he wants to report. You see, I made a bet with him six months ago that he couldn't earn his living for that time, with no help from either me or his friends. Old stuff, I admit, but I couldn't think of anything more original, and—hold on there, Trench! Good God, what's the matter with the man? Are you sick?"

"He needs air," said Bill, taking the limp Horace by the arm and shoving him toward the car. "He needs air, and I think he's going to get it. Come on, dad. We'll drive out to the mill, talk things over, and whizz through the books. And, since I'm taking Trench's place here——"

"The devil you are!" Mr. Sheldon stopped with one foot on the step of the car. "What put that notion into your head?"

"O, you're going to beg me to do it and, incidentally, I am going to marry a girl you'll go crazy over, and settle down here, and make these mills an honor to the name."

"One of your best dreams," said his father, looking curiously at the greenish pallor on Horace's face. "Well, we'll see about it."

And ultimately he saw.

OF all the books Enos A. Mills wrote about life in the Rockies, one of the best, in our opinion, is "The Rocky Mountain National Park" (Doubleday, Page), a memorial volume containing a number of Mr. Mills' most engaging pieces about Colorado, together with a foreword by Robert W. Johnson and a fine appreciation of the "champion of wild life" by Philip Ashton Rollins. Readers who are familiar with the naturalist's other books will appreciate this posthumous edition; those who read Enos Mills for the first time will get the charm of the Colorado Rocky mountain wilderness from its foremost exponent, a man who knew the country well, and wrote well about it.

Charles Hanson Towne, distinguished poet, editor, novelist, wit, and diner-out, has written a sprightly novel of the Long Island rich, "The Gay Ones" (Century). It is the pre-war story of a young engineer, Roger Firth, who does not enjoy week-ending at plushy country houses, and of his pretty, if chill, young wife, who does. Among a real array of frivolous idlers, profiteers, social climbers, and week-end jesters, Mr. Towne has brought out four memorable characters: Firth, himself; Gertrude Randall, the lovely patrician whom he eventually loves; Patty Hemingway, an attractive girl who pays for her entertainment among the rich by entertaining them at the piano; and Richie Dalford, an attractive gigolo and buffoon, too much admired by rich and otherwise married ladies, who renounces Long Island for France, after the sinking of the Lusitania, and becomes one of the heroes of the Lafayette escadrille. The jolly old war at length blows over this country and changes Roger Firth's dinner jacket to a uniform. He and his pretty, if chill, young wife have long since ceased to occupy adjoining rooms at house parties, so it is not unusual that a great adventure befalls him in Paris, which was, after all, a more dangerous front than Verdun. But to divulge more might spoil Mr. Towne's story; and it is too good a story to spoil.

There is magic in the word "Africa," and Martin Johnson, whom you may recall as a movie man, has captured much of it in his "Camera Trails in Africa" (Century). It is a large, plump volume, rich in photographs, and Mr. Johnson, who writes entertainingly, has given a sweeping picture of Africa, and told, with an admirable absence of bunk, a thousand and one thrilling adventures of hunting big game with a movie camera.

LORADO TAFT

Lorado Taft, who believes that Chicago will some day be a beautiful city, but who is otherwise an artist and a talented sculptor, has written a complete and creditable work, "The History of American Sculpture" (Macmillan). When we were a student at the Art institute there were only two departments of the school which were not a beastly bore: the life classes and the weekly lectures of Mr. Taft. Much of this book is written in the same intimate, spirited manner of those talks; and with his fine background of the Renaissance and European art, nobody is better qualified to do a history of sculpture in America.

Pascal Covici, the w. k. publisher of Chicago, Roumania, and other points, announces an item that should bring tears of joy to the eyes of the most hard hearted bibliophile. It is to be called "Et Cetera, a collection of literary gems, rescued from the mouldering files of old periodicals, many of which have been defunct for years; and, without exception, every item in the book will be a first edition for which collectors have searched in vain." Unpublished manuscripts by Lafcadio Hearn, Joseph Hergesheimer, Stephen Crane, Ernest Dowson, Walt Whitman, George Moore, and other promising young writers will be among the collection.

In the last fortnight we have received letters from two clergymen of Protestant denominations, calling our attention to the excellence of a little book, "The God of Our Fathers," by H. P. S., issued by the publishing house of Revell. It is a convincing and splendidly written argument for faith, appealing to all creeds; and we learn that the author, who signs merely his initials, is the Rev. Father Hugh P. Smyth of Evanston. Father Smyth is well known as a theologian, the author of a sound history of the Reformation, and other works.

John V. A. Weaver is one of the most fortunate of young literary men, because he has written two fine books of poetry in the American language, and because he has just been wedded to that lovely lady of the theater, Miss Peggy Wood. In a recent letter he writes, among other news: "Having married Peggy Wood, and reporting the first five weeks as a complete success, I have just put the finishing touches on my comedy in the American language, 'Love 'Em and Leave 'Em'—which has no bearing upon the circumstances. Also I have completed part 1 or a contemplated eight part novel, entitled, 'The Milk White Steed.' Marriage is really swell. The same to you, and many of them. Toujours, Weaver."

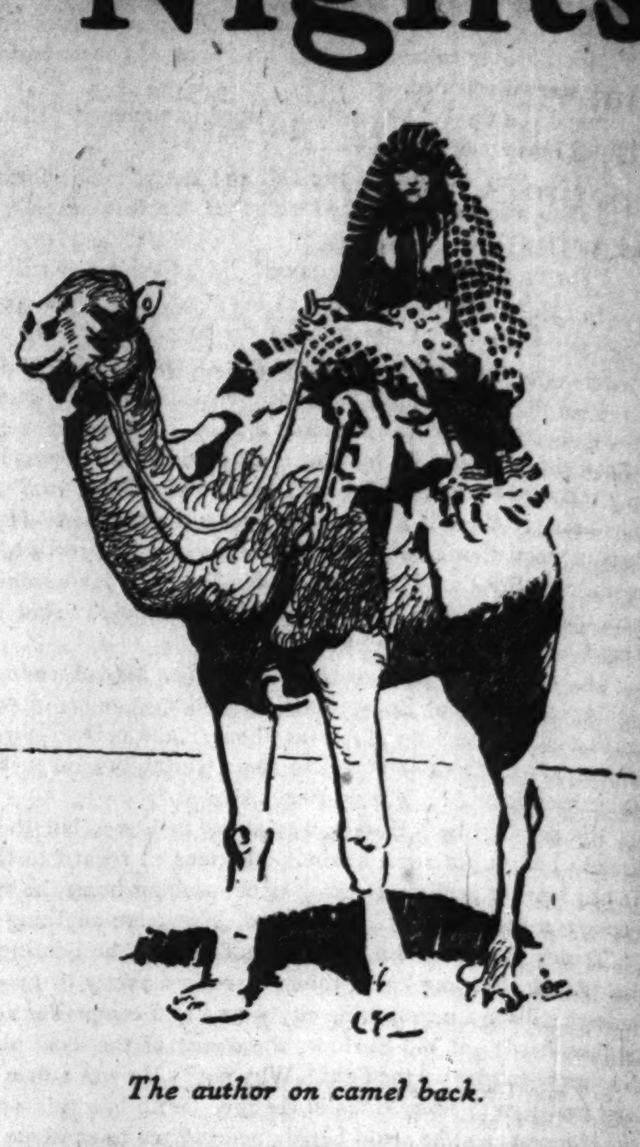
Modern Arabian Nights

by Rosita Forbes

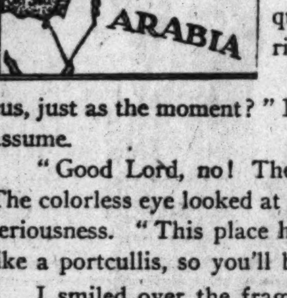
2—A Syrian Night's Adventure



The author on camel back.

ROSITA FORBES, explorer and author, is a beautiful young English woman who can more easily count the countries that she has not visited than the ones which she has wandered over. She has penetrated the dark and ltitle known interior of China; has traveled through the wild bush of Australia and has walked from one end of Japan to the other. South Africa is familiar ground to her and her journeys alone, but for native guides, over the uncharted regions of the Sahara, have recently been made known to the world through her book, "The Secret of the Sahara: Kufara." Her adventures in Arabia were filled with romance as well as deadly perils, an dthe stories of her journeys read like the Arabian Nights. Rosita Forbes is the only white woman who ever crossed the Sahara and she has uncovered for the world the secrets of the Senussi. Her exploits are comparable only to those of the world's greatest explorers.

This is the second of a series of articles on her adventures which Mrs. Forbes has written for the Sunday Tribune.



"THRILLS!" exclaimed the special correspondent of the Daily Meteor. "They just don't happen for me any longer." I stared at the little man whose sandy insignificance was so out of keeping with the reputation of his newspaper.

"You must have had an interesting life!" I suggested, doubtfully.

"Not at all. Revolutions and earthquakes are as commonplace to me as bus rides to you."

"Are you expecting either, in Damascus, just as the moment?" I queried in as respectful a tone as I could assume.

"Good Lord, no! The most we can hope for is a massacre." The colorless eye looked at me without the least twinkle to belie their seriousness. "This place has a steel door which they can let down like a portcullis, so you'll be perfectly safe."

I smiled over the fragment of conversation as I went upstairs to my overfurnished room, where three couches covered with carpets and a plethora of inlaid tables gave the impression of a warehouse. From the windows, set so high in the wall that I had to climb on one of the beds to look out of them, the city seemed painted in silver amidst the indigo of her apricot gardens. The moonlight was so clear that I went to sleep dreaming I was sailing on a white, still sea. Suddenly a storm arose and I was deafened by the roar of the waves. I woke in the hot, stuffy room, but thought I was still dreaming, for clamor echoed around me. At first I could not understand where it came from. Then, as the tumult grew more insistent, I climbed up on the pillows and tried to force open the hermetically sealed windows. The darkness outside was opaque—it seemed to have a curiously stifling quality, and I wondered what time the moon had set. Waves of sound beat against my ears. There was something familiar about the intermittent crackling. In a flash I was back in France, bent over the wheel of an ambulance eddied between the blurred. "Rifle fire!" I exclaimed, and my heart missed a beat with excitement.

Lights sprang up in the neighboring houses. Across one of the seven rivers, figures hurried to and fro with torches. Pantomimic humanity gesticulated against illuminated windows. There was a stir in the streets. Doors banged in the hotel, which in this year of war had long been deserted except by Arab and Kurd, Jew, Druse, and Armenian. Above the spitting musketry came another ominous sound—the deep toned roar of a crowd unleashed.

"Marshall must be enjoying himself," I thought, and wondered if I could turn on my light or whether I should at once become a target for whoever was conducting the mass[illegible] From far away came the sound of Maxims, and I wondered [illegible] side the soldiers were taking and who were the victims. In a to[illegible] which had become the refuge for the tag ends of a score of races where the most fanatical religions of the world were each at the throat of the other, there was infinite opportunity for violence. I was just wondering if I could climb up on the window sill when a stray bullet shattered the glass and, at the same moment, my door crashed open.

THE light went up to reveal the oddest figure! For a second I did not recognize my journalist acquaintance. The little man, who looked more like a white rabbit than ever, was garbed in pajamas so much too large for him that a couple of the vivid red and white stripes were sufficient to eclipse him. His hair was ruffled into a wisp which stood upright and his feet were thrust into huge heelless slippers which flapped as he walked. Over one arm hung something dusty and full of holes. An army revolver, which appeared likely to go off at any moment, wavered in the other hand. I've always had a peculiarly possessive instinct with regard to revolvers, and I longed to get this one safely into my hands.

"Get up at once," ordered my visitor. "There's a general rising in the town. Fugitives are pouring into the hotel in the hope that it'll be bullet proof. There's a mass of Levantines down below, gibbering with panic. They'll have to shut the steel door I told you about or there won't be room to breathe."

A violent crash came from below.

"That's it now. For God's sake be quick. What are you waiting for?"

I looked at the curious figure in front of me, while my mind raced over the various possibilities of escape. If there was going to be slaughter, it would be thickest in the crowded hall below, where probably every malefactor, justly afraid of his doom, had by this time taken refuge.

"If I'm going to be killed," I temporized, hoping that my little joke would steady the hand which held the revolver, "I would much rather die neatly and comfortably in bed."

"Nonsense. Quite impossible!" retorted Marshall. "You're not going to be killed. I came here to save you, but I can't waste all my time arguing with you."

I noticed the sudden twitch of his fingers on the trigger, and had a sudden realization of what it would be like below when the steel doors were burst open. Naked terror is not good to look on!

"What is the use of getting up?" I asked firmly. "I am much safer here. If there really is a massacre on, it's only a question of time before they break in, and they'll murder every one in the hall, but they'll be too interested in looting to go through every bedroom in this rabbit warren."

"If," screamed the man suddenly. "You talk of 'if' with that noise outside! Are you deaf? Can't you hear?"

The clamor was coming nearer. There were wild shouts and bursts of song outside. Torchlight flared across the ceiling, paling the electricity. The journalist made a last appeal:

"I can't leave you here alone. For God's sake get up."

"O, do leave me," I wailed, my throat suddenly rather dry. There was an unpleasant animal quality about the tumult, which must be almost below the windows.

I decided that an unfrequented bathroom would be the safest refuge—there is nothing to excite cupidity in a battered iron tub, while between this and the wall there would be sufficient space for a temporary asylum.

THE journalist was evidently torn between his sense of duty to a lone countrywoman and the professional instincts which urged him to profit by the experience. It was impossible to remain in an obstinate woman's bedroom when the Daily Meteor would revel in an eyewitness' account of the horrors in street and market. His eyes wandered to the pen and ink on one of the inlaid tables and the habits of a lifetime prevailed. He turned to the door, tripping over the dusty stuff he carried.

"What on earth have you got there?" I called after him, realizing at last the whole incongruity of the picture.

"I believe it's a genuine Ispahan," Marshall replied with dignity. "I spent a fortnight bargaining for it, and I'm not going to have it looted."

There was a lull in the clamor outside. He touched the carpet with loving fingers and at the same moment appeared to wonder what his hair looked like. He tried to smooth it with the hand that held the revolver. I watched its gyrations, fascinated.

"I am not so accustomed to these things as you are," I suggested, and then the light went out. It seemed as if some one had extinguished it at the door. I crouched, immobile, at the head of the couch, afraid to move on account of the broken glass which strewed the sheets. Marshall swung round and fired through the opening. There was a faint cry and another shot came from the revolver. This was too much for my nerves! With set teeth I slipped down between the bed and the wall, cutting myself badly as I did so. The blood ran into my mouth and the warm salt taste steadied me. How silly, with bullets flying over one's head, to get hurt by a broken window. There was no danger, I told myself sternly, if only one kept one's head. In pitch darkness I heard Marshall kick the door shut, and a little clicking sound indicated that he was reloading.

"Don't move. If they try to come in again, I shall see them against the passage light." His voice sounded more assured.

"I don't believe there is any," I retorted, in tones muffled by the accumulated dust of my refuge. "The electricity was probably turned out at the main."

Nothing happened for a few minutes. We waited tensely, while footsteps raced down the street. It was dusty under the bed, and, at last, curiosity conquered my sense of discretion. Cautiously I crept from my hiding place and began fumbling for matches.

"What are you doing?" came Marshall's voice, unusually staccato.

"Don't move," I urged. "For heaven's sake, keep still." I had to shout to make myself heard above the sudden roar outside. I shivered in my chiffon nightgown, and groped for something to cover it. There was a sound of plaster falling.

"Good God, they must be on the roof. Can't you get those matches?"

A tiny flame spurted and, between us, we found and lit a tallow dip. Gazing at my smeared, bloodstained face above its flicker, Marshall suddenly regained his nerve. "Stay here," he said, "I'll go and reconnoiter."

As soon as the slither of his heelless slippers had faded down the passage, I flung myself on the door and locked it. Then, shaking with excitement, and cold, I dragged the heaviest piece of furniture against it and piled others on top. From this temporary pyramid I managed to crawl to a post of vantage on the nearest windowsill. The night was strangely dark and oppressive. The lights had disappeared from the surrounding houses and I could hardly distinguish the blur of the crowd, which swelled over the bridge into the square beyond. It was a concentrated, immobile throng, which watched with an eagerness that belied its physical detachment.

IT was scarcely ten minutes since Marshall had burst into the room, and the firing was violent but spasmodic. There was certainly no organized battle, but I could distinguish clearly the rattle of Maxims coming from the direction of the barracks. For a few minutes I clung to the window bars, puzzled at the inertia of the crowd. Then, with appalling suddenness, the street was alive with gesticulating figures. The passion of the mob seemed to scorch me as I swayed above them. In the midst of a seething chaos one poor wisp of humanity struggled. For an instant its beard and its turban eddied above the savage hands which clutched it, flung it about, dragged it down.

"Dog of an infidel!" The words were screeched by a youth who foamed at the mouth, and with a roar the crowd followed his lead, till it seemed as if even the stones of the houses echoed the insult.

A few yards away there was a signpost. Towards this surged the mob, but it was a minute or two before my brain took in what was going to happen. The flaring torches made the whole scene unreal and it seemed to me that the whole crowd writhed and howled round what looked devilishly like a gallows! The arm of the post stretched black against the flames and I saw something like a snake slip up and over it. There was a wilder cry from the heart of the mob, and it was as if a solitary figure had been vomited from the maw of some great beast. For a second I saw the torn robes, the bound limbs above a mass of upturned faces. Then I understood. Crashing my bare hands through the panes, I shrieked curses and prayers which were drowned in thunder of raucous voices. I wrenched at the bars, dragged at the unyielding bricks, forgetting that I was in the circle of darkness beyond the torches' light. There was a horrid jerk and the human bundle swung out like a puppet dancing on a string. My throat seemed to give way before the scream which tore it, and, as some brand set fire to the rags of the creature, still writhing on the gibbet, my knees relaxed and I slipped headlong backwards. The blow steadied me, but I crouched as I had fallen, my teeth chattering with ague. Darkness and flamelight eddied about the room. Stiff and numb I sat, unheeding the hours, moving only to bury my head deeper in my arms. At last I must have slept, my shoulders leaning against the bed, a tablecloth wound round my knees, for I remember nothing more till I saw the dawn pale through the shattered panes and realized that there was silence. Half frozen, I crept to the door and tried to pull away the blockade I had erected—so many hours before, it seemed. Persistent knocking its way into my brain, amorpheous with dreams and horror. Marshall's voice hailed me. I tore open the door and stared amazed at a figure which looked as if it had been polished to the epitome of colorless perfection. I suppose I had expected to see a whirl of red and white stripes and an agitated revolver! A cool voice remarked, "I thought you might like some coffee. The hotel is rather disarranged this morning."

"Disarranged?" I stuttered. "Is any one left alive?"

The special correspondent smiled. "What a lot of emotion you waste," he said. "Of course, every one is alive, except a miserable moneylender, whom the crowd hanged in a cheerful desire to get some of its own back."

I shivered as I remembered the last horrer of the night. "But the massacre, I don't understand."

"There was no massacre. It was an eclipse and the Arabs thought it was a whale which was eating the moon." The journalist's expression was cynical. "It would certainly be a great disaster if there were no moon for the night traveling caravans, so everybody started firing at the sky to kill the monster."

I was too bewildered to speak, so, rubbing a fresh inkspot on his finger, Marshall continued, "The whole town got drunk with noise and they wasted six months' ammunition on the sky. A few bullets went wild, but no damage was done and, eventually, you see, the whale was killed, for the moon appeared again safe and sound!"

"Nobody was hurt." I repeated parrot like, my eyes fixed on the ink spot, for I was wondering how much paper "an eyewitness" had wasted before he discovered the explanation of the night's turmoil.

"O, no, nobody was hurt except the moneylender, who was doubtless in need of hanging."

Marshall looked at me with his customary superiority and for the first time I was conscious of the tablecloth draping my nightgown.

"I told you there weren't many thrills to be got out of this life," he said. "Shall I get you some coffee?"

Years and The Girl by Mary Dickerson Donahey

Children, They Say, Should Be Seen and Not Heard—But Sometimes Even a "Baby" Will Disturbingly Speak Her Mind

THE first hint of danger Eve noted was when George came in, his brilliant dark eyes strangely softened, his brusque manner oddly quiet, and sat gazing into her fire for a quarter of an hour, without speaking.

Eve meant to force him to speak first, but she couldn't wait. "Whatever is the matter?" she asked explosively.

And George turned to her with the first touch of wistfulness she had seen for years on his clever dark face, and asked most astoundingly, "O, Eve, why does God allow me to be nearly forty-one?"

Eve gasped. She was nearly forty-one herself, and she didn't mind. Why, then, should George, handsome, healthy, successful George, who had everything for which a man could ask?

No, she reminded herself suddenly, not everything, after all. Her eyes turned to a picture beside her—a picture of her own plain, sturdy Richard, young Dick astride his shoulders, and the two little girls dancing along on either side, Judy's fingers tucked lovingly into her father's broad palm, Theo reaching up to steady her little brother, in the motherly, responsible way she had. As Eve looked at that picture the same little shiver of utter ecstasy swept over her that she had felt the first time she had looked into Richard's eyes and known he loved her. That memory brought a surge of understanding for George now.

"O, George," she cried, "you haven't met a girl who is the girl, have you?"

"Yes," said George fiercely, "I have. And she was nineteen last week! She boasts of it to me! Nineteen! She insists she is a woman. But Eve—think! Twenty-two years younger than I! O, Eve!"

All Eve's love for him swept over her. "Well, what of it?" she demanded hotly. "A girl of nineteen can be—" and then a premonition of disaster swept over her, and her eager flushed face grew pale and frightened. "O, George! Just nineteen last week! O, it can't—it can't be Clarice?"

"But it is," he answered miserably. "You see that after all you feel about it exactly as I feel."

Eve gasped. "But you've known Clarice always! You saw her before I did—when she wasn't an hour old! You helped me to teach her to walk!"

He nodded. "As if she'd been my little sister," he said. "But I've never felt toward her as I did toward you and Berta and Tim. Queer—she's been the one member of your family I felt I didn't quite—like! You all meant so much to me—lonely little chap I was! It was your father who was my ideal—not my own. Your brother I delighted in, not the young snob fate had cursed me with. Your mother who took the place of my own, not my stepmother. I was proud when they called me Eve's twin. I liked big brothering the others. But Clarice—well, she was so much younger. And I've hardly been here except for the most flying visits, since she was five—I haven't seen her at all for three years. Three years! Gad, how she's blossomed, Eve! And look here—remember back, will you? Think of my ideal girl, whom I used to talk of till I bored you and Berta to tears, and made you jealous, too, because you were both short and dark, and my I. G. would remain tall and blonde? Don't you remember all the things I said that ideal girl must be? And don't you realize that Clarice—Clarice is marvelously everything?"

Eve nodded slowly. She did remember. Truly, her lovely young sister might have been made to fill his boyish demands!

"But—but she's only a baby!" persisted Eve.

"I know it," he answered miserably. And went away.

EVE sat, silent and motionless, till Richard came, to be met at his first word by a burst of unexplained tears, which only became more hysterical as he tried to comfort her.

It was not till they were in their room that night that he demanded, "Now, then, come across. What's up? You crying, old George grumpy, neither of you willing to go anywhere or do anything, you yanking Judy and Theo away from him as if he were a leper, George looking actually middle aged—what's struck you two?"

"Judy and Theo are both like Clarice," sobbed Eve.

"Judy is, at least. But what's that got to do with it?" demanded the still more puzzled Richard.

"Why—he might be in love with her! It would be as reasonable," wailed Eve. "Clarice is my baby, too. I brought her up after mother died, and she's only four years older than Judy!"

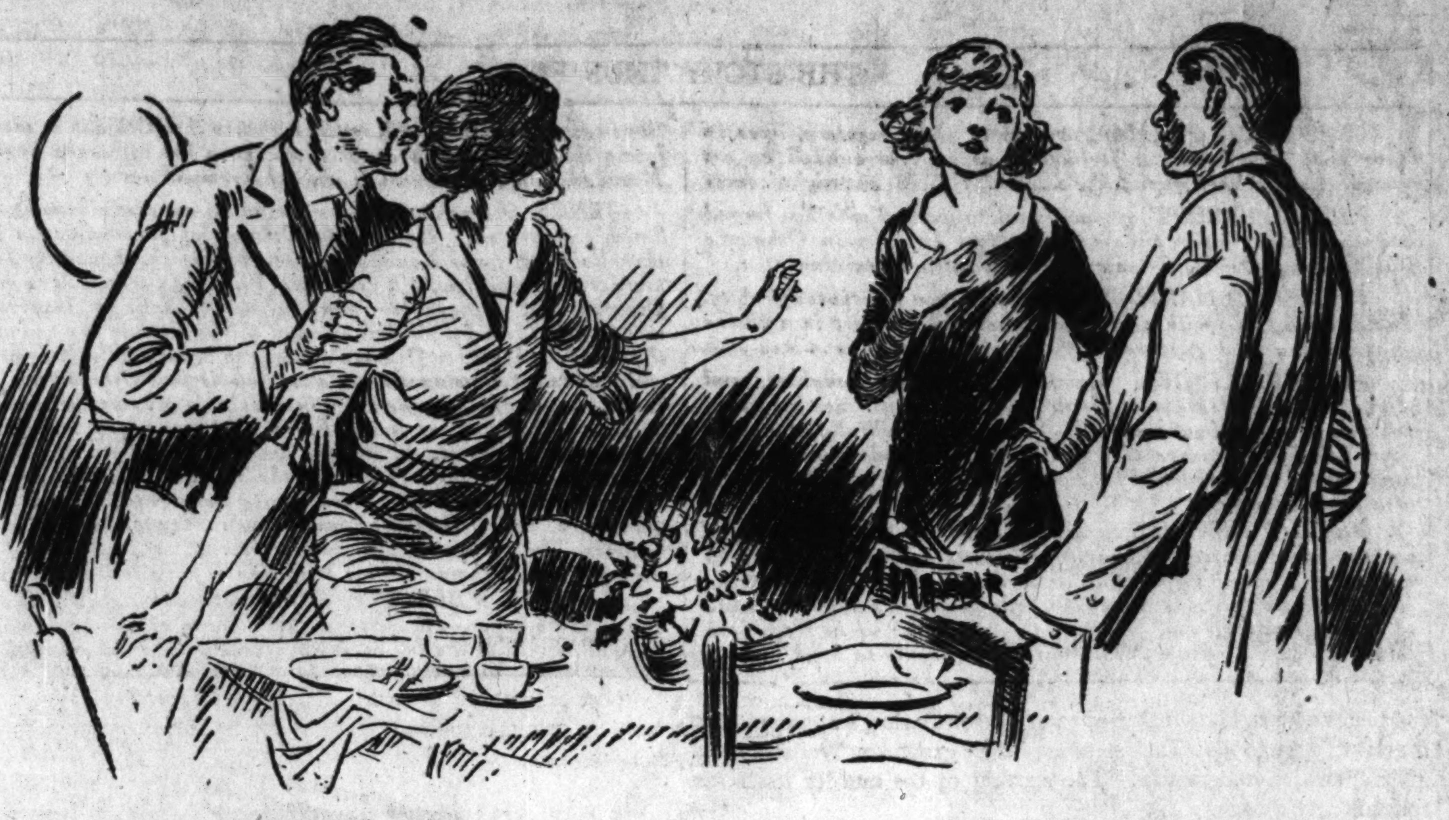
Richard was alarmed. Eve was generally the sanest of women. But at last he solved the puzzle, and swore roundly as he understood.

"There—see—you're horrified at it, too!" cried Eve.

But he denied that stoutly. "No, I'm not, really. It does seem a little queer at first thought, of course—mostly because Clarice has seemed our own—could be at that! If you'd said "yes" when I first asked you, Judy'd have been older than she! You were eighteen that first summer. Your mother wasn't much past nineteen when you were born. And isn't George the finest chap you ever knew?"

"Ex—except for you and father," acknowledged Eve.

Richard chuckled as he kissed her. "Thanks for the exception," he said; "but as Clarice evidently can't marry either of us, why not the next best, sweetheart? Look at the thing sensibly."



"Clarice," cried Eve. "O, Clarice—stop!" Richard caught her in his arms and held her.

But Eve was not to be convinced. Not then, nor the next morning, and it was a most unhappy party of three that sat about a late breakfast table when Clarice herself flashed in. She came like a bit of the sun itself, gold hair gleaming, blue eyes glowing, red mouth smiling.

"Hello, you grouchy old dears," she cried; "what plans for today?"

Richard and Eve both saw the shadows vanish from George's face at sight of her, saw the unconscious movement with which he rose, as if to rush to her, and Richard gave a hopeless little shrug and frown which to a well regulated wife meant "Better keep out of this."

But Eve answered his signal as if it had been a call to battle. "Rich is off to town presently," she said, "and George is to drive me out to the country on an errand. You," as she saw the storm clouds gathering on the bright young face, "you can have him this evening. Go play tennis with that nice Stanton boy this morning, dear. I know he wants you."

"Well, then, I don't want him," said Clarice shortly. The gaiety had gone. She looked older, wiser, sweeter. "Where," she demanded, "are you taking George?"

Eve had not meant to tell. Somehow the young eyes seemed to draw the truth from her. "Out to Cousin Gracie's," she said almost guiltily.

Clarice drew a deep breath and a look of decision came into her eyes. "I knew it," she said. She was pale now, and seemed bracing herself as for a hard task. Her mouth, even though a pathetic childish quiver came at its corners, was firm, her eyes determined, almost hard. "You must all hear what I have to say," she said steadily, "and then, Rich, when I am through, I depend on you to take Eve away."

She stepped forward till she faced George, who was still standing, with only the narrow table between them. Though she spoke to them all, she looked at him, and Richard noted that George's hands were clenched until the knuckles showed white.

"I know why Eve is taking you to Cousin Gracie's," she said, "and I knew she would do it, too. No, Eve—there's no use interrupting. I shan't stop. Cousin Gracie, George, is a cousin of my mother's you never heard of, well as you've known our family. She lived far away, and none of us knew her till she inherited a little farm nearby two years ago and came to live on it. She—and her husband"—the color rushed up into the girl's face and then ebbed, leaving her whiter than before, as she went on—"Cousin Gracie, you see, married, when she was about as old as I am now, a man who was nearly forty-five, twenty-five years older than she. Now she is sixty, and he is, of course, eighty-five. She doesn't look old. She is strong and pretty and bright. But he has been partly paralyzed eight years, and his mind is going. He's like a nice helpless old baby. He sits and sews carpet rags all day long, and watches her and she—she gets the rags for him. She raises chickens and flowers to earn money, and does the housework, and takes care of him. She works terribly hard, and is terribly tied down. Because he can't bear her out of his sight a minute. He cries when he can't see her. She has no fun, ever, and is always tired. That is why Eve is taking you out there. To see Cousin Gracie. And you will understand what she means by it, and you will agree with her, and go away—at once—and never come back, and break both our hearts forever."

"Clarice," cried Eve in real agony, "O, Clarice—stop!" But as she sprang from her chair Richard caught her in his arms and held her.

"Thanks, Rich," said Clarice, her eyes never wavering from George's happy tortured ones. "You see, the mere telling him about Cousin Gracie has frightened him already, frightened him against his will. George, I am a woman. I am. And I am not going to be unhappy all my life for want of a little courage now. I tell you, I've been in love with you ever since I can remember—when I was a tiny girl, though I didn't understand until the last time you were here, when I was sixteen. I knew then, and you—you didn't even see me! I don't think you even liked me! But I knew next time you came it would be different. I've prayed for you to come back ever since—to come back and to understand. And you came, and you did understand—at once. I knew! But you were afraid to own it, even to yourself, till yesterday. I'm not. I'm not afraid! And it's been watching Cousin Gracie that's made me so sure! She's happy, George. Even now she's happy. And think of the wonderful, all the wonderful years she had before he was sick! O, George, you have such a horrid conscience! Don't use it now! Don't mind Eve! This is our affair! And it's now that matters—now! And if, in forty years, we're like Cousin Gracie and her husband, I'll be happy, as she is; and O, George, I'll get you the loveliest carpet rags to sew!"

Suddenly her eyes filmed with tears. Her fine courage left her a sobbing, frightened child. She turned toward the door, but George caught her—sweeping the whole table to destruction as he came—and it was Richard, taking with him a dazed and silent wife, who went out of that door, and shut it tight behind him.

The Affair at Othman's by Will Payne

Blue Ribbon Fiction

INSTALLMENT IX.

Fair Play.

KENDALL would have been enlightened as to why Captain Welbasky hadn't taken Flora away with him if he could have ridden up the avenue in the car with Welbasky and Sergeant Ferguson. The captain's first words, in the car, were an irascible "Damn the blockhead! Poor luck!" For his case had suddenly and most unreasonably broken down. When Nelson Barlow admitted that the automatic pistol in the library was his, that he had gone to his rooms after leaving Miss Marsden, got the gun, carried it to Othman's house, and hidden it directly after the murder, the case seemed practically ended, nothing remaining but the mere detail of getting a confession.

But when Flora went upstairs to pack a bag the captain had some time on his hands and called up Othman's house to inquire what had happened there. Then he learned, with justifiable indignation, that expert examination of the weapon showed beyond a doubt that it had not been discharged lately. Moreover, the official physician was sure that the hole in Othman's shirt bosom had been made by a bullet of smaller caliber than those in Barlow's pistol. In fine, Nelson Barlow's pistol was not the weapon that killed Othman. Apparently, then, the idiot had hidden the gun in a silly panic when he learned that Othman was shot and realized that he would be searched; or else he was an especially tricky rogue and did it for a blind. But what could have been the object of that? It must have been panic. In any event, no other weapon having been found in the house, that knocked a great hole in Welbasky's evidence.

That was why he had told Flora Marsden she might remain at home. But even so, leaving her at home in this way was an unprofessional weakness. True, that business of the pistol knocked a hole in the evidence. True, also, that a young woman like this one with youth, beauty, social position, many friends, must be handled with care. It was like the adage, "Who shoots at the king must kill him"; for if you laid rude hands on such a young woman and then failed to make out a case everybody was on your back. But by her own admission she had been with Othman, quarreled with him, struck him, only an instant before he was shot; her friend Barlow had gone up there with a gun. Welbasky would have condemned another policeman who, under such circumstances, simply let the girl alone; he would have said she ought to be taken to headquarters, thoroughly grilled, locked up as a material witness, or at least not released except under bonds.

It wasn't only that she had beauty. Plenty of 'em had beauty. But there was a freshness and grace, a fragrance. Any jury would sympathize with her, giving her the benefit of every doubt. The court would have its own sneaking sympathy when it looked at her. Blast it! Why couldn't a police officer indulge a little sympathy of his own? Professionally he held that policemen should be strictly impersonal. All the same, he was going to let her stay at home tonight, a red faced, big nosed man's little bouquet for her. Of course there was no danger of her getting away. And he had a certain sense of justice about it. If he wouldn't lock her up tonight, he wouldn't lock up Barlow either. No danger of either of them getting away. Meanwhile the weapon that killed Othman must be found.

So for that night at least the hand of the law was withdrawn from the old house on Washington Square. Its master and mistress might be expected to return by midnight or before, for the household up in Tarrytown where they had gone to dinner kept early hours. When Kendall left, Flora was taking it for granted that she would wait for them and tell them what had happened. But her nerves weakened; she had been through so much since she opened Kendall's letter about half past five. A further emotional ordeal that night seemed unbearable. She told Jennie to go to bed, and went to bed herself; her parents could be told in the morning. Good to be cuddled in her own bed, instead of in a stony cell, for that night at least. She wished she might lie snug there in the dark endlessly until this frightful thing that was waiting for her outside disappeared. She heard her father and mother come in; a sound of laughter from them made her heart quake. They didn't know. Why had the captain changed his mind about taking her away? But presently she was thinking of Phillip Kendall.

Kendall had gone to his Ninth street lodging—the ingrain rug on the bedroom floor threadbare in the middle; old fashioned boxed-in plumbing in the little bathroom with half the thin nickel plating worn off the fixtures; cheap but clean. He lit a pipe and sat thinking until past midnight. But he must get some sleep. He set the little alarm clock at half past four and went to bed, and he had barely got to sleep, it seemed, when the clatter wakened him. But a cold bath was almost as good as a full night's sleep.

Going out into the street, he found that the wind had gone down. It had stopped snowing and turned colder. Last night's slop was frozen on the empty sidewalk; one had to step gingerly to escape a fall; dark, empty, in the dismalest hour before dawn. He made for Park Row; the walk would keep his blood stirring. Hot griddle cakes and coffee in an all night restaurant turned the leaf between the dying night and the coming day. He went into the street again ready for the day's job, turning to the Daily Star building, where, if he couldn't find a friend, at least he could explain himself sufficiently for his purpose, and he was soon poring over a damp copy of the latest morning edition.

There was no lack of material for a story. Besides the great full page headlines it filled two double leaded columns on the first page, all of the second page, and a column further back. Part of the space was taken up with pictures of Othman, his house, his yacht, and a dauby print of Titian's Daphne. The dead man's wealth glittered in the damp news print; notable financial exploits were mentioned. But, above all, his was a woman story.

Othman was now dead. No libel suits or other retributive measures were to be feared from him. So the assassination delivered him over to scandal without a rag of defense. Stories that had long circulated by word of mouth were alluded to. The language employed was always restrained and euphemistical; but behind this thin veil of literary decorum the dullest reader would get the impression of an orgy. A woman story with a vengeance!

The first point for Kendall was that no arrests had been made, and neither Flora Marsden's name nor Nelson Barlow's appeared. So the police were by no means so sure of their ground as Welbasky had given Flora to understand! The account of the murder itself ran substantially thus:

Othman was shot through the heart and instantly killed in a room at the rear of the fourth story of his house about a quarter past seven. A woman—name known to the police but withheld for the present—had visited him shortly after six and remained until a little before seven. There was no doubt of her having left the house then, Othman himself having handed her into her car. Another woman called a few minutes later and accompanied Othman to the fourth story room. The butler and a footman saw her leave about a quarter past seven. The butler heard a muffled sound from above while this last visitor was on the stairs. A footman entered the fourth story room a few minutes later and found his master dead on the floor. A business associate of Mr. Othman called at the house while the second woman visitor was there and was shown into the library on the second floor. His statement was that he remained there until he heard of the murder. The name of the second woman caller was known to the police. She was unmarried, occupied a high social position, and bore a spotless reputation. Her statement was that she had left Mr. Othman alone and sound in the fourth story room. The police declined to give out her name at present, but all those who might be material witnesses were under close surveillance. No weapon had yet been found.

There was one point of consolation in this: no names had been given out and no weapon had been found; so Welbasky had been only bluffing when he told Flora they had the gun. But all the rest of the story turned Kendall sick. It was exactly the sort of thing to whet public curiosity to a razor edge and inflame the newspapers to a competitive frenzy. He could hear every city editor in New York saying that morning: "Find out who the last woman caller was; get an interview with her; get her picture." Servants would be questioned if they could be reached; associates of Othman would be questioned; an almost irresistible pressure would be put upon the police.

And this was a woman story with a vengeance! Through innuendo and outright statement it reeked with an atmosphere of debauchery. A veritable torrent—a torrent of pitch—beat against the frail barrier behind which Flora Marsden stood. Here was a continental sensation. Othman's wealth and general reputation and the circumstances of the case combined to make it one of those rare crimes that outlive innumerable acts of congress and tomes of grave presidential messages. If Florida Marsden should be cast for the leading woman of this drama its sulphurous glow would invest her name as long as she lived. Othman was dead, the bars were down, public curiosity was whetted. Succeeding editions today and tomorrow would pile up murky details, paint the picture in stronger colors.

He again saw Flora in the sitting room, drooped forward in her chair, murmuring to him, "Truly, Phil, that's the whole story"—all gentleness and truth then; whatever was headstrong and heedless and unruly in her faded out, leaving her girlish and sweet. With this torrent of pitch ready to break through the frail barrier and engulf her! He got up in feverish impatience. But it was only a quarter past six; the whole town, or all the town that counted for him, was still sound asleep. He had to do something, however; so he went out of doors, found a cab, and told the driver to take him to the corner of Madison avenue and Seventy-fourth street. He paid the cab there and started for Othman's house—a minute's walk on foot.

Dawn now, objects easily distinguishable; but all the colder an emptier for that. That odd, uncommunicative facade of yell pressed brick on the opposite side of the street and half a block aw had a frozen and desolate look, as though gargonized by an horror—which was complete nonsense, of course, for undoubtedly had looked exactly the same way any early winter morning since was built.

But who was this man walking so leisurely ahead of him? Ke dall slackened his pace, loitering even more than the man did. Ce tainly on a morning as frosty as this, and so early, one didn't pace empty street with such lagging steps for amusement. The man w uncommonly blocky, not much over five feet tall, with broad, squa shoulders. Opposite Othman's house the man paused a little to lo across. At the corner of Fifth avenue he paused again, then turn deliberately and surveyed the street behind him. Even at that d tance Kendall knew the man was examining him. Not another pers was visible at the moment. As he came slowly forward he was s the man took stock of him.

The man turned north, however, crossing the street. At th opposite corner he paused again and looked back at Kendall. Wher upon Kendall stopped in his tracks, looking over the way at Othman house. He surmised that he was puzzling the blocky man as much the blocky man was puzzling him. The blocky one started east o the north side of the street, in the same slow gait. Kendall stood sti watching him. He was morally certain the man was not a detective morally certain that his loitering this way had some reference Othman's house. But what?

The man paced on. Half way between Othman's house and th corner of Madison avenue he stopped and looked back, diagonally at Kendall's motionless figure. There was something like a challeng in it. Well, why not? Briskly Kendall stepped into the stre striking diagonally across, straight toward the man who waited f him—quite likely with his hand on a gun in his ulster pocket. Comin near, Kendall saw a fat, round, sallo face, deeply lined at either side of th mouth, and a pair of heavy lidded, du looking eyes that were not inviting. Th bluff must be carried out somehow.

"I want to get in, too," said Kendal

The man merely looked at him, b there seemed to be a flicker in the du eyes.

Kendall improvised another sho "I can get a key to the servants' door."

Surely there was a flicker.

"You got a passport?" the ma asked.

"No," Kendall ventured.

The dull eyes examined him an instant further—and dismissed him. Th man gave his broad shoulder a slig shrug and turned away with the sa slow step.

Well, what to do now? Not know ing, Kendall merely stood there, lookin after the man. At the corner of Madis avenue the man stopped again, looki back. Across that considerable distan he and Kendall stared at each oth Then the man went north in Madiso avenue, disappearing. Surely he wante something. But what?

Kendall went back to Othman's an stood in the driveway, which was almos the only covert in this block of resi dences. The house, of course, was dar and locked. At the end of several mi utes the blocky man had not come int sight. Abruptly Kendall was struck b an arresting question: Why had he com up here at this most unpromising hour? Had it been mere restless impatience— the attraction of the scene of the drama operating upon his straining nerves when he had nothing else in particular to do for an hour and a half—or had there been some obscure instinctive leading in it?

No doubt that was a fantastic ques tion; and what he needed now, above al was a steady head, free of fantasy. An yet the notion of some obscure, instinc tive leading gave him faith and courag for the difficult job that lay immediatel ahead of him. Holding up the New York police department might seem no merely difficult but utterly preposterous; yet he drew courage for i from that notion of some sort of obscure leading—a faith in his sta or in the righteousness of his cause. He went over to the avenue t get a bus down to Fifty-ninth street, where he would find a cab.

Usually, at two or three minutes before eight, any weekda morning in the year, the dingy local room of the Evening Foru would be wearing a leisurely air—men lounging, gossiping. Bu just about as the big round clock pointed to eight stumpy Pat Culle would stride in, plump down at his battered desk, and put on hi green eye shade. That was as though a fire alarm sounded, inducin a brisker air, a tightening up of nerves.

This morning when Cullen strode in he saw an astonishing spectacle. The sacred old swivel chair behind his desk was already occupied; Phillip Kendall was sitting there, in possession. He stood up as the city editor came forward, blocking the path to the chair—not to be denied. The brown hair seemed to rumple belligerently above his square forehead; the dent in his chin looked uncompromising—an obstinate chap. Also he looked seedy, as though he might have been up all night.

Said he, "Will you help me a little, Pat?" If he had said, "I'm to be shot in a couple of minutes; will you take a message to my mother?" the effect would have been about the same.

The irascible city editor met it with equally candid simplicity: "What is it, son?"

"An innocent woman is likely to get into this Othman story. I want her to have a fair break; keep her name out of it until something is proved. She's the one who went to call on him last; but I know she's innocent."

Now, getting that woman's name into print was exactly wh Cullen had proposed to himself on the way down to the office. Bu Kendall added: "I'm in love with her."

What could one do with such a statement as that? With

THE STORY THUS FAR.

FREDERICK OTHMAN, a man of some mystery, lives in New York in a house of forbidding aspect, surrounded by art treasures and other evidences of wealth. To him, one night, comes

NELSON BARLOW, a young society wastrel who has forged and embezzled under circumstances that put him in Othman's power. From Barlow Othman worms a story concerning

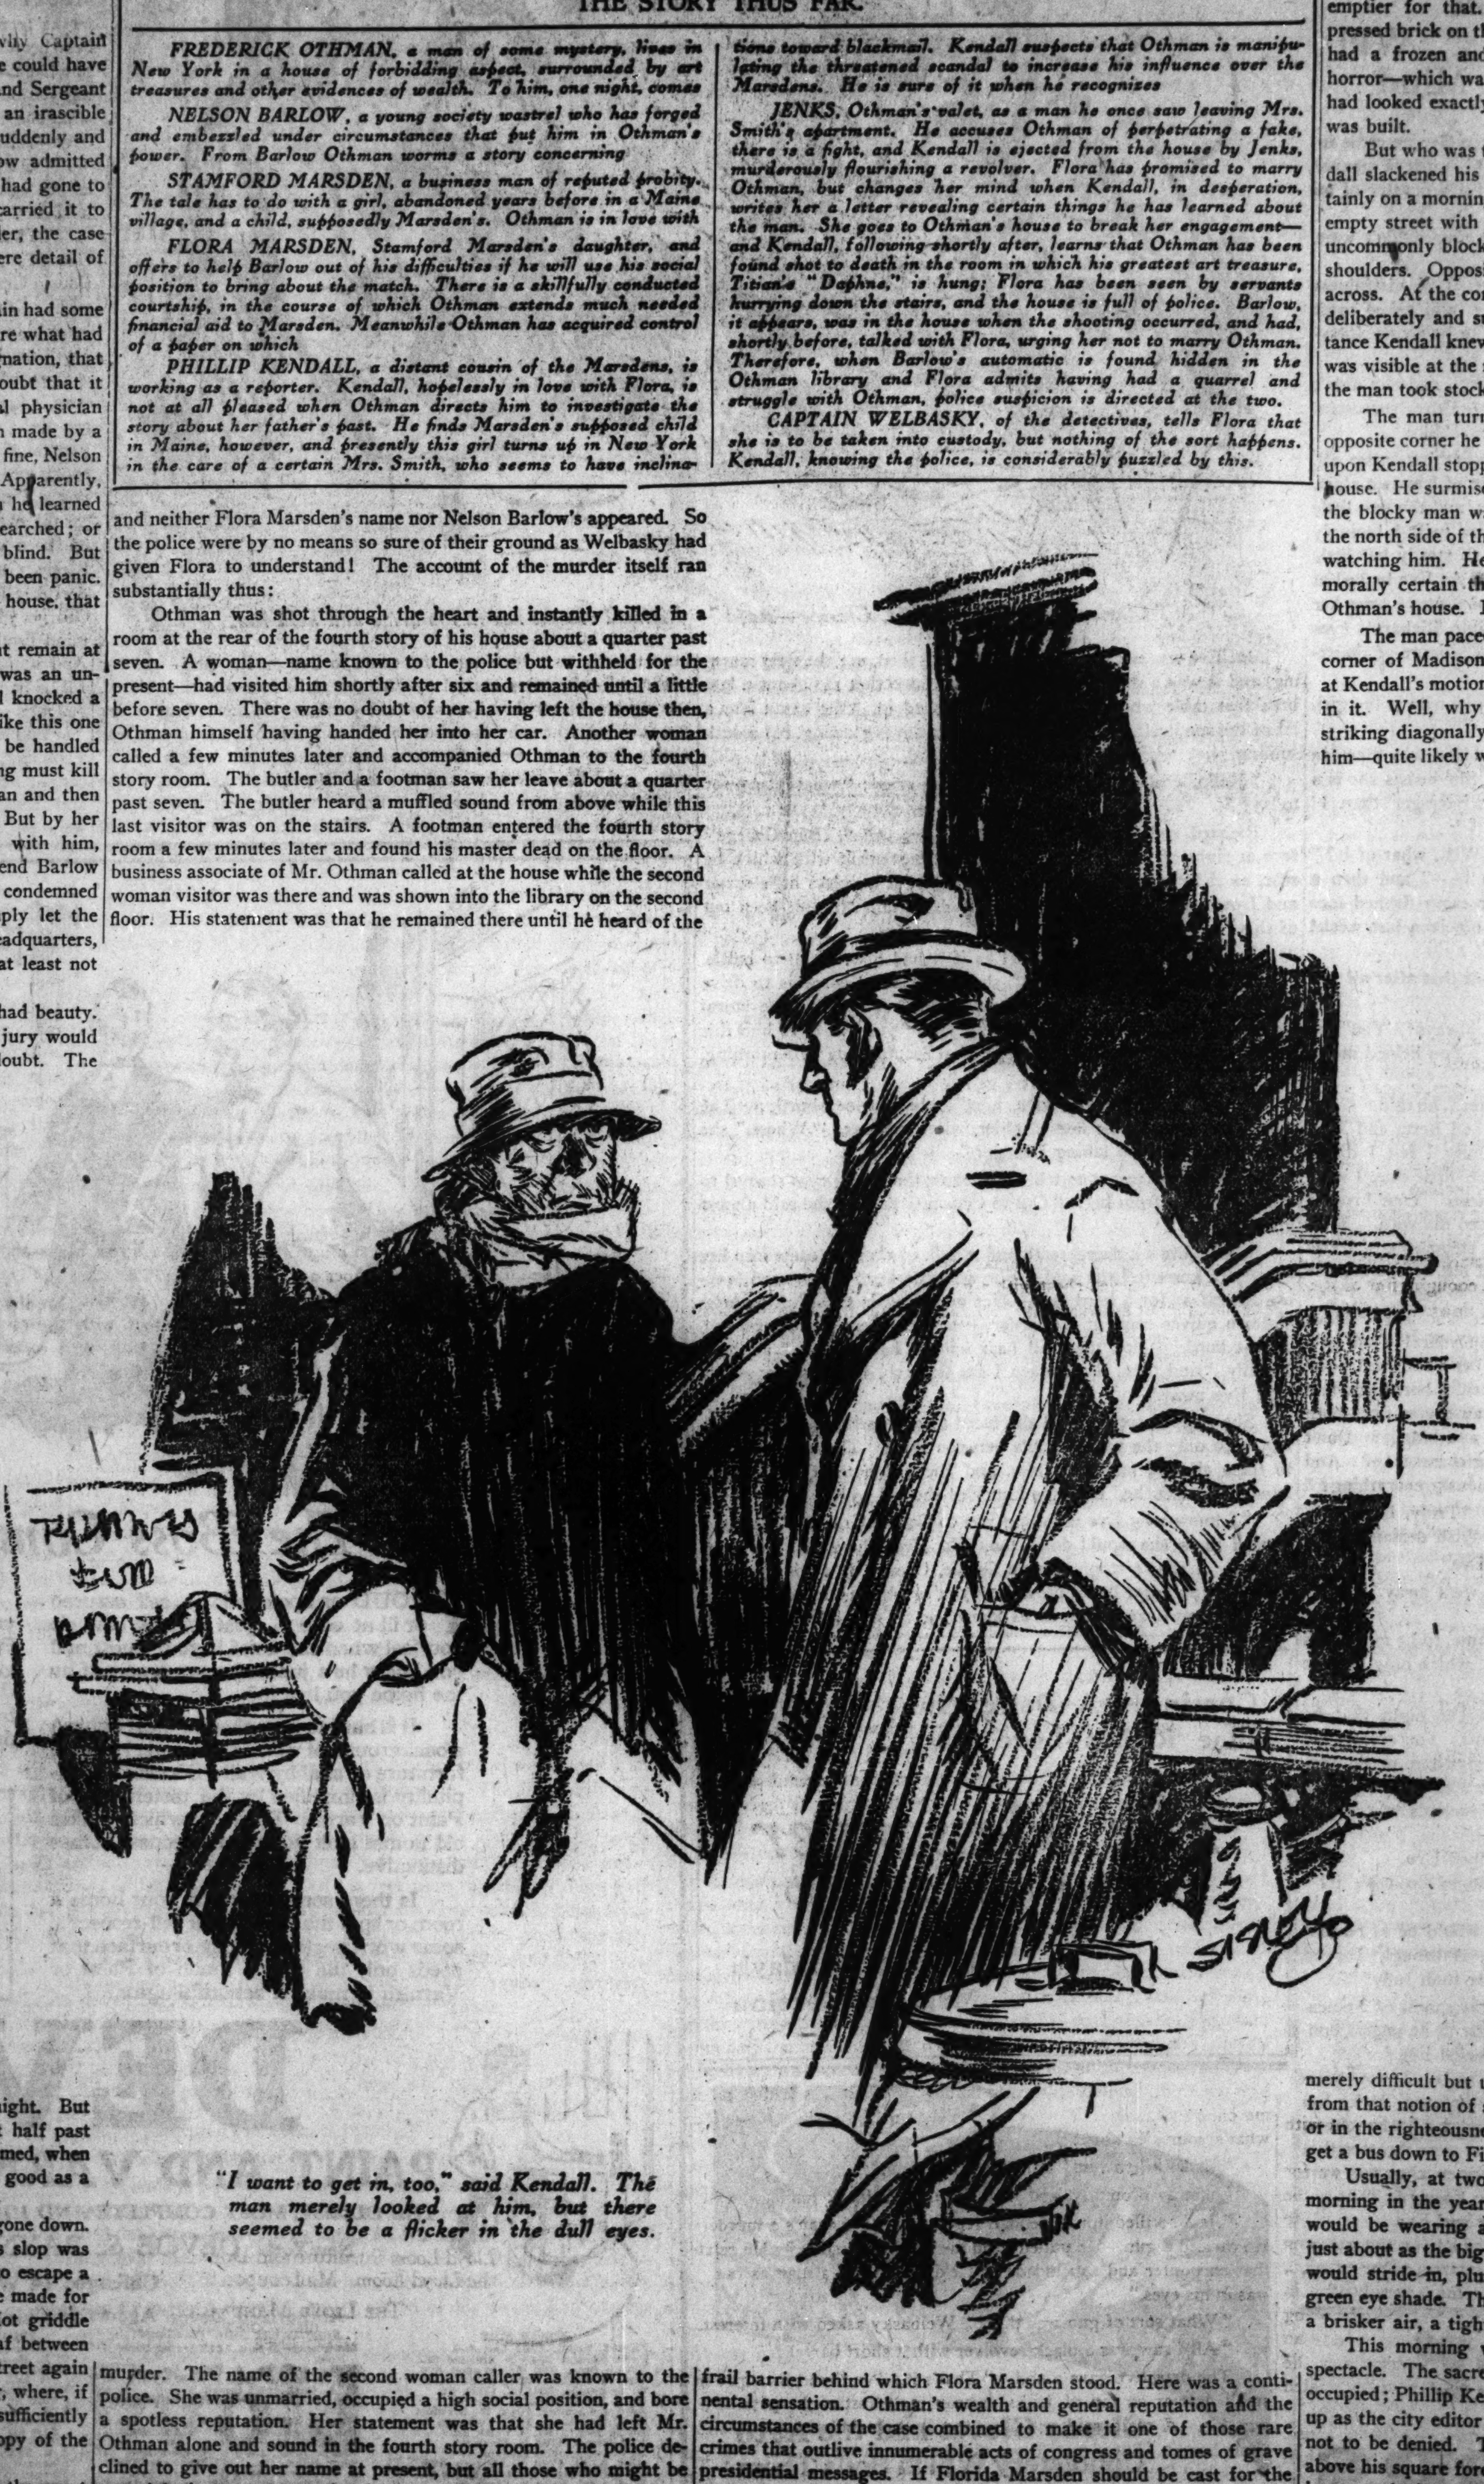
STAMFORD MARSDEN, a business man of reputed probity. The tale has to do with a girl, abandoned years before in a Maine village, and a child, supposedly Marsden's. Othman is in love with

FLORA MARSDEN, Stamford Marsden's daughter, and offers to help Barlow out of his difficulties if he will use his social position to bring about the match. There is a skillfully conducted courtship, in the course of which Othman extends much needed financial aid to Marsden. Meanwhile Othman has acquired control of a paper on which

PHILLIP KENDALL, a distant cousin of the Marsdens, is working as a reporter. Kendall, hopelessly in love with Flora, is not at all pleased when Othman directs him to investigate the story about her father's past. He finds Marsden's supposed child in Maine, however, and presently this girl turns up in New York in the care of a certain Mrs. Smith, who seems to have inclinations toward blackmail. Kendall suspects that Othman is manipulating the threatened scandal to increase his influence over the Marsdens. He is sure of it when he recognizes

JENKS, Othman's valet, as a man he once saw leaving Mrs. Smith's apartment. He accuses Othman of perpetrating a fake, there is a fight, and Kendall is ejected from the house by Jenks, murderously flourishing a revolver. Flora has promised to marry Othman, but changes her mind when Kendall, in desperation, writes her a letter revealing certain things he has learned about the man. She goes to Othman's house to break her engagement—and Kendall, following shortly after, learns that Othman has been found shot to death in the room in which his greatest art treasure, Titian's "Daphne," is hung; Flora has been seen by servants hurrying down the stairs, and the house is full of police. Barlow, it appears, was in the house when the shooting occurred, and had, shortly before, talked with Flora, urging her not to marry Othman. Therefore, when Barlow's automatic is found hidden in the Othman library and Flora admits having had a quarrel and struggle with Othman, police suspicion is directed at the two.

CAPTAIN WELBASKY, of the detectives, tells Flora that she is to be taken into custody, but nothing of the sort happens. Kendall, knowing the police, is considerably puzzled by this.



"I want to get in, too," said Kendall. The man merely looked at him, but there seemed to be a flicker in the dull eyes.

THE AFFAIR AT OTHMAN'S - - - - - - - By Will Payne

eristic nervous action Cullen struck stumpy fingers through his hair. "You know Roger Muldoon. You worked with him in that city dock story."

"Yes; I went to see him half a dozen times," Kendall replied.

Cullen gave a decisive little nod. "Go see him now. He can do as much as anybody. Wait a minute. I'll see if he's still at home and tell him you're coming." He called an office boy and told him to get the telephone connection; then turned to Kendall with a word of advice: "Put all your cards on the table, face up. Roger owes me something. He usually pays. He's got more human being in him than half these reform monkeys."

After Cullen telephoned, Kendall started for Roger Muldoon's. Once before he had climbed the steps to this drab four story brick house in a short street where the houses on both sides were exactly alike. The front door was painted black and the pattern in its frosted glass panel was an urn overflowing with roses that appeared to have been machine made. This funereal effect seemed exactly fitting to the glum respectability of the street.

The furniture in the library, or study, to which he was again shown was singularly ponderous. The one bookcase, of modest size, held sets of Dickens, Scott, Dumas, and other obvious authors; but one would have guessed that the books might as well have been built in, like the case that held them. The politician came in—a broad shouldered, heavy, flabby man, with a bull-like dewlap over his collar. The powerful youth that he had once been, mighty of his hands, was half suffocated now in soft flesh, and his sandy eyebrows were such a mere sketch that he might as well as not have had any; but shrewd, humorous, bright blue eyes looked out underneath. Kendall laid all his cards on the table, repeating, at first, practically what he had said to Pat Cullen. He was staking it all on this man, and felt that he could win him only by complete frankness:

"She's Miss Marsden, Stamford Marsden's daughter."

"Stamford Marsden's a good man," Muldoon commented.

"He is a good man; a fine old family. But Marsden's shipping business is embarrassed now. He was going to Othman for money to carry him through. In the matter of money, marriage would put the family on its feet—a temptation, I suppose. She agreed to marry him on that account. But she found out something about him, and went up there to break the engagement. She had no reason to shoot him, Mr. Muldoon. She didn't shoot him. It's utterly impossible. You see all these stories in the newspaper—Othman and women. It isn't fair to throw her name into that mud puddle now. The police have no real evidence except that she was in the house a little before it happened. It isn't fair to make an arrest until they have downright evidence. It isn't fair to point all the newspaper fingers at a woman unless they have enough evidence to arrest.

"I know the police pretty well. They're anxious to make an arrest because they want to seem to be doing something; afraid the newspapers will criticize them for not doing something. And if they once make an arrest they'll do all they can to get a conviction. It's all circumstantial evidence, you see; and in cases of circumstantial evidence plenty of people have been three-fourths convicted before they were put on trial. Get public opinion hot enough after anybody and he's as good as hung unless he can prove a downright alibi."

"There's plenty in that, too," Muldoon assented, having himself been figuratively executed by public opinion many times.

"Don't you see?" Kendall urged. "If the police start after her at all they're bound to try to justify themselves; so they're bound, more or less, to set the dogs on her. They may say what they please about trial by newspapers, but everybody that comes up at all in a sensational case is bound to be tried more or less by public opinion. This is a sensational case—bound to be one of the biggest crime stories in years. If a woman is brought into it, no matter what the jury finally says, it puts a stamp on her. They used to strip 'em to the waist and drag 'em around town at the cart's tail. I don't believe a woman ever really gets over that. To arrest her in a case like this—that's just throwing her to the wolves. They've no right to do it until they've got something positive. I want you to help me, if you will."

The shrewd and humorous eyes surveyed the speaker, appraising him.

"I want to work on the case myself," Kendall pushed on. "Pat Cullen will vouch for me. I know the best way to protect her is to find the murderer. I'll work night and day on it. Captain Welbasky needn't be afraid of me. I'll play absolutely fair with him. I want fair play for her and a fair chance to work at it myself."

"You don't want much, young man!" Muldoon commented and chuckled—and ruminated. "Pat Cullen, now, is one man I really owe something to that I ain't ever paid. You seem a likely lad yourself. You were square with me in the dock business. You go see Welbasky, say, an hour from now. Maybe I can drop a word that'll help a bit." At times there was a faint touch of brogue in his speech. He got up and, when Kendall arose, extended a big, puffy paw.

"Understand now," he said, Kendall's hand in his, "if they get the goods on the young lady I can't do anything for you. All I can do is my way of givin' her an even break."

"That's all I ask," Kendall replied gratefully, and went out with a lighter heart.

Somebody had killed Othman. The only sure protection for Flora Marsden lay in finding that somebody. Thinking it over the night before, Kendall had an idea, and he now wished, first of all, to see Nelson Barlow. The morning newspapers said no arrest had been made, and mentioned nobody by name as being held under suspicion, so presumably Nelson had been allowed to go home. At his rooms in the Benedick apartments, in fact, Kendall found him, just finishing breakfast; dark rings under his eyes, with the wan aspect of one who has missed a night's sleep, a hag-ridden air subtly overlying the jaunty man. But he greeted the reporter amiably—and disappointed him.

No, he'd never seen any jewels to speak of in Othman's house, never had heard Othman mention possessing any jewels, never had heard from any other source of a notable collection of jewels in Othman's possession. Of course, Othman was rich; might have any quantity of rare gems, but Barlow doubted it—at least, had never heard of it. That was disappointing to Kendall.

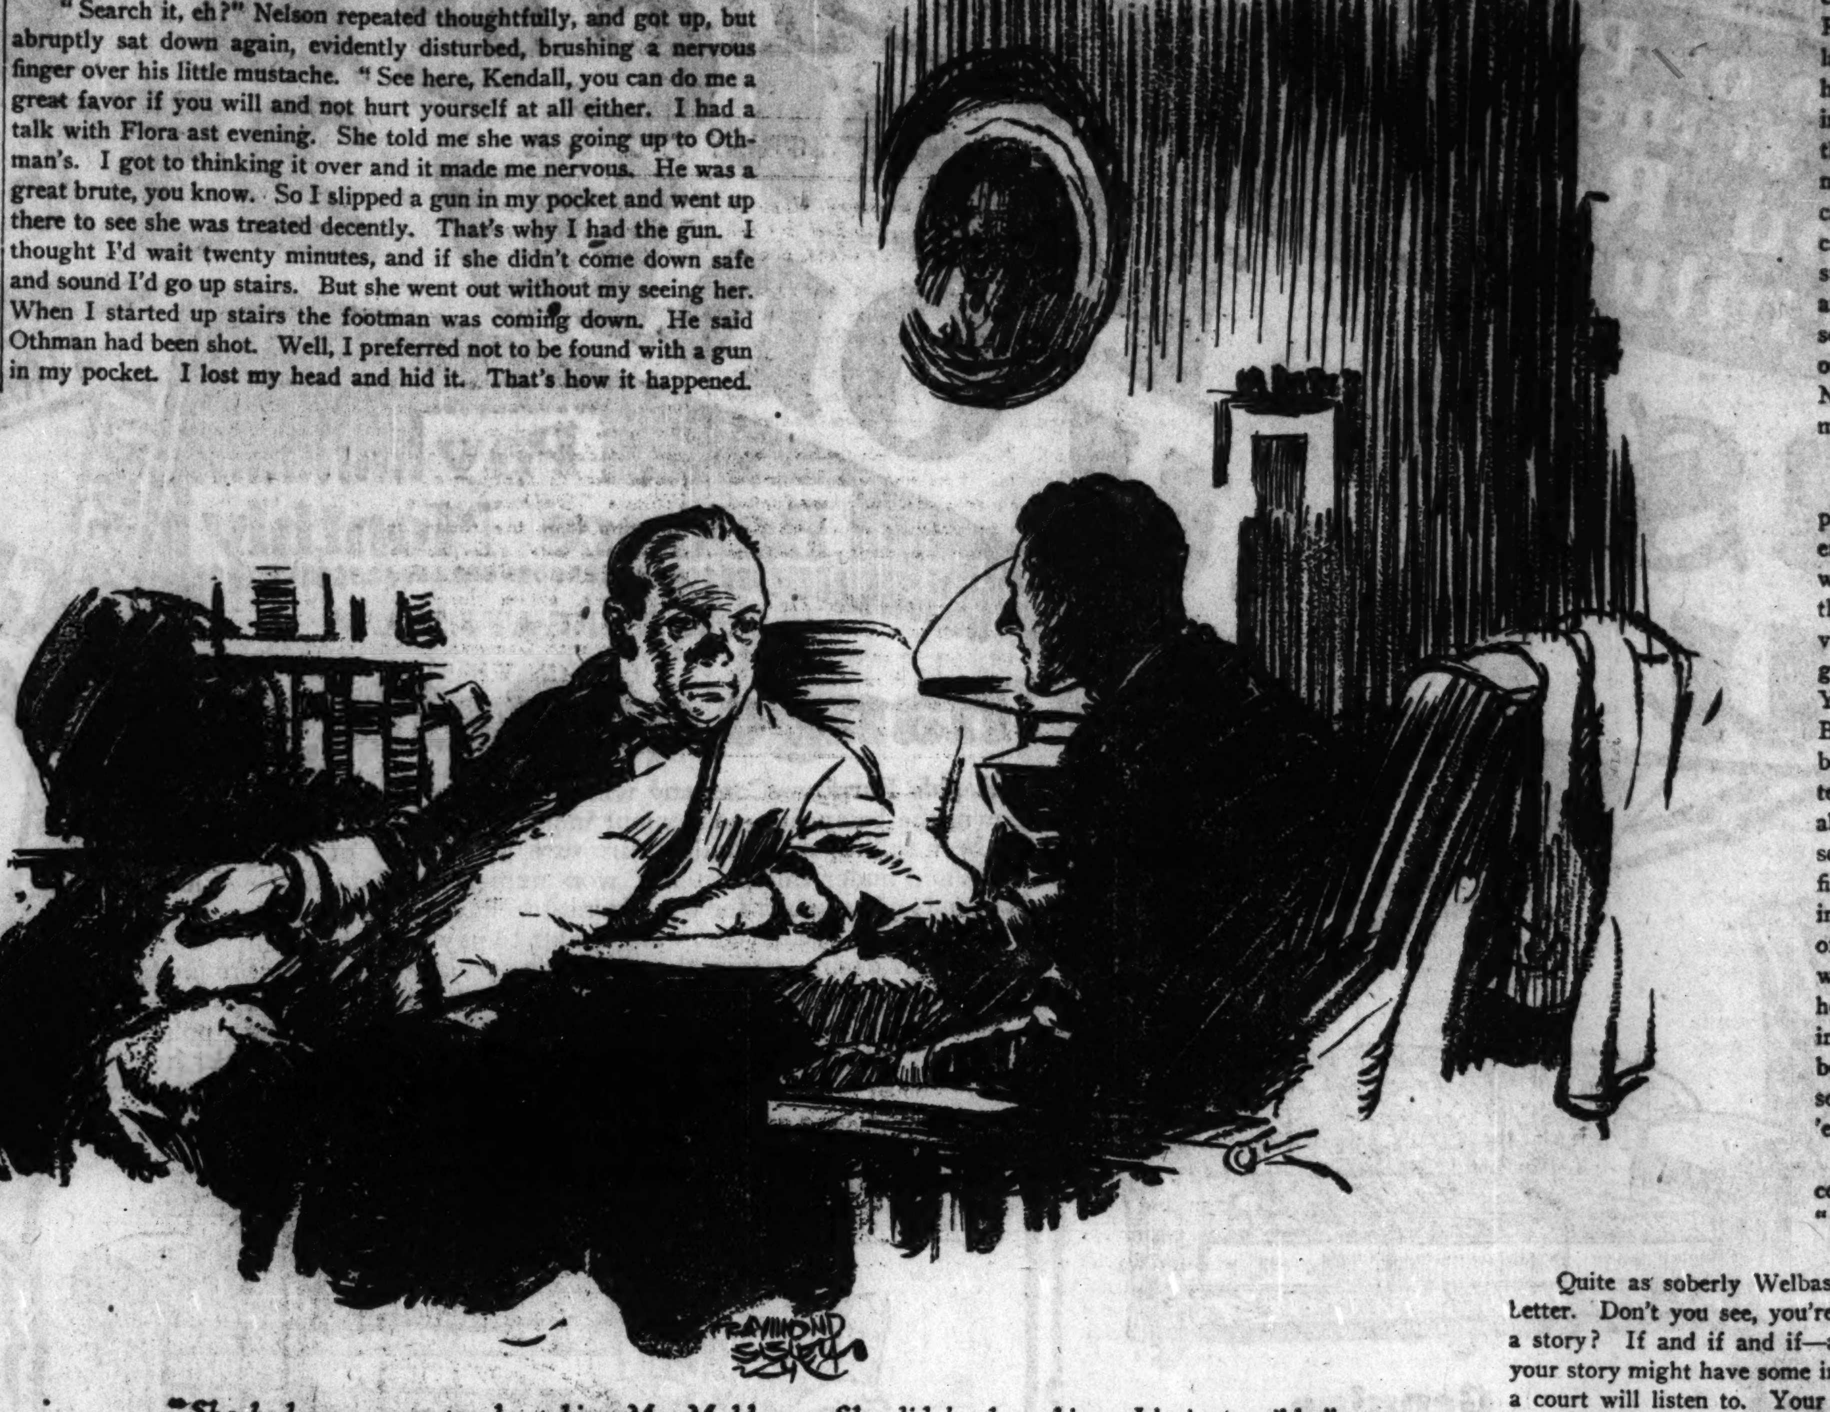
"You think it might have been robbery, then—some of the servants?" Nelson inquired, thoughtfully—and rather skeptically, it seemed.

"Flora didn't shoot him," Kendall replied, looking him in the eye, "and you didn't. So it must have been one of the servants."

"Well, that's so," Nelson admitted, like a reasonable man. "But I never heard of any jewels."

"I'm going to search the house, anyhow," said Kendall. "I've got an inside track now, the newspaper and a big politician behind me. I'm certain Welbasky will give me a free hand as far as searching the house." He spoke half absently, absorbed with his disappointment.

"Search it, eh?" Nelson repeated thoughtfully, and got up, but abruptly sat down again, evidently disturbed, brushing a nervous finger over his little mustache. "See here, Kendall, you can do me a great favor if you will and not hurt yourself at all either. I had a talk with Flora ast evening. She told me she was going up to Othman's. I got to thinking it over and it made me nervous. He was a great brute, you know. So I slipped a gun in my pocket and went up there to see she was treated decently. That's why I had the gun. I thought I'd wait twenty minutes, and if she didn't come down safe and sound I'd go up stairs. But she went out without my seeing her. When I started up stairs the footman was coming down. He said Othman had been shot. Well, I preferred not to be found with a gun in my pocket. I lost my head and hid it. That's how it happened.



"She had no reason to shoot him, Mr. Muldoon. She didn't shoot him. It's impossible."

"You can do me a great favor. Maybe you know that Othman practically owns the old cartridge company. I was assistant treasurer of it up to a few weeks ago. I ran back and forth to Othman's house on company business. Probably you know there's more or less inside jealousy and spying in a big concern like that—have to keep an eye on people."

He was regarding the caller soberly, sort of weighing him with his eyes.

"In that room where Othman was shot, over near the bedroom door, there's a carved chest with a gold and scarlet cloth on it; looks like nothing but an ornament. There's a shallow drawer in the middle of it, however. In that drawer, unless Othman took them out meanwhile, there are four vouchers from the office of the treasurer of the cartridge company; pale blue pieces of paper about so big. I got them out of the office and took them up to Othman; checking up on one of the men in the office, you understand, confidentially. The police might get hold of them and start a mess. On the other hand, technically speaking, I had no business to take them out of the office. Othman owns the company, but he isn't an officer or even a director. It would make a mess all around. Will you get those four pieces of paper for me—slip them into your pocket? It would be a great favor to me."

"No doubt I can do it," Kendall replied.

"Of course you can," Nelson replied cheerfully. "It will do no harm at all and help me out of a mess." He smiled gratefully as he shook hands at parting.

But the reporter went out with a new idea. Were those four pieces of paper as innocent as suave, lightweight Nelson Barlow affirmed?

At Captain Welbasky's office he at once found himself on a footing quite different from that of the night before, as though he and the lean, homely, able police officer now belonged to the same lodge. Evidently Roger Muldoon had spoken the good word he promised.

"I'm glad you've got a friend," said Welbasky significantly as soon as the door was shut. "I'll tell you right now that I don't want to hurt that young lady any more than you do. I'm ready to do all I can for her." There was even a smolder of emotion in his manner—human as another behind his official mask, receptive to womanly grace and beauty for all his grotesque nose and harsh trade. "Now that my hands are free I'll give her, and you, the fairest show in the world. You know how it is—whole town up on its toes over this murder; newspapers biting the calf of my leg every step for more details. I've got to do something—make a show. If her eyes hadn't turned me chicken hearted I'd have locked her up last night. Now, then, what's your idea about it?"

"Jenks killed him," said Kendall promptly.

Quite as promptly, and with disgust, Welbasky replied, "Rot!"

"Jenks killed him," Kendall repeated. "The man's a murderer. He carried a gun. He pulled it on me last Wednesday." He related that encounter and concluded: "He'd as lief kill a man as not. It was in his eyes."

"What sort of gun was that?" Welbasky asked with interest.

"All I saw was a black revolver with a short barrel."

The detective gave a nod. "That's it. We found that gun in a small drawer on top of Jenks' bureau early last night. He said it was his. A maid said she'd noticed it there before—black and a short barrel. But it hadn't been discharged and it's a .45. The gun that killed Othman was sort of unusual, a .32—sort of a ladylike gun. I haven't been overlooking the servants in the house by any means. I've checked up every one of 'em. Unless there is some wholesale conspiracy of lying among 'em every one is accounted for. The butler was down on the second floor. That young footman was on the first floor. Miss Marsden's statement bears that out. Every other one is accounted for.

"As for Jenks, listen, now: He was sent out of the house to buy flowers. He went to a shop on Madison avenue. There was some delay and he was stewing about it. He pulled out his watch to show the young woman how late it was—seventeen minutes past seven. That's what he told me last evening. The young woman confirms it. He was hurrying home with a big box of flowers. He slipped in the snow near Othman's, fell, and bumped his head. He says a man helped him up. That was in the newspaper accounts. I put it in for a purpose.

"Half an hour ago a stout man with a gray mustache dropped in here. He'd been reading the morning papers and stopped in to say he was the man who helped up a tall, lank man who had fallen in the snow and bumped his head; the man who'd fallen was carrying a big pasteboard box. I had it put in the newspaper account with just that in mind. About seven times out of ten, in a like case, the man who's referred to, if he has nothing to hide, will turn up here and confirm the detail. The newspaper account didn't say what the good Samaritan looked like, but Jenks had said it was a stout man with a gray mustache. The man who turned up here was stout, with a gray mustache. He gave his name, occupation, business address, residence address. The addresses he gave are in the telephone directory. Of course, I haven't checked him up thoroughly yet, but I'll bet my head to a doughnut he's a perfectly respectable, trustworthy citizen.

"Now, then, Jenks left the flower shop at seventeen minutes past seven, which was just about the minute Othman was shot. He fell, bumped his head, and so forth, on the way home. He limped up to the front door, muddy from the fall. The footman ran upstairs with the flowers and found Othman dead. If you want to do any good on this case, forget Jenks. What could have been his motive, anyway?"

There was a frightful conclusiveness about Welbasky's statement. Kendall felt that he sounded rather foolish when he replied:

"In part, at any rate, it was robbery. Of course, you remember the man with a Russian name—Karoff—who was killed last spring as he was leaving Othman's house. He had a lot of bonds and money in a safe deposit box. I was in England the September before. Maybe you remember how some soviet emissaries came to London with a satchel full of the czar's crown jewels. They were going to subsidize a radical London newspaper and probably had other propaganda schemes, but the British government got on to them. I don't know how much the New York newspapers printed, but you may remember something about it."

Welbasky nodded.

"Well, I happen to know some newspaper men over there. This was a government case and consequently handled with care in the press. It was given out that early reports as to the quantity or value of jewels brought to London were greatly exaggerated. Maybe Scotland Yard finally came to that conclusion. But, in fact, there was good reason to believe that a lot of those jewels mysteriously disappeared in London—probably by some inside crookedness, for the soviet chiefs picked up all sorts of queer fish; all sorts of queer fish got on the inside. Last spring I naturally thought of that in connection with the fellow who was shot just after leaving Othman's house. He had a lot of bonds and money in a safe deposit vault. I believe he'd been selling those Russian jewels, or some of 'em, to Othman. Othman had 'em in his house and Jenks knew of it."

Welbasky gravely contemplated his companion a moment and asked soberly, "How old are you?"

"Twenty-ix," Kendall replied.

Quite as soberly Welbasky observed: "Old enough to know better. Don't you see, you're just romancing about it—making up a story? If and if and if—and then, with half a dozen more ifs, your story might have some interest for me. I've got to have things a court will listen to. Your story's fine, only there are no jewels and Jenks is out of it. I'm going to give you the squarest deal there is in the shop. On my word, I want you to win. I don't want to hurt that young lady any more than you do. But I can't tell the newspapers fairy stories. I've got to produce something pretty soon."

Kendall realized that he must look youthful and romantic and foolish to this capable policeman. He almost looked so to himself. All the same, he stuck to his ground, saying apologetically:

"Well, I know it sounds like a pipe dream to you. I haven't got anything yet; but I want to search the house."

With some impatience Welbasky replied: "I've been searching the house ever since eight o'clock last night. Principally I'm looking for the gun. But if you want to search, go to it. I'll give you a good man—name's O'Rourke; he's up there more."

"Thank you," said Kendall, sincerely and with humility. "And one more thing. I'd like every servant that goes out of the house searched for jewels."

Welbasky grinned helplessly, at such persistence, but made no objection: "I'll see to it. Remember, not one of 'em has left the house yet. Not one of 'em will till I give the word. So whatever was in the house when Othman was shot is there yet."

When Kendall left the office it was Welbasky's opinion that some pointless conversation was all he would get out of this new ally whom Roger Muldoon had wished on him. But within half an hour he was by way of revising that opinion.

Cocoanut Oil Fine
for Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. Two or three teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months.

SUIT OR TAILORED FROCK? Where One Must Make A Choice, Let Utility Win

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—Men may be divided into two classes—those who can wear spats and those who cannot. Incidentally, one may remark that the list of successful candidates is small. As against those few gifted men who can carry off a swathing of the ankle and instep, there are many who have the air of wearing poultices or bandages.

One does not hesitate to say that the feminine equivalent of spats is the boyish suit. Women of today are divided among those who can and those who can't. It is true that the odds against success are not here so great. Every woman, young or old, who possesses a slim, flapperish figure, may don the masculine tailleur with assurance of success. However, as the slim figure is by no means a universal possession, and as the absence of it involves a tragic entanglement with the sack coat, it is certainly permissible to point out dangers.

This prelude is apropos of the fact that we are in the midst of a suit era. The boyish model is only one manifestation of the tailleur's popularity. Indeed, so relentlessly has this style been prosecuted that one cannot help being skeptical about its future. How long will the extremely fashionable woman continue to wear a model that has been interpreted so widely?

Of course, the suit is not limited to this form. There is the spring model with the peplum sponsored by Chanel in some of her smartest versions. And there is always the classic tailleur with its fitted waist line. Whatever its form, however, the suit possesses one common denominator. It is perfection of tailoring and material. Nothing else in the world, except perhaps a popover, demands such careful execution. Indeed, much like a popover that has become a sagunder is the tailleur where every seam is not exactly as it should be.

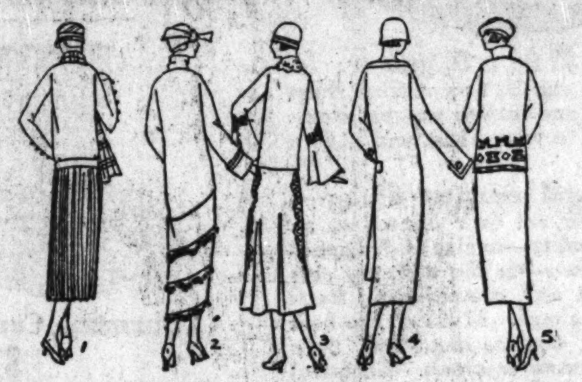
Unfortunately, there are many of us this spring who are obliged to make a decision between suit and cloth frock. At least half a dozen business women of my acquaintance are adding extra lines about their eyes because of troubled consecration to the problem, "Which shall it be?" Shall they follow suit or shall they follow the precedent of other years?

In saying there are certain obvious advantages connected with the tailored frock, I am sure of being upheld by those who have been obliged to consider carefully the twin problems of clothes economy and clothes effectiveness. About this point certainly there can be no doubt. The tailored frock does not need to be faultless as King Arthur. Smart it should certainly be, but its shortcomings—if such exist—are not nearly so glaring as those of the suit. In other words, one can obtain a satisfactory frock for much smaller outlay of money than that required for a satisfactory suit.

As to the business woman, when this necessity for decision touches her, there are additional words to be said concerning my present client. A frock is much more practical for office wear than the blouse and skirt. Indeed, this asset is not limited to those women of the roller top desk. For all around utility it is hard to find anything which will supplant the little tailored dress.

That the suit has by no means excluded this type of frock from the field is evident from the showings of imported models. Never has Paris sent us so many attractive, wearable, and diversified editions of the tailored frock. Many of these are in the favorite alpaca, but nevertheless the collection of reps, twills, kashas, charmeens, and other old friends is decidedly impressive. Here we may pick and choose among colors, neck finishings, sleeve arrangements, and skirt ideas. Beyond the obligation to be simple and smart, these frocks are without dogma.

One of the ideas distinctively new is the use of checks in these tailored frocks. All sorts of checks and plaids are playing about, but there is an especial emphasis of chic on the shepherd's plaid. For quite a few seasons the shepherd has had a limited flock of wearers, but now things are different. I became suspicious when I saw Mme. X, a Frenchwoman who numbers among her American clientele some of the most fashionable names in New York, wearing upon her return from Paris this spring a little wool frock with the tiniest possible square of black and white. Subsequently this suspicion became conviction, for a number of imported models showed an identical prejudice. Especially in alpaca has the small black and white check scored heavily.



ANOTHER VIEW OF TODAY'S FIGURES.

Yes, the Clan Chic is wearing its plaid, and if the frock itself is not in this figured material, the trimming is apt to reflect our new fad. Nor is this checkered career reserved only for the tailored creation. Quite a few afternoon frocks are benefiting by combinations of plaid. Thus an unusual model from Boulanger tops a skirt of black alpaca with a bodice of taffeta brilliantly plaided in blue, black, red, and white.

Our present testimony to the smartness of the plaid touch is indicated at the left in an imported frock of navy twill set off with taffeta vestee and scarf of collar in red, white, and blue. The skirt of this frock registers another vote in favor of plaits, and the buttons, which assume such an important role in characterizing the frock, may be of navy or of red.

Certainly the good old game of hunt the button has lost all its essential character. No more ardent search is required for this trimming detail than for a rhinestone ornament on frock or hat. Paris has gone mad over buttons, and many of its little tailored frocks are brought to completion simply by a downpour of these ornaments. Bone and galalith are perhaps the favorite types, yet one may proceed safely along any line of button endeavor. Jet, metal, and self-covered forms are all sponsored in our present day tailored models.

For the practical cloth frock we select one of four things. Checks, navy, beige, and black—these represent the conservative taste. Yet conservative taste does not have everything its own way. It is occasionally flouted by the smart designer. Of this fact we have abundant testimony in the presence of numerous red frocks. This spring an epidemic of scarletina has broken out, and no type of wear seems immune from its contagion. There are charming little red crepes of the type chosen for resort and country club lunches. These are often built on tailored lines and incorporate such touches as Peter Pan collar, leather belt, and even the cravat. Of red alpaca suits and frocks one sees a sufficiently convincing number. Even the cloth frock is red-olent of this present fancy.

The intrusion of such vivid touch of color upon all sorts of tailored garb is represented in the central drawing of this page. In this instance the fabric is red charmeen, and it is developed with the aid of a sheer white organdie vestee and collar embroidered in the finest of black silk thread. This suggestion of black is sustained by the soutache braid on sleeves and skirt and by a block moire ribbon adjusted under the lingerie collar.

As a text book on tailored modes for spring the Patou model of beige kasha second from the right is to be recommended. It shows you how smart is the finish of pique at neck line and wrists, and it shows you also the diversity that can be wrested from the familiar straight up and down line by finesse of seams, tunic, and belting. Also, it affords the valuable information that one may be a temperate consumer of buttons and still suffer no loss of prestige.

This frock is of a light weight kasha, and let it be mentioned that this fabric maintains all of its former authority for both wraps and frocks. Second from the left, for example, a new coat from Worth selects gray kasha for its medium, and adds to each of its sloping flounces a fringe of badger fur. Kasha is also used in combination with other cloths. Thus, one smart model in tan jersey cloth admits cuffs and collars of kasha in harmonizing tone.

The partiality for red is indicated again at the right in the attractive navy twill frock which incorporates a vestee of red satin as one of its essential features. The embroidery is also in this vivid tint. A standing directoire collar of white pique bounded by a narrow black ribbon is the completing thought. This frock is from Martial et Armand.

The shoes which one requires with this tailored frock for early spring days are preferably colonial or one strap pumps. They may be of either suede or leather, and often the one strapped pumps are combinations of the two. Both gray and tan suede types are worn with the navy or black frocks. Also one must not forget the alligator and lizard novelties which Paris sponsored so violently last summer. Brown alligator shoes are to my mind much preferable to the prickly lizard variety.

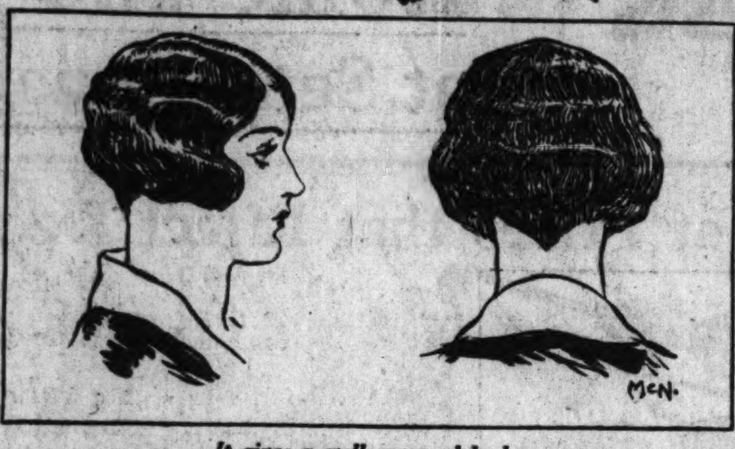
The Shingle Or Boy Cut

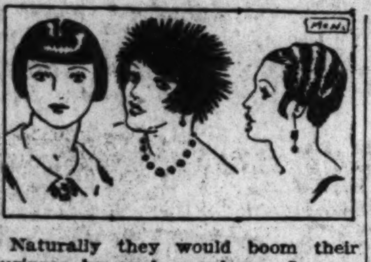
Half the World of Women Shorn; the Other Half Praying for Strength to Commit the Deed

by Antoinette Donnelly

> What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you, and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.



It gives a well groomed look.



NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Time was when two women met and said, one unto the other: "Isn't it a beautiful day?" And the other replied it was all of that.

Now two women meet, and says one unto the other: "You look fine with your hair bobbed."

And the other says: "Why don't you have yours done, Bess? It makes you feel like a new woman."

Go to breakfast, luncheon, tea, dinner, or dance and it isn't the Teapot Dome that is absorbing the conversation. It is her own that is interesting woman as it never interested her before.

As nearly as I can make out one-half the world of women is shorn and the other half is praying for strength to commit the deed. What the future has in store for the shorn lambs Heaven alone can prophesy. There is always the fear that any fashion become too prevalent may be abandoned early.

Yet with the bobbed head you reckon on the same phase of female psychology as is incorporated into the short length skirt. Women could not be forced back into the longer skirts once they discovered the short ones made them look younger. The combined efforts of garment manufacturers, goods manufacturers, and dressmakers could not bring her to adding those aging inches to her skirt hem.

Off with the Years.

Whether the shingled head in every instance does or does not make a woman appear younger, the individual at least has the feeling it does, which I suppose serves quite as well to set her soul a-soaring.

With most women bobbed hair does clip off a few actual years. And that is what the future has to reckon with in arguing for the long flowing locks of a yesteryear.

And it might be remarked in passing that whiskers, heavy mustaches, and great flowing beards disappeared from the male map for no other reason than that man discovered youth lay behind all this hirsutical ornamentation.

It is funny, when you think of it, that the most strenuous bobbed hair objectors are men — and men who would not grow a mustache for fear it would add an extra year.

The charge is made that you may wear skirts short or long—but you can change them any time you desire—and you can't grow long hair overnight.

Nothing seems impossible to women. We read the Paris dictum that women must wear their hair short in the morning and long in the evening—a mere matter of adding a few curls here and there, but nothing to worry about. How to meet the demands of a future dictator in this country for a high evening hair dress need not keep women from shingling their locks if the spirit moves them.

Needs Lots of Attention.

The great problem is whether or not to have it done—to get into the procession while it is moving or wait until your opportunity is gone with its passing, if the long hair mode is revived. Somehow we doubt that women will ever desert this youthful coiffure once the deed has been done and found satisfactory.

However, we wish to exempt ourselves from any responsibility. After all it is strictly a private responsibility, like taking on a husband or cutting one off.

If you do have it done—don't do it under the impression that all your troubles are over regarding care of the hair. If anything, the bobbed head requires just a little bit more attention. And as time goes on we suspect woman will strive for more individuality with each of her bobbed heads, which shall require just a little more time and attention. But that is all right—perhaps better in every way than with the long hair as an excuse for not being able to do anything with it.

Fall Every Day.

There is no doubt that women are falling harder every day for the simpler coiffure. Two comparatively recent recruits to the shingle ranks are Pauline Frederick and Alice Joyce, beautiful screen stars. The lovely Lady Diana Manners is an enthusiast on the subject of bobbed hair. Rosamond Pinchot has hers shingled regularly. Among the other movie stars who have helped to point the way to the barber's sign post are Constance Talmadge, Viola Dana, Marie Prevost, Colleen Moore, Clara Bow, Marion Davies, and Claire Windsor.

Peggy Joyce, Nora Bayes, and Lenore Ulric have bobbed hair; also Ada May Weeks, Mary Hay (Dick Barthelmess' wife), Ivy Sawyer, and Helen Menken.

On the other hand, a large number of our theatrical beauties, to whom we look for leads in things smart, have not succumbed. Some of them to whom I have spoken would love to do it, but friends help to restrain the impulse. Miss Elsie Ferguson and Miss Violet Heming, both women whose hair plays an important part in their beauty reputations, say they wish they had the courage.

Ziegfeld Opposed to It.

From Mr. Ziegfeld's public office I am told the Follies girls have not bobbed hair, as Mr. Ziegfeld is opposed to it. From some girls and with the aid of a pair of fairly observant eyes, I learn that bobbed hair is no novelty in the Ziegfeld chorus. They fool the world by pinning on some curls when the job calls for it. Some of the principals, like Mary Eaton, and the star showgirls like Imogene Wilson and Avonne Taylor, respect Mr. Ziegfeld's feelings, apparently.

Anyway, investigation proves that more than half of the chorus girls on Broadway have bobbed hair, whereas the bigger percentage of stars favor the long hair—some because they so prefer it and others because the parts they play call for other than shingled heads.

Clippers Busy All Day.

I made inquiries at one-half dozen of the smartest hairdressing establishments, and found the clipping business just about the most thriving industry in town. And all these proprietors claim that neither time, age, nor any other element will avail to stem the tide of patrons, once they have learned the glory of youth via the easy scissors route. Naturally they would boom their business by such prophecy. In any event, the hairdresser can't lose. It makes excellent business now, and if long hair is the thing later he will make more money supplying the necessary extras.

The boy cut is the mode of the moment. Perhaps you call it a shingle—but I am told that every head that is bobbed is shingled, in hairdressing parlor jargon. The cut in the back is the main thing to get right—and in the illustrations here you see a side and a back view of the correct boy cut, or, if you will name it so, the shingle. This drawing was made from a model in the establishment at which the famous Ina Claire is done.

Miss Claire had hers done in Paris first, and arrived in America a while back with a most unusual cut, but a fascinating one. She never had it duplicated in this country exactly as 'twas done abroad, but one of the tricks of her successful coiff is in letting the hair remain longer over the ears than with the usual bob, and draping and pinning this back to suit her own individual caprice.

Finishing in a Peak.

The boy cut in the illustration finishes in a slight peak at the nape of the neck, but experts tell me this is not always necessary. It depends upon the shape of the individual skull and getting the best line from the crown to the end of the hair. Some heads take better to a graduated half moon effect at the end of the hair line in the back. But I notice in the smartest boy cuts the hair in the back is cut no lower than on a level with the base of the ear, unless it works down into the point in the center. There should be a space between the collar line and the base of the hair line to show an attractive neck line.

The front of the boy cut may lend itself to any part or arrangement of hair over the ear. But the back, from a profile view, must outline the scalp clearly, and the hair be left of such length at the crown as to permit of waving to build out the line at the crown if necessary. From the crown the hair is graduated into shorter and shorter waves, until the final fringe in the back is almost straight and so short it cannot be waved.

There is no question but this shingle or boy cut gives a remarkably well groomed look to the back of the head.

Beauty Answers

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

MAE: AFTER MILK, THERE IS probably no other article of food which is so valuable for mankind as the egg, and scarcely any other food substance possessing so many useful properties. Dr. Arnold Lorand is but one of the medical authorities for this. Eggs contain large quantities of albumin and fat, which give them great nutritive value. Raw eggs are most difficult to digest. Soft boiled eggs are the most easily digestible. But the hard boiled egg, if masticated well, is not as indigestible as it is claimed by many. There are salts in the yolk of eggs, and phosphorus. Eggs are recommended by Lorand as a food for persons suffering from nervous depression, neurasthenia, etc. From seven and one-half eggs, he says, we can obtain all the iron required daily by the organism. So eating two soft boiled eggs in the morning apparently is an excellent habit.

X. Y. Z.: AS A GENERAL RULE we breathe with only one part of our lung, sadly neglecting the other, by which the aeration of the blood will not be so thorough. The air should reach the deeper portions of our lungs. All yon need do to understand the relation of deep breathing to the complexion is to compare your face in the mirror before you leave the inadequately ventilated room to its heightened coloring on return from a brisk walk in the open.

TIRED: I HAVE JUST WHAT the doctor orders for you: a set of exercises to be done every morning, the first thing; awfully good. Try them, won't you, and then write and tell me if they haven't made a more energetic young business person out of you? You girls in business simply must get some muscular work daily. These youth preservers of mine were designed to take care of just such girls as you who have not the time for much outdoor recreation, nevertheless have to keep fit by some means. Send s. a. e. for them, please.

BILLIE: I THINK IT IS NOT A good plan to reduce below your normal weight. Do you know what yours is? The weight for your height and age? I have a printed chart giving standard weights and measurements. Excessive poverty in fat distorts the face and makes it look older. In reducing, as in all else, you must be reasonable. My advice about taking the reducing tablets would be "Don't." Thyroid extracts should be taken only under direct medical attention.

Real Love Letters

THE END OF THE QUEST.

DEAREST ONE: Experience tells me to play a careful game, but just as she to whom I write is above guile, so shall my course be. Perhaps I should have spoken; but who can speak for a place in heaven?

My love, you are the only one in whom I have ever been able to vision my dream girl—"The Lady of the Moonlight" I have always called her. I have had fleeting glances, it is true; all of us have. They are the lesser jewels, that enable us to know the genuine stone when we see it. And now that I know you I know how infinitely inferior were all of the others.

All men fall in love with love long before they fall in love with a woman. I have come to the end of my quest. I have been aware of that since the first night I met you, and I have been more convinced every heavenly evening I have spent with you.

Phyllis, I love you. You are the end of my quest. When you laugh, sweetheart, it seems that all the joyous sounds in the universe have burst forth and transport me into a state of ecstasy. When you smile I can but pray it will never end. When I look into your eyes I cease to reason. My reason tells me you cannot care for me. But when I look into your eyes how can I abandon hope? I put my trust in those eyes.

I fear I have not been much of a lover. But I, too, love the old fashioned way. It is for that sacred privilege—to be the lover as well as the friend—that I now plead.

I have laid bare my soul to you, beloved. It is clean, and it will be true. O, Lady of the Moonlight, deal gently and kindly with me, if you can.

ADNRE.

> The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possession you would like to enter the contest, send it to Love Letter Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned, send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

Diamond Dyes

Each 15 cent package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her old, worn, faded things new, even if she has never dyed before. Buy Diamond Dyes—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is guaranteed. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wood or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or any mixed goods. Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade, or run.

Wordlings

How many words can you spell with the letters of your last name? It sounds interesting, doesn't it? Have you ever tried it? Perhaps you have, just for the fun of it. Or perhaps you've played the game because of its educational value.

It's simple. For example, take the name LEVINS. With the letters in that name you form the following words:

SNIVEL
LIES

THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE is going to give you a chance in its new Wordling contest to enjoy the same recreation, and pay you for it.

One dollar will be paid to each person whose list of English words, made up of the letters of his—or her—last name, is printed in The Tribune. The lists will be chosen, first, with reference to the number of words; second, with reference to the value of the words. For instance, a word of two syllables, such as "snivel," in the list above, will count more than a word of one syllable, such as "lie."

Here are the rules. Read them carefully.

Be sure to use your last name.

At the top of your WORDLINGS mention the number of words you have been able to spell with the letters in your last name.

Write your WORDLINGS in column effect—for example:

SMITH	COHEN	JONES
Tim	Hen	One
This	Hone	Son
Him	Cone	Joe

Address your WORDLINGS to Wordling Editor, THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE, Chicago. No manuscripts returned.

TEN $1 prizes are awarded today to the ten persons who sent in the longest and best lists of words formed with the letters in their family names. Here is the list of the first prize winner:

Makes Hands Look Refined

Office Women, Typists and Salespeople Keep Their Hands Clean and White With Fresca.

Frequent recourse to soap and water reddens the hands. But a few drops of Fresca rubbed over the skin after washing makes the hands smooth, dainty and refined. It gives them the elegant appearance of carefulness, a very important item in business these days.

For Adding Beauty to Hands Fresca is a Marvel.

You will find Fresca on sale at the drug store and its frequent use will take off all that redness, roughness and wrinkly appearance. Get a bottle of Fresca today and see how dainty it makes the hands.

If you do not live near a drug store send 10 cts. to Fred W. Scarff Co., 350 N. Clark St., Chicago, for a trial bottle by mail.

Ask Buck & Rayner, Public Drug Co., Walgreen Co., MacLean Drug Co., the Boston Store, or any druggist for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets—as easy to take as candy and not at all expensive—60 tablets 60 cents.

9x12 High Grade Worsted Wilton Rugs

Very Low Priced, at $83 Only 94 to Sell

A SPECIAL purchase and here's the story: Once a year the mills manufacturing these high grade worsted Wilton rugs inspect their extensive lines in order to replace some of the patterns with new effects. They are known as "mill trials," and have not passed the rigid inspection they were subjected to before being pronounced perfect. You may be assured that they will give satisfactory wear, as we cannot find any serious irregularities in them, and the range of designs and color combinations is exceptionally beautiful.

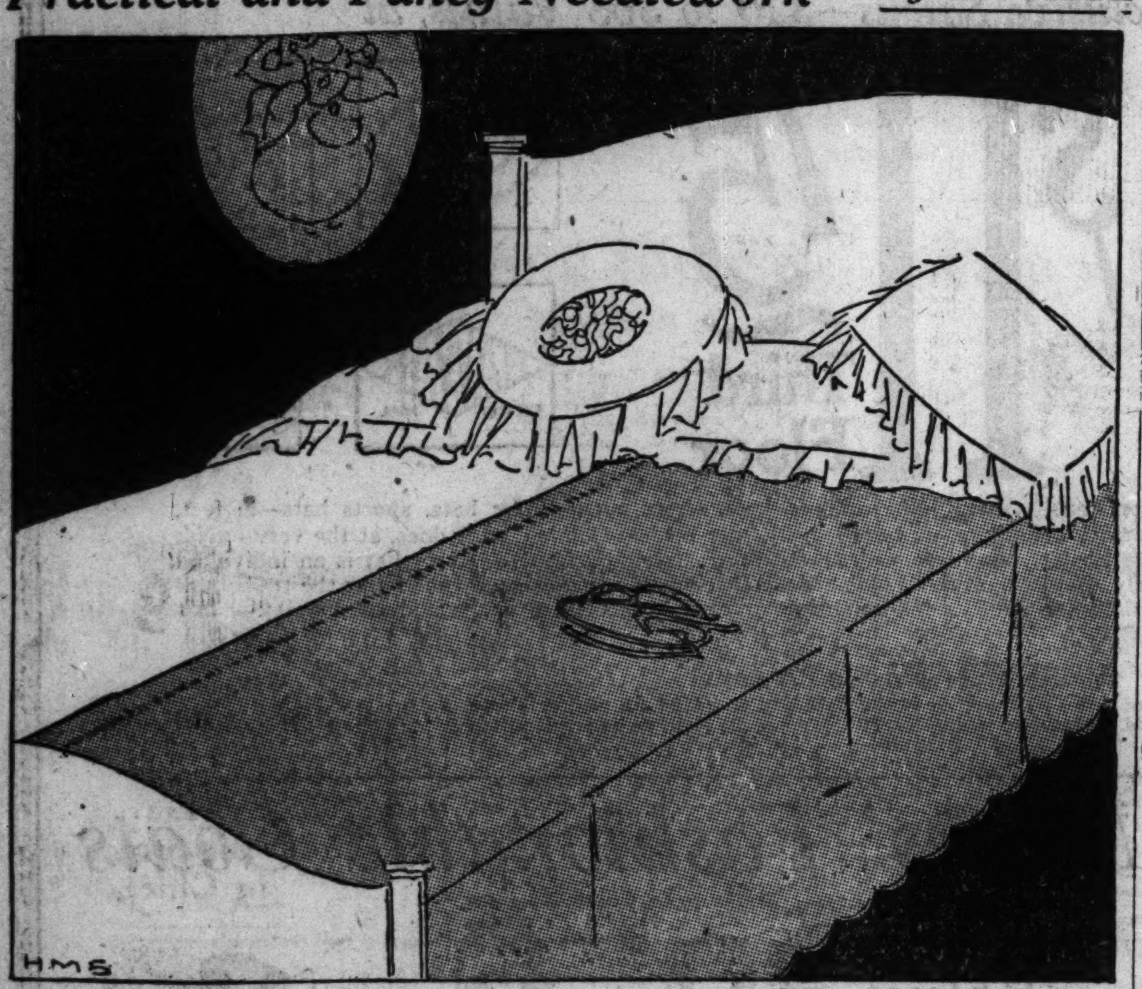
Practical and Fancy Needlework

By CLOTILDE



LINEN BED CO[illegible]

HERE is an attractive covering to lay on one's bed; at the same time it will keep the bed covering from getting soiled when hats and coats are laid on it.

It is made of linen in the natural color, and should be about 45 inches wide. This will allow it to reach the middle of the bed and cover the spread on the side as well. Make it the length of the bed. Both long edges may be hemstitched or the top edge may be hemstitched and the edge that hangs over the side of the bed finished with an embroidered scallop.

In the middle of the length embroider your monogram or a single letter in white. Four inches will be none too long for a letter.

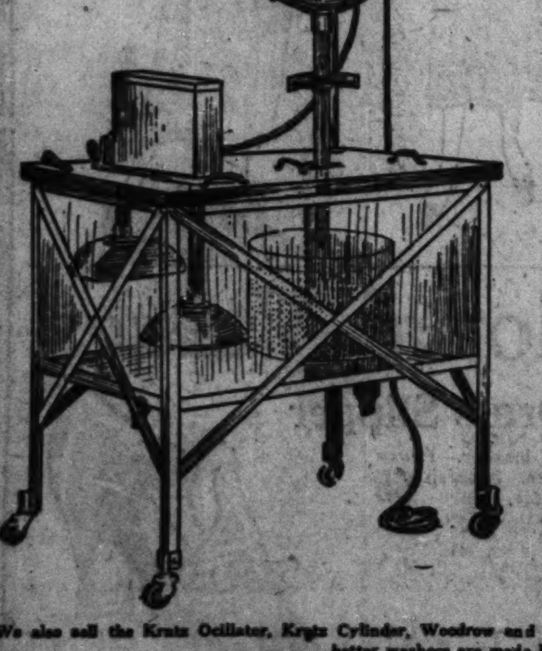
If the bottom is scalloped choose a rather large but not deep scallop. Outline the edges carefully with a single strand of darning or embroidery cotton, and then take time to make a good piece of work of the filling or padding. A chain or running stitch is used, making it heavier in the wide part of a scallop and not so heavy as the edges are reached. Much of the beauty of this work lies in the way the filling is put in. This is something that will take quite a little time to do; but it is delightful pickup work, and something that may be done while visiting with any one, which is more than can be said of much sewing.

An inch wide hem laid on the upper edge would be good looking if double hemstitched.

I TOLD YOU SO!

That when better washing machines were made, A. W. Kratz would sell them. Here is the very latest—the Kratz Vacuum Washer, Rinser and Dryer

WASHES, RINSES AND DRIES AT THE SAME TIME



Why you should own a Kratz

1. It is equipped with a Centrifugal Dryer.
2. The Dryer controlled by an overhead suspension eliminates vibration.
3. In conjunction with the Dryer is a rinsing device which rinses the clothes without further handling. Rinsing device forces oxygen through the clothes, making them sweet and clean.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

THE tuck each side of the front of the waist of pattern No. 1,937, makes it a little different from many of the designs. This will be a dress easy to get into—which ought to be a recommendation—for the opening is under the tuck on the left side of the waistband and the left side of the skirt is slashed and finished for an opening.

The skirt is a one piece gathered one, cut in two sections—upper and lower. The sleeves are short and finished with turned back cuffs and there is a collar meeting the square cut neck in the front.

This sort of design would be good for two materials making the collar, cuffs, and lower skirt section of some figured material and the waist and upper skirt section of something plain. Perhaps one has materials in the house that could be made up attractively by this pattern, for instance, enough black satin to make the lower part of the skirt, the collar and cuffs, and some black crepe for the waist and upper skirt section.

Many women make shirts for their husbands and sons and in that way really save enough to make it worth while. Pattern No. 1,911 is good, and if the directions are carefully followed there will be no trouble.

Thoroughly shrink and set the colors in materials before cutting. The chart on the pattern envelop show the most economical way of laying the pattern on 36 inch material. It is always a wise precaution to lay every piece of the pattern on the material before cutting, so as to be sure there is going to be enough.

The back yoke and cuffs may be cut across, instead of on the length of the material—this being particularly effective if there are stripes.

Lay the back yoke in place on the back of the blouse, turn in the lower edge, baste down, stitch close to the edge, then three-eighths inch from the edge—making two stitchings across the bottom of the yoke. Lay the hems down each front, and stitch; then make the pocket and stitch to the left front, according to the notches. Baste the shoulder and under arm seams, and try on. Make any needed alterations. Then rip the under arm seams and stitch the shoulder seams together [not including the yoke], having the seams come to the right side. Lay the raw edges of the seams up towards the back, baste the shoulder seams of the yoke down over the seams, turning the edges in so the folded edge just covers the seam stitching, and stitch across twice—matching the stitching across the bottom of the yoke.

Finish the sleeve openings according to the directions given on the pattern, and then trace a line across the top of each sleeve about three-quarters of an inch from the edge. After clipping the edges of the armholes at close intervals all around, turn in the edge and, matching the notches front and back, pin the turned in edge of the armhole to the traced line on the right side of the sleeve, and baste to the blouse. With the blouse right side up, stitch the sleeve to the armhole just inside both turned in edges.

Pin and baste the under arm and sleeve seams, taking care to have the seams under the arm where the sleeve is sewed in match perfectly under the arm. After the first stitching, turn the remaining one in and fell down.

The slip-on bungalow apron or porch dress pattern No. 1787 is cut in two pieces—front and back. There is an applied bib, to which sash ends are attached, and there are large patch pockets. The bib and sash hold the fullness nicely in place at the waist line, and aid in giving a jaunty appearance to the whole.

There are shoulder seams that extend the length of the short sleeves. These and the under arm and side seams are all there are. French seams are good, but some care must be given where the greatest curve comes under the arms. After the first stitching is done, trim the edges off to about one eighth inch, and beside this, carefully clip at short intervals where the curve comes. Then turn to the wrong side, crease the seam in place, and stitch, making this second stitching about one eighth inch from the first.

Percale is one of the best materials for the purpose, and while there are solid colors and many designs on a color, there is nothing much prettier than the white ground with dots or some design in black or colors. For such a material, ric rac braid would look well.

The edges of the bib, neck, sleeves, and pockets must be faced first, and then the ric rac braid is basted on so that nearly half the width shows on the right side. It must be stitched on twice, once close to the edge and the second time about one eighth inch inside.

A New Way to Tell Your Fortune

BY NAPOLEON'S BOOK OF FATE

Do you belong to the sign of odd, even, and three odds? Would you like to know your own sign or class? Consult the Scroll of Man's Fate, as the great Napoleon did in every crisis. We are publishing his "Book of Fate" serially, two grand questions of life and their answers each Sunday.

By following the directions you can ask the questions and obtain the answers meant for you. The method is simple. You will find working it out a fascinating game.

Twenty-seventh Grand Question of Life.

Shall I Have to Travel Far by Land or Sea, or to Reside in Foreign Climes?

HOW TO GET YOUR OWN ANSWER.

Fix in your mind the question, to the exclusion of all other things. Then, thinking of it alone, with pen or pencil, set down five rows of upright or inclined lines in the following manner:

| | | | | | | | | | | | | |

taking care, but not consciously so, that each row contains more than twelve such lines, in respect of the number of the signs of the zodiac.

That is, you must not count the lines in each row as you make them, but you must abstractedly guide pen or pencil across the paper, so that the number of lines in each of the five rows, while more than twelve, shall be entirely without design so far as you yourself are consciously aware.

Having thus set down the five rows, you then count the lines in each row, to learn whether the number is odd or even.

Perhaps the count will show the first line to be odd, the second and third even, the fourth odd, the fifth even; you then belong to the sign of odd, two even, odd and even.

But no matter what your five lines show as to odd or even, beginning with the first line and going down, there is an answer to the grand question of life that is meant especially for you.

You will find the answer you seek under the sign of your particular combination of lines of odd and even.

THE ORACLE'S ANSWERS.

If you belong to the sign of:

Five odd: "Thou shalt have to travel both by sea and land."

Even, four odd: "It would be imprudent for thee to embark for a foreign land."

Odd, even, three odd: "Thou wilt be truly prosperous in thy journey, but stay not abroad longer than necessary."

Two odd, even, two odd: "Thy journey when thou goest will be to thy advantage."

Three odd, even, odd: "Venture not far from home."

Four odd, even: "When thou hast occasion thou mayest proceed confidently."

Two even, three odd: "If thou tarriest long from thy home, thy fortune will not prosper."

Odd, two even, two odd: "In another country fortune will shower her favors on thee."

Two odd, two even, odd: "Remain at home and thou wilt do well."

Three odd, two even: "Tarry with thy friends and thou wilt escape many calamities."

Two odd, even, odd, even: "If thou are prudent, fortune awaits thee open handed in another country."

Odd, even, odd, even, odd: "If thou remainest in thine own country, thou mayest still be successful."

Even odd, even, two odd: "When thou dost travel, Providence will protect thee."

Odd, even, two odd, even: "Thy journey will be prosperous if guided by prudence."

Even, two odd, even, odd: "Thou shalt tarry where thou now residest."

Even, three odd, even: "Wander not far from thy home."

Three even, two odd: "In a foreign clime strangers will protect and cherish thee."

Odd, three even, odd: "Abide thy faith at home; it will be better for thee."

Two odd, three even: "Let not thy inordinate desire of amassing wealth carry thee into foreign climes."

Odd, even, odd, two even: "Emigration from they native land will but retard thy fortune."

Odd, two even, odd, even: "In a far country thou shalt find treasure."

Even, two odd, two even: "Await thy happy destiny at home."

Even, odd, even, odd, even: "Venture thyself on the ocean without fear."

Two even, two odd, even: "Be steady in thy resolution to turn thy back on thy native shores."

Two even, odd, even, odd: "Thou shalt visit distant regions where gold aboundeth; in thy prosperity forget not the widow and the orphan."

Even, odd, two even, odd: "Fortune will favor thee in thine own country."

Four even, odd: "If thou goest far abroad, thy kinsmen at home will not deal justly with thee; tarry not by the way."

Even, odd, three even: "The wealth thou gainest abroad distribute justly and charitably at home."

Two even, odd, two even: "Fear not for thy journey; it will be prosperous."

Three even, odd, even: "Avoid entering into the land of strangers."

Odd, four even: "Thy wealth will not be gained in a strange land."

Five even: "In a strange land a happy marriage awaits three."

Twenty-eighth Grand Question of Life.

Will the Stolen Property Be Recovered and Will the Thief Be Detected?

THE ORACLE'S ANSWERS.

If You Belong to the Sign Of:

Five Odd: "The thief may be successful for a time, but in the end is certain death."

Even, Four Odd: "Exert thyself manfully to recover the property which thou has lost."

Odd, Even, Three Odd: "Punish not the delinquent too severely."

Two Odd, Even, Two Odd: "A clean corner is not the worse for being twice searched."

Three Odd, Even, Odd: "Search and thou shalt find."

Four Odd, Even: "Make proper inquiries and they will lead to detection."

Two Even, Three Odd: "Despair not of of recovering the stolen goods."

Odd, Two Even, Two Odd: "Art thou certain it hath been stolen?"

Two Odd, Two Even, Odd: "The thief will ultimately be detected."

Three Odd, Two Even: "Be patient and every circumstance shall be developed."

Two Odd, Even, Odd, Even: "Make diligent inquiries among the members of thy house."

Odd, Even, Odd, Even, Odd: "Blame not thy servant unjustly."

Even, Odd, Even, Two Odd: "Accuse not the innocent rashly."

Odd, Even, Two Odd, Even: "Be secret and examine each person singly."

Even, Two Odd, Even, Odd: "Be sure of thy grounds before thou enterest on a prosecution."

Even, Three Odd, Even: "When thou hast discovered the thief, see that his punishment be proportionate to his crime."

Three Even, Two Odd: "By perseverance only shalt thou recover thy goods."

Odd, Three Even, Odd: "It is necessary for thee to bear thy loss with fortitude."

Two Odd, Three Even: "When thou hast recovered thy goods, be careful of them for the future."

Odd, Even, Odd, Two Even: "The recovery of thy goods will be unexpected."

Odd, Two Even, Odd, Even: "The thief will be detected in the midst of his career."

Even, Two Odd, Two Even: "Let not the hopes of recovering what thou hast lost be too sanguine."

Even, Odd, Even, Odd, Even: "With trouble and expense thou mayest gain thy lost goods."

Two Even, Two Odd, Even: "Let not the loss of the thing press heavily on thy mind."

Two Even, Odd, Even, Odd: "Thy goods may soon be recovered."

Even, Odd, Two Even, Odd: "Leave no means untried to detect the thief."

Four Even, Odd: "Take not away the life of the man who hath injured thee."

Even, Odd, Three Even: "Give not the thief the chance of robbing thee again."

Two Even, Odd, Two Even: "Admonish, but pursue not to death him who hath injured thee."

Three Even, Odd, Even: "Leave no means untried to make good thy loss."

Odd, Four Even: "If thou art careful the property may soon be found."

Five Even: "The person who hath wronged thee will be cut off in the midst of his wickedness."

[At least two more grand questions of life, together with the oracle's answers, will be published next Sunday.]

"Use two beds," said Ben Franklin, "if you find it is hard to sleep"

In his pamphlet on sleep, the great American who was counted the wisest man of his age, advised the use of two beds by light sleepers, changing from one to the other whenever they happened to wake.

Scientist and keen observer, Franklin knew that comfort is the first essential for sound sleep, while the bedding of his time fell a long way short of comfort.

That was before the building of luxurious springs and mattresses had become a fine art and a factory process. Millions of Americans today get more genuine rest from one set of Simmons sleep equipment than Franklin was ever able to secure from his two.

Don't be satisfied with your own bedding until you compare it with the luxurious Simmons springs and mattresses you can find at any leading furniture store.

There are many types to choose from. The price of each is the lowest it is safe for anyone to pay. Bedding made of clean new materials cannot be built or bought for less. Go and see them today.

THE ADVENTURES OF FUZZY WUZZY

FUZZY WUZZY TAKES A LOOK AT THE WORLD.

By Raymond Kelly.

YOU know that big mountain, the one whose picture was on the postcard that auntie sent to mother from away out west. Well, that's where Fuzzy Wuzzy lives, and he's the fattest, blackest, and littlest bear on the whole mountain. Of course, Fuzzy Wuzzy isn't his real name. His regular name is Ursus Niger, but everybody calls him Fuzzy Wuzzy, because he looks like that and always will.

Fuzzy Wuzzy was four months old before he ever saw the daylight. That wasn't because he was blind but because he was born in the winter time when it was too cold to go outdoors, and especially so for little bears. But one day, when the south wind had melted almost all the snow and the bluejays and magpies were fairly chattering their heads off, Fuzzy's mother said to him, "Come, my son; it is time that you saw the world and that the world saw you."

So she washed Fuzzy's face and manicured his paws and combed his hair until it fairly shone and crackled as her claws went through it. Then she pushed aside the door of the den and led Fuzzy out into the bright sunlight.

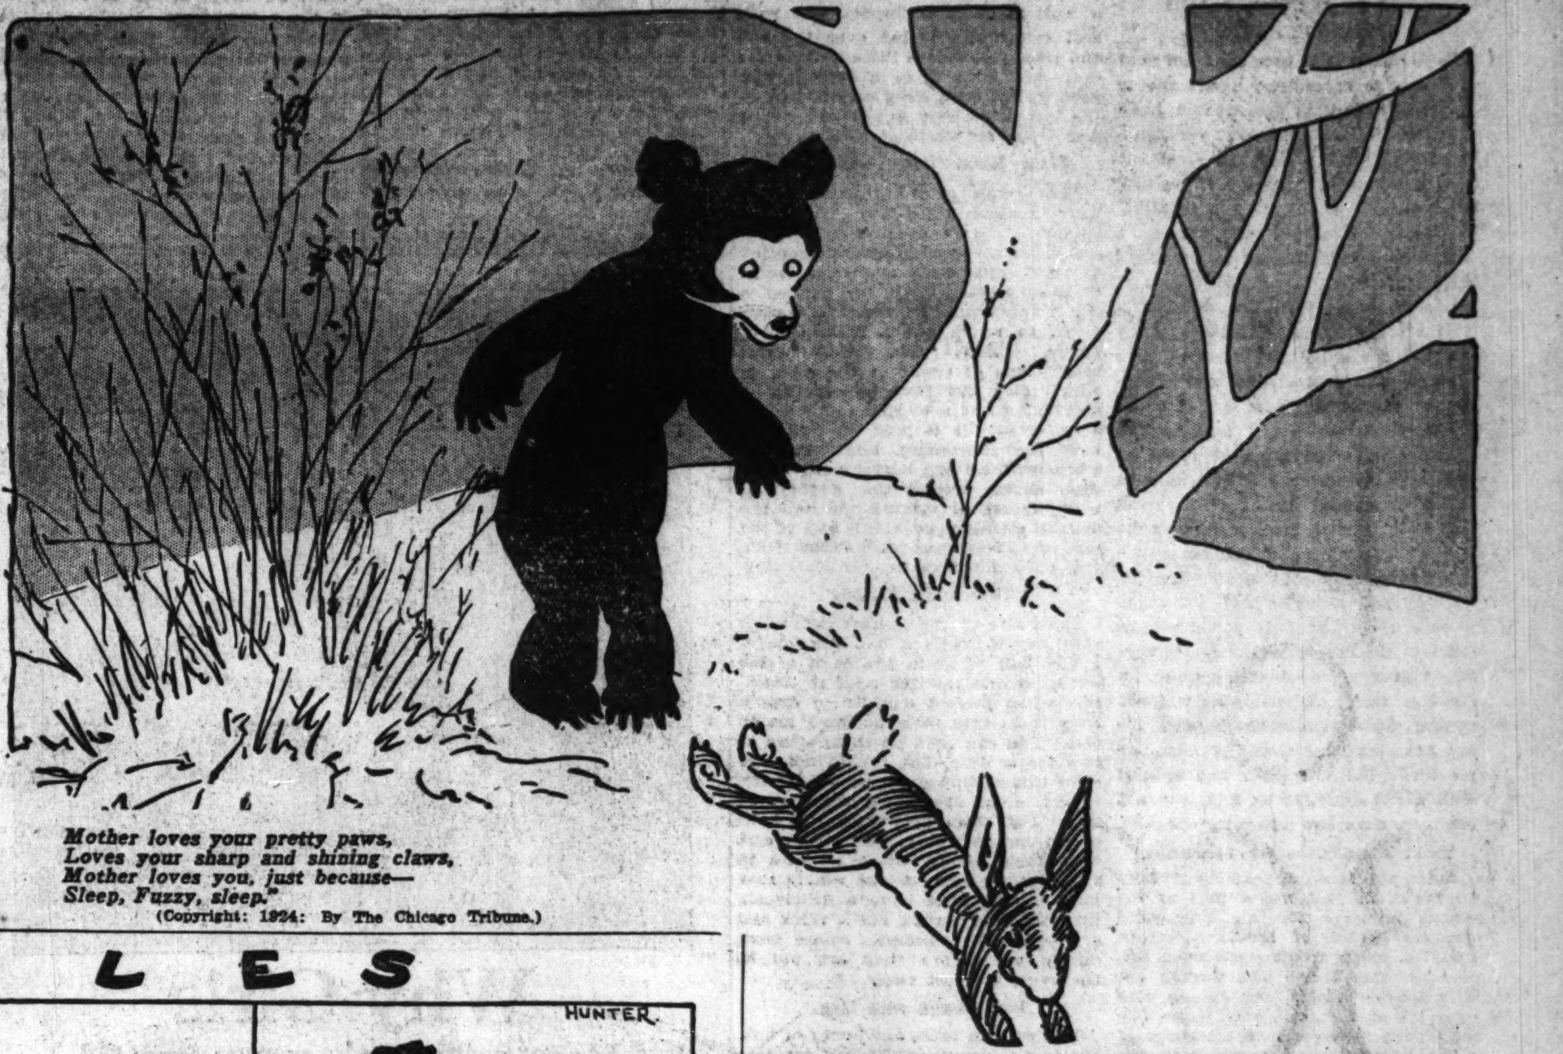
It was a strange world to Fuzzy, but he liked it, even though the sun did hurt his eyes a bit at first and the birds did scare him with their scolding. But he kept close beside his mother and felt safe because she was so big and strong. He was mighty proud of her, too, and, my, O my, how proud she was of him! Every move she made seemed to say, "Anybody can see that mine is the finest baby on the whole mountain, and any one who doesn't think so is just jealous."

Fuzzy and his mother had a wonderful time that day, for Mother Bear turned over a rotten log and found eighteen big beetles and just droves of the most delicious ants. Of course, it was too early in the year for any berries, but the bugs were plentiful and bears just love those. There were nice flowers to smell, too, but Fuzzy Wuzzy didn't care much for flowers after he smelled the one where the bee was taking his noon day nap. But after a little wet clay had been put on his nose, Fuzzy felt even better than if he hadn't been stung at all.

And to make the day absolutely perfect, Fuzzy Wuzzy actually scared a rabbit. Yes, sir, and it was a really grown-up rabbit, too; almost a whole year old. So Fuzzy felt proud of himself, and you won't blame him if you stop to think that he was only four months old and that lots of us are nearly six before we ever even see a wild rabbit.

"It's a nice world, Mother, and I'm glad I'm here," said Fuzzy that night as Mother Bear took him up in her arms and began to sing softly:

The moon man shines on the mountain tall,
While through whispering pines the night winds call.
Sleep, Fuzzy, sleep.



Mother loves your pretty paws,
Loves your sharp and shining claws,
Mother loves you, just because—
Sleep, Fuzzy, sleep.

"No, mother. They were all sitting in their seats waiting for me," she replied. C. W.

Frank's older brother plays the traps in the orchestra.

One of the neighbors said to Frank, "Didn't I see your brother on the platform at the concert?"

"O, sure," answered Frank; "he bangs in the band." E. R.

HOT CROSS BUNS AND SHORTCAKES.

PERHAPS it is because I am sure that a strawberry shortcake is not a dietetic gem that I have never given attention to originating what I now think is one of the best, if not the best, ways of making it; that is, with a yeast foundation. When all is said and done, though, I like this foundation quite by itself better than with the strawberries and whipped cream. With the superlatively fine strawberries of June, I fancy this would not be true.

There are advantages and disadvantages in making this sort of bread for a shortcake, but I imagine the amateur at cooking might come as near to real success with this as with a baking powder bread. The yeast dough, if worked too much, may be tough, and while one might not notice this, and even like its quality if eaten without the strawberries, it would yield a shortcake that would not be short in the cook's meaning, one that might have to be cut with a knife, instead of being as tender as whipped cream. Since that might happen, the one experimenting would perhaps better make but one layer and split it with a hot knife, or at any rate not use more than two layers for the cake.

Yeast Foundation for Shortcake.

A one cup batch of yeast dough may be made, or just use a part of the dough prepared for an unkneaded two loaf batch of bread. Perhaps kneaded dough would work even better, but this recipe was worked out with the unkneaded dough made with one pint of milk, one yeast cake, one tablespoon of sugar, two teaspoons of salt, one tablespoon butter, and five cups of flour. The amateur would probably get on better with five cups and a half, or even six, of flour. With six the dough can be kneaded; with five cups it cannot be.

Set like any bread. A quick way is to dip out a quarter cup of the milk, put to heat to sterilization point, when it is just lukewarm. Soak the yeast in this with the sugar. When the milk has come to the boiling point, take it from the fire, add the butter and salt to it, and when it is lukewarm beat the yeast cake into it with an egg beater. I have discovered that this sort of basting is a good thing to do. Have the flour sifted into an aluminum Windsor kettle with its closely fitting cover, make a well in the flour, pour in the liquid, and work from within out until all the flour has been well taken up and the dough is of uniform texture. Cover kettle closely, and set to rise.

When the dough has doubled, butter the layer cake tins and also your hands. Take up pieces of the dough, roll into a ball, put a ball in each tin, and pat out to pie shape. Rub some soft butter over the top of the sheet and then sprinkle over some sugar, shaking it even, but be careful not to let it get on the tin. The heat next the tin will melt and brown or burn it. Bake fifteen or twenty minutes in a hot oven, and put together like any shortcake.

Yeast Scone.

Pie tins of this dough, patted out, rubbed with soft butter, sprinkled with sugar, then marked with a knife into six triangles and baked fifteen minutes in a hot oven, are better eating than almost any roll you can prepare, more delightful of taste.

Fruit Loaves and Buns.

Such an unkneaded dough used for the shortcake dough can be put together in layers, with fruit and nuts between, pressed in and baked in a loaf that becomes an exceedingly delicious bread. Or two small balls may be flattened into little pats, and fruit and nuts put between the two to make a fruit bun. A tablespoon wet with cold water and patted over the top and sides just before these go into the oven will give them a smooth bun surface, and some icing may be put on the top after they are baked. This may be in the shape of a cross.

Plain Yeast Bun Foundation.

Three cups of sifted and slightly warmed flour—cold flour makes for partial failure sometimes — three-fourths of a cup of scalded milk cooled to tepid, one-fourth cup tepid water to soak yeast cake in, or part of a one if you want the texture of slower work, to which add a tablespoon of sugar. Besides this dissolve three tablespoons of sugar in the milk, to which also add four tablespoons of shortening and a teaspoon of salt. Or a better way is to pour the hot milk over the shortening, and whip the whole with an egg beater until not a drop shows around the edges. If made by setting sponge, add half the flour in setting sponge, stir half of the rest into the sponge when it has risen, and allow the rest for the kneading.

Tiny Yeast Muffins.

Take bits of the unkneaded dough described to make a ball the size of a golf ball. Roll in the palm of the left hand with the fingers of the right, and when perfect marbles of dough, drop them into little buttered muffin tins. You can then let them stand to rise for a little, but we do not consider this as important as we formerly did, since fire drives them up so fast. Pat them over with the bowl of a teaspoon wet in cold water, and bake them about twelve minutes in a 500 degree oven, or one nearly that hot. They should have a deliciously thin and crisp crust, not a thick and dry one. The thickness comes from drying out before they are put in the oven, in most cases.

Bun Dough with Egg.

Two cups of milk, one ounce of butter, four tablespoons of sugar, one teaspoon salt, one yeast cake dissolved in two tablespoons of tepid water, one egg, about six cups of flour. Scald milk, pour it over butter and salt and most of the sugar, and cool to lukewarm. Always use part or all of the sugar, when it is a small amount, in soaking and starting the yeast. Beat the egg, and beat it into lukewarm milk; then stir the whole into flour. Add the yeast dissolved in the water, and a tablespoon of the sugar to the rest of the ingredients when they have been perfectly mixed, stirring it well first, and then work it in well. Or perhaps the inexperienced had better stir the flour gradually into the wet. Sometimes it is possible to get a dough stiff enough to be kneaded when only four cups have been stirred in or one that is rather dry. Then knead until the dough is elastic and will not stick. When perfectly kneaded, set till double in size, then for buns roll out into half or three-quarter inch sheet, cut out buns, let them stand for ten minutes, finish or glaze before or after baking as you chose, or garnish.

Rolling Doughs.

In order to roll a raised dough it is probably best to flatten and spread it well with the hands first. Almost any dough crawls, but this one most. It is worth while to learn to make these doughs that can be rolled—be careful not to get them too stiff—for there are charming things to be made of these—cakes and breads resembling puff pastry, but far more wholesome.

Changing Bread Dough to Bun Dough.

One way to get a bun dough is to add to a plain bread dough, before it is kneaded, the addition, that will make it more like cake. These are butter creamed with twice or three times as much sugar worked into it, an egg or two, and such fruit as raisins, currants, and orange peel. A little fruit will flavor a bun sufficiently. It can be done, but it is difficult to add fruit to a dough that has been kneaded. It drops out.

Easiest Strawberry Shortcake.

Sift two cups of flour with two or three teaspoons of baking powder (some even use four, but I use two) into a bowl with a teaspoon of salt. Stir into this one cup and a quarter of milk while two tablespoons of shortening have been just melting in one of the two small layer cake tins in which the batch of dough is to be baked. Stir the melted shortening into the batter, and with what is left in the tin oil the two.

Pour half the batter into one tin and half into the other, and pat each smooth with the bowl of a large spoon wet in cold water. You can get a browner top by adding a teaspoon or two of sugar to the batter, or a little more than that is not at all objectionable as flavor. In a good oven you should get a delicious bottom crust on these layers of bread cake in the scone shape.

You may butter these when baked and put them together with strawberries and cream, or you can get an even better effect by splitting them with a hot knife, buttering them, filling the cake with prepared strawberries, with some on top with whipped cream, or serve the cream separately. The old fashioned American shortcake of much this type was considered superlatively good without cream.

Why Girls

Are not prettier—why women grow old

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I was a plain girl, but I made myself a famous beauty. I have reached a grandmother's age, but I keep my youthful looks. Countless young girls envy my hair and my complexion.

No ordinary beauty helps ever did, or ever will, bring such results to women. I searched the world for the best helps in existence. I spent a fortune to obtain them. To them I owe all that beauty and perennial youth have meant in my career.

Now I have placed those identical helps at your call. To girls they mean multiplied beauty, to women continued youth. I urge you to let them bring to you what they brought to me.

The Great Mistakes

Millions of women seeking beauty and youth use unscientific helps. Now I bring you the best helps in existence.

Clay is a beauty essential. No girl can look her best without it, no woman keep her youth. But not the crude and muddy clays so many still employ. A super-clay has been perfected by 20 years of scientific study. It is white, refined and dainty. It is ten times more effective than the ordinary clays.

I call this my White Youth Clay. Many women, with one use, seem to drop ten years. It brings a rosy, clear complexion. It removes the causes of blackheads and blemishes. It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles. My White Youth Clay will amaze and delight you. I urge you to see what it does. The cost is 50 cents and $1.

Scientific Creams

Women use creams which no great expert in the world could sanction. I made a world-wide search to get the best cream in existence.

One is my Youth Cream—a cold cream. It contains products of both lemon and strawberry. Also all the best that science knows to soften, feed and foster the skin texture.

I use it after the clay. Also as a night cream, also daytime as a powder base. Never is my skin without it. I want you to learn what Youth Cream means to you. It costs only 60 cents.

My Facial Youth is a liquid cleanser which I found in France. Great beauty experts the world over now employ it. It contains no animal, no vegetable fat. The skin cannot absorb it. But it cleans to the depths, and removes from the skin all the dirt and refuse which nothing else can reach.

You will know for the first time what a clean skin means when you apply my Facial Youth. The cost is 75 cents.

Hair You Marvel At

Millions marvel at my luxuriant hair. It is thick and lustrous—finer far than 40 years ago. Falling hair, dandruff and gray hair have never come to me.

This is also due to France. She perfected my Hair Youth. I apply it daily with an eye dropper, directly to the scalp. It does not muss the hair. It cleans the scalp, stimulates and fertilizes. Then the hair roots flourish and bring the results I show.

If you wish like hair, use this method—the best that science knows. My Hair Youth costs 50 cents and $1 with eye dropper.

All druggists and toilet counters supply these preparations. Nothing else in all the world can bring you like results. Go try them. Let them bring you what they brought to me. Edna Wallace Hopper, 536 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

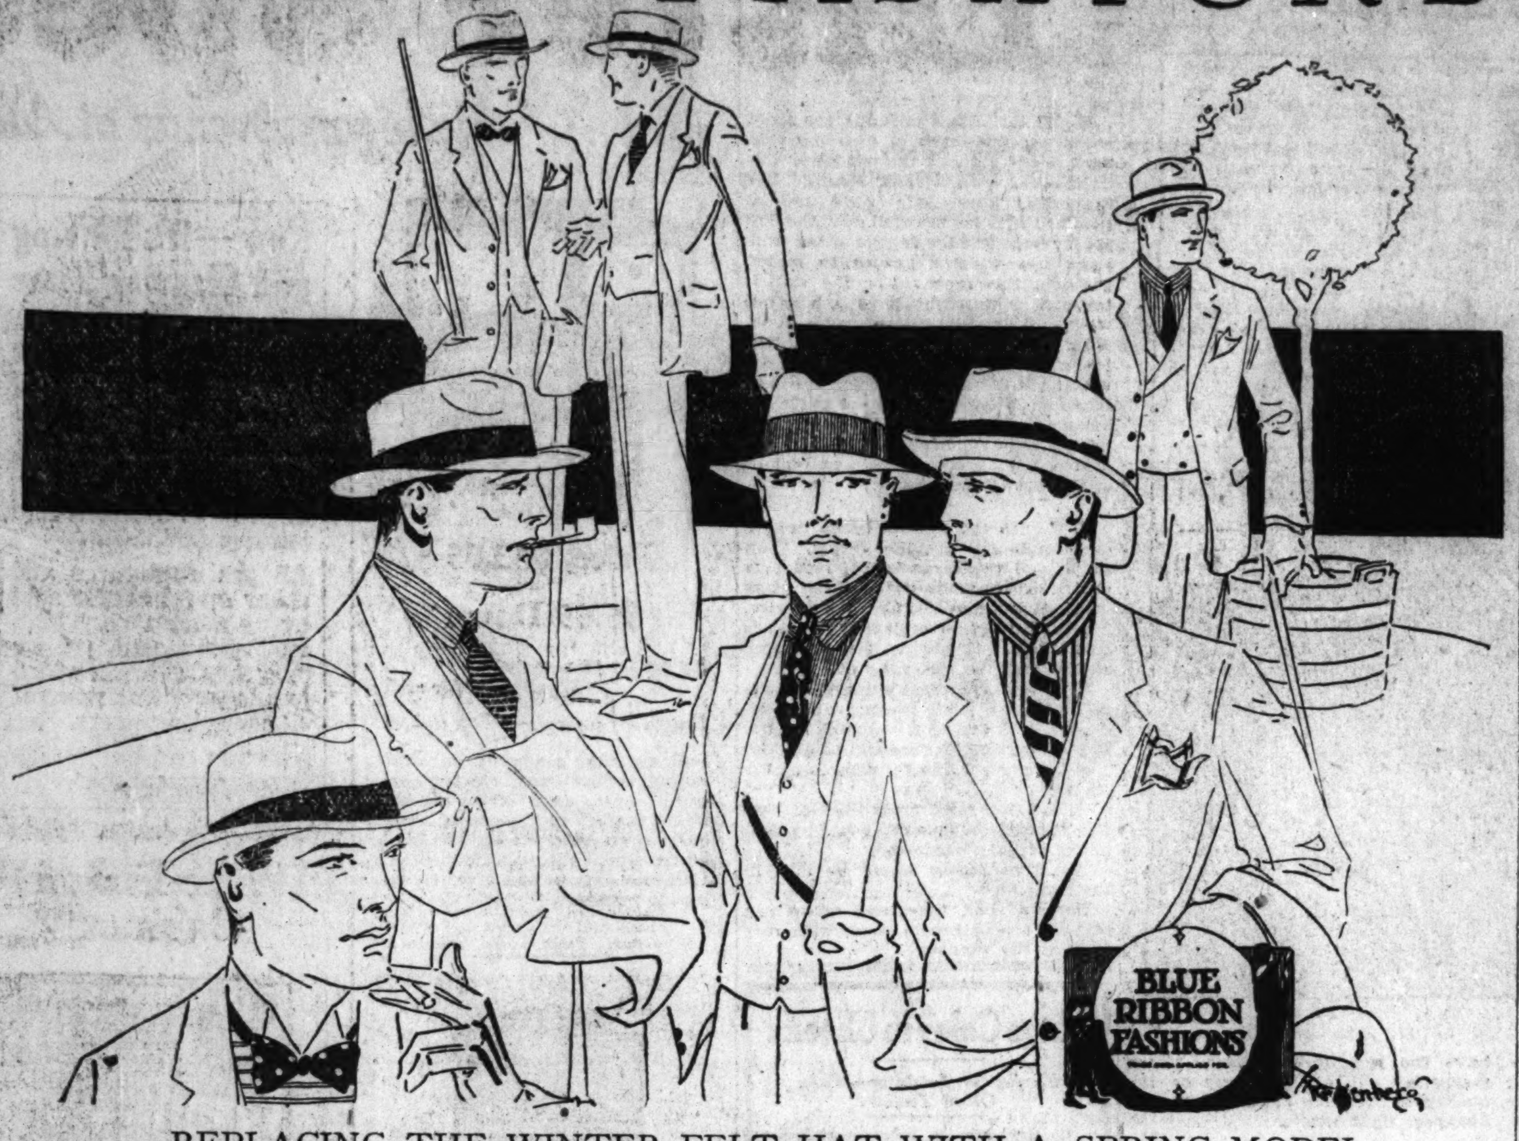
MEN'S FASHIONS



REPLACING THE WINTER FELT HAT WITH A SPRING MODEL

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions and the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

BY A. T. GALLICO.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—When you join the Easter parade next Sunday, are you going to do so in your old winter felt hat that has already done its duty as head covering for some six months, or are you going to honor your head with a nice new felt, which you can use until the straw hat period comes along. For some reason unknown to science or us, there is an affection arrived at by a man for his old hat which is equaled by an affection for no other part of his wardrobe. He would not dream in his most untidy moments of wearing a suit or shirt that had the spots or the air of shapelessness that he allows his hat to acquire. And yet, because it is a hat, there is something sentimental about it.

Which strikes us as being an entirely erroneous state of mind. A hat is a part of one's attire, and all parts of one's attire should be at all times immaculate, in so far as the personal exchequer allows. An adequately acceptable felt hat costs from $5 to $10. The average man who pays any attention at all to his wardrobe can afford that every season.

The spring season is here, and all would-be well dressed men are taking to hat shops to substitute for the weather beaten hat of last winter a fresh one of spring vintage. Perhaps the hat you wore during the severe months of winter was a dark one. Then the spring air will suggest something lighter and less somber.

Owing to the prevalence of the negligee turned down hat, one really needs two felts to be prepared for all occasions. The turned down hat fills the needs of informal street wear. It may even be used in the creating of a perfect sport outfit. It is primarily a negligee article of headgear, and even when turned up does not give the impression of a formal hat.

For more dressy occasions one needs one of the rolled brims, that, no matter how hard one pulls, will not turn in the negligee style. This hat is stylishly worn with no side dents, but with center crease. The turn down hat is worn with side dents.

These are the two important spring hats, as they were much the two winter hats. The only difference will be the greater number of light colors—light pearl gray and the fawn shades and light tans. The shade you will select will depend upon the color of your topcoat or topcoats, as the case may be, and the suits that will be worn with the hats.

If the one topcoat is of a tan or brown tinge, the hat had best be one of the tans or fawn colored. The ideal suit to be worn with this outfit is one of brown, navy blue, smoke blue, or greenish tinge. With a blue topcoat either the gray or tan or fawn colored hat may be worn; also with black topcoat or suit. Fawn combined with black is always successful, but not brown and black.

The pearl gray hat goes most successfully with a gray, black, or blue suit, or topcoat. One of the smartest possible combinations consists of pearl gray hat with blue band, smoke blue suit, and light gray topcoat, or gray suit and smoke blue topcoat.

This idea of a blue band with a gray hat is a popular one, more so than last year, when it was seen to some extent. A black band with a gray hat is the only smart alternative. One occasionally sees a band of gray the same color of the hat, but this is indulged in only by the most conservative men who avoid any show of style.

As far as bindings are concerned, the rolled brims are sometimes bound with a grosgrain ribbon matching the felt of the hat; but the turned down brims never. Contrasting bands are not being done.

The band with tan or fawn shades is usually dark brown, although with fawn a black band may be used. So far we have emphasized light colored hats. This does not mean the darker shades are not fashionable. There are some complexions and colorings that will not stand a light colored hat. For them the darker grays and browns are recommended.

For instance, an extremely light blonde will do well to wear one of the darker browns and avoid pearl gray. The latter shade best becomes a dark brunette, an olive hued complexion, and black or dark brown hair, or a medium dark man. The light tans and browns are becoming to ruddy complexions and blondes who just verge on the dark. Red haired men will do well to avoid cold grays and concentrate on warm brownish grays, tans, and browns; also greenish mixtures and anything with a tone of blue in it.

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy, and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant, and send direct.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

PLACING YOUR DISCARDS.

SPRINGTIME brings thoughts of moving or housecleaning. Also it brings an opportunity to do a tremendous amount of good—an opportunity too many of us overlook, because it is so simple. The following letter shows what can be done:

"Should any one in your corner have some old pictures of any kind no longer in use, I would be glad to get them for walls of three attic rooms that a worthy person calls home.

"A castoff chair, couch, draperies, curtains, or furniture of any kind, no matter how old and worn, would help to fill up these rooms and make them more like home, and would be greatly appreciated.

"I would call for anything offered, and if broken or apart will repair it. "H. O."

There we are, my friends. And this letter is a beginning only. Whether we're moving or just cleaning, either event means taking stock of furniture and deciding to discard something—a bed, a chair, worn rugs or bedding. Perhaps some of us are moving into an apartment with a built-in icebox, and we'll have an icebox to get rid of. One way or another we'll all have articles to spare—and I can place every article where it will do more good than you can imagine.

Think over what you'll have—remember the need—and let me know tomorrow what you'll give!

Collie Is Homeless.

"A lovely female collie wandered into our house last week. She is about 2 years old, reddish brown, with a beautiful ruff and front, a fine head, excellent breeding, and in splendid condition. She evidently is a pet and has been well taken care of. She will make a wonderful dog for some family for she has been obedient and affectionate the short time we have had her in the house. J. C."

Please make written application if you are interested in the collie.

On a Homestead.

"I am a disabled ex-service man, on a homestead ten miles from a post-office and twenty-five miles from the nearest town. My only means of support is my monthly allowance from the government. Due to the fact that I am improving a house here on the plains, I am unable to save anything for pleasure or entertainment. I would like to have a radio receiving set in order to keep abreast of the times, as I only get periodicals here. I was in the navy, made ten round trips to France, spent two years in a hospital in New Mexico, fourteen months flat on my back in bed. I am doing fine out here and am appreciative of what our government has done for me. I hope my appeal may reach some one through your paper. E. G. C."

I hope your appeal meets with success, E. G. C.

Widow's Son Invalid.

"I must ask for a suit of clothes for my little boy. He takes a 12 year size. He is in a tuberculosis sanitarium, and can come home next month on a visit, but he needs clothes badly. I am a widow, with four other children, and cannot afford to buy them much. I will be grateful to you for anything in clothes. M. S."

Caring for and clothing four children is quite a problem for a woman alone. Who can give Mrs. S. some assistance?

Lonely in the Country.

"I wonder if some reader has a box or set of oil paints not in use. I have moved to a lonely country home, and, with adversities and loneliness, I sometimes think I shall die. If some one will pay the postage I have some girls' story boods to offer. G. P."

This is a modest request, G. P., and I hope will be fulfilled.

Too Feeble to Walk.

"If you know of some one who has a wheel chair not in use, I would be grateful if you could be the means of putting me in touch with her. I am 76 years old and confined to the house unless I have some way of getting around, as I am too feeble to walk. It would cheer my last days and help me to go to church, which I can't do now. MRS. R."

If there is an available wheel chair for this invalid, it will give me great pleasure to forward her address.

Removes Superfluous Hair

Hairy Growths Removed Entire, Roots and All

The vexed question of how to completely banish superfluous hair has been solved at last! By means of the new Phelactine process, the hairs entire, roots and all, come out before your very eyes—easily, harmlessly, "quick as a wink." Quite different from the depilatory, electrical and shaving methods. Phelactine is perfectly odorless, non-irritating, non-poisonous—a child could eat it without the least injury. It leaves the skin so soft, smooth, hairless, no one could tell you ever had a moustache or other hairy growth. Procure a stick of Phelactine from your druggist, follow the simple instructions, and you will certainly be astonished and delighted.

DECORATIVE ACCESSORIES.

FURNITURE stores all over the country are emphasizing more and more their departments of interior decoration and decorative accessories. They seem to realize that whereas when people buy furniture that is merely essential they spend large sums of money, and that furniture, once bought, serves for years, while decorative pieces and accessories are continually being added to or replaced.

Some eastern firms specialize in making facsimiles of antiques. They reproduce whole rooms as well as individual pieces. An unusually lovely model is done in the Spanish style. Walls are made to represent Kaen stone, laid on in irregular fashion—so much more interesting than the regulation block cut stone frequently seen.

A fascinating niche has been built into the wall. The background is painted powder blue, and the edge is outlined with gold color. In the niche is placed a tall gray glazed vase, filled with pussywillow. From behind it an exquisite piece of gold colored damask is draped, falling to the floor in delightful folds which produce glorious lights and mysterious shadows.

At one end of the room stands a replica of an old Spanish screen. This is three leafed, of leather, fastened to the frame with closely set dull brass studs. The leather is decorated with dark, rich colored paintings of Spanish street scenes. Wrought iron sconces have electric candle lights. Instead of curtains at the two windows, there are intricately patterned wrought iron grills. The furniture is severely Spanish. One or two chairs are upholstered in old tapestry.

Another model has been copied from the living room of an old English manor. The walls are of walnut, hand hewn, and joined by small wooden pegs instead of nails. The floor, too, laid in boards about eight inches wide, is held together with odd shaped mortice pegs of darker wood, forming a fascinating, irregular pattern. In the leaded casement windows, old imperfect glass has been used. Curtains of natural casement cloth, edged with a narrow fringe of the same color, have triple shirrings at the top, and are hung with small brass rings. Three sided shields for the dull silver sidelights are of parchment, on which a fine, decorative crest has been painted. A large davenport and overstuffed chair are upholstered in moth eaten Burgundy mohair. Other pieces are done in rare tapestries. Tables and the mantel are elaborately carved.

There is a great call for real tapestry for upholstery. Many pieces are covered with remnants of magnificent tapestries of olden days, which were mutilated by having had corners cut away or strips taken out, long ago, so that they could not be used as wall pieces. Dull toned English wool tapestries are extremely popular, as their neutral colors harmonize with almost anything.

Many joint stools are being reproduced and offered for use beside the fireplace or as elbow tables at the arms of large chairs or davenports. It is interesting to note that these joint stools were the real beginning of the modern chair. Centuries ago in England, the few pieces of furniture in the great manors were massive, enormous things. For convenience little stools were made, and came into quite general use, because they were so easy to lift from place to place. Later backs, arms, etc., were added.

Among other interesting pieces of which American facsimiles have been made are all manner of chests, credences, tables, and benches, and a few beds. One which is quite unique is of walnut, with a high carved headboard. The footboard is simple, with a short post at the ends. Each of these posts is topped by a great wooden knob. Another odd piece is a two paneled screen. This, too, is of walnut, arched at the top, and heavily carved, with portions cut through, so that the design is silhouetted against its backing of deep crimson velour.

Forming the nucleus for a charming Spanish bedroom is the replica of an old Spanish bed, as illustrated. It is to have a woven cover, in dull toned stripes, and is to be set against a deep crimson hanging. Other furniture in the room is to be characteristically in keeping.

So cleverly done that detection is almost impossible are some of the reproductions of antique French furniture. To the average person, the latest 1923-24 models are hard to distinguish from those of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. A walnut, kidney shaped, cane backed sofa, in the style of Louis Seize, has been so faithfully copied that even the nicks and occasional manufactured worm holes in the wood present a fascinatingly realistic appearance.

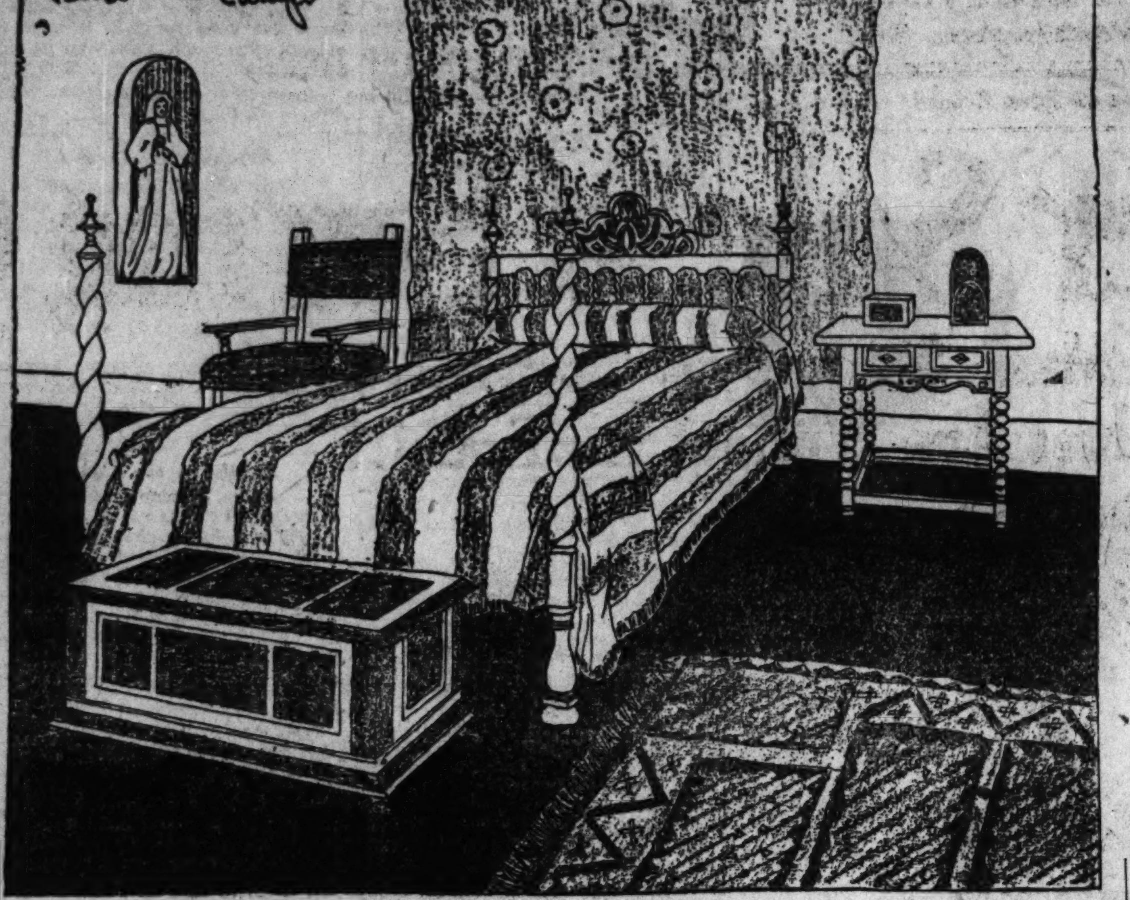
A delightful little French set of cherry wood consists of two chairs, with cane seats, a cane backed bergere, and a round table. The frame of the table is of cherry, with two cross pieces and a center medallion in the top, the remainder being filled in with cane work. There is a round plate glass cover. For the seats of the chairs and bergere, cushions have been made of an exquisite brocade, in mauve, sage green, ivory, and terra cotta, on a French blue ground. In the chair backs, insets in oval pieces are of carved wood, showing baskets filled with flowers. These are polychromed in the colors of the brocade.

Similar to the English carved walnut screen is one which has been copied from a French piece. The elaborately carved wood has been gilded, and instead of crimson velour the backing is of mirror. In the center of each section is a panel over which Du Barry rose silk damask has been stretched. The mirrored background is quite misleading, especially if the screen be placed before an open door, as one is almost sure to think, at first glance, that he is seeing through the intricate lace work of the carved wood into the room beyond.

Among the occasional pieces are all sorts of odd tables. A delicate Florentine tea table has a richly painted top, with a slightly raised edge and finger holes in each end. This top lifts off as a tray, disclosing a plain under top.

About the most popular tables are those which are known as cocktail tables. Many of these are made of old English prints, framed under glass, and set on to small table frames. These offer a diversion from the ordinary glass-topped table, because they furnish a distinctive color note, which is protected from liquid stains, even of the strongest sort, by the glass cover.

In these days of the mah jong rage, highly decorative Chinese pieces have jumped into sudden favor. One which is especially popular is a red lacquered tea table figured in raised gold, ivory and black. Wonderfully stunning, too, is a Chinese temple hanging. It displays large dragons, embroidered in gold, with peculiar green glass eyes on a deep red ground. All of the space around the dragons is filled with oblong, octagonal mirror studs—to frighten away the evil spirits. The border is filled with a pattern of enormous butterflies and flowers in gold and jade green on a black ground.



A bedroom done in Spanish style.

Answers to Queries.

F. Y.: In the bedroom with the walnut furniture use a deep amethyst chenille rug, jade green taffeta draperies, edged with narrow gold and mauve braid, and have ecru casement silk glass curtains. Let the walls be ecru, too. The other bedroom could have flowered chintz draperies repeating the colors of the rug, and adding leaf green and light yellow, on a cream colored ground. Have two-toned striped old ivory walls.

R. J. P.: Have the woodwork in living and dining rooms painted old ivory, and have two toned ecru wall paper. Don't use portieres between these rooms. Flowered cretonne, on an old ivory ground, would be attractive for the slip covers. Use old ivory marquisette glass curtains in both rooms. Let the cushions on your davenport be of the colors in your rug. Gray and old rose would be lovely for the bedroom. Have white voile glass curtains, with chintz draperies, in a floral pattern, in which rose color dominates on a light gray ground. Carry out a color scheme of buttercup yellow, Dutch blue, and white in your kitchen.

B. H. J.: Vertically striped draperies at your windows would help to give height to your room. Old blue, mulberry, and ecru would be good colors, in a sunfast material. Use velour portieres, in the same colors at the doorway. Have ecru silk gauze curtains in the other room, with side draperies of jade pink. Have a cream colored bed cover, instead of white.

C. N. L.: Unless your room has a southern exposure, it would be better to have a taupe rug than a blue one. Blue and gold striped sunfast would be nice at your windows. If possible have the woodwork stained brown mahogany. It would depend on the quality of the terry cloth, whether of heavy or light weave.

A. R.: Have light corn yellow walls in the boy's room, and a niggerhead brown rug. Use ecru voile glass curtains, and have draperies of striped sunfast in old blue, sage green, and ecru, with hairlines of mauve. The bed cover could repeat one of the colors of the draperies.

J. B.: Have old ivory gauze glass curtains at the windows in both rooms, and taupe chenille rugs. In the living room have old blue draperies, and in the dining room let them be striped in old blue, old gold, and sage green, with hairlines of paprika red.

A. M. L.: Neutral colored wall papers are suitable for dining room use. Two toned ecru or French gray is good. Use a Chinese figured rug, in blue, dust green, burnt orange, and black on a tan ground. Have natural colored casement gauze for glass curtains, and let the overdraperies match the dominant color in the rug.

M. M. R.: Glass curtains are those which are put inside of overdraperies, next to the glass of the windows. Use light toned ecru window shades. For draperies, have jade pink taffeta, trimmed with narrow dull gold and dull jade green braid. In the other bedroom use window shades to match those in this room. For the walnut bedroom you might have ash green walls, a deep plum colored rug, and old ivory gauze curtains, finished at the top with a French heading and used without overdraperies, so that the man may satisfy his desire to see out without making the room suffer the harshness of bare windows. Why don't you use ecru silk gauze, instead of pongee, at the downstairs window?

B. C.: In the west bedroom have a deep mulberry chenille carpet. You might add two large brown reed arm chairs. Have white ruffled Swiss glass curtains and flowered chintz draperies, in which a lighter mulberry or rose is introduced. Cushions for the arm chairs could be the same material.

Have ecru casement gauze glass curtains in the guest room, with overdraperies of dulled jade green taffeta, edged with narrow rose and gold braid. The bed cover could be made to match these.

White voile with cross lines of blue and valances of blue rep could be used at the nursery windows.

Taupe carpeting would be nice in the hall.

Have a rose, blue, and white rag rug for the bathroom floor, with rose voile at the window.

The Beckoning Finger of Alimony

by DORIS BLAKE

Without the Prospect of Material Gain, Would So Many Women Take Their Troubles to Divorce Courts?

MILTON IVES LIVY.

DOES the prospect of alimony lure women to divorce?

Or, to put it another way, without the prospect of a stipulated amount weekly, monthly or in bulk, would as many divorces per year be requested by women?

We have no statistics on the subject, naturally, as no woman would admit that an independent allowance without a husband to dictate its disposal would strike so mercenary a chord in her. It might be an interesting experience, though, to withdraw the granting of alimony entirely for a time just to find out what part it does play, if any, in woman's reasoning.

Milton Ives Livy, well known New York attorney, along with several other experienced men of the law, thinks the vision of alimony sometimes beckons women to the divorce court.

"I do not think any good woman would consciously let the thought of alimony influence her in trying to break her marriage vows," he says, "but human nature is such that material considerations often creep in unawares. It is just as well to educate the mind on the possibilities of these material reasons going astray so as to minimize, as much as possible, the causes for divorce.

More Money and Freedom.

"Let us take a concrete case. A girl living a circumscribed life, possibly in a small town," Mr. Livy says, "whose family is in modest or really poor circumstances marries a well to do city man. She may be temporarily in love with him. They go to a larger city. She feels for the first time in her life the joy of freedom from financial worry and freedom to indulge her tastes for beauty and adornment.

"After a time incompatibility of temper appears upon the scene. Quarrels ensue, inharmony develops, and the thought of divorce enters her head. Then she speculates on the future. What will her circumstances be if she divorces her husband? She figures out his wealth, counts the probable alimony she will be allowed, compares it with her present allowance, and finally comes to the conclusion that she will have more money and more freedom as a divorcée than she has at present—with always the hope that she may find another partner more congenial and with, perhaps, more money.

Doesn't Always Work.

"Careful analysis of the many cases well known to the courts and to the public proves that it does not always work. Innumerable cases have occurred where a wife has won her suit, the courts awarded her sufficient alimony to make her dreams come true, and fate, duplicity, and circumstances have stepped in to thwart them."

At the time of her victory, Mr. Livy explains, the husband may be in a position to pay the alimony. He may intend in all honesty to pay it, yet he may lose his fortune, take the case into court again and prove that he is unable to meet this obligation, and the alimony may be reduced.

On the other hand, he may sense the idea of being taken advantage of, transfer his interests in some way, reopen the suit, and gain some reduction of alimony.

Francs Instead of Dollars.

"I have a case in mind," continued Mr. Livy, "where a man was ordered to pay his wife a certain amount in dollars each month. He went to France, and now, instead of paying his wife dollars, pays her francs, as he asserts his money has been converted into francs. When you calculate the franc in its present relation to the dollar you can readily see this woman's income has been reduced by an enormous percentage. She is compelled to go to France and take up her residence there to live within her means.

"Another case I have in mind was a celebrated case some years ago which stirred both the social and financial centers of this country. This husband was a member of a firm of stock brokers, with millions of dollars behind them. He was getting an income from his business of over a hundred and fifty thousand a year. The wife was exceedingly vindictive and insisted, against the advice of all her friends, on naming the co-respondent. An offer was made her by the husband of five hundred thousand dollars cash to refrain from naming the other woman. But she was so filled with hate and revenge she refused to accept it.

"The case had a sensational trial. The lives of her own children and the child of the co-respondent were overshadowed by the scandal brought out in open court and she won her suit, being awarded thirty thousand dollars a year alimony. Immediately after the trial the husband was thrown out of the company. He had to fall back on his capital and the last I heard of the case the wife was suing for back payment on a yearly alimony of thirty-five hundred dollars a year.

"These experiences are well to bear in mind," Mr. Livy pleads. "Any education we can give which will make men and women hesitate to enter into the marriage state without the thought of its being an enduring state will help to reduce the number of divorces in the world. Marriage is a holy sacrament, and should be entered into only on the basis of deep regard and affection.

"Speculation as to material gain places it in the category of immorality and gross materialism, and should be stamped with this stigma."

Figures Don't Tell All.

In 1916 while the United States had 112,036 divorces, Canada had only 57. In other words, allowing for difference in population, we had 120 divorces to every one beyond our northern boundary, among a people in every material respect except legislation similar to our own.

Startling as these figures are, Mr. Livy says, they can no more tell the whole story of shame and secret agony among innocent sufferers — children, parents, near relatives—than the bare number of casualties in a battle can make us visualize the pains and horrors of the dying and the lifelong sorrow of surviving friends and lovers.

Many a married woman is a true heroine. Many a one suffers untold misery rather than bring unhappiness to her children by bringing her troubles to the divorce court.

DORIS BLAKE'S ANSWERS TO LOVE PROBLEMS

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply, please send a stamped, addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

The Eternal Riddle.

"Dear Miss Blake: What do you think of a critical and discerning man's falling in love with a girl almost at first sight, after a separation from the society of women for many months? Would this long period of thoughtful solitude tend to sharpen his judgment so that he would know immediately that this girl was meant for him, or merely to intensify his sex hunger to such a degree that he would fall in love with any girl he met, regardless of what her personality might be? PERPLEXED."

Why try to analyze the emotion, Perplexed? The wisdom of all the sages combined has not yet proven equal to the task of explaining why a man falls in love with a girl on first sight, second, or after a long period of propinquity. Sufficient to the day that he has fallen a victim to love. Let the tomorrow prove as best it may the motive of appeal.

Diet the Answer.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young girl in my teens, rather plump and short, weighing about 180 pounds. I try all methods of getting thin, but my case seems to be hopeless. I am in love with a tall, slim fellow who says he likes me as I am. All my friends joke and "kid" me about him. What do you think I ought to do—give him up? I think it would break my heart, but I can hardly stand the joking of my friends. I hope you may be able to advise me. L. H."

Why give up the chap? Give up some of the pounds! My neighbor, Antoinette Donnelly, makes flesh losing appear an easy enough job with only personal vanity to inspire one. With a young man's heart at stake surely the spirit never could be so weak as not to be willing to diet?

Nature—
The Supreme Cosmetician

Nature is the artist of the ages. She paints in colors of matchless beauty. Her masterpiece is youth.

Man cannot hope to surpass her art. For the roseleaf loveliness of a girlish cheek, a bizarre mask of a complexion must always be a poor makeshift.

Yet, happily for the desire feminine to remain forever young, there are toilet requisites which assist Nature in bringing out your true, natural beauty!

Thus subtly do LUXOR REQUISITES aid Nature. Matching the shade of the blood glowing through the skin, LUXOR ROUGE PARFAIT, in any light, brings forth the natural, delicate flush of health. The feathery, clinging softness of LUXOR COMPLEXION POWDER adds that even, velvety texture, so needlessly the despair of middle age.

Constance Binney in Charming Mood

"THREE O'CLOCK IN THE MORNING"

Produced by Greaver. Directed by Kenneth Webb. Presented at outlying theaters.

THE CAST.

Betty Winthrop	Constance Binney
Mr. Winthrop	Edmund Breeze
Mrs. Winthrop	Mary Carr
Betty	Edna May Oliver
Clayton Webster	Richard Thorpe
Hugo Strohm	William Bailey
Micky Flynn	Russell Griffin

By Mae Tinee

BETTY WINTHROP wanted to be "understood"! She wanted to dance till 3 o'clock in the morning where she wanted and when she wanted without anybody worrying about it. Nothing wild about Betty except the big idea that if she wanted to be wild she should be permitted that liberty.

CONSTANCE BINNEY gives a real performance of the girl who liked to dance.

Betty was engaged to a nice young man who loved her but WHO DIDN'T APPROVE of the company or the hours she kept. He and her parents established a little vigilance committee which Betty couldn't buck. All she could do was to leave home—for the folks at home wouldn't stand for goings on.

So—she packed her little grip
And she took a little trip
To the Big City!

Here she found out a thing or two. (As others have done before her.) Theatrical managers hadn't heard of the fact that Betty Winthrop from "——" was a good dancer and they had office boys who had learned from the cradle just how to keep GIRLS WHO ARE ANXIOUS TO GET ON—from getting IN. She discovered that money goes fast; that landladies have a habit of raising rent; that friends of sunny days are apt to disappear when it rains. So, believe her Betty, she was good and glad to get a job as waitress in an all night café!

She Was Young and Trusting

She met there a certain young man who knew she could dance. Before Betty was quite aware of what had happened to her—there she was entertaining in a frivolous cafe—fondly believing that her salary was being paid by the manager. (Ha! and, again, Hah! We know who was paying it.)

Of course, it wouldn't be according to cinema Hoyle if the payer didn't endeavor after a while to get the trusting payee to do a little paying back on her own account.

Well—nothing doing so far as Miss Betty Winthrop was concerned. (She was not that kind of a girl.)

Do you think she went back to home and mother—and father who was so stern and the young man who had such STRICT IDEAS? Do you think she DIDN'T?

You have gathered by this time that there's nothing startlingly original about the plot of "Three O'Clock in the Morning." However, the story is well acted and Miss Binney is charming and real throughout. The director did the best he could with the scenario and there's nobody around just

Barbara La Marr Forsakes Hollywood for Manhattan

By Mildred Spain.

LOS ANGELES.—[Special Correspondence.]—When Barbara La Marr marries, a million bachelors sigh. When Babara La Marr divorces, a million bachelors take hope, and sob sisters write of the too beautiful woman. When Barbara La Marr leaves Hollywood for Manhattan, the film colony gathers 'round for her farewell dinner.

BARBARA LA MARR. Cocoanut Grove was the scene of her farewell dinner.

It was Paul Bern, the director and scenario writer, who gave the dinner on Friday night at Cocoanut Grove. More than 150 people were there, notably Elinor Glyn and her daughter and son-in-law, Lady and Sir Rhys Williams, also Anita Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lubitsch, Carmel Myers, Pola Negri, Phyllis Haver, Helen Ferguson, Zasu Pitts, and Tom Gallery Pauline Garon, Helen Lynch, Corinne Griffith, Anne Cornwall, Joe Jackson, Maurice Tourneur, Lew Cody, Ben Lyon, Ramon Novarro, and Mr. and Mrs. Erich Von Stroheim.

Barbara never looked more beautiful than she did at her good-by party. Her gown was of white charmeuse and pearls, and a Dutch cap of pearls bound her hair.

Corinne Griffith was in orchid chiffon with ostrich and rhinestone trimming. Carmel Myers was in an effective gown of green brocade. Pauline Garon was in black satin. Zasu Pitts' gown was of lavender and gray. Pola Negri wore white with a huge diamond sunburst set in pearls which was given to her a little over a year ago by Charlie Chaplin.

Helen Ferguson worp canary colored chiffon and beads.

Anita Stewart was in white with her usual orchids.

Hollywood has been asking lately why Anita never appears in the evening without orchids. Is there some secret that only Anita knows? They may even have a sentimental attachment. She admits they come from New York. But further than that she will not say. It's a case of the gown's matching the orchids, not the orchids matching the gown.

Flappers the Guests of Honor.

Norma Talmadge gave a sumptuous flapper party for her flapper friends on Saturday night and invited a few of the younger married set to watch the fun. Norma had a Hawaiian band, a jazz band, and a fortune teller for her guests.

The flappers of the evening were Cecilia and Agnes De Mille, adopted daughters of Cecil De Mille; the daughter of Florence Lawrence, Alice; Carmelita Geraghty, and the leader of flappers the world over—sister Constance.

Theda Para, Anita Loos, Jack Mulhall, Buster Collier Jr., June Elvidge, Lou Tellegen, Kathleen Clifford, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Denny, Harry Brand, Eileen Percy, Conway Tearle and Adele Rowland, Trilby Clark, Eugene O'Brien, Baron Edward Gontaid, and Baron Erich Von Barmakow of Berlin were there, too.

John Considine, manager of the Schenck studios, was the dinner partner of vivacious Carmelita Geraghty, and it isn't telling secrets to say that John is usually Carmelita's partner.

Norma was in flame colored chiffon and Constance in black lace. Eileen Percy who assisted Norma and Constance, was in black charmeuse and rhinestones.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Lee introduced the eleven o'clock din-

Inquiring the Effect of Radio Upon Music

By Edward Moore.

WHAT is the cause of the present musical slump? Any one who finds the correct answer to this question, also the way to obviate it, has a secret readily salable on the open market for about as much money as he cares to ask.

That there is a slump is without question. Musical attractions have hard going this season. Only a few of the best known attractions have had occasion to look with pleasure on their bank deposit books, and some of these are not as happy as they were last season at this time. It is here, and apparently it applies directly to music. Theatrical ventures, at least those with some degree of merit, are not complaining. Evidently, then, it is not a bad season for entertainment generally.

In the meantime, if you ask eighteen different people connected with the concert industry you will probably get eighteen different answers. Too much music, say some, with its special angle, too many foreign artists, from the native born. The booking managers and artists want too high fees, announce the local managers. The local managers do not know their own business well enough to get out the support that is there, answer the booking managers. Then they all join hands and gravely declare the radio has wrecked everything.

As this is the one item on which there is any agreement, it is worth investigating. When you come to investigate, however, there is strangely little evidence, plenty of opinion, but a small amount of proof. Within a comparatively short time two operatic managers and one orchestral manager have told me the same thing in almost the same language. They have said that if they permitted a performance of theirs to be broadcast, people all over Cook county and the surrounding neighborhood would put on their ear pieces and not come to the hall, leaving an expensive performance with no income.

Still a Matter of Conjecture

It can be conceded that radio fans would not pay money for tickets if they could hear without paying, but whether they would come at all is something of a Scotch verdict, not proven. Offhand one would say that, deprived of this particular operatic or orchestral performance, they would tune in on St. Louis or Pittsburgh or make an attempt at picking Los Angeles out of the air to find out what is doing there. At any rate they have not been coming to the opera house and the concert hall. That, too, is undeniable.

On its face the radio question as applied to concert patronage has a striking resemblance to the talking machine question, and one's memory does not have to go back so many years to recall that precisely the same arguments were used for these devices. At that time heads wagged in the market places, declaring the records would ruin the concert business for ever and aye.

But it worked out in precisely the reverse form. With little respect for predictions, the record business and the concert business began to increase together. Recitals spread as they had never spread before. Even in this unprosperous

Mrs. Fiske as the Mother of Two Young Progressives

By Burns Mantle

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—In the new comedy called "Helena's Boys", Mrs. Fiske bravely fills her tummy with cider and pretends to be gorgeously illuminated.

She is the mother of two young progressives who have confounded her with their talk of the new freedom and what it is going to mean in encouraging the expression of the individual.

MRS. FISKE playing in a new comedy entitled "Helena's Boys." [Apeda Photo.]

Let the young folks run the world a few years, and there will be no soul destroying restraints moral or physical, say they. So Helena takes them at their word.

Dumping the Scotch whisky out of the bottle it came in, she has it filled with cider, and that night at dinner with her oldest and most exasperating son she tosses off several goblets.

Not only does she acquire the furry sibilant and a desire to kiss her neighbor but she proceeds to a complete confession. She may look like a good woman, she admits, but she isn't. In her soul she is rebellious, and, come Thursday, she intends taking up with the man she has always loved, the village umbrella manufacturer.

They will live together openly, says she, as a living tribute to the beautiful truths the onrushing progressives have taught them. The new freedom is shertinly glorush.

Still Our Most Intelligent Comedienne

It is, naturally, a big comedy scene in the new Fiske play, written by a New Yorker named Ida Lubienski Ehrlich. But, fortunately, it is not all "Helena's Boys" has to offer.

The dialogue is smart, the first act particularly amusing and lively, and the argument interesting. It is not likely to be one of the bigger Fiske successes, but it will find many old folks like us who will approve of it because it puts the young smarties in the wrong, and it will please such youngsters as see it by proving conclusively to them that we are quite as idiotic as they have always contended.

Mrs. Fiske has a lot of fun with the drink scene and practically apologizes for it a moment later when she makes her curtain talk. She is still our most intelligent comedienne.

Assisting her, Reginald Sheffield, just grown up, is beautifully serious as the important older son. William Courtleigh is the anchor man of the cast.

The Ancient Mariner a la O'Neill

In the laboratory theater of the Provincetown Players, where Eugene O'Neill is fair reveling in the first commercial theater over which he can wave either wand or bludgeon as he wills, they are offering a dramatic version by O'Neill of Coleridge's "The Ancient Mariner."

"I pass like night, from land to land; I have strange power of speech; that moment that his face I see, I know that man that must hear me: To him my tale I teach."

It is rather impressively read, the rime of the hoary ancient who stopped and startled the innocent wedding guest and filled him full of as mysterious and fascinating a tale of the sea as ever has been told.

At the Provincetown he stands at first upon a sort of pedestal, his ragged beard spread across his breast, his staring eyes alight. He moves forward to the forestage and stops the

Something Else as to the World's Best Actors

By Frederick Donaghey.

AMONG the wise admonitions of the late Oscar Hammerstein was this: "Don't try to scold the public into the theater!" He tried, in the days when he was giving good opera with unfair rewards, and found that it was no good as a corrective. What he said is a good thing to keep in mind when one feels irked at such inhospitable exhibitions as Chicago's in the matter of the Russian actors. Fewer persons were in attendance last week with three-fifty as the cost of the best seats than in the corresponding period of last year's visit, when five dollars was charged. Of the four plays acted, three were new here in any tongue, and the other was the especial piece, "The Lower Depths," wherein the Russian language matters least to those who do not speak it, so "universal" is the matter of Gorky's drama, and so vivid and clear is the manner of the actors as, performing it, they make it into one of the unforgettable adventures of the theater. . . .

Chicago's capacity for staying away is not easily explicable; but Chicago is staying away. Save for the actors' fellow-countrymen, I have seen at the performances few of the persons I expected to see, and none of the many who have talked to me through the years of the wonders of Russian art in all its aspects.

I looked about the Great Northern Thursday afternoon, when the other theaters were closed, thinking to find the English-speaking players eager for the opportunity to see what is at once the most celebrated and the best of acting ensembles. I discerned three actors in the sparse audience—Miss Claire, Mr. McRae, and young Mr. Kelly, now of "Little Jessie James." I had passed three others in the foyer as I entered, and heard them profanely complaining because they were denied seats for nothing. These damned foreigners, the offended Thespians argued as they took the air, have a nerve to come over here and put on side; whereas, if we hadn't let them come in, they would probably be starving in Russia. And so-on. . . .

In a minor lifetime of experience with the stage in all its aspects, I have encountered none of its votaries who could not have bettered his talents in an hour or two spent in observation of the Moscow company. This is true as to the practiced playwrights no less than as to the actors and the stage-directors and what Bottom calls "the base mechanicals."

'Tis the How Rather Than the What.

My sought point is not that the Russians have anything to teach us in writing drama, as drama, but that they have a lesson for our playwrights in how to write for the actors. I do not believe that the plays in the Moscow répertoire as we get them are the plays as they were turned in by the respective authors. But what we get represents at least the painstaking, intelligent working-over of the plays to the requirements of the conventional theater; and a glory of the Russian visitors is that their theater is conventional, and differs in no important respect from the theater of this country, of England, of Germany, and of France. Their other glory is that they have perfected the technique of the

THE OUTLINE OF SCIENCE

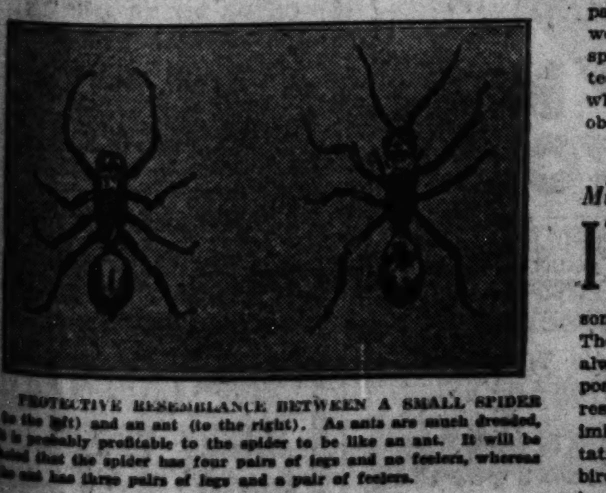
EDITED BY Professor J. ARTHUR THOMSON

A PLAIN STORY SIMPLY TOLD ...... XVII.—PROTECTIVE COLORATION

DR. H. O. FORBES tells of a flat spider which presents a striking resemblance to a bird's dropping on a leaf. Years after he first found it he was watching in a forest in the far east when his eye fell on a leaf before him which had been blotched by a bird. He wondered idly why he had not seen for so long another specimen of the bird dropping spider (Ornithoscatoides decipiens), and drew the leaf toward him. Instantaneously he got a characteristic sharp nip; it was the spider after all! Here the color resemblance was enhanced by a form resemblance.

But why should it profit a spider to be like a bird dropping? Perhaps because it thereby escapes attention; but there is another possibility. It seems that some butterflies, allied to our Blues, are often attracted to excrementitious material, and the spider Dr. Forbes observed had actually caught its victim. This is borne out by a recent observation by Dr. D. G. H. Carpenter, who found a Uganda bug closely resembling a bird dropping on sand. The bug actually settled down on a bird dropping on sand, and caught a blue butterfly which came to feed there!

Some of the walking stick insects, belonging to the order of crickets and grasshoppers (Orthoptera), have their body elongated and narrow, like a thin dry branch, and they have a way of sticking out their limbs at abrupt and diverse angles, which makes the resemblance to twigs close indeed. Some of these quaint insects rest through the day and have the remarkable habit of putting themselves into a sort of cataleptic state. Many creatures turn stiff when they get a shock, or pass suddenly into new surroundings, like some of the sand hoppers when we lay them on the palm of our hand; but these twig insects put themselves into this strange state. The body is rocked from side to side for a short time, and then it stiffens. An advantage may be that even if they were surprised by a bird or a lizard, they would not be able to betray themselves by even a tremor. Disguise is perfected by a remarkable habit, a habit which leads us to think of a whole series of different ways of lying low and saying nothing which are often of life preserving value. The top end of the series is seen when a fox plays 'possum.



PROTECTIVE RESEMBLANCE BETWEEN A SMALL SPIDER (to the left) and an ant (to the right). As ants are much dreaded, it is probably profitable to the spider to be like an ant. It will be noted that the spider has four pairs of legs and no feelers, whereas the ant has three pairs of legs and a pair of feelers.

The leaf butterfly Kallima, conspicuously colored on its upper surface, is like a withered leaf when it settles down and shows the under side of its wings. Here, again, there is precise form resemblance, for the nervures on the wings are like the mid-rib and side veins on a leaf, and the touch of perfection is given in the presence of whitish spots which are exactly like the discolorations produced by lichens on leaves. An old entomologist, Mr. Jenner Weir, confessed that he repeatedly pruned off a caterpillar on a bush in mistake for a superfluous twig, for many brownish caterpillars fasten themselves by their posterior claspers and by an invisible thread of silk from their mouth, and project from the branch at a twiglike angle. An insect may be the image of a sharp prickle or a piece of soft moss; a spider may look precisely like a tiny knob on a branch or a fragment of lichen; one of the sea horses (Phyllopteryx) has frondlike tassels on various parts of its body, so that it looks extraordinarily like the seaweeds among which it lives. In a few cases, e. g., among spiders, it has been shown that animals with a special protective resemblance to something else seek out a position where this resemblance tells, and there is urgent need for observations bearing on this selection of environment.

BANDED KRAIT: A POISONOUS SNAKE WITH ALTERNATING yellow and dark bands. It is exceedingly conspicuous, and may serve as an illustration of warning coloration. Perhaps, that is to say, its striking coloration serves as an advertisement, impressing other creatures with the fact that the Banded Krait should be left alone. It is unprofitable for a snake to waste its venom on creatures it does not want. [Photo: W. S. Berridge, F. Z. S.]

Mimicry in the True Sense.

IT sometimes happens that in one and the same place there are two groups of animals not nearly related which are doubles of one another. Investigation shows that the members of the one group, always in the majority, are in some way specially protected, e. g., by being unpalatable. They are the mimicked. The members of the other group, always in the minority, have not got the special protection possessed by the others. They are the mimickers, though the resemblance is not, of course, associated with any conscious imitation. The theory is that the mimickers live on the reputation of the mimicked. If the mimicked are left alone by birds because they have a reputation for unpalatability, or because they are able to sting, the mimickers survive—although they are palatable and stingless. They succeed, not through any virtue of their own, but because of their resemblance to the mimicked, for whom they are mistaken. There are many cases of mimetic resemblance so striking and so subtle that it seems impossible to doubt that the thing works; there are other cases which are rather far fetched, and may be somewhat of the nature of coincidences. Thus, although Mr. Bates tells us that he repeatedly shot humming bird moths in mistake for humming birds, we cannot think this is a good illustration of mimicry. What is needed for many cases is what is forthcoming for some, namely, experimental evidence, e. g., that the unpalatable mimicked butterflies are left in relative peace while similar palatable butterflies are persecuted.

It is also necessary to show that the mimickers do actually consort with the mimicked. Some beetles and moths are curiously wasplike, which may be a great advantage; the common drone fly is superficially like a small bee; some harmless snakes are like poisonous species; and Mr. Wallace maintained that the powerful friar birds of the far east are mimicked by the weak and timid orioles. When the model is unpalatable or repulsive or dangerous, and the mimic the reverse, the mimicry is called "Batesian" (after Mr. Bates), but there is another kind of mimicry called Müllerian (after Fritz Müller) where the mimic is also unpalatable. The theory in this case is that the mimicry serves as mutual assurance, the members of the ring getting on better by consistently presenting the same appearance, which has come to mean to possible enemies a signal, Noli me tangere ("Leave me alone"). There is nothing out of the question in this theory, but it requires to be taken in a critical spirit. It leads us to think of "warning colors," which are the opposite of the disguises which we are now studying. Some creatures like skunks, magpies, coral snakes, cobras, brightly colored tree frogs are obtrusive rather than elusive, and the theory of Alfred Russel Wallace was that the flaunting conspicuousness serves as a useful advertisement, impressing itself on the memories of inexperienced enemies, who soon learn to leave creatures with warning colors alone. In any case it is plain that an animal which is as safe as a wasp or a coral snake can afford to wear any suit of clothes it likes.

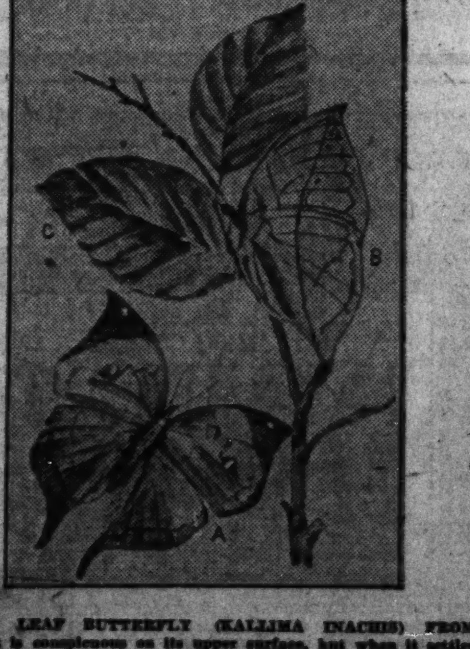
Masking.

THE episode in Scottish history called "The Walking Wood of Birnam," when the advancing troops masked their approach by cutting down branches of the trees, has had its counterpart in many countries. But it is also enacted on the seashore. There are many kinds of crabs that put on disguise with what looks like deliberateness. The sand crab takes a piece of seaweed, nibbles at the end of it, and then rubs it on the back of the carapace or on the legs so that it fixes to the bristles. As the seaweed continues to live, the crab soon has a little garden on its back which masks the crab's real nature. It is most effective camouflaging, but if the crab continues to grow it has to molt, and that means losing the disguise. It is then necessary to make a new one. The crab must have on the shore something corresponding to a reputation; that is to say, other animals are clearly or dimly aware that the crab is a voracious and combative creature. How useful to the crab, then, to have its appearance cloaked by a growth of innocent seaweed, or sponge, or zoophyte. It will enable the creature to sneak upon its victims or to escape the attention of its own enemies.



DEAD LEAF BUTTERFLY (KALLIMA INACHIS) FROM India: It is conspicuous on its upper surface, but when it settles down on a twig and shows the underside of its wings, it is practically invisible. The coloring of the under surface of the wings is like that of the withering leaf; there are spots like fungus spots; and the venation of the wings suggests the mid-rib and veins of the leaf. A, showing upper surface; B, showing under surface; C, a leaf.

If a narrow beaked crab is cleaned artificially it will proceed to clothe itself again; the habit has become instinctive, and it must be admitted that while a particular crab prefers a particular kind of seaweed for its dress, it will cover itself with unsuitable and even conspicuous material, such as pieces of colored cloth, if nothing better is available. The disguise differs greatly, for one crab is masked by a brightly colored and unpalatable sponge densely packed with flinty needles; another cuts off the tunic of a sea squirt and throws it over its shoulders; another trundles about a bivalve shell. The facts recall the familiar case of the hermit crab, which protects its soft tail by tucking it into the empty shell of a periwinkle or a whelk or some other sea snail, and that case leads on to the elaboration known as commensalism, where the hermit crab fixes sea anemones on the back of its borrowed house. The advantage here is beyond that of masking, for the sea anemone can sting, which is a useful quality in a partner.

That this second advantage may become the main one is evident in several cases where the sea anemone is borne, just like a weapon, on each of the crustacean's great claws. Moreover, as the term commensalism (eating at the same table) suggests, the partnership is mutually beneficial. For the sea anemone is carried about by the hermit crab, and it doubtless gets its share of crumbs from its partner's frequent meals. There is an interesting sidelight on the mutual benefit in the case of a dislodged sea anemone which sulked for a while and then waited in a state of preparedness until a hermit crab passed by and touched it. Whereupon the sea anemone griped and slowly worked itself up on to the back of the shell.

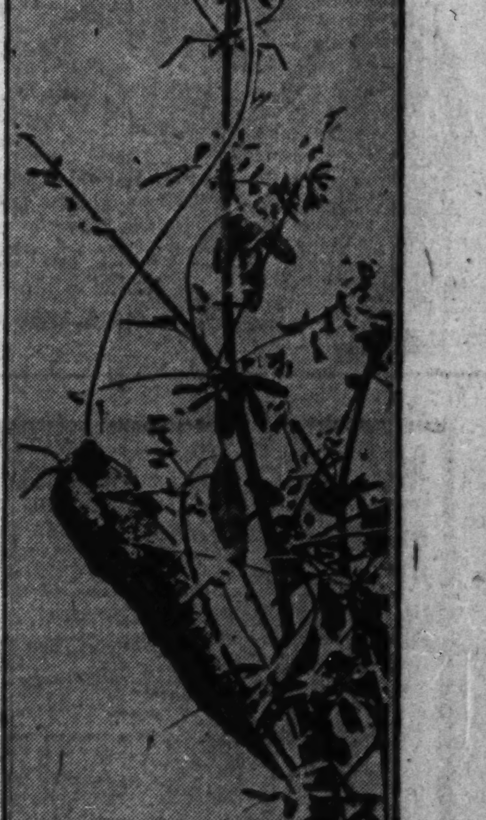
Other Kinds of Elusiveness.

THERE are various kinds of disguise which are not readily classified. A troop of cuttlefish swimming in the sea is a beautiful sight. They keep time with one another in their movements and they show the same change of color almost at the same moment. They are suddenly attacked, however, by a small shark, and then comes a simultaneous discharge of sepia from their inkbags. There are clouds of ink in the clear water, for, as Prof. Hickson puts it, the cuttlefishes have thrown dust in the eyes of their enemies. One can see a new born cuttlefish do this a minute after it escapes from the egg.

Beautiful is the way in which many birds, like our common chaffinch, disguise the outside of their nest with moss and lichen and other trifles felted together, so that the cradle is as inconspicuous as possible. There seems to be a touch of art in fastening pieces of spider's web on the outside of a nest!

How curious is the case of the tree sloth of South American forests, that walks slowly, back downwards, along the undersides of the branches, hanging on by its long, curved fingers and toes. It is a nocturnal animal, and therefore not in special danger, but when resting during the day it is almost invisible because its shaggy hair is so like certain lichens and other growths on the branches. But the protective resemblance is enhanced by the presence of a green alga, which actually lives on the surface of the sloth's hairs—an alga like the one that makes tree stems and gate posts green in damp weather.

There is no commoner sight in the early summer than the cuckoo spit on the grasses and herbage by the wayside. It is conspicuous and yet it is said to be left severely alone by almost all creatures. In some way it must be a disguise. It is a sort of soap made by the activity of small frog hoppers begin to hop. The insect pierces with its sharp mouth parts while they are still in the wingless larval stage, before they the skin of the plant, and sucks in sweet sap which by and by overflows over its body. It works its body up and down many times, whipping in air, which mixes with the sugary sap, reminding one of how whipped egg is made. But along with the sugary sap and the air there is a little ferment from the food canal and a little wax from glands on the skin, and the four things mixed together make a kind of soap which lasts through the heat of the day.



PROTECTIVE RESEMBLANCE: HAWK MOTH, SETTLED down on a branch, and difficult to detect as long as it remains stationary. Note its remarkable sucking tongue, which is about twice the length of its body. The tongue can be quickly coiled up and put safely away beneath the lower part of the head. [Photo: J. J. Ward, F. E. S.]

There are many other modes of disguise besides those which we have been able to illustrate. Indeed, the biggest fact is that there are so many, for it brings us back to the idea that life is not an easy business. It is true, as Walt Whitman says, that animals do not sweat and whine about their condition; perhaps it is true, as he says, that not one is unhappy over the whole earth. But there is another truth, that this world is not a place for the unlit lamp and the ungirt loin, and that when a creature has not armor or weapons or cleverness it must find some path of safety or go back. One of these paths of safety is disguise, and we have illustrated its evolution.

"And the Wig Came Back"

There's an honest lady living somewhere in Evanston. She returned one of Topsy's wigs, signing no name to her lettter, yet stating she had a lot of fun with the wig. "Whoever you are," says Topsy (Rosetta), referring to the Evanston lady, "let me know for Eva (Vivian), and myself would like to have you as our guests at dinner." Two of Topsy's wigs are still out. Wait until you see Topsy's Easter Sunday night wig! Who said this isn't a wondrous engagement?

Things of the Theater, and the Persons Thereof

theater without departing from its obvious, traditional, and accepted possibilities. . . .

As to plays, they have as yet given to us nothing not to be classified as ordinary. Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People," which they are to do tomorrow night, is a better play than any of Tchekhoff's so far made known in Chicago. "The Lower Depths," of which I never tire when they perform in it, is an exhibition rather than a drama: it is a sort of musée wherein Gorky has assembled the curios picked up by him in his search for justification of his social attitude. "The Death of Pazukhin," of which the actors make an evening of rich delight, is comic drama of no greater weight or depth than (say) last season's amusing "So, This Is London!": nothing more nearly apt comes to mind for comparison as I write. . . .

The Moscow actors make these plays seem far more important than they are. In their capacity for doing just this lies their magic. They make you forget that Tchekhoff's technique is juvenile: that he took to himself none of the instruction which Ibsen gave to the world in the art of construction and in the counterfeiting of verism so far as it may be counterfeited with the "fourth wall" missing.

Trying to Help.

Which, perhaps, is enough for today about the Russians; and I trust I have written something that will make for fewer empty seats in the new fortnight. . . . To those who have not been to any of their performances, it may be helpful to say that the scenario-like epitome of each play printed in the house-bill is a useful device for keeping pace with actors in an alien language, even if the play, itself, has not been read. All the plays are obtainable in English translation at thirty-five cents apiece.

The comedy in which Miss Barrymore is once again the Miss Barrymore of whom most of us approve is just one of those things, and will have been forgotten even by those who like it most ere the year is out. . . . And she need care a lot! The Harris, I am told, is sold out for all her performances.

May God send a good play to her ere she return!

THIS-AND-THAT

WHEN the musical-comedy version of "My Lady-Friends" is brought hither, it will be known as "No! No, Nonette!" Also, it will be housed in the Harris instead of at the Cort, as at first indicated. . . . The original was an adapted Hungarian farce, in which Clifton Crawford played the season before his death. Jack Norworth later acted in it in this city.

A tragedy in pantomime called "Ashes of Love," by Hubert Schmit and John McMahill Jr., will be made known the afternoon of the 24th instant in the Studebaker. It is on the Pierrot-Pierette theme.

William A. Brady modifies his promise to take part in the revival of "Leah Kleschna" by saying that he will do so only as Arnold Daly's understudy in case the latter prove unruly. . . . The first of the stars and near-stars to fuss was Arnold Korff, from Vienna: he walked right out, turned around, and walked right in again.

Other springtime revivals talked about in New-York are one of Pinero's "Trelawney of the Wells," one of "Rip Van Winkle," with Francis Wilson in the title rôle, and one of Ibsen's "Hedda Gabbler." . . . When last revived in this country, "Trelawney" had Miss Barrymore in the name-part, first acted in this country by Miss Mary Mannering.

The revival of "Macbeth," in which James K. Hackett has been seeking to do something for the actors' union, is among the Manhattan casualties. . . . Others which ceased to exist last night were "The Main Line" and "Across the Street," whose author, Richard A. Purdy, is said to have received a prize of $3,000 from Chautauqua for it. . . . There is talk of refurbishing "The Main Line" and trying it again as "New Brooms."

Miss Anne Nichols, author and purser of "Abie's Irish Rose," announces her divorce from a gentleman named Henry Duffey; and Miss Margaret Lawrence, here in the Autumn in "Secrets," announces hers from Orson D. Munn, publisher of the Scientific American. . . . Mr. Munn has already taken to wife a chorister; and Miss Lawrence is expected to become Mrs. Wallace Eddinger.

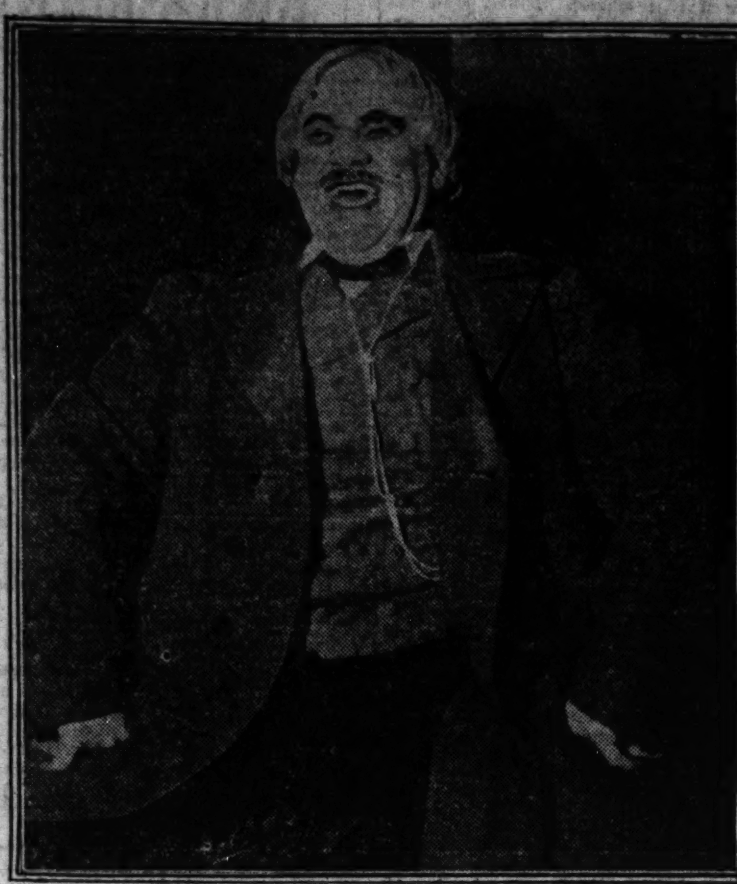
"The Schemers," in preparation for production in New-York, is said to be "a satire on drama-critics," and to treat 'em mean. It is by Dr. William Irving Sirovitch.

Heywood Broun, who wrote about the theaters for the New-York World, is to perform in a forthcoming revue. . . . Robert Benchley, who writes about them for Life, is important in the personnel of this season's Music Box Revue. . . . And Alexander Woollcott, who wrote about them for the late New-York Herald, recently took part in a benefit program as an actor.

From Mr. Woollcott comes a book made up of his articles about the drama and other things, and called "Enchanted Aisles," which is as good a title for a collection of the kind as Mr. Broun's "Seeing Things at Night."

Miss Rosamond Whiteside, who seemed to be clever when she was here in the Wilson-Hopper revival of "Erminie," is named as co-star with Harry Pilcer, once of Chicago, in a forthcoming Paris revue. She is the daughter of Walker Whiteside.

COMEDIANS OF THE WEEK



IVAN MOSKVIN

LEW FIELDS

MR. MOSKVIN is among the eminent players of the Moscow Art Theater, in whose répertoire he acts various and varied rôles. He is pictured here as Prokofy Ivanitch, the Old Believer in "The Death of Pazukhin," one of the comedies in the Russians' catalogue of plays. The piece will be repeated for the final time Wednesday night; and attendance on it is urged not only for the rich acting of this gifted comedian, but also because of the opportunity of seeing the Moscow players in a work unlike any other they have as yet acted in Chicago. . . . Another of Mr. Moskvin's celebrated parts is that of Luka, the gentle pilgrim in Gorky's "The Lower Depths," which is to be acted again Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Fields comes back Saturday night in "Henky," another new play: he has been in many since, just twenty years ago, he and Joe Weber ended the long partnership in fun and in business which reached its apex in the Weberfields, their celebrated company of travesty-players. Mr. Fields, meanwhile, has had a career as actor-manager, in which aspect he was a lavish and liberal provider of entertainment. . . . "Henky" is a new title for the piece first bulletined as "The Jazz King."

Stage-News

Sam Reed, a name long familiar in the playbills, died Friday. . . . Miss Haroldine Humphreys is another young woman who is to have a go at the rôle of the Nun in "The Miracle," which has had more than a hundred performances in New-York.

Another of the plays about golf, "Top-Hole," is, like "Kelly's Vacation," to be rewritten; and Miss Gladys Unger undertakes to do it. . . . "Pettie Darling" is the title of a fresh opus by Miss Margaret Mayo, who wrote "Baby Mine."

George White brings from Paris for the 1924 Scandals a show-girl whose name, he avers, is Nicotina. . . . Oliver White, a newspaper-writer in St.-Louis, is the author of a play called "John Draglund."

William Kent, here last autumn in a piece called "The Dancing Honeymoon" and known elsewhere as "Battling Buttler," is to be in "Rose-Marie," in which Miss Mary Ellis will adventure as a singing star. . . . Miss Ines Plummer, Louis Bennison, Albert Tervanier, and George W. Barnum are well-knowns in "The Dust-Heap," of which a great deal is expected when it is played in New-York.

Jack Hulbert, a London comedian who recalls in style the late Clifton Crawford, and Miss Cicely Courtneidge, one of the best soubrettes on the London stage, are coming over in the Autumn in an imported revue. . . . So is Harry Tate, a famous comic of the English music-halls.

An importation is an operetta about Offenbach, in the fashion of the piece we know as "Blossom-Time," which has Schubert as its central figure. . . . When the Shuberts revive "Old Heidelberg," it will be as a comedy with music. Miss Dorothy Donnelly is making the new version, to tunes by Sigmund Romberg.

Miss Ann Davis and Kenneth McKenna are to head the cast of "Catskill Dutch," last year's Harvard prize-play. . . . The title is the name of a religious sect down that way.

The Somerset
More than a Hotel—More than a Home
—Now Luxuriously Refurnished

THIS great structure, towering above Sheridan Road, is one of the show places of Chicago's fashionable North Shore. It is a Hotel—and yet much more than a hotel. It is a Home, too—and more than any home.

Let us tell you why.

There are the quiet repose and dignity of home, the glowing hospitality of home and the niceties and considerations of home. There is the same comfort, and more of it And besides, conveniences and comforts no home has, or can have.

Such as great dining rooms. Smart shops. Coffee shop. Such as a ballroom, a roof garden above Lake Michigan, a solarium. Such as a great, wind-swept bathing beach, privately enclosed.

Many Apartment Types

The Somerset is arranged for those who wish to live here a few days—or the rest of their days. Richly furnished single rooms. Two-room suites. And, two, three and four-room apartments with breakfast rooms and every kitchen convenience.

Study the typical apartment above. Note its convenience. Its light. Its ventilation. You cannot see its thick, rich rugs, its needle-point upholstered furniture. But they are there.

Services

Guest service at The Somerset includes linen, maid service, house service, gas, electricity, and refrigeration. These, of course, mean no additional cost.

Unique Location

The Somerset is 20 minutes from Chicago's business district by fast express elevated trains. Surface cars are but two squares distant. Motor coaches stop at The Somerset's door. A taxicab station is here.

It stands on Lake Michigan on one side and on Sheridan Road on the other. This is Chicago's most beautiful north-and-south boulevard. Smart shops and theatres are but five minutes' walk.

You are in the center of things at The Somerset—yet in your own private apartment, as removed from them as though miles and miles away.

Please Visit Us

Visit The Somerset today. Inspect the several choice apartment types. The moderate rentals will surprise and gratify you.

at present to kick about the photography.

The orchestra, however, missed a bet. For some reason or other it didn't play "Stay Home, Little Girl, Stay Home!" which would have been appropriate—like tuberoses at a funeral.

See you tomorrow!

Ask Me! Ask Me!

I. S.: George Seigmann plays the part of Lynch in "The Birth of a Nation." Yes, lots of folks felt just as you do. You were nice to add that last paragraph, I. S.;

CAROLINA: Miss Du Pont recently appeared in "The Man from Brodney's"—a Vitagraph picture. If you will address her in care of that company, Hollywood, Cal., I imagine she will receive your letter.

JESTER: All right. (But don't carry the joke too far.)

CAL J.: No doubt you're handsome—but Hollywood these days is the home of the handsome. Unless you have extraordinary talent, don't waste your money. You'd be lost among the hordes of other handsome hopefuls.

MABEL: My dear, stay in your own home puddle where, you say, you're "some frog." Out in California there are so many "dark girls with naturally wavy hair and ambition" that I'm afraid you'd find yourself lost. Anyway—think how lonesome Jake would be—and he DOES sound so nice—and sensible!

WESTCOTT: I get you all right, but I don't seem to like you.

R. M. F.: Ivor Novello took the part of the young minister in "The White Rose." What did you think of him?

JANICA H.: I hunted all over your letter for an address so that I could send you a personal reply—but it wasn't there. What's the idea, Janica? Don't you want to hear from the lady? I'm SO sorry about your illness! Just what happened? Please write more fully about yourself. I was so interested in your letter and comments, and would SO love to write you.

MOLLY O.: You sure are! What a wonderful time you must have had on your world tour. Missed the pictures, did you? I'm glad the department has so ardent an admirer and hope you'll have time to write again soon and tell me more of your experience abroad. The last time I heard of Monroe Salisbury he was appearing in "The Great Alone."

Voice of the Movie Fan

Thank You, Steve.

"Dear Mae: Pardon my intimacy, but I feel as though you are a big sister to me. I've been wanting to write you for some time to tell you how much I appreciate your little column and the pleasure derived from reading your criticisms. You certainly are partial to no one, and when you say a picture is good, I have always found it so. Another thing, you are outspoken—more power to you!

"Whenever I read an article of some one trying to pan you, I feel like licking them. I agree with you that "The Birth of a Nation" is our greatest film, and of the many hundreds of films I have viewed it ranks first; then comes "War Brides" with Nazimova Pola Negri in "Mad Love," and Gloria Swanson in "The Humming Bird."

"Until I saw "The Humming Bird, Gloria made no great impression on my mind, but now—O, now, I'll say I'm proud she is a native of Chi.

"If ever you need any help, you you sa ya picture is good, I have alto you, Mae. STEVE."

When in Doubt.

Dear Mae Tinée: Just a word to tell you how much I appreciate your photoplay recommendations. My course used to be when in doubt not to go. Now when in doubt I see what Mae Tinée says. Your tips always mean enjoyable evenings. The last one, "The Blizzard," was sure a live one!

I sympathize with many of your correspondents in their objections to the side shows. To have the effect of a fine drama spoiled by a punk comedy is like spoiling a fine dinner with an ill chosen dessert; or like the finding of a rank vegetable in a bunch of American beauties. I wonder would it pay to have a movie theater devoted only to the picture?

With reference to "The Blizzard," how much more enjoyable it would have been if there had been a violin. The organ could hardly interpret the girl's playing. Anyway, Miss Tinée, boost for an exclusive picture theater; a movie playhouse with an orchestra, but all the hodge podge left out. Wouldn't that be grand? Would such a theater be profitable? I'll say it would! Call it "The Mae Tinée."

R. A. J.

[Editor's Note—Only extreme modesty keeps me from agreeing with you regarding the name.]

'Rah for Dorothy!

"Dear Miss Tinée: It was with a feeling of resentment that I read Shingled's slangy, disgusting letter in THE TRIBUNE. For one so maliciously prejudiced against Dorothy Mackaill I suppose there is no hope, but let me here and now say that as far as I and many of my friends and family are concerned, we think Miss Mackaill is the coming star of the cinema.

"I have seen every picture she has been in and some of them twice, and receive more pleasure from watching two or three of her scenes than I do in witnessing three or four pictures of some would-be emotional stars. She is as charming in gingham as she is in the robes of a princess, and greater test hath no woman. Her naturalness is her greatest asset, and she makes of her love scenes beauty and sweetness instead of the sexy, sensual ones we see in some productions.

"Well, Miss Tinée, I could just rave on and on, but your time is precious, so will close, with three cheers for Dorothy Mackaill. More power to her.

"A. M. K."

Asleep on the Job.

Dear Mae Tinée: The girl who played the rôle of the daughter of Mary Alden and Huntley Gordon in "Pleasure Mad" had bobbed hair in one scene, and after her episode in the room at the party she had long hair, and it was all down and hanging about her face. Of course, this added greatly to the picture, but I think the script clerk was asleep at the job.

MARION.

Liked "The Virginian."

Dear Miss Tinée: Ever since I read your wonderful criticism of "The Virginian," I have wanted to write you and let you know how much I enjoyed that classic. I had read the book, and from experience fully expected to be terribly disappointed in the pictured version. That Kenneth Harlan was cast as the hero caused me no little concern. I never fancied Mr. Harlan until I saw him enact the role of the Virginian so beautifully. Florence Vidor has always had a soft spot in my heart. She is beautiful and yet aristocratic, isn't she?

"And, again, I was wild about Ponjola. Anna Q. used to belong to the dumb but gorgeous class, but no longer. She's got me.

And in closing I would say a word far Louise Fazenda, Hallam Cooley, and Harry Myers. Any bits they do almost [not quite] outshine those done by the star.

Here's to you, Miss Tinée, and your column! Long may you both live!

MARY BEE.

[Editor's Note: Thanks, Mary Bee—and a heartful of good wishes right back at you.]

Patted on the Back.

Dear Miss Tinée: Your article with reference to the picture "Scandal" and Gloria Swanson exactly describes my feelings regarding that actress in every picture I have seen her in.

If I had the ability to describe her and her attempt at acting so well I would have written you ere now, but, thanks to you, my feelings are recorded in your article, which hits the nail on the head. J. E. C.

KICK KORNER FOR MOVIE FANS

ITS OBJECT—OBJECTION.

Matter of Taste.

Dear Miss Tinée: My wife and I are movie fans and take some exception to your criticism of "Flaming Passions." Your remarks made one feel the same as you do of the picture—something is missing. Here is a splendid picture, devoid of fights, melodrama, and unreasonable climaxes, but still you say—"But! O, well——" leaving the reader in doubt whether it is really worth while. In our opinion it is one of the best and most wholesome pictures of the season, and the same type as "Boy of Mine" and "Brass." In addition to the splendid work of Irene Rich and Monte Blue, a new one to us is Norma Shearer, whose acting was extremely clever. Mark McDermott and Alex Francis also always add to a good picture. F. H.

[Editor's note: Thanks for your interest. We can't always agree, you know.]

His First Offense.

Dear Miss Tinée: Maybe you are tiny for all I know. You may be a heifer weighing 180 pounds on the hoof, but that is nobody's business but your own.

I am a regular reader of your column and I enjoy it. I never wrote to you before, but here is where I make a kick.

I've seen "The Lullaby." How does a picture like that get by the censor? If the husband in the picture would have been an American he would be freed on the plea of "the unwritten law." G. M.

[Editor's note: Not necessarily.]

Differs on One Point.

Dear Miss Tinée: I am a social service worker and have little time for newspapers. After murders, scandals, and such are out there is little left, anyhow, save advertising space. News today is history tomorrow and so much depends upon the attitude of the editor. So when I pick up the paper it is usually for two sections—a hasty glance over the picture section on the back and your column.

You and I agree to disagree just once. I never saw much in Rudolph Valentino to admire. He reminds me of a peacock strutting along as if he were a young god. Lew Stone, Thomas Meighan, Milton Sills, and Conway Tearle are men who have a superior atmosphere about them; it seems their dignity becomes them instead of an acquired coat of varnish. Bow Wow.

[Editor's Note: Woof! Glad to meet you. Come again to the corner with friendly, wagging of tail.]

wedding guest before he can enter the door of a house through the windows of which the bridal festivities may be vaguely glanced.

"O Wedding Guest! this soul hath been alone on a wide, wide sea. So lonely 'twas, that God himself scarce seem-ed there to be."

Against a deep and colorless sky the appears the gostly, all but ghastly, crew, each man wearing a modified Greek mask—the better, Mr. O'Neill believes, to indicate the mood.

"The fair breeze blew, the white foam flew, the furrow followed free; we were the first that ever burst into that silent sea. Down dropt the breeze, the sails dropt down; 'twas sad as sad could be. And we did speak only to break the silence of the sea."

Subscribers Delighted.

And so the tale is told with simple dramatic eloquence, considerably heightened by a skillful handling of the lights and the division of the action into scenes separated only by a few seconds' complete blackness. Being told, it is as simply finished.

"Farewell, farewell! But this I tell to thee, thou wedding guest! He prayeth well who loveth well both man and bird and beast. He prayeth best who loveth best all things, both great and small; for the dear God who loveth us He made and loveth all."

The crowd, mostly subscribers up to now, have included the "Mariner" in their Lenten devotions. In fact, it probably is not too much to say that attendance upon the reading of the poem will constitute their only devotions.

E. J. Ballantine reads the Coleridge verse beautifully. Not since George Gaul did similar justice to "The Book of Job" at another theater service some years back have the oldtimers and newcomers of the playgoing group been given so pleasant a thrill, coupled with so satisfying a sense of spiritual uplift.

Many of them looked quite holy as they emerged into Macdougal street, and started for "The Painted Rabbit."

Morris Gest Right.

"The Miracle" seems likely to become a sort of permanent exhibit in New York, like the Metropolitan museum, Rodman Wanamaker, and "Abie's Irish Rose."

Morris Gest is again insisting it will positively not be shown in any other American city, but will run on at the Century as long as the weekly receipts meet the cost of maintenance. And then be scrapped.

Knowing as I do how frequently the Gest laid plans of gang aft agley, I recently chided the impresario about this statement.

"Come now," said I, "or something like, "don't tell us you are not going to move this Reinhardt piece at least to Chicago! You could rebuild the Auditorium interior, draw crowds from the entire middle west, and pay off the first mortgage in no time."

"No, I assure you," said Morris; "I assure you this is the only place I can do it properly, and I am too proud to do it otherwise. What's the use? I would be unhappy; Chicago would be unhappy; nobody would be satisfied. Can money pay for that? No!"

As a matter of truth, I think Morris Gest is burdened with a subconscious fear of getting out of debt. There is a martyrdom in being the victim of an artistic failure that intrigues his soul.

If "The Miracle" should run the summer through to, say, receipts of $50,000 a week, and then go on running at the same rate until the $400,000 or $500,000 spent in its production was paid off, I'm sure he would be the most unhappy of men. Never having been associated with an artistic success that paid for itself, he would be certain to feel that something was wrong with it. And might hang himself from the rafters.

SIREN

BYRON RIVERS.

[Baymor Photo.]

This melting creature will appear at the Aryan Grotto theater tomorrow night as "leading lady" in the Haresfoot club's twenty-sixth annual production, "Twinkle Twinkle." The Haresfoot club is a University of Wisconsin organization, and Mr. Rivers is a sophomore at that institution. Very good as a girl, they say.

Mary's Madonna.

But, so long as the cathedral classic is making headway and a decent profit, without seriously threatening the capital deficit, Morris is happy and working beaverishly to increase the interest.

Last week he announced the engagement of Mary Garden to play the Madonna through the early summer weeks. This will naturally give him a new press attack and revive such lagging interest as the crowds hereabout may need.

The thought of Mary Garden as a Madonna is interesting. But I can't see just why the mere mention of that artist's engagement for this particular part should invariably be received with such excessive merriment as it has received down here.

"Mary Garden! Madonna! Ha, ha, ha!" they say.

And the none too serious lady who goes to the theater with me (when the radio is not working) suggested that perhaps, if Mr. Gest stepped lively, he could induce Frances White to play the nun and Eddie Cantor to act as the child.

Well, I suppose life is sufficiently serious to excuse such relief as we can summon.

With Miss Garden coming, the Princess Metchabelli will probably be leaving. Or so the princess assumes. She has been alternating the rôle with Lady Diana Manners. Last week she filed suit against Mr. Gest and his coproducers for a half million or so, alleging breach of contract. That's a good story, too. But don't risk eyestrain watching for the case to come to trial.

If Miss Garden does succeed the Princess Metchabelli she will have the easier of the two Madonna jobs. Metchabelli is the Madonna of the chair, sitting comfortably enthroned during the forty-five minute opening scene of the spectacle before she comes to life to relieve the escaping nun. But Lady Diana insists on standing—and if you do not think that hard, try it.

The Lightweight's Lament.

We have a new music piece at the Casino called "Paradise Alley," and any little playgoer who cannot guess the rest of it without prompting will simply have to stay after school and see the teacher.

The heroine is an alley pet with stage ambitions. No. There you're wrong. The hero is not the son of a rich man. He is, much more reasonably, a lightweight champion pugilist who waves his own hair. We think he knitted his way to the top of his profession, but naturally we have no proof. Anyway, he broke right down and cried when his Bonnie went over the ocean.

Heroine to London as star of musical comedy hit, "The Gaiety Girl." Lightweight, retired under a top hat, follows two years later and all sing: "Any old alley is Paradise alley if your sweetie lives there." That at least is the idea.

Not a bad piece. Just usual. Songs and dances good. The Paradise number quite likely to prove a hit. Helen Shipman is the heroine—Helen having been a cutup for the Shuberts for some seasons back. Rather pert, she used to be. But she has sobered considerably, and is nice and mannerly in the early scenes of the alley play.

Assisting are Ida May Chadwick, a gifted dancer doubling in tough soubrette comedy. Ida is the kind of actress that does her best to save the reviewer work. He does not have to tell her she is good. She knows it. Carle Carlton is the producer. Charles Bell and Edward Clark wrote the book, and three composers, Carlton himself, Harry Archie, and A. Otvas the music.

Sunshine and Wide Windows

THERE is probably nothing in this world quite so cheerful as the clear sweeping rays of the sun. Nor is there anything quite so inviting as a room that responds to such cheer with its own warm, bright colors.

In the solariums of the Churchill this responsiveness is strikingly present. There are rugs that seem to be made of sunbeams and flowers—so profuse are the sunbeams and rosy reflection of draperies upon them. Bright little unexpected things are here—out-of-way nooks, decorative magazine tables, bits of lamps that bob back and forth like happy elves, glimpses of far-off tree tops, shades of blue that match the shining lake plainly seen through wide windows.

They are the out-of-doors themselves, these brightly furnished solariums. And they bespeak a cheer as genuine and warm as the sunshine.

The Churchill Apartment Hotel combines the service of a fine hotel organization with the comforts of a private home.

It is located in the city's most exclusive residential section, yet close to the shopping and theatre district.

Motor bus lines and surface cars are within two blocks.

Apartments of two to six rooms, handsomely furnished and all with completely equipped kitchenettes are available now at rates exceedingly moderate considering the location and type of accommodations offered.

Radio Question as Applied to Concert Going

season now waning the recital artists who have drawn the big audiences have without exception been the ones whose records have had the big sales

Then the psychologists began to evolve their theories. They discovered that records were educational. They learned that whereas in former times any one able to whistle an operatic aria was regarded as a queer person who spent much money in the strange expense of going to the opera, now people were learning to whistle them on every side, having learned them from the records; also that a certain percentage of those who took their music from the records had a new impulse, that of going to the opera house to find out how beautiful the music was when done in a big way; finally, that hearing a singer on a record was quite likely to arouse a desire to get a close-up sight of that singer.

Records have more than revitalized the business of giving opera, concerts, and recitals. They have remade the industry. It is now the day of the radio.

A Legislative Gesture.

Among its other activities congress now has before it a bill, senate 1320, to establish a national conservatory of music for the education of pupils in music and all its branches, "and for other purposes." It is sponsored by Senator Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida. Briefly, it provides for a board of regents, to consist of the President of the United States, the president of the senate, the speaker of the house, and the chairman of the committee on education; a director general, and an advisory board of fifteen directors. It is indorsed by the American Federation of Musicians, the American Federation of Labor, the National Federation of Music Clubs, music teachers' associations of a number of states, and many other organizations.

No one in his right mind would care to throw cold water on such a plan if there were the slightest prospect of its being carried out to success. Unfortunately the bill calls for an appropriation of $50,000 only, and its backers talk about getting contributions from philanthropic citizens to the extent of $2,500,000. For that reason alone it would seem to be little more than a gesture. Still, it is before congress, and has been there since 1918.

Beg Your Pardon.

This is an explanation of and a beg pardon for a combination of words that crept into the music column a few days ago. It happened while the San Carlo Opera company was here and in the report on that organization's performance of "Mme. Butterfly." The course of writing, always subject to interruptions, was unusually unquiet that night. Telephones rang, other messages came, the deadline constantly approached nearer. Between a half finished sentence and the telephone it occurred to the writer to make a reference to another deserted lady, one of legendary times, named Dido. There was another interruption, several more. The next day the reporter was appalled to see in print that in the confusion he had had a mental hiatus, and that instead of Aeneas, he had deliberately written the name of another Mediterranean tourist, Ulysses.

It was a complete lapse. But it was enough for R. H. L. and some of the other purveyors of daily humor. They climbed aboard with knives gleaming between their teeth. Being without exception 1924 models of the sheriff of Nottingham—this citation has been verified—it was their opportunity. The music department offers its apologies for the slip.

Mainly About Music.

Miss Harriet Monroe calls attention to an omission occurring in the programs of the Apollo Musical club last Monday night. "Resurgam" was credited to Henry Hadley alone, and no mention was made of the poet, Louise Ayres Garnett, an Evanstonian. The words of "Resurgam" first appeared in poetry, the issue of December, 1921. "Such flagrant neglect of the poet in musical publications and programs," says Miss Monroe, "does not tend toward that coöperation between poet and composer which is necessary to a truly American expression in these arts." The author's name appears on the published score of the work. It did not appear on the programs.

Two numbers appearing on the program of the Chicago Mendelssohn club at its last concert of this season on Thursday evening at Orchestra hall are old favorites revived by Harrison M. Wild, director of the club, in response to requests. One is "John Peel," an old English hunting song by Mark Andrews, last sung by the club in December, 1912; and the other is "The Vast, Unnumbered Throng," by Grieg. The latter number has been given by the club on several occasions, the most recent being in April, 1916.

Mr. Wild has listed several numbers which have not been presented in Chicago before. The feature number of the program will be "The Farewell of Hiawatha," the last canto of Longfellow's famous poem, with a musical setting by Arthur Foote of Brookline, Mass. John Charles Thomas, baritone, the guest soloist of the evening, will sing the obbligato. This number was presented once before by the club, in April, 1911, when Clarence Whitehill was the soloist and sang the obligato.

The semi-final week of the Chicago Symphony orchestra's season will have no soloist, but plenty of good music. Mr. Stock has included the Rimsky-Korsakow Suite, "Schéhérazade," Ernest Schelling's "A Victory Ball," Beethoven's second "Leonore" Overture, and three excerpts from Wagner's "Parsifal," the "Good Friday Spell," "Transformation," and "Glorification."

Reinald Werrenrath, singing baritone songs at Orchestra hall this afternoon, has an interesting looking program. Some traditional and historic works of the British islands will begin the list, to be followed by some lieder of the less frequently heard variety, a better known aria, "Vision Fugitive," from Massanet's "Herodiade," and some modern works that are apparently new. The last group includes settings of three Kipling poems.

TWO CHICAGO COMPOSERS

ALICE BROWN STOUT.
[Roehlk Photo.]

THEODORA TROENDLE.
[From a portrait by Carl Bohnen.]

They will appear this afternoon in neighboring theaters, and each will present several works from her own pen. Miss Stout, who will be at the Studebaker, is a soprano singer. Miss Troendle, at The Playhouse next door, is a pianist.

A Treat for the Feet

Natural (Plantation finished) Crepe Rubber

The Sole For All Wear

You wouldn't drive a motor car on hard pavements with hard tires, or "shoes"—would you? Nor would you ride in one without springs! Yet, if you have never worn a natural (plantation finished) Crepe Rubber Sole on your shoes you cannot realize the terrible, constant shocks to which you have subjected your body.

Is Your Body as Deserving as a Machine?

Even with the best of care a car lasts but a few years, at most. Your body, your nervous system must serve you throughout life. Preserve it!

Because it is light, flexible, resilient—full of nerve and life—Natural Crepe Rubber makes walking a real pleasure, even on the hardest pavements. The pure rubber heels distribute the impact of each step, the spring and resiliency under the ball of the foot give added length to your stride, and require less energy in walking or running, and prevent fatigue.

The non-skidding feature of Natural Crepe Rubber, together with its unprecedented durability make it the ideal soleing material for all occasions of wear, for each and every type of shoe.

Natural (Plantation finished) Crepe Rubber is 100% pure rubber—nothing added, nothing taken away—with all the natural rubber properties unimpaired. It is the pure latex of the rubber tree, freshly milled immediately after coagulation. It is live, full of nerve, subjected to no treatment subsequent to milling which would impair its original qualities.

Ask your shoe dealer to show you genuine Crepe Rubber Soles—the apparent advantages of this new product will convince you—a test will most certainly prove its superiority.

Natural Crepe Rubber has a peculiar gristly texture which gives unequalled durability, making the most economical sole in existence. The combination of lightness, flexibility, resiliency and particularly the unprecedented durability has made Natural Crepe Rubber the sensation of the entire Boot and Shoe Industry.

SANITAS
MODERN WALL COVERING

Does not need constant "doing over"

A touch of refinement is given any room whose walls are decorated with Sanitas Modern Wall Covering. Yet Sanitas is not an expensive luxury—it is an investment.

For keeping down the cost of constant re-decorating, nothing can compare with Sanitas. It is made on cloth, painted in durable oil colors, ready to hang. It does not crack, tear, peel, blister or fade, and can be kept fresh and clean merely by wiping occassionally with a damp cloth.

In one home, where it was hung 13 years ago, it is just as good as the day it was put up. In many cases even this record has been surpassed.

Sanitas comes in styles for every room in the house:

Enamel Finish for kitchens and bathrooms.
Flat Finish plain tints that can be hung as they come, or stenciled and frescoed.

"Keep Your Powder Dry"

The early American soldiers couldn't fight without dry powder. The "powder" of business today is its records—files—which are worthless unless ready for instant work. Executives who control the records and files are highly paid—a profession open to women, young or old, with ambition and ability to think. Finding a Profession instead of a job is an interesting book. Write or phone H. B. Norton for your copy.

Cook and Oatman:

"When my hair is fixed fancy I can sing much better."

"Then why don't you fix it fancy?"

"Because I'd have to wash it in order to do it and when I wash my head I cannot do anything with my hair."

"That reminds me, did you wash your neck?"

"O, of course I washed my neck."

"I thought so. When you wash your neck you can't do anything with your voice."

"I want you to understand that my voice is my fortune."

"If your voice is your fortune, you certainly are in debt."

"Some people sing because they enjoy it, and some sing because they think they ought to."

"And you sing for no reason at all."

"I sing for my own sake."

"You ought to stop it for the public's sake."

"Do you know, I never heard my own voice."

"If you did, you probably would not sing any more."

"Ah, you do not realize how we love our art. A vocalist's motto is 'Do or die.'"

"Most of them ought to die for what they do."

Music Notes

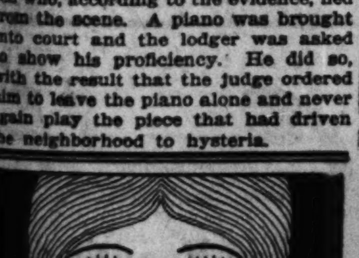
Two Chicago composers will introduce works from their own pens in this afternoon's recital list. One is Alice Brown Stout, soprano, who schedules a group of songs midway in her program and another song to conclude it. The other is Theodora Troendle, who takes the piano for her specialty. She includes two groups of varying character. In both cases the works that go to make up the remainder of the program are of the less frequently heard persuasion.

New York sends word of a new Russian Symphonic choir, conducted by Basil Kibalchich who, according to the report, has modeled it on the symphony orchestra, giving the different voices the value of the various orchestral instruments. He announces for performance choral transcriptions of piano or orchestral works by Schumann, Chopin, and Beethoven.

In speaking of the enthusiasm for choral singing in southern Russia, Mr. Kibalchich is quoted regarding his birthplace: "There is a saying in Tchernigov that each new born babe, judged by the tonal quality of its first cry, is immediately enrolled in the local choral society as tenor, soprano, baritone, or contralto, as the case may be."

Jean Chantavoine inquires in Le Courier Musical of Paris about the existence of post-war music, and pronounces himself surprised and pained over the outcome. There is more music of all kinds, operatic and symphonic, to say nothing of the cinema orchestra and a flood of dance music, but: "What one sought in the music of 1919 was some of that masculine gravity which touched the French soul during the war. In the young French composers are found traits which are diametrically opposite. After the war a deeper, nobler song was expected; instead the young musicians have written small works, short, dry, ironical; the world hoped for a symphony with chorus and it received a jazz band instead."

The Berliner Tageblatt relays a story of how the music of Beethoven got into an English police court. The complaining witness was a landlady, the defendant her lodger. Without missing a night he had practiced the "Moonlight" Sonata for several hours every evening for two years. It worked on the nerves of landlady and neighbors, and she called a policeman to listen who, according to the evidence, fled from the scene. A piano was brought into court and the lodger was asked to show his proficiency. He did so, with the result that the judge ordered him to leave the piano alone and never again play the piece that had driven the neighborhood to hysteria.



Long Dark Lashes Will Make Your Eyes Alluring

No picture is at its best unless it is in a suitable frame. And no eyes are as beautiful as they could be unless they are veiled by dark, lustrous lashes. Lovely lashes add mystery, depth. Without them your eyes lose half their expressiveness.

Make your eyes attractive by darkening the lashes with WINX. Applied with the glass rod attached to the stopper. WINX makes the lashes appear longer and heavier. Dries instantly, invisibly. Harmless, waterproof. Unaffected by perspiration, swimming or weeping at the theatre.

WINX (black or brown) 75c. To nourish the lashes and promote growth, use colorless Cream Lashlux at night. Cream Lashlux (black, brown or colorless) 50c. At drug, department stores or by mail.

Send a dime for a generous sample of WINX. For another dime you will receive a sample of Pert, the rouge that stays on until you remove it.

Film Folk Gather to Bid Barbara La Marr Farewell

ner to some film friends on Wednesday at the Biltmore. Thelma Morgan Converse was there in yellow panne velvet, escorted by C. Spencer Chaplin. Leatrice Joy wore a Boue Soeurs model of lace. Pink chiffon was worn by Blanche Sweet, and lovely Claire Windsor appeared in white with ostrich trimming. Florence Vidor wore a rhinestone trimmed gown with a bandeau of silver in her hair. Kathryn Hill was in orchid georgette, and there were real orchids in her hair.

Anita Stewart was in a chiffon gown of pastel shades—and orchids!

The less decorative guests were Mickey Neilan, Thomas Ince, George Fitzmaurice, Bert Lytell, Frank Borsage, and Emmett Flynn.

Kathlyn Key is packing for that trip abroad promised her by June Mathis. It was really Miss Mathis who chose Kathlyn for the role of "Tirzah" in Ben Hur.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Binney Earle gave Miss Key a buffet supper party on Sunday. Ramon Novarro and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Sills were among the celluloid incandescents present.

Kathlyn's birthday was on April 1.

The Stork Arrives.

At last the stork has started his star part in Hollywood. Earl Williams isn't jealous of him since he left a seven pound girl at the California hospital. Mrs. Williams was formerly Florine Walz of Brooklyn.

And then there's Pat O'Malley, who is going around boasting that three of a kind beats two pair. Mrs. O'Malley presented Pat with a third daughter last week. Eileen is 6, Sheila 2, and now Pat wants another Celtic name—Bridget? Monica? Patricia? Nora?

You send Pat a name. He can't think quickly enough. You see, Pat had the wrong kind of name picked out.

Tom Gallery is going to Chicago for April 23 when his sister Rose is to be married. Tom's father is a police captain in Chicago.

The Climbers gave a matinée party at the Mission theater to see Lillian Gish in "The White Sister," and later read criticisms of the opus. Lucille Ricksen and Alberta Vaughn weren't present, but I'll bet they agreed with Derelys Perdue, Kathryn McGuire, Shannon Day, Ena Gregory, and Charlotte Stevens, who were just mad over Lillian and thought Ronald Coleman stunning and the direction artistic and everything.

She Kissed Will Rogers.

There is one distinction that working as an "extra" brought Margaret Livingston that no other "extra," leading lady, or even star can lay claim to—and that is the distinction of having kissed Will Rogers.

It happened during the filming of "Water, Water Everywhere." Miss Livingston played the part of the young daughter of a big mine owner. Will Rogers, as a cowboy, sat on his horse off to one side, shy and bashful.

Clarence Badger was directing. He called Miss Livingston off to one side. "Now, when you have kissed your mother and father and the rest of them, run over to Bill, throw your arms around him, and kiss him—good and proper!" he instructed.

So, doing just as she was told, Miss Livingston rushed up to the nervous Bill, threw her arms around him, and kissed him again and again.

"And don't think for a minute it was an easy job," says the young lady. "Why, that man pushed me, shook me, and almost slapped me to make me stop—but I kept right on going until Mr. Badger told me to quit!"

Since that Mr. Rogers has always called Miss Livingston "Sourmash Nell."

OLD-TIMER

MISS MAYME GEHRUE
[Raymor Photo.]

She was one of the Gehrue Sisters in the variety-shows of the Eighteen-nineties, and later achieved an identity of her own by dancing at least as well as the best of her rivals. Fashions in dancing change, like fashions in all else; and, if you care for a taste of how she used to dance, she's at it again in "Topsy and Eva," wherein she is Eliza.

STAGE-NEWS

"The Silver Dancer," "The Bedouin Girl," "Pipsi," "The Dancing Mask," and "The Most Beautiful of Women" are the respective titles of five musical plays from Vienna which are bulletined for American staging by the Shuberts.

Leslie Faber, who acted in this country before the war, is coming back in "Havoc," a current London success. . . . "The Dance of Midnight" is a French melodrama announced for this country next season: Charles Mère wrote it.

"The Friend of His Excellency" and "The Lady with Two Hearts" are Continental farces mentioned for use here in the Autumn. . . . Miss Eleanor Painter, now singing in "The Chiffon Girl," is said to be headed for another piece, "The Javanese Doll."

"Ta-o-Ta," from Vienna, is among the announcements for this country. The author is Emmerich Foldes. . . . "Phi-Phi," a Paris operetta, was hooted from the stage in Milan, where it was called immoral.

The men's understudy of "The Outsider" is called upon to be ready in eight rôles, all doctors! His name is Gerald Cornell. . . . Paul Dickey and Mann Page as the authors of "The Back-Slappers," which is a good title, anyway. It is to be staged next month.

Henri Bernstein's "Judith," recently tried out by "stock" in Baltimore, is listed among next season's "regular" productions. . . . "One Meets a Nude Woman" is current Paris fun announced for translation to the American stage.

Doctors' Views on the Best Purgative

Most purgatives are not thorough, and besides, irritate the intestines, according to physicians.* They affect only the upper bowel, but do not help the lower bowel, which is often causing the trouble.

To many people—especially children—ordinary castor oil is so nauseating that they refuse to take it. But if castor oil is completely freed of the impurity, ricin, which causes the unpleasant taste and odor—as has now been perfectly done in the new Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil—it is, physicians agree, the ideal purgative.

For it not only thoroughly cleanses the entire bowels as no other purgative does, but also neutralizes the intestinal poisons that cause auto-intoxication, headaches and that tired feeling—not to mention complexion blemishes. Furthermore, it does not irritate, but actually heals irritation, making it especially useful for infants and children in diarrhoea and colic. In the new form it is as easy to swallow as water, so that the most unreasonable child takes it willingly.

You take no risk in getting a regular size bottle direct from any of our stores. Your money instantly refunded if not pleased.

Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil is a super-refined castor oil, made for medicinal use only. Strength and purity unchanged.

A Frank Message to Victims of "Social" Diseases

Anyone who has contracted a venereal infection must decide between two things —to neglect it and let it destroy health or perhaps life—or to take proper treatment as soon as possible and obtain a cure.

Allowed to run their course, "social" diseases are as merciless as fire allowed to burn unchecked. They steadily grow worse, causing physical suffering and mental agony to a degree that can be realized only by their victims.

It makes no difference whether the sufferer has contracted the infection innocently and accidentally or not. These diseases spare nobody, and they are easily contracted from an infected person or from articles used by such a person. Men and women of upright lives, even little children become victims by thousands.

If you have one of these infections make the right decision—place yourself under treatment at once. Serious as they are, and destructive as they become to health and life if untreated, "social" diseases can be cured.

Give no attention to people who may tell you that your disease is either "nothing to bother about" or "can't be cured." Those who make such statements do not know the true nature of these infections. If you take their advice you suffer the consequences. The only opinion worth listening to is that of a physician. "Self-treatment" by the use of nostrums or by the prescription that somebody has used is mere folly.

Most of the trouble which comes to those who have contracted "social" diseases is due to delay in obtaining proper treatment. Thousands and thousands could be saved from disfigurement, paralysis, crippled limbs, imbecility, insanity, blindness, sterility, heart disease, chronic rheumatism and other disabling diseases and from premature death if they would obtain efficient treatment in time. Even those in advanced stages of either form of venereal infection can usually be helped.

The Public Health Institute is open to anyone who is suffering from a "social" disease. It offers the services of skilled physicians, and gives to every case the treatment which has been found to bring the most effective results. The Institute was founded for the sole purpose of helping to stamp out these diseases which are wrecking the lives of so many who in normal health would be successful and happy. To make its services available even to those of limited incomes, its fees are small. Nobody, in fact, who needs such service is turned away for lack of ready means. The charge is the same for all. No patient pays more than another for the same treatment.

Women and Children

A special department for women and children, with women assisting as nurses and attendants, is located at 72 East Randolph Street. Every facility is provided here for effective treatment and the utmost privacy with the highest degree of comfort is assured.

With such service as this available, no one who needs treatment should delay. "Social" diseases can be cured.

EXPECT RECORD SUMMER SALES; BIG WINTER DUE

Easterner Sees "Death of Parts Business."

BY STEPHEN GILCHRIST.
[Radio Editor.]

Predictions made recently that this summer would be by far the best in the radio business are being borne out in retail and jobbing circles already. This time last year jobbers were having difficulty in moving radio apparatus, resulting in their curtailing orders and thus slowing up the manufacturers. This April finds the jobbers having difficulty in supplying the retailers with popular sets and parts and these include many makes.

Some manufacturers of sets and parts had counted on popularizing new developments during the summer from the advertising standpoint alone, while they devoted the season to accumulation of a stock to meet the trade next winter. Now they find themselves confronted with a spring demand that has exceeded anything like the business they had counted upon supplying.

In some cases this has worked almost a hardship. Several makers of parts have been compelled to look about for more floor space so as to speed up manufacture; others have been compelled to expand facilities, while the jobber is being prodded by the retailer for more supplies, and the retailer by the public.

One jobber yesterday declared that he expected the radio trade this summer to equal the business done winter before last, when the "bug" first took a good bite at the public.

An eastern radio writer weeps over a column and a half for the parts manufacturer, the while he sounds the death knell to that very large contingent of the radio world. The burden of his sorrow seems tuned to the belief that the "big five" plans to flood the market with completed receivers to be sold at a price so low that the parts manufacturer cannot possibly remain in competition. He spends a lot of space explaining that the "big five" will sell their sets at less than actual cost, following the policy of phonograph manufacturers, who aimed to gain their profit solely from records. And he naively advances the thrilling idea the "big five" will look to making its profit out of tubes.

If that was not intended for a humorous column, a little thought would reveal the absurdity of the comparison. A phonograph record generally carries one number, or possibly two. A vacuum tube will carry as many as one tunes in. A phonograph record will last quite a while, it is true; but who wants to be hearing the same record all the time. On the other hand, unless the "big five" plans to put out a class of tube that will blow up every couple of weeks, they would have to wait a year and perhaps longer to sell a second set of tubes for each set put out. And if their tubes should fall down in performance, rival manufacturers would be able to gobble up the business.

But maybe that was a humorous column.

In another column is printed the reply of F. H. Schnell, traffic manager of the American Radio Relay league, to the letter printed in this column last Sunday protesting against amateur interference on broadcast wave lengths. Publication of this letter, one of similar hundreds received, was for the best interests of the amateur, in whose future THE TRIBUNE has a deep and friendly interest earned by the accomplishments of the amateur in war and stress and in development of the radio art.

The amateur needs no defense in circles where he is understood and his field appreciated, but he does need to defend himself elsewhere by uncovering the isolated cases of willful or ignorant interference which, as he knows, do not cause anything like isolated cases of annoyance to broadcast listeners. Already this wished for end is shaping in this city. Amateurs are organizing for tracing offenders and the mere fact that they are known to be on the job will have much to do with scaring off the black sheep, some of whom, no doubt, will be found to possess unlicensed transmitters.

Mr. Schnell echoes the sentiment expressed by me last week when he declares that elimination of interference is a fifty-fifty proposition between the amateur and the broadcast listener. Sometimes I am inclined, when struggling with neighborhood "squealers," to fix the ratio at ninety-ten, with the burden on the radiating receivers of the B. L. But read Mr. Schnell's statement of the case, however you may feel about the ratio.

ECHOES OF THE HEAD PHONES

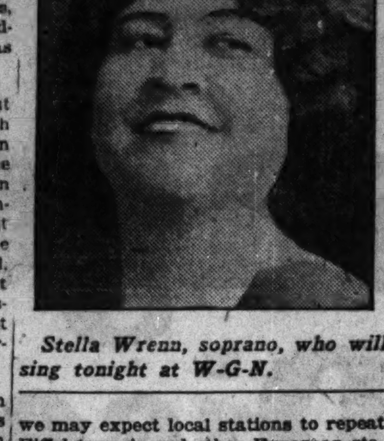
BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

Genevieve Forbes, in her talk from W-G-N last Wednesday, said the first line is the hardest. It certainly is when you wrack and almost wreck your brain trying to find a first line that will suggest a mood for a week filled with suspense and surprises, curses and plaudits, historical broadcasts, and what not, as this one has been, especially in Chicago.

* *

Last Tuesday, while vainly but valiantly trying to keep pace with Prof. Caunet's rapid fire French lesson from WMAQ, I received a telephone message to hurry over to a certain gathering where a set had been installed to receive election returns, but which had refused to function. The set was going strong when I arrived, and from the news developments that it brought to us later one might suspect that all that ailed it in the first place was political partiality or supersensitiveness.

* *



Stella Wrenn, soprano, who will sing tonight at W-G-N.

Betsy Williams, member of the Lake Shore trio, who was heard last night at W-G-N.

One might well envy the women who are able to tune in the programs given at Lyon & Healy concert hall on Wednesday and Friday afternoons through WMAQ. Wednesday's concert was one of pure beauty, sufficiently so to suggest the advisability of other and more extended daylight programs of a like nature for the women in the home; yes, and for the afflicted in our hospitals. And this, by the way, reminds me of "Sen" Kaney's appropriately chosen words at the close of the numbers rendered by E. H. Sickels, the blind pianist, "who tonight is entertaining rather than being entertained; doing his bit to cheer the world, regardless of his affliction. This thought may make you feel a little better when you awake tomorrow morning."

The Indian songs sung by Eleanor E. Johnson at WMAQ during the 9:15 to 10 program made me lapse into another contemplative mood. Wonder if the sad, mystic tone given to Indian compositions by our composers is typical and representative of the Indian's real character and temperament?

Reproduction of a portion of W-G-N's opening program of March 29 on the MacMillan program last Wednesday night should give owners of crystal sets a sigh of relief. By this new invention of Frank Hoyt, New York radio engineer and designer of the phusiformer, broadcasts of previously transmitted programs of unique or historical importance may be recorded and reproduced at any station. Before long we may expect local stations to repeat Eiffel tower's and other European stations' programs. Verily, the world do move!

According to the Rev. C. J. Pernin, and despite the reverend doctor, who, by the way, I consider as having one of the best feature talks in the entire field of radio, I fear I am a bromide this week. Wait until you read the next paragraphs!

When I turned the dials on W-G-N for a portion at least of the 9 o'clock program Thursday evening, I was forcibly impressed with the power and quality of the tone from that station on its new 370 meter wave length. I listened to selection after selection with the keenest of delight—until 10 o'clock, when WDAP came on. Dear Uncle Sam, if that is a criterion of what W-G-N can do on this wave length, then seems to me that for the benefit of lovers of the beautiful and worth while in music, for the benefit of the little boy and girl with tiny crystal sets, for the rich in heart but poor in pocket, men of families, would it not be doing a greater good with little or no harm if W-G-N were given a wave length of 380 or 385 meters? Talk and explanation will not force even a good set entirely to separate these two powerful stations. Can't you, Uncle, do this much for Chicago and Chicago's citizens? We will all thank you from the bottom of our hearts.

In the meantime, if I were W-G-N I would postpone their 7 to 8 program until WDAP signs off at 8 o'clock. And, as a compromise, if I were WDAP, I would postpone the Barton organ recital until 10 o'clock, thus giving W-G-N a clear path from 8 until 10. That would help, gentlemen, that would help.

Probably the greatest feature event of the week was KYW's broadcast of the Isaak Walton banquet speeches at Hotel Sherman Thursday night. It was voices and visions of the great out-of-doors that went out of the city to the country that night, and in a manner approached by no other program that I had ever heard over the radio. I sat back in my chair and listened, simply listened — rather, breathed full breaths of the open, wholesome, country air. If the first line is the hardest, I'm going to let the Rev. Von Ogden Vogt, one of the speakers at this banquet, make the last line the easiest—

"May God make this world a kind of a world we can fish in!"

PROPOSED TAX ON RECEIVERS STIRS PROTESTS

Senators Would Assess "Completed Sets."

Washington, D. C., April 12.—[Special.]—The proposal of the senate finance committee to tax "completed receivers," has resulted in an avalanch of protests from "independent" manufacturers of sets and parts and from a large number of broadcast listeners.

Leading the objectors is the Radio Trade association, representing the dealers and manufacturers of the metropolitan district of New York. This association was formed when the A. T. & T. Co. filed suit to close WHN and all but "some forty broadcast stations."

Most of the protests point out that a tax on completed sets, or even on parts, would fall far short of bringing in anything like the revenue the statistics might indicate because of the ease of evasion. They add, also, that the burden would fall upon the independents, who already are taxed in the form of royalties and who probably would be forced out of the radio industry.

RADIOANS HOLD UP CITY'S CALL FOR BIDS FOR 400 ARC LIGHTS

El Paso, Tex., April 12.—Declaring arc lights interfere with wireless messages, radio fans here have induced the city council to postpone calling for bids for lights for the new white way until tests can be made.

Local engineers recently recommended installation of arc lamps, J. T. Burke, president of the El Paso Radio club, protested. Some of the engineers joined him, declaring the arcs produced "man made static."

"After an arc light has burned a short time a chattering is produced which throws out a carrier wave," said Mr. Burke. "One lamp would interrupt radio communication within a radius of four or five blocks and 400 would affect the entire city.

"This would not only interfere at El Paso, but the chatter might be picked up by a high power set and broadcast for miles outside."

TODAY'S RADIO PROGRAMS

(Sunday, April 13.) (Central Time Throughout.)

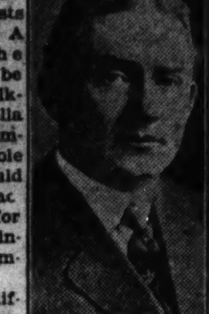
Lovers of classical music will find a program of unusual quality in W-G-N's artists' series concert, which begins at 6 and lasts until 9 o'clock. A feature of the program will be two Mexican folksongs by Stella Wrenn. The numbers by the Oriole orchestra should make an attractive setting for the solo and instrumental numbers.



CLIFFORD BARNES

Friends of Clifford W. Barnes will be glad to learn that he has returned from California and will tonight resume his series of talks on "What Jesus Stood For" at the Sunday Evening club's preliminary service, beginning at 7 p. m. Mr. Barnes is president of the club.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

If half the things we would believe
Are only quarter so,
Why then the effort to conceive
Truth at an Alamo?

Maybe you will hear the genuine music of the spheres at the forthcoming First International Radio exposition in Chicago and New York. Maybe Venus will unburden herself for your benefit of some beautiful love lyrics. Maybe Mars will basso some thoughts about war. Maybe the moon will unbosom itself of some reflections, radioed in song or musical notes. Maybe your own guiding star will talk to you in the language of the firmament.

And maybe not. But if they should, and you don't like it, the blame lies with France and not the First International Radio exposition. Manager James F. Kerr is merely conducting negotiations with France. The stars have only a glimmering look-in. Results are more or less in the keeping of the meteoric flights of the mind of the exposition's press agent, hence anything may be expected—in the way of negotiations copy.

"Negotiations are under way" (one way, at least), "rush" copy from exposition headquarters reads, "to have Gen. Jouaust and Maj. Mesny, the eminent radio experts of the French military wireless laboratory of Paris stage a series of demonstrations of their astounding new invention, yet unnamed, with which they recently succeeded in transforming light wa s from the star Capella into audible sounds, during the First International Radio exposition," etc., etc.

A. R. R. L. LEADER WRITES DEFENSE OF AMATEURS

Holds Interference War Is 50-50 Problem.

(The following reply to the letter on interference by Chicago amateurs, printed by this department last Sunday, was transmitted to The Tribune by amateur radio. The writer is one of the best known amateurs in the world today, and his statements should prove of unusual interest to radioans generally. While it does not refute the charges of code interference of a more or less intentional nature, it does present the side of the amateur's case, which deserves fair hearing.—Ed.)

BY F. H. SCHNELL.

[Traffic Manager, American Radio Relay League.]

Hartford, Conn., April 12.—[Special.]—When "interference" is mentioned in connection with radio receiving the average broadcast listener immediately thinks of the word amateur as applied to the owner of a private transmitting station. In view of this fact perhaps a little explanation of just what the so-called amateur is and what his aims are and what he does may not be amiss.

In the first place, the term "amateur" is in some respects a misnomer. The average owner of a private transmitting station is by no means a novice. He is usually a man trained in radio, both telegraphy and telephony; is an engineer of considerable experience and knowledge, and frequently may be connected with the radio art commercially. Unfortunately, the present law defines all stations operated by such individuals as "amateur." The cross sectional age of owners of amateur transmitting stations is in the neighborhood of twenty-five to thirty years. This is not a guess, but is based on actual data taken at the last National American Radio Relay league convention held in Chicago last October.

Offenders on Both Sides.

Owners of these private transmitting stations, either telegraph or telephone, have spent a great deal more money than their broadcast listening brothers, as they not only have efficient receiving apparatus but must also have expensive and efficient transmitting apparatus which must comply with certain government requirements, must be inspected by the department of commerce inspectors, and the owner himself must pass a written examination showing his technical qualifications.

There are, of course, in the amateur radio fraternity, as in all organizations, individuals who do not respect the wishes of others. We find the same conditions in the field of the broadcast listener, where we have the so-called "squealer" who operates his set in an oscillating condition to the detriment of his neighbors' entertainment. So also we have the radio amateur who operates his set during the so-called silent period, which is from 7 until 10:30 nightly, or who perhaps operates on a broader wave length than he should normally use. These individuals are in a minority, as is to be expected, and the regularly organized amateurs of the American Radio Relay league always have coöperated with the government agencies in tracing and eliminating such offenders.

Chicago Singularly Free.

It is of interest to note that the Chicago broadcasting stations have failed to report to the local officers of the American Radio Relay league a single instance of amateur interference during the last six months which was actually attributable to amateur interference.

The broadcast listener who is not acquainted with the radio code frequently is prone to blame interference on the amateur which is actually caused by other agencies, such as arc light interference, battery charging stations, x-ray and violet-ray machines or even ships sailing on the great lakes and on the ocean. It should be remembered that foreign ships are still operating on 450 meter wave length, although the American ships have largely dropped this wave length. It must also be remembered these ships are equipped with apparatus sufficiently powerful to operate clear across the Atlantic and Pacific oceans in many cases.

It should also be remembered that with inefficient or broadly tuned receiving apparatus, amateur transmitters, even when operating on the wave length to which they are assigned, will cause interference. Receivers of the single circuit type have been obsolete for many years in commercial and amateur practice because of their lack of selectivity and their inability to eliminate interference properly. The writer is using a standard three circuit regenerative receiver of well known manufacture at his home in Hartford, Conn., with some of the most powerful amateur stations located within a radius of two miles and during the entire past winter absolutely no amateur interference has been experienced on the broadcast wave length.

Fifty-fifty Proposition, View.

Elimination of interference must be a fifty-fifty proposition. All the effort cannot be made by the transmitting stations. No matter how sharply tuned the transmitter may be or how well it may comply with the legal restrictions, it will cause interference in a broadly tuned receiver.

There exists a tendency to believe that the majority of the amateur stations consist of poorly constructed, inefficient apparatus built by school boys. This is far from the case. The department of commerce refuses to issue licenses to stations which are not of efficient quality to meet the legal requirements and any licensed station which may be recognized by the fact that it will have a number prefixed to its call letters, has met with these requirements satisfactorily and should cause no interference with a properly designed receiver.

"Kidding" Not Occupation.

One point worthy of clearing up is the fallacy that the radio amateurs spend their time "kidding" each other and in talking back and forth. Nothing could be farther from the truth.

The central division of the American Radio Relay league, for example, comprises the states of Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky. Each month traffic reports are sent in by each one of the 600 official relay stations in this division. These 600 stations handle traffic of from 25,000 to 42,000 messages per month. These messages are of all classes, sent by individuals all over the division to other individuals all over the United States, or even, in some cases, in foreign countries. Accurate communication is being maintained at the present time with amateur radio stations in France, England, Holland, Australia, Alaska, certain parts of South America, and with the MacMillan north pole expedition. Every message which has come back from the MacMillan north pole expedition has come back through the stations of the American Radio Relay league.

May Spell End to War.

The writer remembers reading not long ago an article setting forth the tremendous advantages to the people of the world in getting acquainted with each other directly through the medium of radio. It was even brought out that in the future wars may be absolutely eliminated by this close contact between the actual peoples of the different races and nations. The radio amateur is making the first step in this direction by actual contact and communication between privately owned stations in foreign countries and those in the United States, and this alone is sufficient to warrant the small amount of interference which exists between the amateur transmitter and the broadcast listener.

New Class B Station Opens in Des Moines, Ia.

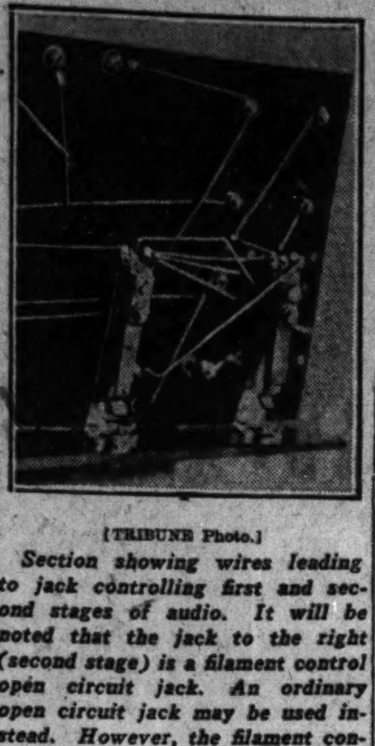
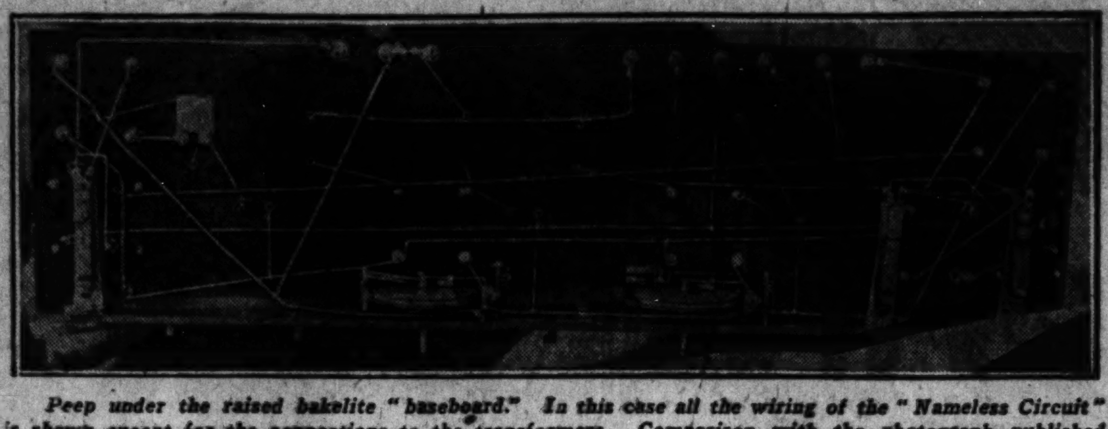
NAMELESS CIRCUIT JUSTIFIES NEW BUILDING PLAN



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Section showing wires leading to jack controlling first and second stages of audio. It will be noted that the jack to the right (second stage) is a filament control open circuit jack. An ordinary open circuit jack may be used instead. However, the filament control jack automatically cuts off the "A" battery current to the tube in the last stage of audio when the plug is withdrawn from the jack.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]



Peep under the raised bakelite "baseboard." In this case all the wiring of the "Nameless Circuit" 's shown except for the connections to the transformers. Comparison with the photograph published March 23 will assist greatly in plotting the wiring. Carter jacks shown support the sub-base. When other jacks which do not lend themselves to this function are used, brackets should help support the base from the other side.

IV. PLACING INSTRUMENTS AND WIRING DETECTOR CIRCUIT.

Here's the point where we get into real action on the "Nameless Circuit" by launching into the actual construction—accomplished under exactly the same conditions that confront the average reader of this department of THE TRIBUNE. No laboratory surroundings or accommodations enter in. The actual work, under the new construction method devised by Harry A. Bremer of the Bremer-Tully company, was done as the beginner would go about it, and with the same tools—a soldering iron, solder, wire, panel, baseboard, essential parts, a few drills, screwdrivers, brace, and a lot of hope and expectations.

Haste Should Be Avoided.

One march, however, was stolen on the average "attic (or kitchen or bedroom) builder," but that was solely because of press of time: the panel was drilled in a laboratory. But he may be able to buy his drilled panel later. Had the time been at hand this work also would have been done at home. And it might be well to state at the outset that those who expect to drill their own panels should be careful in locating the holes for the three .0005 variable condensers, so that they will face the right way.

Take your time both in drilling and wiring, and keep temptation behind you. Something as yet unanalyzed in the psychology of radio urges the average man to hurry—"Hurry and let's hear over the thing" seems to be the besetting evil of the game. And the worst of it is many listen to this voice and do "hear over the thing." But they haven't the set they intended to put up.

Throttle the tempter, roll up your sleeves and wade in with the purpose of taking plenty of time, adhering strictly to the rules, and coming out of it with a receiver of which you will be proud both in appearance and performance.

Place Instruments Carefully.

When the panel has been drilled and the baseboard fastened on, place all the instruments, using care insetting your tube sockets so the tubes will not interfere with the tilting of the transformers (those in the set under discussion had to be shifted after the detecter circuit had been wired, hence the warning).

After all is set take your detector circuit diagram and sail in, with another resolution aimed against too much solder in behalf of the radio frequency currents, which possess an antipathy for high resistance joints.

In the receiver under discussion No. 18 DSC wire was used everywhere except in wiring the transformers. Here No. 24 DSC was employed. The Bremer-Tully company advises No. 16 and No. 22 or 24. We couldn't get any No. 16 at several radio stores and are as well satisfied.

After the detector circuit was wired, local came in splendidly with fine volume and tuning sharply. No faults were encountered in this circuit, nor were there any "bulls," although several came later. These will be outlined next week.

V. WIRING FIRST AND SECOND AUDIO AND FIRST RADIO.

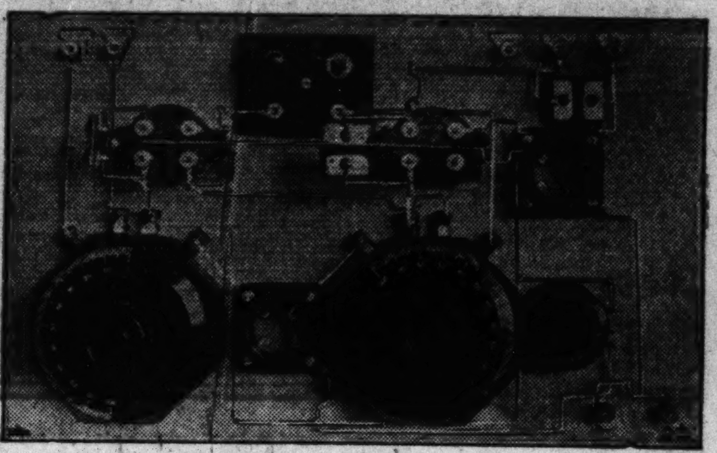
WGY Will Broadcast Address by President

The address of President Calvin Coolidge to be delivered at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press Tuesday, April 22, will be broadcast by WGY, Schenectady. The luncheon will be held in the main ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, New York, to which the Schenectady station will be connected by special circuits. Broadcasting will start at approximately 1:45 p. m. Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, also will speak.

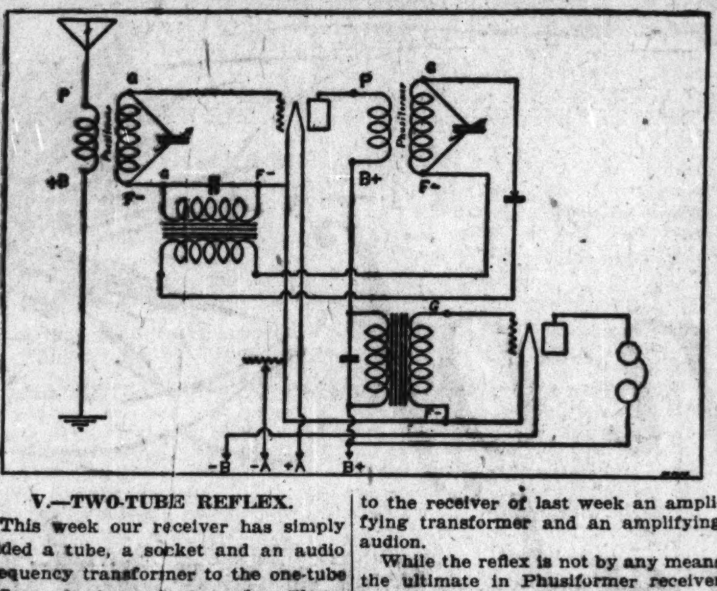
CHANGES WAVE LENGTH.

Radio CHYC, Montreal, now operates on 341 meters, programs being broadcast Wednesday and Sunday evenings.

Two-Tube Reflex Receiver Is the Next Phusiformer Step



Two-tube reflex receiver, table mounted, using two phusiformers. This consists of one stage of tuned radio frequency, crystal detector, one stage of reflexed audio, and one stage of straight audio.



V.—TWO-TUBE REFLEX.

This week our receiver has simply added a tube, a socket and an audio frequency transformer to the one-tube reflex set shown last week. Photograph and schematic diagram, in conjunction with the experience gained in the construction of the various types of Phusiformer sets printed previously, should be easy guides to the amateur builder.

This receiver consists of one stage of tuned radio frequency amplification, a crystal detector, one stage of reflexed audio frequency and one stage of straight audio frequency amplification. This means that there has been added to the receiver of last week an amplifying transformer and an amplifying audion.

While the reflex is not by any means the ultimate in Phusiformer receiver construction, better results are to be had than with untuned radio transformers. The Phusiform method, as has been pointed out in a previous article, permits keeping of the grids of the tubes at a negative potential with respect to the filaments, thus eliminating the inconvenience and tendency toward distortion in cases where potentiometers are used to suppress oscillations.

VI.—The two tube reflex set with third stage of audio.

BUDLONG SCHOOL WINS HONORS IN CRYSTAL DISPLAY

More than 1,000 home made crystal sets, all costing less than $1 each to construct, exhibited by the children of the Chicago school playgrounds, were judged for prize awards at a minature radio show held in a loop department store last week. An infinite variety of unique construction was displayed, everything from matchboxes and old umbrellas to cocoanuts and straw hats being used to house the apparatus.

Three prizes were awarded, the first given for the playground having the best showing, went to the Budlong school playground, which had entered 206 sets, more than three times as many as the nearest competitor, with no two alike. The second prize, for best construction and workmanship, went to Gerard Siebos, 14 years old, of Kohn school playground. The third, for most original and unique design, was awarded to Hank Bischof, Henry school playground, who entered a minature phonograph cabinet, all home made, in which an exceptionally well built crystal set was mounted.

The judges were from the radio technical staff of five newspapers, THE TRIBUNE being represented by Fred Marco. The exhibition was the result of the labors of C. H. English, supervisor of playgrounds, and was pronounced the best of the crystal shows by many visitors. An additional award will be made to the owner of the set which gets the best distance, operated by its constructor, at a test to be made early this week.

Two Legion Addresses Over WTAS This Week

Aaron Sapiro of the American Legion will deliver an address over the Villa Olivia radiophone, WTAS, at Elgin, tomorrow evening from its Kimball hall studio, Chicago, on "The American Legion's Program for Universal Draft."

Garland W. Powell, director of the Americanism commission, will deliver an address over the Villa Olivia radiophone, WTAS, at Elgin, Ill., on Tuesday evening on "Immigration."

The fountain of perpetual youth

SHADES of Ponce de Leon! It took the man of today to discover the fountain of youth—under the hood of a modern automobile!

Here is the spirit of youth on wheels—the luxurious Willys-Knight Sedan. A car youthful in looks and poise—and, most of all, youthful in its nimble action.

The wonderful Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine stays young. It actually improves with use—flourishes on mileage—simply defies time! A perpetual fountain of thrills and satisfactions very unusual in motoring. A fountain of quiet, silky power that grows quieter and smoother as the months and miles glide by.

This is the same type of engine that powers the finest cars of Europe. An engine minus the clatter of hammering cams and clicking springs. An engine that needs neither valve-grinding nor carbon-cleaning. Willys-Knight owners report 50,000 miles and more with never a need for a single tool laid to this engine. And no Willys-Knight engine has ever been known to wear out!

Hand in hand with this performance and endurance you get style, elegance and homelike comfort—more of each and more of all than the price would lead you to expect.

In wet weather the snug windows keep you as dry as a soda cracker—and when the sun comes out again, lower the glass and you have all the airy openness of an open car.

Everybody who has ever seen or ridden in a Willys-Knight knows very well why Willys-Knights are multiplying so fast on the streets—and multiplying the pleasures of owners.

The day of the Knight is here—and is here to stay! A car-wise public will see to that.

[Moffett Photo.]

Mrs. Thomas H. Cowles, Miss Elizabeth Smith, and Miss Margaret Hunter are among the members of the Junior league who are working for the success of the Follies to be given on Friday evening, April 25, at the Auditorium. Mrs. Cowles, the former Barbara Granger, is also busy getting her new house in Lake Forest ready for occupancy, and, as usual, is devoting much time to the Rummage shop, which is conducted for the benefit of the Children's Memorial hospital at 27 East Ohio street. Miss Smith, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kinney Smith of 1348 Astor street, made her debut in 1922, and Miss Hunter, the sister of Mrs. Francis Peabody Butler of Winnetka, was introduced to society in 1921. Both young girls are to be in the chorus of the Follies.

Preparing One's Vocabulary for the British Isles

By Mme. X.

KNOWING that the X. family was setting forth for a brief sojourn in England and anxious that the fair name of our nation should not be smirched with any avoidable solecisms, a friend brought the writer, among other things, this list of words which it is absolutely obligatory to pronounce in the British way or be cast into outer darkness by the amiable inhabitants over there. Some of the terms we knew already, but others were quite new, and for your enlightenment I transcribe them here.

If you want to speak of what we call a bureau over here, you must in England refer to it as a chest of drawers, otherwise those benighted Britishers will think you are speaking of an office of some kind, such as the bureau of public information. Are you discussing politics and refer to a campaign? Speak of it as a canvass. Are you desirous of mitigating life's bitterness with what we call candy? In England you must ask for a box of sweets. The august personage to whom we refer and defer as the city editor, British newspaperdom calls the chief reporter. A clipping from a newspaper is called a cutting over there. A commission merchant is known as a factor, a cracker as a biscuit, gasoline as petrol, a fraternal order as a friendly society, a trolley car as a tram-car, a truck as a lorry, a wash rag as a face cloth, wood alcohol as methylated spirit, an ash can as a dust bin, and coal oil or kerosene as paraffin. Also my mentor warned me against using the old fashioned word handsome. "It is simply not done in England."

Getting in Practice.

Further to prepare myself for entrance into the highest, most cultivated circles I have been practicing all the way to New York in the use of British slang. At the moment it seems concentrated in the constant use of one word, "swank." Everything either is or is not swanky. You have not swank, well, you'd far better be dead, but if it should happen that you are so endowed why then even that old conservative and bitter critic, St. Peter, would open his doors to you. Some people are born to swank; some achieve it, while still a third class has swank thrust upon it.

Nor is this the end of the list of don'ts and do's. I hope and pray I may not refer to the fact that I have rented my apartment to the Morrill Dunns in such inferior language in the British isles. There I will inform the world that I have let my flat to the Dunns, or they have hired it of me. The word apartment over there means tenement or lodgings. Flat is used for suites of rooms on one floor for people of means. To let, not to rent, is the only way of expressing the fact that you have a contract with tenants.

Also, may I perish if I say a quarter of 4 o'clock when I should say quarter to 4. And may I perish if I speak of a closet when I mean a cupboard, or talk of playing a game of solitaire when I ought to refer to it as a game of patience! On the railways let me not forget that the track is a rail; the switch is a point; the switchman is a pointsman; baggage is luggage; you do not check your trunks, you book them; the train conductor is the guard and the car is a railway carriage. Also, lest we forget, let us record it here and now that instead of walking on the sidewalk in London it will be the pavement that we shall tread. They know not our word for the foot passenger's way.

Having for several weeks read in our veracious newspapers of the many serious strikes prevailing or brewing in the British isles, the writer feels a little as she did when she ventured to climb Vesuvius during the great eruption of 1906. The trembling earth, the smoke darkened skies, the occasional showers of boiling water, the subterranean roars, all gave an air of peril and excitement which made the trip stimulating and unforgetable. The visit immediately ahead has somewhat the same aspect to this traveler. If the coal miners join the busmen, tram employés, subway or underground men in going on strike, that grand old Italian volcano will seem like a rest cure compared to London and the British isles. But here's hoping!

One thing post-war prosperity has achieved for New York is a return to the use of anthracite coal, with the result that Gotham skies are as pure and bland as a blue eyed babe's expression just after a full meal. Looking out of my window to see by a smoke plume which way the wind blows this cheerful spring morning, I can't find a single fumacious chimney. A jet of white steam from a nearby skyscraper is my sole source of information. Hands that in Chicago quickly acquire a grimy air here remain immaculate for hours and only get a little gray from rubbing Chicago garments. This clean atmosphere, the well kept streets, the smart looking houses, all inspire the inhabitants to appear in keeping with the immaculate and crisp looking town.

Nowhere in the world today, not even in Paris, do you see such well dressed, chic people as here in New York, especially on the fashionable highways like 5th, Madison, Park, and adjacent avenues. The newcomer immediately is inspired to don his or her—principally her—best bib and tucker and walk abroad with much the air and emotion that a little bantam rooster or hen has on entering a strange barnyard for the first time.

New York long ago lost all trace of its younger, more unsophisticated days. The narrow sidewalks abut immediately on the clean pavements with no intervening sodded (or sodden) parkways. Traffic is immense and well ordered, even on the remote side streets. The only remnant of other times that I have noted here is an occasional two horse brougham with "two men up," or a one horse coupe with an aged coachman driving a frail old couple or a black shrouded, shrunken wisp of aged womanhood. Such equipages look like ghostly visitants from another world and I search the faces of other passersby to discover whether they, too, see the apparition, or whether I alone am granted it.

Smart Restaurants Everywhere.

But these are the only signs of a past visible in New York today. Everything else is of the most modern. One institution here which we have not achieved is the ubiquitous smart restaurant. These abound on every hand, with attractive surroundings, delicious cuisines, and skilled service. And they are liberally patronized by well dressed crowds. In Chicago we have little of this kind of life. Clubs and homes still fill our wants almost entirely except for the restaurants in the big hotels and the quick lunch counters of the busy worker.

My first pilgrimage on arriving was to the collection of Sargent paintings being shown at the Grand Central galleries high up above the rest of the world. This exhibit has been open for weeks. The first day over 8,000 paid admisions were recorded at $1 a head. Today the attendance at the same rate of pay is still excellent. It is indeed a wonderful showing of the works of one who is without question the greatest artist of not only his time but of any preceding era within the last two centuries. His canvases glow with life. The portraits, if you study them, make you feel as if you had really met

Vocational League Regards Child as Civic Investment

By Kate Webber,

NO work is more important in any community than the coördination of the school with the industrial and social life of the people who make up this community. Filling this need to a great extent in Chicago is the Vocational Supervision league, composed of a group of public minded citizens, women and men, who in the twelve years of the league's existence have made condition's more tolerable in the schools, in the factories, and in the homes.

In 1911 the laws of Illinois allowed a child to leave school the day he was 14 years of age, and go to work. As we well know, he went with no physical examination, no educational requirements except the ability to read and write a simple sentence.

There was no means of supervising a child once he had left school. An investigation made under the direction of the City club showed that of all the children who went to work (23,000 in 1910), one half of them were idle; they were neither at work nor in school.

It was to meet and to better these conditions that a joint committee for the vocational training of girls was organized in 1911, under the inspiration of several of the most noted leaders in civic and philanthropic work. With Prof. George H. Mead of the University of Chicago as the head, assisted by Miss Sophonisba P. Breckinridge, Miss Edith Abbott, and Miss Anne S. Davis, the committee's work developed rapidly.

Early in 1912 the work was made to apply to boys, and in 1913 the board of education, convinced of the value of the work, provided an office and clerical assistance. In November, 1913, the executive board was enlarged to include representatives from the vocational committee of the City club, the Association of Commerce, the Chicago Woman's Aid, and from industry. The scholarship committee also was established.

In 1916 the name of the committee was changed to the Vocational Supervision league. In this same year a legislative committee was formed, which with the aid of many individuals and organizations caused a new law to be passed by the state legislature in June, 1917. This law, which is still in operation, corrected many faults in providing protective requirements for children who quit school for work.

The above sketch gives a brief history of the start and work of the Vocational Supervision league. Of the many cases handled by them, of their far reaching influence during the last twelve years, there is not room to tell. With all they have done for children, however, the league members feel that as yet they have not touched bottom in reaching the vast number who need their help.

They have given a monthly scholarship to children of various groups, the eldest child of a family, the unusually bright child, the physically handicapped but mentally normal one. The recipient of this scholarship comes in contact only with the trained worker in the office, and donors do not visit homes or in any way embarrass the child by making him feel he is receiving charity.

The child is regarded as a good investment for the community, and his scholarship is granted for good work. If he fails after due warning, the scholarship is removed.

There are innumerable human interest tales of families whose eldest child has been helped by the Vocational Supervision league, and who in turn has helped into useful lives her little family who otherwise might have been forced into whatever opportunity offered.

It is these years of work, and the heartening results, that make the workers feel this work is the most constructive being done in any city today. There are branches of the work, including the follow up committee, the legislative committee, and the speakers' bureau, which are among the most interesting features, and information concerning which may be procured at the offices of the league, 460 South State street.

MRS. FREDERICK C. JUSTICE.
[Moffett Photo.]

Mrs. John C. Williams is president of the Austin North End Woman's club, which will hold its annual spring luncheon on Tuesday at 1 o'clock at the Belmont hotel. The club is closing a year of unusual cultural activity and philanthropic work.

The fifth annual luncheon marking the close of the calendar season for the Edgemere Woman's club will be held on Tuesday at the Webster hotel. Mrs. Frederick C. Justice, first vice president, is in charge of plans for the day, which will include a business session in the morning, followed by a program in the afternoon.

Club Ethics

By Maude Swalm Evans.

"ANY new business?" the president asked?

The long time member arose and addressed the chair.

"Madam President, I want to say a few words to our members in regard to the disposal of old year books.

"This morning a strange man called me up and asked if I would give him a year book—last year's would do. I was so astonished at the request that I hesitated and he, thinking I had a purpose, said he would make it worth my while. I told him promptly and emphatically that club women didn't commercialize their membership lists.

"I remember a case along the same line that happened several years ago. A woman begged year books from members of about every club in the city on the plea that she was a widow with five children to support and was trying to establish a mail order business selling stockings. She got a number of books, and soon the donors began receiving advertising literature from business enterprises all over the country. A suspicious member started an investigation, and it was found the woman wasn't a widow; she had no children; and she wasn't selling stockings—her husband was in the mailing list business.

"I want to urge our members to destroy their year books when they are through with them, or at least to be sure of the persons to whom they are given."

"When I lived out west," a new member offered, "our state association calendar fell into the hands of an advertising firm. The board had a hectic time over it, but they never found out how it happened."

"As women do over 90 per cent of the family purchasing, a live list is a great asset to any concern that caters to their needs," stated the home economics exponent. "I have it from good authority that the directors of the last woman's world council were offered several thousand dollars for a list of their delegates. Of course, they turned it down, but it goes to show our lists are valuable and must be protected."

Clubs Accept Art Bureau's Outline

IT is part of the return of good pictures to their rightful place as part of home furnishings that the women's clubs of the state and Chicago are including in their plans for next year an outline of study on art and the place of pictures in interior decoration.

Mrs. Charles W. Leigh, art chairman of Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, recently presided at a meeting of the divisional art chairmen, at which they accepted the outline as prepared by the American Art bureau.

This outline contains new and interesting angles on the oldest and most interesting of subjects. One section, "A Study in Personalities," shows the influence of each of the prominent artists on the development of art in this country. Artists of other countries also are shown in their relation to the general art movement of the world.

The American Art bureau is a member of the American Homes bureau, a group devoted to making better homes in the community, and which has the endorsement of President Coolidge. It has the endorsement of the Art institute of Chicago, the Chicago Public School Art society, the Metropolitan Museum of Arts of New York city, and other organizations. The bureau's services are wholly educational; its object is the promotion of art in American life.

A number of definite suggestions for helping a community to appreciate art will be followed in the outline for next year's work. It is urged that clubs sponsor an exhibit of prints; that they follow the example of the Chicago Public School Art society in giving prints to schools each year; by having contests for naming pictures in the schools, and in various ways teaching children to become friends of beautiful pictures. Programs for illustrated lectures on home decoration also are in the outline, thus contributing to the popularity among home makers of today of the subject of making home more attractive.

MISS TRUDE GENE DAVIS.

MRS. KYLE RUNNELLS DAVIS.

[Kats Photo.]

The engagement of Miss Trude Gene Davis, daughter of Mrs. Mary Davis of 6204 Hermitage avenue, to Wilbur George Brookman, son of Louis Brookman of 1541 Norwood street, has been announced.

Miss Florence Irma Kister, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Kister of 1251 North Shore avenue, became the bride of Kyle Runnells Davis, son of Henri R. Davis of Elmhurst, Ill., last evening at the Sovereign hotel. After a honeymoon at Excelsior Springs, Mr. and Mrs. Davis will reside at 1235 Chase avenue.

and known the subjects. You also can tell what he himself thought of those who sat for him, whether he liked them or not. His later work in water colors shares the vivid qualities of his earlier pictures in oils. He is tremendous, exulting in his medium, and utterly alive and self-confident.

From there I went to the Russian exhibit. Gothamites have seen so much of the work of these Slavic artists that they are rather inclined to be blasé about them, but the writer found the pictures exceedingly interesting. They cry aloud to the rest of the world for sympathy and attention.

Through them the artists seem to say: "Look at us! From our suffering we yet lift our bloody heads and see the stars. In us the spirit of art still lives and longs to express what it sees and to give its message to the world. Heed our call, nor turn aside because we are crude, garish, violent. We are ourselves and no others!"

One hundred and five living artists are represented in this gathering in the Grand Central Palace galleries, a few blocks to the north of the Sargent show. It is brought here by Igor Grabar, curator of the National Tretiakovsky gallery in Moscow; Sergie Vinogradoff, president and organizer of one of the largest art societies in Russia, "the Union of Russian Painters," and member of the Russian academy; Constantine Somoff, also a fellow of the Russian academy, and Theodor Zakharoff, a young portrait painter. Among the most interesting of the galleries is that one containing the sculptures of Konenkov, who, of peasant origin, has a touch of the divine fire which he translates into form and shape by means of bronze and marble and, latterly, of wood. Some of his wood carving, by reason of its primitive spirit and real sincerity, leaves an indelible impression. I hope that at least some of the gathering may find its way to Chicago. It is too large to be transported in its entirety.

Drama from the Drab.

Some New York art connoisseurs are much interested in a new light in the art world, Charles Burchfield, born in Salem, O. He is a sort of Sinclair Lewis in the art world, in the ruthless fidelity with which he depicts the scenes he knows best—the shabby houses, simple landscapes, tumultuous cloud effects, colorful barnyards, mean village streets, which have been his outlook. But he lifts them out of the commonplace in a way which Sinclair Lewis never does. He endows these homely scenes with a radiant, yet not romantic, glow, and makes a drama out of drab material in a marvelous fashion. Abram Poole, of Chicago as well as New York, took me to see this small exhibit which as yet has not caught the public attention here.

Mr. Poole is on the crest of a rising wave. He has several commissions to paint portraits and still more important ones to execute in what is rapidly becoming his specialty, mural work for interiors. He does much work on rough plaster in distemper with a most successful effect. He has a commission for some work in Mrs. C. M. Ely's new house in Lake Forest, as well as in the Marshall Fields' big country house now a-building on Long island. The Pooles are probably going abroad next month for a few weeks' sojourn for rest and recreation. She is as interested in her writing as he is in his painting. His studio is behind his house on East 40th street.

Still other Chicagoites whom this column sought out for inspiration and reminiscence were the Julian Masons, who are established in New York with a formidable contentment and permanence. Mr. Mason is especially occupied just now by the added pressure of business and readjustment which is thrown on the New York Tribune by the purchase and assimilation of the former New York Herald. The two papers will ultimately be known as the Herald-Tribune and are even now run as one organ.

All Former Chicagoans.

The Masons are building a country house on Long island near Glencove. Their most immediate neighbors there will be former Chicagoans, the Bruce Clarks. The latter have achieved on every hand a quite unusual popularity, Mrs. Clark in the social world and he among his business associates. New Yorkers are apt to take us westerners on sufferance, but in the case of the Clarks it is with a whole hearted affection that their Gotham friends are said to regard them.

Still other ex-Chicagoans happily settled in New York are Mrs. John M. Clark, Bruce Clark's mother, her sister, Mrs. Stewart Clarke, Mrs. Cecil Clark Davis, and Mrs. Stewart Clarke's son and daughter-in-law, the Marshall Clarkes. Mrs. Davis has a studio at 7 East 51st street, where she has many commissions to paint portraits. She has many friends here in the artistic set, and is both busy and happy. Also she is doing excellent work.

Mrs. Marshall Clarke is likewise on the crest of a rising wave and has more orders for portraits than she can negotiate for several months to come. She and her husband have a small but attractive cottage not far from Oyster bay, on Long island.

In short, I have to report to their Chicago friends and relatives that those members of the Chicago colony settled on or near Manhattan island whom I have met or of whom I have heard in my short stay in New York seem uncommonly satisfied with their present outlook in life and have no intention of changing it for any other. Still others apparently in the same state of mind are Mrs. Arthur Aldis, who rejoices in her high up little apartment on 82d street and Park avenue, and also in the literary atmosphere which she did not find in Chicago, but does here if rumors be accurate. The Robert Carys are likewise in this class of the cheerfully contented, while the Gamble Rogers family has basked for so long in the amiable climate and balmy social glow of New York that Chicago is but a mirage of the past on their horizon.

Still other former fellow citizens of ours who are thoroughly intrenched in New York are the Marshall Fields, who are deeply interested in building what will probably be the most splendid country place in the east, on Long island's northern shore. Architects, artists, sculptors, collectors of rare and beautiful things are all hard at work getting it ready. The Fields are also about to begin an equally fine mansion in New York itself, to design which they have selected a well known Chicago architect. The Honore Palmers have an apartment in the Ritz hotel, where they entertain a gay set of younger married people, a set that loves dancing beyond any other pleasure and serves Terpsichore night after night.

A Night at the Metropolitan.

Being one of the ardent advocates of the Chicago Civic opera, the X. family was delighted to have an opportunity to attend a performance of "Die Meistersinger" at the Metropolitan. It was a stupendous affair, with the most complete presentation of this long and elaborate piece of work we had ever seen. It began at a quarter to 8 and ended at a few minutes after midnight. The house was filled, including all the boxes. Only a few persons, and they evidently suburbanites, left before the end. The most profound and silent attention was afforded every note of music.

It was evidently considered an unusual and important occasion. That imposing crimson and gold interior, with its oblong ring of bulging boxes, made a splendid setting for the extremely smartly dressed and bejeweled audience. The vast gold proscenium arch was a superb frame for the most elaborate staging of any opera that the writer has ever seen.

It made us swell with pride to be able to tell the exultant Gothamites that we had already and frequently heard Elizabeth Rethburg and Leon Rothier at Ravinia. The former is considered one of the most important acquisitions the Metropolitan has had in many a moon.

The audience included every one of importance apparently left in New York at this season. The most conspicuous guest there, because of his beautiful royal purple canonicals, was Mgr. Barry Doyle, a half brother of Conan Doyle and a Catholic prelate who has been devoting himself for a year or more to the care of the thousands of homeless Greek orphans who have been driven out of Asia Minor by the Turks since their victory two years ago. His is a charming personality, and when he comes to Chicago, as he plans to do in the late summer or early autumn, he ought to meet at least as cordial a welcome as he has had in New York and Philadelphia, where thousands have flocked to hear and meet him.

Noted Boxholders.

The list of boxholders at the New York Metropolitan is far more representative of the socially powerful and financially important class than is ours in Chicago. There is hardly a noted name missing. There are only two box-

Your Health Depends Upon Your Food

Many men and women now realize that ills attack the human body through improper eating, drinking or breathing

NOT only obesity but many serious ills result from improper eating. Most of us will acknowledge that rickets is a disease of faulty nutrition and is curable through the right kind of food. Scurvy, inanition, gout and many more, we all agree, come from errors in diet.

If, then, a few diseases are placed at the door of food, does it not stand to reason that more may also be caused by the same thing? And, it is so.

We Are Experts on Diet

Our researches of eleven years have proven to us that every disease of the human body, barring accidents, is caused by what we eat, drink or breathe. Every tissue, gland, organ, or part is constructed of certain elements which we derive from our food, water and air. It is the lack of these necessary elements which cause ill health.

Rheumatism, arthritis, chronic stomach and intestinal disorders, pelvic conditions, goitre, paralysis from apoplexy and other types, and on through the entire list, will respond to correct eating, drinking and breathing.

Our Scientific Home Direction

If you are living outside of Chicago we are offering you the advantage of our extensive experience, and through the directions of your case at home we will restore you to health and to attractive bodily proportions. We will carefully direct what you shall eat to overcome the disease or condition now present. Exercises to aid the elimination of the disease will be given.

Moderate charges are made upon monthly basis. Further particulars may be had upon application.

holders who, like Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick of Chicago, have a box for every night—Mrs. J. P. Morgan and the estate of Henry C. Frick; but the Goelets, Vanderbilts, Astors, Harrimans, Iselins, Satterlees, Garys, Whites, Reids, Mills, Whitneys, Mackays, Harknesses, Webbs, Kahns, Gerrys, Parsons, Belmonts, Clews, Brices, Alexanders, Bakers, and Hydes, besides a lot of lesser lights, are all there on the list.

Several estates besides that of the Frick family are there, too, showing that an opera box is a piece of property like any other. The estates of Henry Clews, James B. Haggin, John E. Parsons, Henry R. Hoyt, and George Peabody Wetmore are listed among the rest of the box owners, 146 in all, besides many schools that have boxes on certain evenings. There are forty-nine boxes in the two rows, the parterre and the grand tier.

Apropos of opera, it was rumored before I left Chicago that the arrangements for Ravinia's coming summer season promised us some surprises which would insure ten weeks of opera surpassing anything this remarkable institution had yet achieved. Louis Eckstein has been traveling back and forth between Chicago and New York since the first of February in an energetic and cheerful manner that suggests some pretty good cards up his operatic sleeve. It is safe to prophesy a tuneful summer on the north shore.

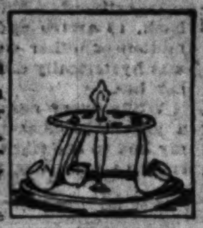
Putting His Pipes in Their Place

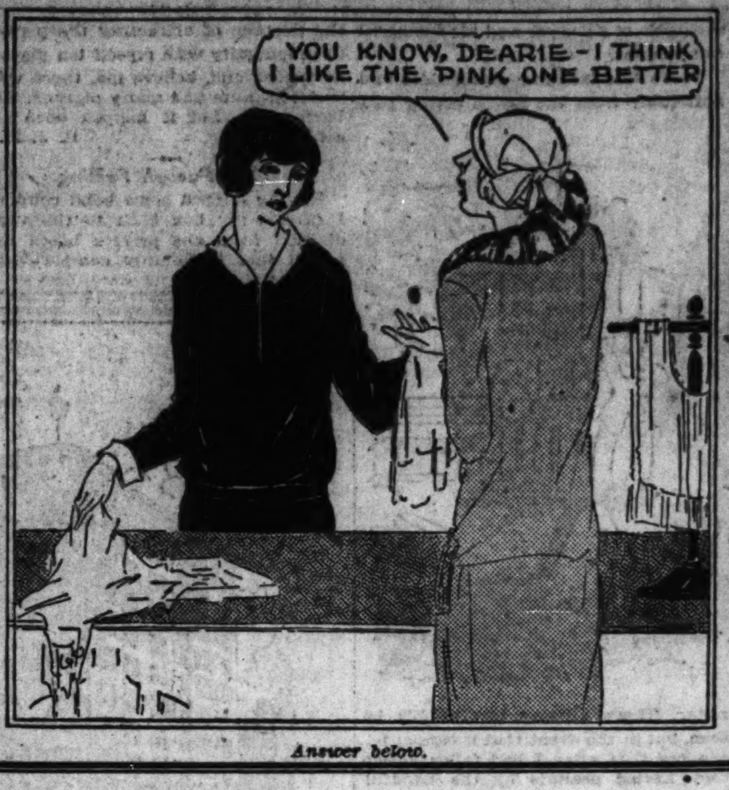


Given a pipe smoking husband, a small house, and an orderly wife, and there's almost sure to be trouble. The pipes collect, the husband tries putting them away in desk or bureau drawers, but sooner or later they strew themselves about the rooms, and the feud is on.

So it ought to be pleasing news that some ingenious person has devised a pipe rack that is not only useful, but even an addition to a room. It is more than a rack, really; it is a little stand that can be set on a table or bookcase or desk. Three pieces of turned wood form the little stand, the largest forming the base, being round and about six or seven inches in diameter. Standing up from that is a slim, gracefully shaped staff, perhaps five inches in height, to which is attached a second round piece of wood, with holes in it for the pipe stems. The bowls of the pipes rest on the upper side of the base.

There are two sizes to be had at present, one for five pipes and one for seven, but it wouldn't be a bad idea to own more than one, if the pipe collection is pretty extensive.

What's Wrong Here?



YOU KNOW, DEARIE—I THINK I LIKE THE PINK ONE BETTER

Answer below.

ANSWER TO WHAT'S WRONG HERE

Never call a saleswoman "dearie" or "honey." It is a lack of dignity on your part and implies the same on hers which she has a right to resent. How would you like to have some stranger call you "dearie?" It does not flatter.

STOLEN BEAUTY

As the Pirates of Old Stole Beauty—

So May the Wrong Kind of Face Powder Rob Modern Woman of Her Complexion Loveliness . . .

WOMEN will learn with amazement the recent disclosures now being made known in regard to their use of the indispensable face powder. A painstaking, scientific study of the skin and its care has brought forth some facts which are nothing short of revolutionary as to the correct way to powder.

Here are the facts:

Most women nowadays give thoughtful attention to their complexions. Why, then, should the skin so painstakingly cared for, frequently tend to coarsen and roughen without apparent cause? Why should the tiny pores mysteriously choke up and enlarge? What has been the reason so much beauty effort has had no permanent result—brought no lasting benefit? Science has found out, sifted down the facts, and discovered the cause of most cases of clogged, enlarged pores to be—powder; not the innocent habit of powdering, but the powder itself!

Every woman knows there are countless brands of face powder, a bewildering array. Prettily packaged and daintily perfumed, they tempt one on every side. They are to be had in various forms, and many fragrances, but science made this important discovery: nearly every powder on the market was basically the same, made of rice! Therein lay the trouble.

How Rice Acts in Face Powder

Consider! Rice, as everyone knows, is a starchy substance and no matter how fine it may be pulverized, its particles remain "sharp." When magnified, rice powder resembles sand! In a tiny pinch of powder there can be seen thousands of jagged, sharp-edged particles—not a happy choice for application to the delicate skin! But worse even than this irritating sharpness, is the fact that rice swells with moisture.

You have seen what rice does when you cook it. The kernels swell and become many times their original size when put in hot water. It is but natural, therefore, that the heat and moisture of the skin should have a similar general effect on rice used in powder. Your own reasoning will bear out this conclusion.

Each time you use powder with a rice base, some of the minute particles must work down into the pores. There they must react harmfully because they are both moistened and warmed—"cooked" by the skin. This action taking place day after day, every time you powder, is bound to undo your care to keep the pores free, clean and normal in size. So one more mystery is solved by science—and common sense.

There Is No Rice in Princess Pat Powder

"But I simply cannot forego the use of Powder!" says the woman who desires the velvety, smooth appearance only powder can give. Nor need she!

Use the "Powder with the Almond Base," Princess Pat, and the thousands of delicate pores in your skin will never be enlarged in the least—however plentiful or frequent the powdering. For, unlike rice, the Almond Base has no sharpness in a dry state, and does not penetrate and swell when moist. Instead it has a soothing, healing quality, making its application a beauty treatment in itself. It is as kind to the supersensitive skin structure as Almond always is—and Almond, as you know, is used on the tender skin of babies.

Princess Pat Gives a More Lovely Effect, Too

Knowing these facts, one regards it as a pity that rice powders—for the face at least—still are used. This is particularly true when you realize Princess Pat is so finely particled that its gentle adherence makes its effect last much longer than the finest powder that can be made of rice. You will be altogether amazed and delighted with the clinging quality of Princess Pat—"The Powder With the Almond Base."

If you actually knew the benefits of Princess Pat to all skins—in all winds and weather—you would hasten its great comfort to you by obtaining a box at once at the nearest store that has it!

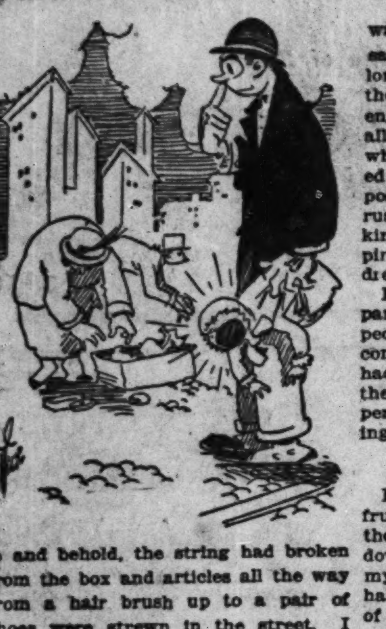
He Held the Baby.

I was standing waiting for a street car when a woman came along carrying a baby, a hat box, and valise. The string was slipping from the box, so I offered my assistance and started to take the box and valise, but she said she would rather I took the baby. So I took the baby and started off for the car and told her to follow. I turned to see if she was ready to get on and, lo and behold, the string had broken from the box and articles all the way from a hair brush up to a pair of shoes were strewn in the street. I had to wait patiently, holding the baby, while others helped her to repack the box.

J. P.



Talking to Strangers.

Recently, following a social, I walked downtown with two college students. They were ardent students of astronomy, and although the night was clear they failed to locate the great dipper. About fifteen minutes later I returned alone past the church. Four of the young people were coming up a side street from the side door.

Still baffled by the elusive dipper, I queried: "Has any one seen the big dipper?"

By the time I had finished speaking they were close enough for me to see that they were not my playmates, but total strangers; two men and two women. They obligingly stopped and helped me look for a moment.

H. F.

Center of Attention.

While hurrying for my train I decided I would cut the corner of a lot as I was late. Suddenly I slipped and cracked the ice beneath me, landing in a huge puddle of water.

Meanwhile the train had arrived and was waiting for me, as the conductor saw me. I picked myself and my belongings up and had to walk through the train with every one thoroughly enjoying my predicament. Worst of all, I had to sit beside a young man whom I have admired and often wanted to attract by looking as smart as possible. I just wanted to cry and rush off the train, when the conductor kindly came along and took my dripping coat and I had to sit in my wet dress all the rest of the journey.

I feel that I can never catch that particular train again and look those people in the face without that uncomfortable sensation. Perhaps if I had not been alone I should have seen the humor of it, but the way it happened was certainly most embarrassing for me.

A. T.

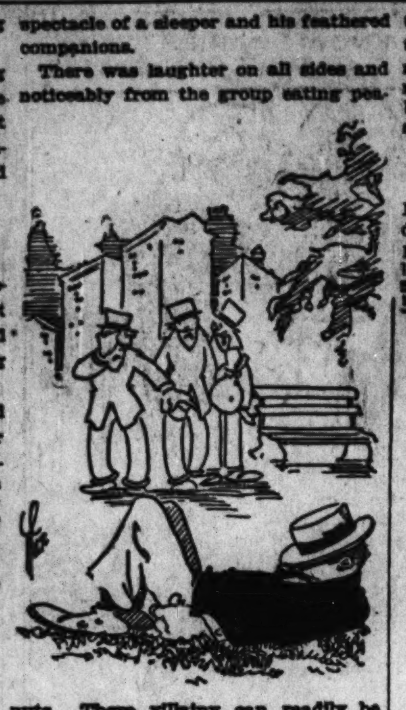
Peanuts and Pigeons.

I betook myself after partaking of a frugal lunch to the inviting sward of the park, and cast myself upon the downy surface taking care to shield my face from Old Sol with a straw hat. Some fifty feet away was a group of facetious gentlemen munching those nourishing pellets known as peanuts.

It so happens that the vicinity has a plethora of pigeons and it seems that they have a decided penchant for peanuts as well as humans. I had been there but a few minutes when I was fast asleep. Some twenty minutes later I was aroused by a scraping sound on the surface of the straw hat that covered my face and then I was conscious of a low hum all about me. I uncovered and to my surprise and chagrin discovered I was surrounded by more pigeons that I thought existed, and also that considerable of a crowd had gathered to watch this interesting spectacle of a sleeper and his feathered companions.

There was laughter on all sides and noticeably from the group eating peanuts. There villainy can readily be seen, but in the event that it cannot let me say that after I had fallen asleep they hurled peanuts by the handful on the spot on which I reposed and, roughly speaking, I think that for every peanut thrown specifically for the purpose of attracting the pigeons to propinquity with myself ten pigeons responded and, believe me, there were many peanuts and many pigeons. Embarrassed? Let it happen once and see.

R. J. M.



That Foolish Feeling.

Having clipped some bond coupons, I carried my box back to the vault division from the private booth and put it into the empty compartment, locked the door, and went home.

Arriving there, I glanced down at the key—the number wasn't mine! I had put my box into some one else's compartment. Frightened, I rushed back, to arrive upon a scene of commotion—another woman, box in hand, was hysterically ordering them to open her box.

While every one looked at me with a grin I produced the key, removed my box to the right compartment, and tried to walk out quite unconcerned.

Radium Is Restoring Health to Thousands

The wonderful curative power of Radium has been known for years. However, the benefits of this precious health-giving substance have in the past been only within the means of persons of wealth.

Since the invention of Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad, any man or woman, poor or rich, can afford this treatment which offers so much relief from suffering and disease.

Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad is worn next to the body day and night. It pours a constant stream of radio-active energy into the system while you work, play or sleep, helping to build up weakened nerves and tissues to a strong, healthy condition. It creates a vigorous circulation of blood, thus removing congestion, which is the real cause of most diseases.

To prove just what this remarkable treatment can do for you, we will send our appliance on trial with the understanding that we will not charge you a cent if it fails to give satisfactory results. This offer is open to any person who has pain of any kind, nerve weakness, high blood pressure, stomach, kidney or liver complaint, bladder trouble, or disease of the lungs or heart.

No matter what your ailment or how long you have had it, we will gladly let you try the appliance at our risk. Write today for free literature giving complete information. Radium Appliance Co., 1490 Bradbury Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

Takes Off 41 Lbs. In Exactly 7 Weeks!

The lady in the picture is close to an ideal weight. Yet two months ago she was far too stout—was heavier by more than forty pounds! Mrs. Ella Carpenter, 2425 Carondelet St., New Orleans, explains how she reduced with such success:

"I had long wished for some means of reducing my 170 lbs. Being a business woman I had no time nor money to waste on fads; but two months ago I decided to try a method that somehow seemed sensible. The trial didn't cost anything, it required only a week—so I gave Wallace reducing records a chance and here is what happen:

"Easiest Thing I Ever Did

"Fifteen minutes each evening I took the reducing movements—to music. It was uncommonly interesting; I felt better from the start. But I watched my weight, and that is what thrilled me—I lost 6¼ lbs. that first week. Naturally I went on with it! The second week I lost 8 lbs. more.

"I didn't do a thing to supplement my course with Wallace—no Turkish Baths, no starving, nor patent foods or drugs—I just got thin to music as the offer said I would. It was delightfully easy. Today, by bathroom scale said 129—not bad for my 5 feet 5 inches!"

Reduce without punishment: without any "reduced look"! Proof that you can costs nothing. The trial is really free. Coupon brings the full first lesson—record and all—without payment now or on delivery.

Mah Jong Invades the Dining Room

One hardly asks any more, "Do you play Mah Jong?" One simply inquires as to whether bridge or Mah Jong is preferred, and the answers are strikingly balanced. The conservatives may be still slightly in the lead, but they are battling with a powerful minority.

Not long ago a devotee of the oriental game gave a party at which only Mah Jong was played. There was intense, there were Chinesey looking bonbons to eat, and when it was time for refreshments, she suggested that they leave off punging so furiously and come out in the dining room for chow.

There she had arranged what she insisted was a really Chinese supper, with chow mein, whole anchovies, waferlike biscuits, strong, flowery tea in handleless cups, and an almond scented dessert. The light came from rosy paper lanterns, the place cards were little Chinese favors, and the effect was charmingly of the eastern hemisphere.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

What is the best joke you ever heard? If you'll write it out and it is published, $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned. Address Best Jokes Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

Her Lucky Number.

Mrs. Wigton was convinced that the lucky figure of her life was 7. "It's quite extraordinary," she said, "how 7 has dominated my life. I was born on the seventh day of the month and had seven sisters."

"Married on the seventh?" asked a friend.

"Well, I was married on June 28, really; but it's still a seven—seven times four. And only yesterday I had an enormous bit of luck."

"Surely," said her friend, "yesterday was the thirteenth?"

"O, yes. Isn't it wonderful? The seven again, you see. Seven and six are thirteen, aren't they?"

F. D. L.

Spoke in Earnest.

You can't always be funny in court and get away with it, but sometimes a culprit is funny without trying to be and in the final judgment it helps a lot.

Take the case in Pasadena recently. A man was up, charged with deserting his wife, and after the evidence was all in the judge asked if it were true.

"It is not, your honor," declared the man earnestly. "I am not a deserter but a refugee."

W. J. W.

All Figured Out.

During a concert by a famous band two men were talking.

One said, "That there fellow ain't got no control over his gang at all."

"How do you figure that out?" queried the second.

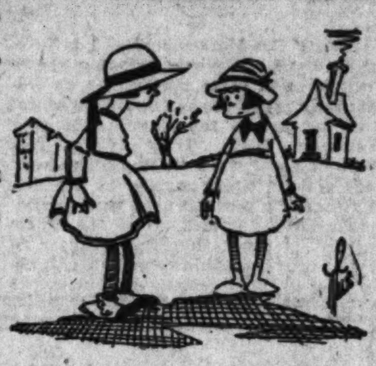
"Why," said the first, "the minute he quits theatenin' 'em with that there black club he's got, and turns his back on them, the quitters stop working. Just watch 'em."

C. T.

Wholly in Earnest.

Two little girls were talking about what they would be when they grow up.

Said Ethel, "When I grow up, I will have a lot of children."



"Yes," said Nora, "and I will be a school teacher and strap your children hard."

"You cruel thing," said Ethel, with tears in her eyes, "what have my poor children ever done to you?"

M. K.

Hardly to Blame.

Said a straphanger to another who had just given his seat to a woman: "Good luck, sir. I've been traveling on this line for three years and I've never offered my seat to a woman."

"Then you've never had any manners, sir," was the reply."

"No, it isn't that; I've never had a seat."

F. D.

Preparedness.

Bill—Well, Art, I can tell you're a married man all right. No holes in your stockings any more.

Art—No. One of the first things my wife taught me was how to darn 'em.

I. O.

An Omen Well Known.

Teacher—A hedgehog on the ground is the sign of a late winter.

Pupil—Yes, and a banana peel on the sidewalk is the sign of an early fall.

W. J. R.

The Hope Diamond.

Liza—Dat certainly is a beautiful engagement ring. What size is dat dimon'?

Rastus—Dat is de twenty year installment size.

A. F. W.

The Dangerous Age.

"What has become of the once quoted man in the street?"

"I suppose he has been run over by this time."

W. L.

Quick Thinking.

"Won't you help the Patagonians?" asked a collector.

"Young lady," responded the business man gravely, "last week you asked me to help the Babylonians. After an investigation I find that the Babylonians have all been dead for 2,000 years."

"Then you'd better help the Patagonians while you've got a chance."

He gave her a check.

B. F. L.

So Much Simpler.

At a big party in London, a woman of the newly rich and ostentatious class was sitting beside the wife of a prominent labor leader.

The former began to talk about her jewelry.

"I clean my diamonds with ammonia," she said; "my rubies with Bordeaux, my sapphires with fresh milk. And you, Mrs. Blank?" she asked turning to the labor leader's wife.

"O, I don't clean mine," said the latter airly. "When they get dirty, I simply throw them away."

Unnecessary.

Jail Visitor—Don't your friends come to see you on visiting days?

Convict—No, lady; dey're all in here wid me.

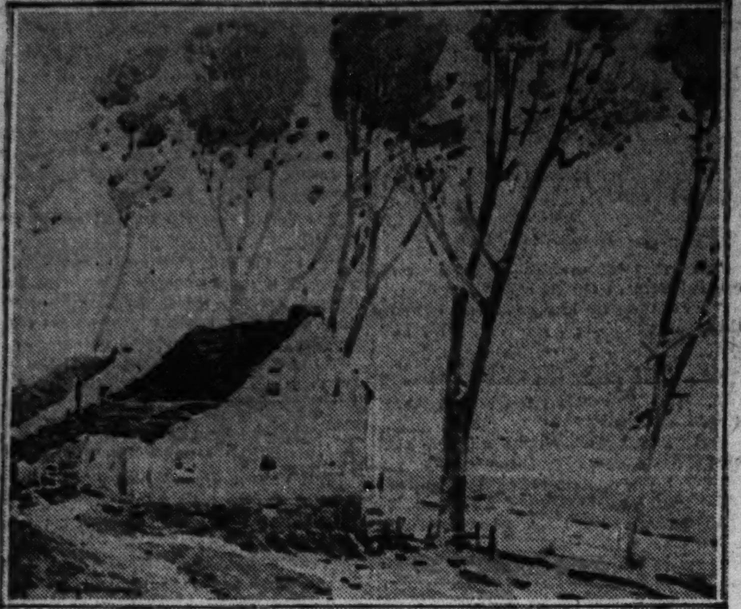
Still Ten Days to Enjoy Water Color Exhibit

By Eleanor Jewett.



"Old Houses, Long Island, N. Y.," by Roy Brown, is in the Fourth International Water Color exposition, which closes on April 22 at the Art institute. The John Singer Sargent exhibition of paintings in oil, opening tomorrow at the institute, replaces the water color exhibit as the thing of the moment in the world of art.

THERE are still ten days in which to enjoy the many delights of the International Water Color exhibition at the Art institute. The exhibit does not close until April 22. When you do go again, be sure not to miss two lovely things just at the entrance to the first large gallery. They are by Frank W. Benson and are called respectively "The Last of the Snow" and "Sparrows in Snow." The last, by the way, has more than a suggestion of the technique which is characteristic of Mr. Benson's bird etchings.

A beautiful harbor is "Parrsboro Harbor," by W. Emerton Heitland, and "The Quiet City," also by him, is a place of lovely mists. From this the artist takes us to an utterly different mood with his "Dominican Doorways," a color drenched, tropical street scene.

"Morning Sunlight," by Frederic Victor Poole, is lovely, and "Behind the Curtain at the Russian Ballet," by Ernst Oppler, is a nice, broad, liquid type of painting. "Mon Village," by Samuel E. Thomas, is quaint and cunning. Irving Maneir's "Design for [illegible]" is brilliant, and the Hungarian artist, Revesz-Ferryman, has a striking bit of color and action in "Fighting Roosters."

Excellent deluges is the pertinent expression that flashes to describe the realistic storms in "Jacon's Ladder" and "Shower," by Howard Giles. "Cambodian Dancing Girls," by Carl N. Wernts, is one of the most exquisite water colors in the exhibit. The finish of the detail is marvelous. The squatting figure finds its replica in the figure on the wall in the background. From the slant eyes to the rings on the fingers, the living is the copy of the dead. It is a mysterious painting, fragrant with the secret perfumes of the far east.

It might be well to note that fifteen water colors by Frank W. Benson and ten by Florence Este have been added to the exhibition since its opening. The water colors by Florence Este are hung in the far eastern gallery, on the walls over the stairways. Her color is remarkable. The landscapes run to orange and yellow, strengthened by timely touches of green and blue.

"The Road from Chester," by W. Emerton Heitland, won the Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan prize in the exhibition.

Sales of paintings from the water color exhibit are increasing. The first week ten pictures were sold, ranging in price from $50 to $200. In the second week eighteen pictures were sold, at prices varying from $15 to $400. Two oil paintings, "Kirghis Boy" and "Russian Maid," by Leon Gaspard, have been sold from his exhibit in gallery G-52.

Tomorrow the exhibition of paintings by John Singer Sargent opens at the Art institute. Eighteen portraits in all will be seen. Portraits of Robert Louis Stevenson, Ada Rehan, Joe Jefferson, Mrs. Charles E. Inches, and Mrs. J. William White are among the group. Besides the portraits there are many landscapes. One, lent by the painter himself, shows Mr. Sargent seated on a camp stool out in the wilderness, in his shirt sleeves, a sport cap perched on his head, a large sketching pad clasped to his bosom, searching the landscape with a keen eye for something to paint.

A camp scene at Lake O'Hara, lent by the Fogg Art museum, is to be seen, and a "Street in Venice," lent by Mrs. Stanford White. There is also a "Moorish Courtyard," lent by James H. Clarke, and that is far from completing the list. But titles are vapid things. Much better is it for you to go to the exhibit and enjoy its beauties at first hand. The exhibition, opening tomorrow, will continue until June 1. Free days, so the Art institute reminds us, are Wednesdays, Saturdays, and Sundays. On the other days an admission fee of 25 cents is charged.

Albin Polasek, head of the sculpture department of the Art institute, will soon have the satisfaction of seeing his beautiful monument to the memory of Theodore Thomas erected in bronze, permanently, on the lake front just south of the Art institute and close to Michigan avenue. Its exact position brings it almost directly opposite to Orchestra hall, which was built for the enduring home Mr. Thomas' great orchestra.

"The Spirit of Music," Polasek has called his memorial. The figure is of heroic size and stands thirteen feet high. She holds a lyre in her arm, the strings of which she has just struck, the act being indicated by her uplifted right hand. With its granite pedestal the bronze figure will of course stand several feet higher than its thirteen feet. The great seat just to the east is a semi-circular affair about forty feet in length. Upon it figures of the orchestra are carved. Polasek has done in this a truly powerful and significant piece of sculpture. It is effective, simple, striking, decorative, impressive, and artistic.

The thirty-seventh annual Chicago architectural exhibition will open at the Art institute on May 1 and continue through the month.

◆

Miss Josephine Kern, a graduate of the school of the Art institute, has recently completed a life size fountain figure in bronze, which was some few days ago unveiled at the Chicago Athletic club. The figure and fountain are a memorial erected by Fred Shepherd to the memory of his father, Edward S. Shepherd. Howard Cheney was the architect.

An exhibition of paintings by Frank V. Dudley has been held in the Elm Place Intermediate school of Highland Park the last ten days. This bringing exhibitions into the schools is a splendid thing, splendid for the children who are brought into close touch with beauty and splendid for the adults who are brought closer to the children by seeing with them, in their haunts, the best a good artist can achieve.

Nancy Cox-McCormick is, I believe, still abroad. However, whether she is or not is of little importance to the announcing of an exhibition of sculpture by her in the Galeries Jacques Seligman, Paris. They say this last year or so of work in Rome has seen her making great strides in her art. The cut of a portrait head that accompanies the invitations to the Paris exhibit is proof that the sculptor is grounding herself in essentials and obtaining splendid effect through sheer raw force. No frills, all fact, and sincerity before beauty.

There is, at a local gallery, a delightful exhibit of water colors by Rustom Vicaji. They are poetic and original, painted with a delicate, light and sure hand. One "The Bridge of Sighs" is as lovely as though it were really spun from sighs—lovers' sighs—and moonlight dropped from the thin horn of a June new moon.

When Nature Warns Fight Acidosis!

Rid stomach and intestines of excess acid and waste poisons with Haley's Magnesia-Oil

Most serious illness starts in the stomach. Overeating and too little exercise bring on Acidosis, the scientific name for sour stomach.

Nature warns you immediately. Heartburn, dizzy spells, stomach-distress, are all signals for help against Acidosis.

Two Weapons Needed to Fight This Danger

If you would win the battle against Acidosis and head off serious sickness you must do two things:

1—Neutralize the stomach acids.
2—Rid the intestines of digestive waste.

Milk of Magnesia is the finest known agent for counteracting stomach acids. But milk of magnesia alone is not enough. Now science has combined milk of magnesia with purest mineral oil in a wonderful, patented emulsion called Haley's Magnesia-Oil. The milk of magnesia attacks the acids and sweetens the stomach while the oil lubricates the intestines and brings about natural elimination of all waste poisons.

Doctors and nurses everywhere are recommending Haley's Magnesia-Oil for young and old. Stop at your druggist's today and get a bottle. Take some before you go to bed tonight and get up in the morning feeling like a new person. Trial size, 35c; economical family size, $1. The Haley M-O Company, Indianapolis, Ind.

ART AND ARTISTS

Last Sunday in Glencoe, a little exhibition was held of representative work of several Chicago painters. Among those whose pictures were seen were Oliver Dennett Grover, Gerald A. Frank, Lucy Hartrath, Joseph Birren, Anna E. Stacey, Pauline Palmer, Frederick Grant, Rudolph Ingerle, Anna Lynch, J. Wellington Reynolds, and Anita Willets-Burnham.

An exhibit of commercial art is now to be seen in the Palette and Chisel club rooms. Among the artists represented are Harry F. Rudd, Julian Dove, J. Cestmir Svoboda, Otto Hake, Oscar Gross, E. R. Kirkbride, Maurice Greenberg, David Adam, Martin Lundgren, and Glen C. Sheffer. The exhibition will continue several weeks.

An exhibition of portraits of the members of the Moscow Art theater is to be seen at the studio of Miss Grace Hickox, Fine Arts building, during their present stay in Chicago. The portraits are by Francis Bruguiere. From the announcement it is hard to tell whether the portraits are painted or photographed. At all events, "Mr. Bruguiere intends to give the whole set of photographs to the Russian players on their departure!" And, on other good authority, the exhibition is remarkable and worth seeing while it is at the Hickox studios.

The new Roerich museum opened on March 24 in New York. It will house about three hundred paintings by Nicholas Roerich and was founded by the Master Institute of United Arts and Corona Mundi, International Art Center, for the people.

The twelfth Swedish-American art exhibition opened last week in the Swedish club of Chicago, 1258 North La Salle street.

An exhibition of paintings by Pamela Bianco opened on Tuesday in the Arts club room of the Art institute.

Holy week, preëminently the church going week of all Christendom, will be observed in Chicago by noonday meetings in three of the downtown churches and by congregations of all denominations.

The Rt. Rev. Charles P. Anderson, Bishop of Chicago of the Episcopal church, will speak at the Garrick theater, 64 West Randolph street, tomorrow to Good Friday, 12:10-12:30.

The Rev. John McNeill, D. D., famous as an associate of the late Dwight L. Moody as an evangelist and a speaker in many countries and in France during the world war, will speak every noon at Powers' theater, 134 West Randolph street, 12:10-12:55, under the auspices of the Chicago Church federation. Dr. McNeill is at present pastor of the Fort Washington Presbyterian church, New York.

Muhly of Elyria, O.; Wednesday, the Rev. J. A. Leimer; Thursday and Friday, the Rev. Prof. William Arndt of St. Louis.

"The Church and Crime" will be the subject of a Lenten lecture at 7:45 o'clock this evening at St. Mary's Catholic church, Evanston, by the Rev. Frederic Siedenburg, S. J.

The Rev. J. W. Hoyt, pastor of the Belden Avenue Baptist church, Belden avenue and North Halsted street, will preach every evening this week at 7:45. A. W. Ekvall will lead the singing.

The Federation for Social Service will have charge of the program tomorrow morning at the Methodist ministers' meeting at the Chicago Temple.

The national conference of Methodist students in colleges and universities of the United States will be held in Louisville, Ky., Friday to Sunday next. How students can relate themselves to the world task will be the general theme. Delegates will go from Northwestern university and the University of Chicago. There are 110,000 Methodist students in the United States and 1,000 are expected to attend the conference.

The board of national missions of the Presbyterian church will meet on April 24 and 25 in Fourth church. Dr. Joseph A. Vance is chairman.

Reports from the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church state the women raised last year $1,400,000, breaking all previous records, and the total receipts were $4,378,000, an increase of more than $900,000 over last year.

Congregationalists, Methodists, and Presbyterians have united in bringing to Chicago the Rev. Paul Fox of Baltimore, who will conduct work among the Polish population.

[Koehne Photo.]

The Rev. Frederick W. Otterbein is pastor of the North Austin English Lutheran church, Mason avenue and Le Moyne street, which will let contracts this week for the completion of its church building, the total cost of which will be $175,000. The Rev. Mr. Otterbein is founder of the congregation and has been pastor of the church three and a half years. Two years ago the first unit of the church was dedicated. The membership has grown to 600, with 800 in the Sunday school. The congregation now meets in two sections, one at 8 a. m. and another at 11 o'clock. Pastor Otterbein was in business in Detroit several years before studying for the ministry at the Lutheran Theological seminary at Maywood, and his success in building up so large a congregation so rapidly is attributed to his knowledge of the ways of the world. It is hoped the new and larger building will be ready for dedication next year at Easter.

"Determining Forces in the Mohammedan Near East" will be the subject of three lectures on the Alden-Tuthill foundation to be given by the Rev. J. Work is under way for the construction of a new school building for St. Genevieve's Catholic parish, the Rev. T. D. Burke, pastor. The building, at Lamon avenue and Montana street, will be a two story and basement structure of brick.

A reception and luncheon will be given in honor of Dr. Ida Kahn of Nanchang, China, next Tuesday at the Chicago Beach hotel by the northwestern branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church. The reception will be at 12:30 and the lunch at 1. Mrs. W. I. Cable, 406 North Lombard avenue, Oak Park, is chairman of arrangements. Dr. Kahn, who is a Chinese woman physician, is a graduate of the University of Michigan. Mrs. Bishop Thomas Nicholson will be present.

Thirty foreign students will be entertained today by members of the St. James' Methodist Episcopal church. At the morning service, held in the Kenwood club, 47th street and Lake Park avenue, because of the burning of the St. James' church building, Y. D. Kim, Corea; J. T. Cheng, China; A. B. Lundberg, president of the Swedish Theological seminary, Evanston, will speak in the morning, neighboring pastors in the afternoon, and Dr. Edmund D. Soper of Evanston in the evening. The Rev. The Broadmoor

Howard and Bosworth

WE are frequently asked why other hotels complain of lack of patronage when the Broadmoor is invariably well patronized. There may be other reasons, but our answer is our convenient location, accessibility and good service. Maybe it is our beautiful building, our perfect refrigeration, our ventilated kitchens, outside baths, transoms to halls, large panel mirror in doors, large closets in bedrooms, (two in many of them), and the exceptional furniture and equipment, also the other small details that are the difference between a good and mediocre hotel. Coupled to all this are our reasonable PRICES, which include kitchenette and full service.

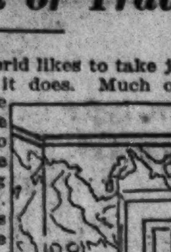
Flights of Fancy in Lieu of Travel



Most of the world likes to take journeys. Some of it does. Much of it stays at home and plans the things it would do if it could, or the things it is going to do some day. But the wise ones of those who have to do their traveling within four walls have an atlas or globe that is nearly as thrilling to them as the actual voyaging would be.

Many are the trips taken on a cold December night, before a sizzling steam radiator or a gas log. Many are the adventures lived through, the hardships endured, the beauties viewed. And then, when the day arrives on which a real journey is to be made, added zest is given to those whose imaginations have already led them into the unknown corners.

A brilliant and much traveled New York man, whose house is characteristic of his interesting life, has designated one small room his map room. The walls, instead of being tinted, are papered with—not a scenic paper, as one might expect, but with great maps of the world. The paper on which the maps are printed is put on in the same manner wall paper would be, and the maps themselves are such a good size there is no difficulty in locating favorite spots on the face of the earth. The world is truly at his door! It is within the walls of his house, and his delights in his map room are unlimited.

The ceiling is plaster painted a pale blue-green, carrying out the ocean hues of the maps, and the woodwork is oak. There are as yet undeveloped possibilities in the perfect lighting, but he is working things out for himself. Two excellent magnifying glasses lie on a desk table; low bookcases are built at three of the walls, and they are kept filled with the books that travelers cherish, and there are even two long, slim pointer rods that carry one back to grammar school days.

What Women Are Doing the World Over

According to statistics, old maids live longer than widows.

Mme. Clair Eliasco, American wife of a Constantinople banker, has received 10 decorations from foreign countries.

Anna Weinstock, conciliator of the United States department of labor, has settled fifty strikes in one year's service.

Mme. Vera Sergine, eminent French actress, will build her own theater so that she can act plays of her own choice.

Since the earthquake, forty-four women's organizations in Japan have federated and plan a comprehensive program for the next five years.

The French government has appointed Mme. Irene Jeanning, a young actress, as special envoy to the United States in the interest of culture.

Miss Florence M. Poley of Cleveland, first woman to be elected a member of the American Association of Engineers, is a civil engineer for the Nickel Plate railroad.

In Madras and Bombay, Indian women of good position have their own clubs, where men are admitted on guest nights.

The lifting of an elephant by a human being seems incredible, but the feat was accomplished in New York by Martha Farra, an Italian strong woman, who lifted, with apparent ease, a two ton elephant.

Mrs. Horatio N. Slater of Boston, has invented a snow plow and snow remover that has enlisted the attention of the government. The invention has been offered to Mayor Curley of Boston, and it will probably be given tests there.

In Dahomey when a girl reaches the age of 18 she at once sets out to find someone willing to marry her, and sometimes takes a husband on trial for a couple of months before choosing him permanently.

The youngest widow pensioner of a soldier of the war of 1812 is Mrs. A. I. Anderson of Cedar Grove, Ga., who is 84 years of age and was married at the age of 22, her husband being 86 at the time of the ceremony.

Miss Frances Densmore, an expert on Indian music, has been appointed to the staff of the National Museum at Washington. Miss Densmore spends her summers among various tribes studying and rewriting their music.

The head of the engineering forces of the Chilean state railroads is a woman.

LAMPS AND MIRRORS—SIXTH FLOOR

Many of the mirrors are of Venetian type and are made entirely of crystal plate glass.

2,000 mirrors and 300 lamps have arrived just in time for Spring refurnishing and are priced exceptionally low for this special selling

Here is a value-giving event which will long be remembered by the women of Chicago. It has taken months and months of careful preparation and co-operation with manufacturers to stage an offering of this kind. Our first consideration was to secure only merchandise of absolutely the highest character, the kind that any woman will be proud to have in her home. The second consideration was to secure them at prices far below usual. Behold the results of our efforts.

Venetian mirrors represent the highest attainment in the art of home decoration and have been used for centuries past in the finest homes and most pretentious mansions. This collection includes magnificent designs which mark a revival of the old Italian period mirrors. They are all artistically hand engraved and of great intrinsic value. The polychrome mirrors are in a diversity of handsome designs and finishes that unmistakably bear the workmanship of expert craftsmen.

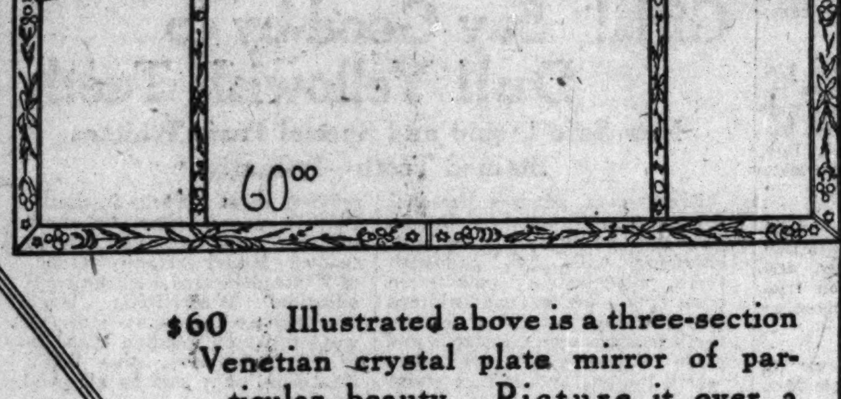
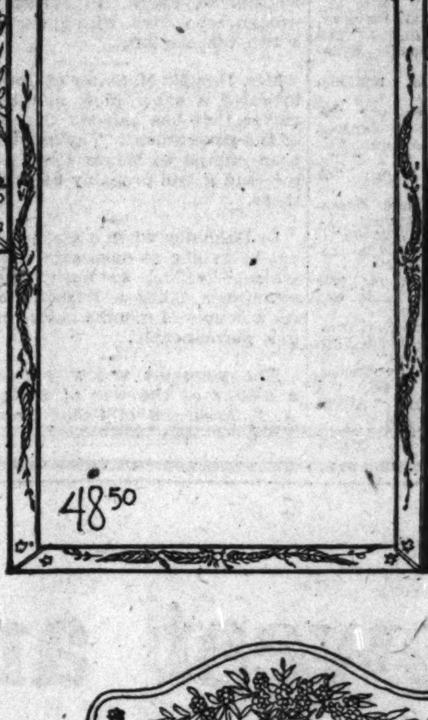
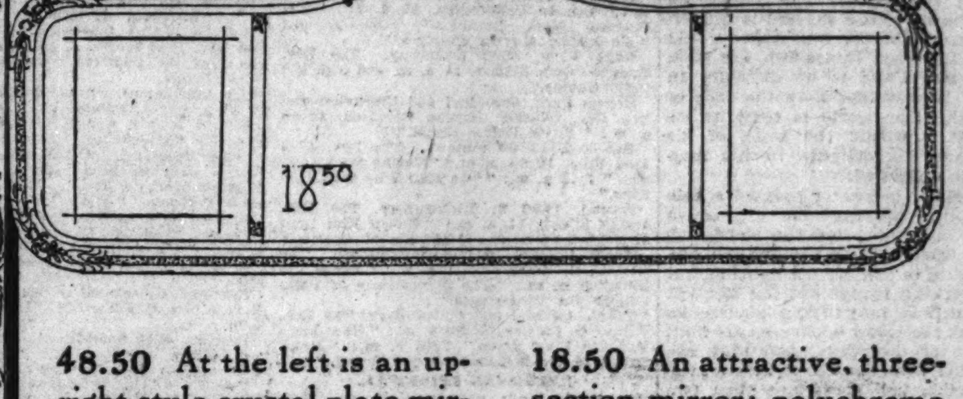
Every lamp is of the famous ALMCO make, thereby assuring quality, distinctiveness and value unsurpassed. It is far beyond the range of newspaper advertising to depict faithfully and truly the real beauty of these lamps. You must see them yourself and note the rare beauty of the shades and the substantial and superior craftsmanship shown in the bases. You will find them irresistible at the special prices quoted for this great value-giving event.



$60 Illustrated above is a three-section Venetian crystal plate mirror of particular beauty. Picture it over a mantel—or buffet. The frame is of etched glass. Specially priced.

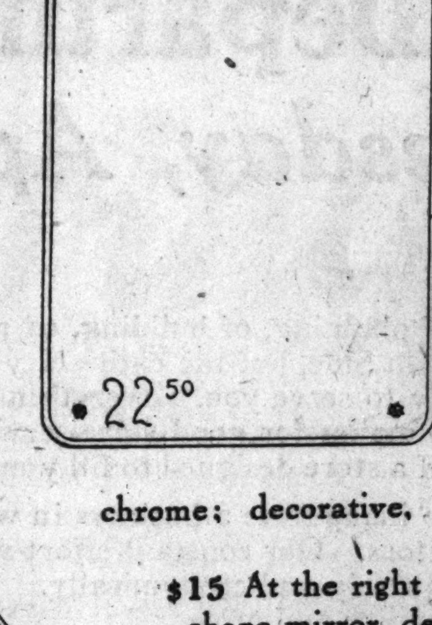


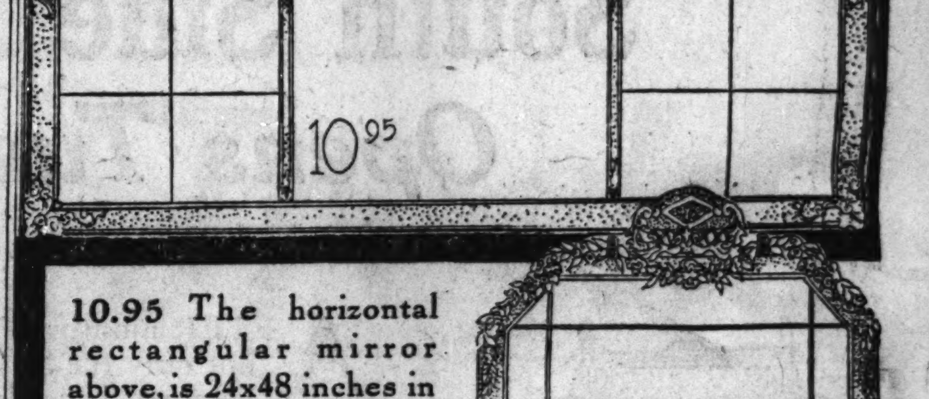
48.50 At the left is an upright style crystal plate mirror with etched glass frame—a mirror for many decorative, practical purposes.



18.50 An attractive, three-section mirror; polychrome frame; notably low priced for so handsome a mirror. Let it grace your walls.

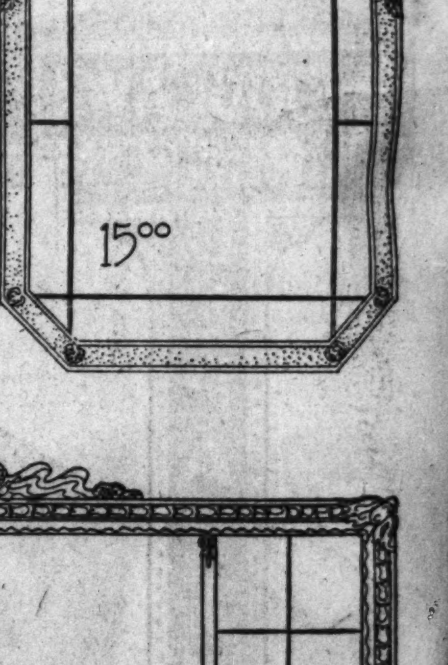
22.50 At the right. Venetian crystal plate mirror; panel glass with etched border. Size of panel 18x30 inches.

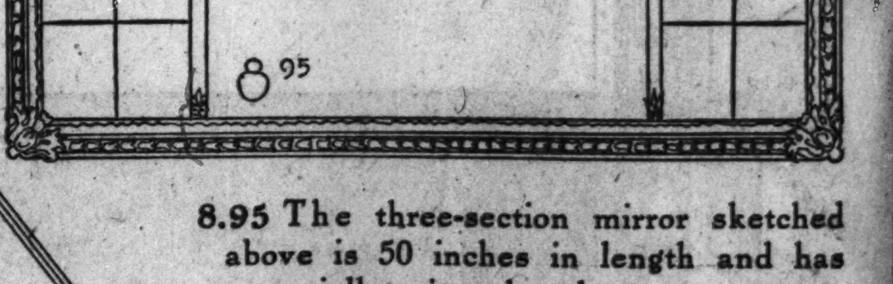




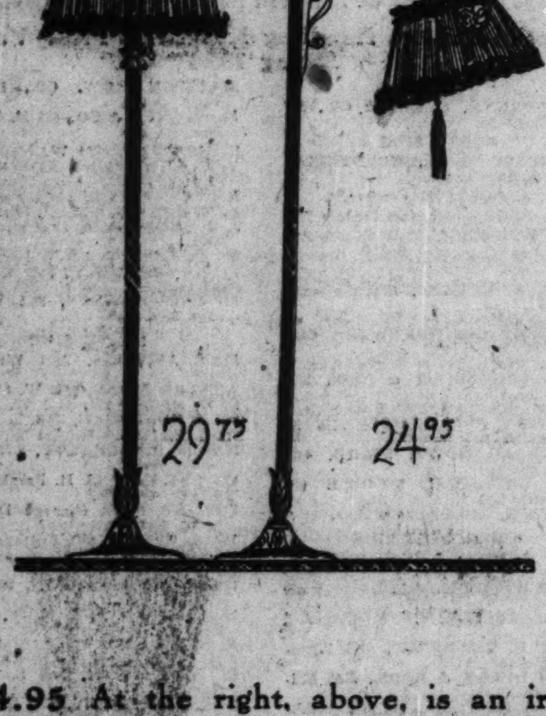
10.95 The horizontal rectangular mirror above, is 24x48 inches in size. It has a frame of gray and silver polychrome; decorative, practical, yet inexpensive.

$15 At the right is a very unusual octagonal shape mirror, designed to fill a multitude of needs and notably low priced to meet the requirements of the most limited of purses.





8.95 The three-section mirror sketched above is 50 inches in length and has specially mitered ends.

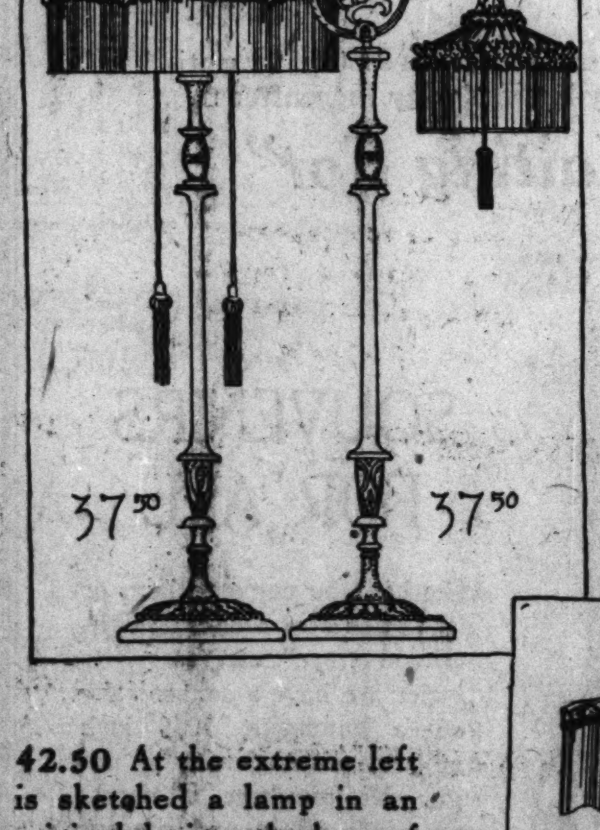


29.75 Sketched at the left, is a junior lamp with a nicely designed iron base, trimmed with gold leaf. The shade, too, is unique in shape—made ever so tastefully of shirred georgette ruching trimmed with a spray of delectable French flowers. An attractive lamp that will add a very welcome note of color to any home. Truly beautiful, you will agree when you see it.

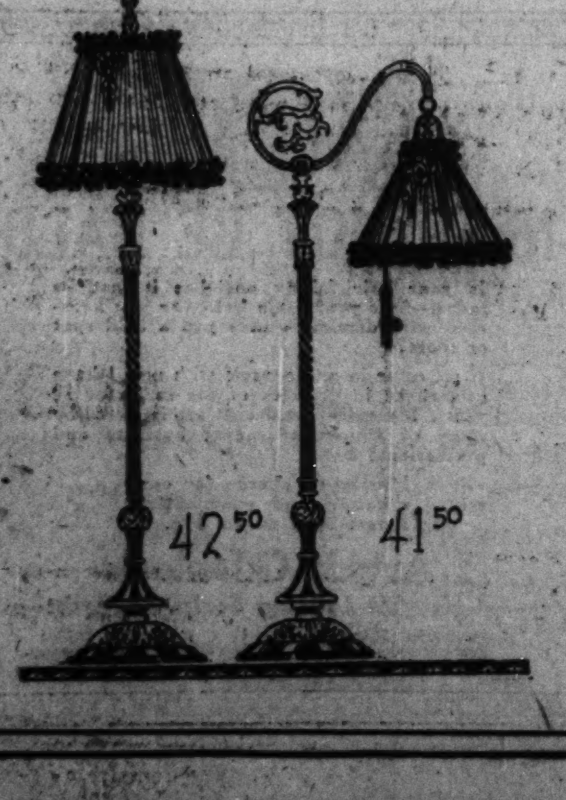
24.95 At the right, above, is an iron bridge lamp with a shade of shirred georgette, silk lined, and trimmed with two-toned ruching. The base, in a square post pattern in a rich black and gold, is most artistically designed.

37.50 At the right is shown a junior lamp with a beautifully ornamented wooden base. It is completed by a pleated georgette shade, oval in shape—silk lined and edged with heavy silk fringe. A charming lamp that will fit into any decorative scheme.

Mail and telephone orders will be accorded prompt attention.



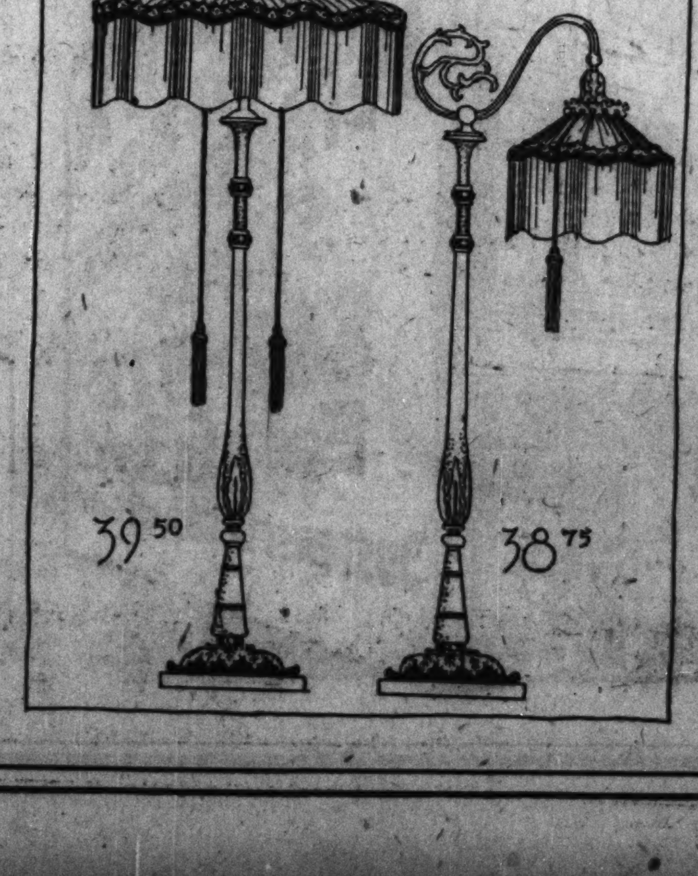
37.50 Pictured at the left, a charming bridge lamp with an oval shade of pleated georgette, silk lined; trimmed with ruching and a two-color fringe. To have a pleasing echo of design, especially in lamps, will immediately make a definite appeal to folk of discrimination—hence bridge lamps follow the tendency, juniors.



42.50 At the extreme left is sketched a lamp in an original design; the base of which is handsomely decorated with gold leaf and completed with colored glass pull cords and glass finial. The empire shade of georgette and heavy ruching is decorated with a spray of French flowers.

41.50 A bridge lamp with shade to match is shown at the left.

Lamp department, sixth floor.



39.50 At the left is a most remarkable value. The wooden base is artistically designed and trimmed. The pleated georgette shade, silk lined, is trimmed with gold braid forming scallops, and finished with a 5-inch silk fringe.

38.75 A bridge lamp to match in color and style is shown to the right of the one above mentioned. Sixth floor.

$15 An upright mirror, at right, is beautifully designed and has a gold and silver polychrome frame.

Sixth floor.

SALES EXECUTIVE OR SALES AGENCY.

A large Chicago manufacturer has Illinois territory for a sales organizer and executive, or a sales agency, fitted to handle the distribution of a household specialty that sells through the large retail stores; the connection, arranged on a long term contract, is a most desirable one and requires an executive or agency of proven business capacity whose financial resources will enable operation on a straight commission basis that assures profits of more than $12,000 annually.

The product is the first of an exclusive line that will be handled by the sales organization now being formed and has already gained nation-wide reputation. CLEVLEN SAYS:

Below we print what one of our 82 salesmen said at Saturday's meeting. We haven't altered a word:

"Men, this is the best year the Lonsford Organization ever had.

"We've got more men, more of them are earning big money, and our advertising is hammering our story home as it has never been hammered home before. We're making Chicago people realize what our trademark is, and what it stands for—'safety dollars.'

"I tell you, you can all earn more money than you now earn. It's just like Mr. Lonsford said Thursday—the real estate man, who's earning $200 a week on real estate, alone, can make $400 a week with us, because we've got something more than just real estate—we've got an investment feature that's the safest thing I ever heard of.

"Men, I ask you: Do you know any good salesmen? Do you know men who want to earn more money? Do you know any women who are good salesmen? If you do, bring 'em in here, and they'll thank you all their lives."

We back up Clevlen's invitation: Come in and hear our proposition.

"Now we are both making more money than we ever made. The work is thoroughly enjoyable. We like it. We like the other salesmen. We like the Organization. And we particularly like helping so many other people make more money.

"Any woman who wants a better job than she has ought to come in here and get acquainted with us and with our proposition. It won't take long to find out what the rest of us are making, and if you want big money you'll try it, that's sure!

"Mr. Lonsford's secretary will make an appointment for you to talk to him personally—and I will be glad to go over things with you, if you want my personal opinion of what you might do."

The Sherwin contains very desirable apartments, all with a view of the lake, consisting of Living Room with in-a-door bed; Dining Room; Kitchen; Glass Tiled Bathroom; very spacious closets with built-in wardrobes; in-door, full length mirrors; circulating refrigeration. Also other most attractive and larger apartments with bedrooms, and single guest rooms. Rates are very moderate and include complete hotel service.

A luxurious Lounge, Lobby, and Promenade, Club and Reception, and other Public Rooms contribute to the enjoyment of Hotel Sherwin's social indoor life, and the hotel's privately owned natural sand beach provides unusual facilities for bathing and aquatic sports. The private park offers tennis, golf, bowling, and other games and an ideal playground for the children. A private pier with motor launch service to Randolph-st. offers enjoyable jaunts by water to the loop.

The Sherwin's own orchestra and pipe organ furnishes music daily from 6:30 to 9:30 p. m., and for supper and dinner dances. Sunday afternoon concerts by selected artists are other enjoyable features at the Sherwin.

HOUSES—NORTH SIDE.

Home De Luxe

Exceptional Opportunity for Discriminating Buyer.

2100 PRATT-BLVD., just west of Ridge-blvd. and opposite Edgewater Golf Club. One of the most attractive and completely appointed homes on the North Side. A product of the architectural skill of Frank D. Chase and engineering ability of Robert E. Gaut. Built less than ten years ago for the present occupant and owner, who is moving away from Chicago. Tapestry brick construction with heavy green tile roof and white porcelain trimmings. Corner lot, 275x188, south front, with unobstructed light and air from all directions. Grounds beautifully landscaped, with over 100 carefully selected and well cared for trees, besides innumerable shrubs and plants. Three car garage, of same construction as house, with h. w. heating plant and chauffeur's living quarters, with bath. Grounds entirely fenced, with artistic high iron fence on both street frontages. Circular cement auto driveway. Ten rooms, besides large inclosed and heated sleeping porch, glazed solarium with heat, spacious entrance and stair hall, and very complete lady's dressing room. Five real fireplaces. Two large cedar vaults and numerous commodious and windowed closets. Four beautiful bathrooms and two extra lavatories. Billiard room 38x21, with large log burning fireplace. French doors and casement windows throughout. Mosaic tiled kitchen floor. Fine h. w. heating plant. Architecture English colonial. Interior throughout white satin finished enamel and mahogany.

This home must be seen to be appreciated. It is strictly modern in every particular and no expense was spared in its construction. A quick acting buyer can secure this property at a price considerably below its real value, as owner is desirous of selling before he moves out. An exchange for Chicago income equities might be considered. It is clear.

Inspection only by appointment. Phone Harry S. Lewis, Evanston 5582 or Central 7500, or address him, 12 S. Michigan-blvd.

CADILLAC

Dollar for dollar values in dependable used cars.

More than a thousand satisfied owners of our reconditioned Type 61 Cadillacs tell us that no better used car values can be found today.

This is due to two things—the inherent excellence of the Cadillac motor car and our complete reconditioning process.

Thoroughly repainted; equipped with 5 new cord tires; put in A1 condition mechanically; top, upholstering and head linings carefully cleaned. These cars represent such excellent value that we sell them under the regular 90 day new car warranty.

The reconditioning is done entirely in our own shops by Cadillac craftsmen trained in their work.

Come in and inspect our stock of open and enclosed models. We are glad to show them to you and if you are interested in seeing the reconditioning in actual process will be equally pleased to take you through our service department.

FORMULA CHANGEABLE PAINT.

Color changes from bright yellow to brilliant red when gently warmed; resumes yellow color on cooling; may be used on automobiles as a motometer, which may be placed on instrument-board; can be used as a flashing day sign; the lettering flashing from yellow to red, and vice versa, indefinitely, finds application as heat indicator for bearings, on stoves and electric irons to indicate temperature; may be prepared as a yellow printing ink, and when printed on yellow paper leaves the page apparently blank; when warmed by holding over a radiator or a hot water pipe the paint flashes forth in brilliant red; the sure way of inducing the public to read every word of your advertisement; may be used by artists for painting sunsets, the changing play of color imparting a lifelike vividness to the painting; when used in painting flesh tints the illusion of a blushing figure becomes exceedingly realistic; such painting may be exhibited in amusement resorts as mystifying at profitable figures.

Will sell formula and exclusive mfg. rights for $5,000, including complete laboratory instructions in process of manufacture. Will assist in drawing patents. An opportunity to realize a fortune from a comparatively small investment.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

REALTY MEN TO GUIDE GROWTH OF NILES CENTER

Will Zone District and Have City Plan.

BY AL CHASE.

GEORGE F. NIXON.
[Walinger Photo.]

If the realty men who have been whooping things up in Niles Center ever since Mr. Insull's plans for a surface extension of the "L" lines were made public can bring it about, the growth of that much advertised section of Cook county is going to be orderly and intelligent. A move toward this end was made last week, when representatives of most of the property owners in Niles Center met at the Chicago Athletic association and formed the Northwestern Elevated Development association.

The first thing to be abolished will be the wild west tactics employed by the salesmen of certain firms who stop motors, drag the occupants to a lot, stick a fountain pen in their hand, and all but force them to sign on the dotted line. Realty firms who don't permit their salesmen to use these knock 'em down and drag 'em in tactics, and consequently have lost many good sales, were the principal objectors.

To Have City Plan.

Other things to be done will be the hiring of a city planning expert and the drawing up by him of a comprehensive city plan and a zoning ordinance. Parks and playgroundds will be provided for, as well as wide boulevards and necessary diagonal streets.

The new association hopes to guide the development of the territory as a unit and standardize prices of lots in the ten square miles of territory adjacent to the "L" right of way. Even street lighting fixtures will be standardized.

Nixon Elected President.

George F. Nixon is president of the association. There are six vice presidents, each in charge of a municipal activity. Vice President Axel Lonnquist will have charge of city planning and zoning, Michael Faherty will look after the street lighting system, Edward Dato will see that the district gets publicity, Arthur Dunas will have charge of public utilities, gas and electricity; A. O. Swenson will look after sewers and water, Charles E. Bates will have transportation in charge.

These six vice presidents will meet every Wednesday noon at the Chicago Real Estate board and discuss the Niles Center development and tell what's being accomplished.

Reports to Be Made.

A report will be made from time to time to the newly organized Niles Center Chamber of Commerce, which in turn will submit proposed ordinances to the village board, which is practically identical with the commerce body. John Brown, mayor of Niles Center, is president of the Chamber of Commerce; William Galitz is treasurer; the five trustees of the village, Albert Lies, Robert Hoffman, Samuel Meyer, William C. Schnur, and Henry Voght, are directors.

The real estate firms in the new association are: Charles E. Bates, Dunas & Co., Michael Faherty, Edward Hagelin, John P. Harding, Krenn & Dato, the Lonnquist company, George F. Nixon & Co., North Side Realty company, Leo Perron, and Talman & Thiele.

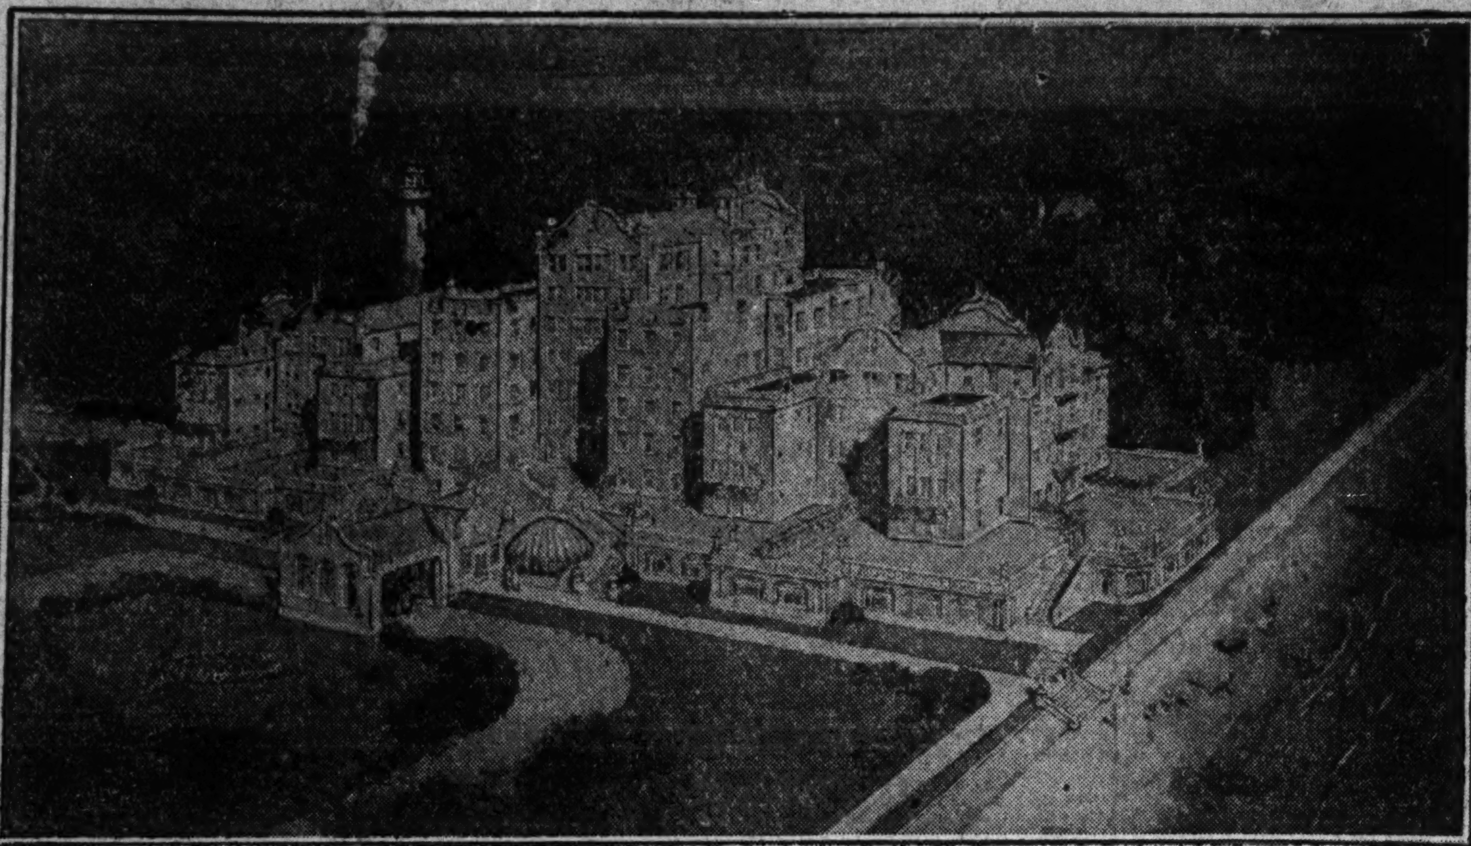
Plan Garage at Sherman and Polk Street Corner

C. J. Roubik Jr., who bought the southwest corner of Polk and Sherman, 106x150, for $159,000 cash, as reported in this department on Tuesday, intends erecting a three story garage. H. F. Eggert of W. K. Young & Brother was broker.

$115,000 FOR CORNELL FLATS.

Albert O'Rourke has sold the eighteen flats at 5316 Cornell avenue to Morris, Jacob and Benjamin Rosenthal, for an indicated $115,000, subject to $30,000.

North Shore's Most Elaborate Apartment Project



Architect C. Hauber has designed the above $1,000,000 "Windiknowe" apartments for Mrs. Sarah V. Brown Deynzer, which will be erected on the lake shore in Evanston, just south of the lighthouse grounds (the lighthouse can be seen in the background, on the reader's left), if certain changes are made in the university town's zoning ordinance. More is told about this interesting and elaborate project in a neighboring column.

CHICAGOANS BUY 1,000 ACRES FOR FLORIDA "SUB"

Plan a Palatial Hotel Near Jacksonville.

One of the biggest hotel and subdivision projects in Florida—a state already famous for such things—is contemplated for Jacksonville by a Chicago syndicate. A site comprising nearly 1,000 acres, five miles south of the Florida metropolis, on the banks of the St. Johns river, has been purchased by the C. Roy Kindt Realty Trust, and wire advices from the south state that a $2,000,000 hotel will be erected. Sites also will be sold to wealthy northern tourists who prefer to own their homes.

"Croycrest on the St. Johns" will be the name of the new de luxe subdivision. It will have a frontage on the St. Johns river of more than a mile and a half.

To Be Designed by Chicagoan.

The new hotel probably will be seven or eight stories and will be designed by a Chicago architect. His name will be announced shortly.

Two eighteen hole golf courses, a swimming pool, polo grounds, tennis courts, a race track, etc., are announced for the new tourist colony. There will be a yacht basin on the St. Johns river. The Dixie highway crosses the property and the main line of the Florida East Coast railway is a short distance from it.

Chicago Brokers in Deal.

Brown & Hammer, Chicago real estate firm, represented the realty trust. Joseph R. Dunn was the Jacksonville real estate broker in the deal. Mr. Kindt is connected with the Thomas Cusack company.

"The contemplated tourist hotel to be erected by the Chicago people has been the source of considerable talk in this section of Florida for many years, but it took a live wire syndicate from Chicago to put it over," comes over the wire from Florida.

Brokers' Notes

Carlstrome & Auer will move next Tuesday from 4750 Sheridan road a couple of blocks south to much larger quarters at 4534 Sheridan road. Their phone will be the same.

Kurt Rosenthal & Co. have moved from 11 South La Salle to much larger quarters in the Chicago Temple building, suite 403-4.

Steinbach & Co. have taken over the real estate office of Watson & Tackett at 4005½ Broadway, and P. G. Steinbach will manage it. M. S. Keyes will have charge of the renting department. The main office will be maintained at 3468 Lincoln avenue, under the management of Harold Peterson.

R. Weston Pollard, formerly president of the Commonwealth State bank and senior member of the firm of Pollard & Blount, has organized the real estate firm of R. W. Pollard & Co., with offices at 7624 Cottage Grove avenue. Telephones are Vincennes 9500-01-02.

Frank Palabykian, former manager of the Albany Park branch of the Guarno Real Estate Improvement corporation, will have charge of that firm's Beverly Hills Manor subdivision. Alex G. Thiel, formerly in charge of the insurance and loan department will be the new manager of the Albany Park office.

PINKERTON HOUSE SOLD.

The one time residence of the late William Pinkerton at 217 South Ashland, lot 37x150, was sold by the Pinkerton estate to Varian B. Adams for $37,500. The new owner contemplates some remodeling later on. The property was put under contract before the announcement of the proposed Wieboldt store, which accounts for the comparatively low price, according to Naumann & Steuer, who represented the buyer. Alex Friend & Co. represented the seller.

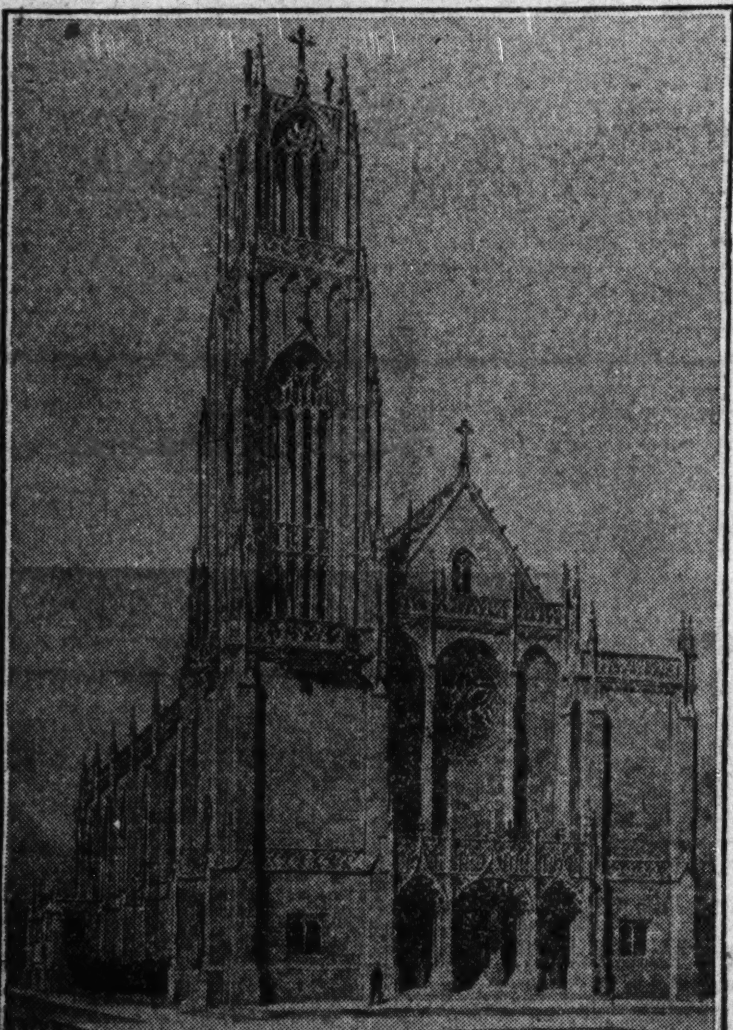
RECORD RENTAL FOR NORTH-AV.

The Metropolitan 5-10 Cent Stores company has leased the store at 542 West North avenue, 25x110 owned by Ralph Stadeker, for ten years, at a term rental reported at $17,250. This is claimed to be a record rental for the neighborhood. Slottow & Levitton were brokers.

PLANS ROGERS PARK FLATS.

Fred V. Prather is drawing plans for eighteen flats at the northwest corner of Chase and Greenview for Andrew E. Burach and Philip A. Born. The 50x150 site was bought from Anabelle Cameron for a reported $25,000.

New Uptown Catholic Church



Architect Henry J. Schlacks, who designed the above $500,000 St. Ita's new church, to supplant the present edifice at the northwest corner of Broadway and Catalpa avenue, has been working on the plans for the last six months. Work has just started.

The church will be 80 feet wide and 200 feet long. The main auditorium, 9½ feet above the grade, consists of one long Gothic nave without transepts, the nave flanked with solid stone columns, outside of which are the wide side altars. Gothic windows will reach to the ceiling of the side aisles. All the window tracery, carvings, ballisters, finials, pockets, etc., will be executed in solid stone. More is told in a nearby column.

MOORE PAINTS BLUE 1924 FOR AVERAGE CHICAGO CITIZEN

William J. Moore, president of the American Bond and Mortgage company, assumed the rôle of Mr. Lugubrious Blue in his second annual study of building costs and rental returns—at least, so far as the average citizen is concerned.

Mr. Moore sees little or no probable reduction in building wages; he can discern no possible cut in the price of coal; freight rates, he believes, will continue at present levels; he predicts little or no reduction in living costs, and last, and worst of all, he simply can't conceive of the poor, poverty stricken apartment landlord of Chicago reducing the rent—not one doggoned cent.

The survey contains many charts showing the stabilization in prices of building materials and likewise of living costs, etc.

Mr. Moore bases his conclusions regarding the continuation of labor costs on the reported shortage of skilled building mechanics and the fact that more than 40 per cent of certain branches are over 45 years old.

Buy 200 Car Garage Site for New Red Cab Company

The Charles F. Heinig company has bought 80x162 of vacant on the east side of State, 150 feet north of 58th, through George Brinkman, for $12,000 and a three story garage will be erected to hold 200 cabs of the newly formed Red Cab & Motor company. Ground will be broken soon for this garage and the one on Elston, reported some time ago. The Yellow Cab Manufacturing company is now working on the first 150 of the fleet of red taxis. The company expects to be in full operation by July 15.

SKEEZIX AND REST OF "GASOLINE ALLEY" TO MOVE TO GLENCOE

Skeezix, Rachael, Walt, Mrs. Blossom, and all the rest of the bunch are going to move to Glencoe. Frank King, TRIBUNE cartoonist, who made Gasoline Alley one of our nation's funniest thoroughfares, yesterday bought "Ravinoaks," at Sheridan road and Lakeside drive, Glencoe, from William V. Schnur, for a reported $30,000, through Gilbert D. Johnson & Bro.

"Mrs. Blossom visited the premises early this month and thinks they're delightfully situated" said Ednyfed H. Williams who with John Foster acted as attorney for Mr. King. "We understand she's to preside as hostess at the opening of Mr. King's new home, when all of the Gasoline Alley bunch will be present. I understand that Mme. Octave will give a short recital."

Buy Madison-Homan Corner; To Add 2 Stories

Fotios and Constantine Kakarakis of Kakarakis Brothers, importers of groceries, at 774 West Harrison, have bought the northeast corner of Madison and Homan, 100x125, improved with a three story store, office, and flat building, for $145,000. Dr. Antonio Lagorio was seller. A. Trostler and Winston & Co. were brokers. Gustav F. Beerly was attorney. The new owners will remodel the building into a bank, hotel, store, and office building, adding two stories.

INDIANA-31ST CORNER LEASED.

The northwest corner of 31st and Indiana, famous during the pre-Volstead days as containing one of the best known bars on the south side, a gathering place for some of our eminent politicians, has been leased by the Anheuser-Busch Brewing company to Henry Nierman.

START WORK ON $500,000 NEW UPTOWN CHURCH

St. Ita Designs Follow Cardinal's Ideas.

Work has just started on St. Rita's new church at the northwest corner of Broadway and Catalpa avenue. According to the pastor, the Rev. J. H. Crowe, the plans of Architect Henry J. Schlacks will give uptown one of Chicago's most beautiful churches. In compliance with the wish of Cardinal Mundelein it will be in the French Gothic style of architecture. It will cost $500,000.

The property extends from Broadway to Catalpa and the building operations will include a new clergy house at the west end of the lot.

Architect Schlacks was especially commissioned by Cardinal Mundelein to design not only the building, but all of its furnishings, such as the altars, pulpit, communion railing, pews, etc., in order that the completed work might represent in its character the spirit of design of one architect.

The building will be entirely of stone and will have two auditoriums, one above the other, each having a seating capacity of 900. The lower part will be completed first, after which the present church edifice will be torn down. Then the balance of the new building will be erected. It is hoped to have the entire edifice completed during next summer.

VALUATION BOOK OF REAL ESTATE INDEX CO. READY

The Book of Valuations of the Central Business Districts for 1923 to 1926, one of the most important realty publications in the country, has just been issued by the Chicago Real Estate Index company on a much larger and more elaborate scale than in years past. It now takes in several square miles more territory north and south, making it that much more valuable to all users.

The maps show the size of each piece of property between Oak street on the north, Halsted on the west, and 23d on the south, the 1923 valuations by the board of review, street numbers, names and heights of buildings.

Colored pictures and photographs of important Chicago buildings and districts add much to the attractiveness of the publication of A. Lincoln Green and Frederick E. M. Cole.

'Round the Realty Boards

The National Association of Real Estate boards at a meeting of the directors on Friday, voted that no board shall enforce an arbitrary membership limitation. Fifteen boards already had such a limitation.

A resolution will be introduced at the next meeting of the board of directors of the Chicago Real Estate board to recommend that the active membership initiation fee be raised from $200 to $300. A new class of active life memberships, costing $2,500, also may be provided.

The latest bulletin in the Chicago Real Estate board membership drive states that 360 applications have been received; of these 155 are for active membership.

A complimentary dinner will be given to the Lake View and Rogers Park realtors and their friends at the Edgewater Beach hotel next Tuesday evening at 6:30 by the Membership Campaign committee of the Chicago Real Estate board. President Henry G. Zander will preside and Herbert U. Nelson, Wyllys W. Baird and others will speak.

Roseland's Largest Flats to Be Built on Vernon Ave.

Ground has been broken for twenty-five apartments at 11019 Vernon avenue, designed by Alexander H. Spitz for Sam Hartman, and to cost $160,000. This is claimed to be Roseland's largest apartment building.

HORDER LEASES STORE.

Horder's, Inc., stationers, have leased the store at 31-33 East Lake, in the Le Moyne building, for a term beginning May 1, through Albert H. Wettin & Co.

PLAN $1,000,000 APARTMENTS FOR EVANSTON SHORE

Zoning Change Sought by Property Owner.

Evanston will have one of the most elaborate and attractive apartment buildings in the country, a $1,000,000 structure overlooking the lake and with magnificent grounds covering an entire city block, if a change is made in the present zoning ordinance. This is a revival of the project of Mrs. Sarah V. Brown Deynzer to erect an unusual type of apartment building to be called "Windiknowe" (which is Scotch for "Windy Hill"), and which was outlined in this department Oct. 24, 1920.

Architect C. Hauber has drawn plans for a building which will occupy a site at the northeast corner of the block bounded by Sheridan road, Milburn street, the lake shore, and the government lighthouse grounds. It'll be 110x330 and its varying heights of roof and setbacks will have an irregular skyline unusual in this part of the country and seemingly well suited for a suburban apartment structure. It'll be of brick, with terra cotta trim and with red tile roofs.

Block of Private Park.

The entire balance of the block will be landscaped into an attractive private park, giving the tenants of the proposed fifty apartments probably the most elaborate and commodious grounds to be found in any apartment building in the country.

Although the building will contain many club and hotel features the apartments are to be rented unfurnished. They will vary in size from five to eight rooms.

The varying levels of the different sections will give a large number of the apartments private roof gardens in front of their windows. These will be separated by pergolas.

Art Gallery for Tenants.

The main entrance will be on the south and will open into a large foyer from which steps will lead into an art gallery which is being planned as a background for Mrs. Deynzer's collection of paintings, etc.

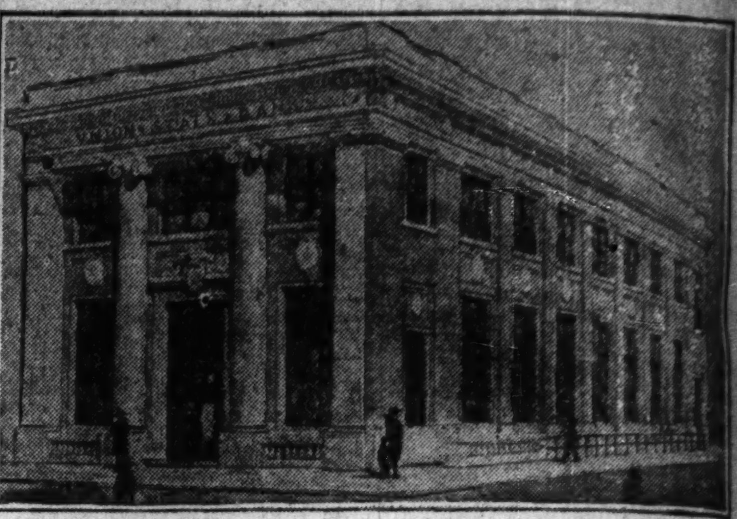
A vaulted corridor will lead to the ballroom overlooking the lake. Men's smoking, lounging and billiard rooms will open from this same corridor, also a club room with buffet kitchen for the use of the ladies in the building.

Owners to Have Suite.

On the opposite side of the foyer a corridor will lead to the play room, safety vaults, offices, etc. Provision will be made for swimming fans; there'll be showers, lockers, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. Deynzer, owners of the property, will have a large and elaborate suite on the top floor of the section at the east end of the building overlooking the lake.

Union State Bank of South Chicago



Work will start in a few days on the above new home of the Union State bank of South Chicago, at the northwest corner of 92d and Houston. White & Weber have designed a 50x140 building of classic type, to be of Bedford stone and gray brick, and to cost $250,000. Completion date is set for Oct. 15. There'll be thirty-three offices on the second floor. The front part of the basement also will be rented. The present bank quarters at 92d and Baltimore, together with the adjoining twenty-five feet, will be sold when the new bank is completed.

Plan $300,000 Building at North-Central Avenues

Mills & Sons have sold their main office building at 3656 West North avenue and will erect a $300,000 building at the northeast corner of North and Central. They will have their offices there. There'll also be several stores and apartments.

"Standard" PLUMBING FIXTURES

The "Standard" Swinging Spout Faucet for kitchen sinks represents perfection in this convenient fitting. The swinging spout permits convenient direction of the water stream. It is fitted with the "Standard" water stream regulator which prevents splashing and has automatic stops on both sides which make it impossible for the spout to swing against and mar the enameled back wall of the sink. Faucet handles are of sanitary china. This fitting may be had with or without the pedestal china soap dish.

The valves are "Standard" Quicko — affording full flow of water with one-half turn and each is equipped with the RE-NU replaceable unit.

The RE-NU unit is an internal sleeve containing valve seat and threads. Made of phosphor bronze — almost unwearable, yet — if valve seat or threads should wear—is quickly replaceable with a new low cost RE-NU unit which instantly returns the faucet to perfectly new efficiency.

Made throughout of extra heavy full quality brass, heavily nickeled, it retains its beauty through long years of service.

Look for the name "Standard" cast in the fitting. It is your assurance of Nickeled Brass Fixtures that give a lifetime service. Visit our showroom

WITHIN AN INCH OF HIS LIFE, as the fiction thrillers put it. Yet Harry East of the Riverside polo team escaped this bloodcurdling spill with only minor bruises. Crashing falls such as this are common in polo. Notice that the rider at the extreme left is keeping right on with his business, which is to smash the ball to his opponents' goal. The action occurred in a clash between Riverside and the Midwick team during the Corona Beach championships in California.

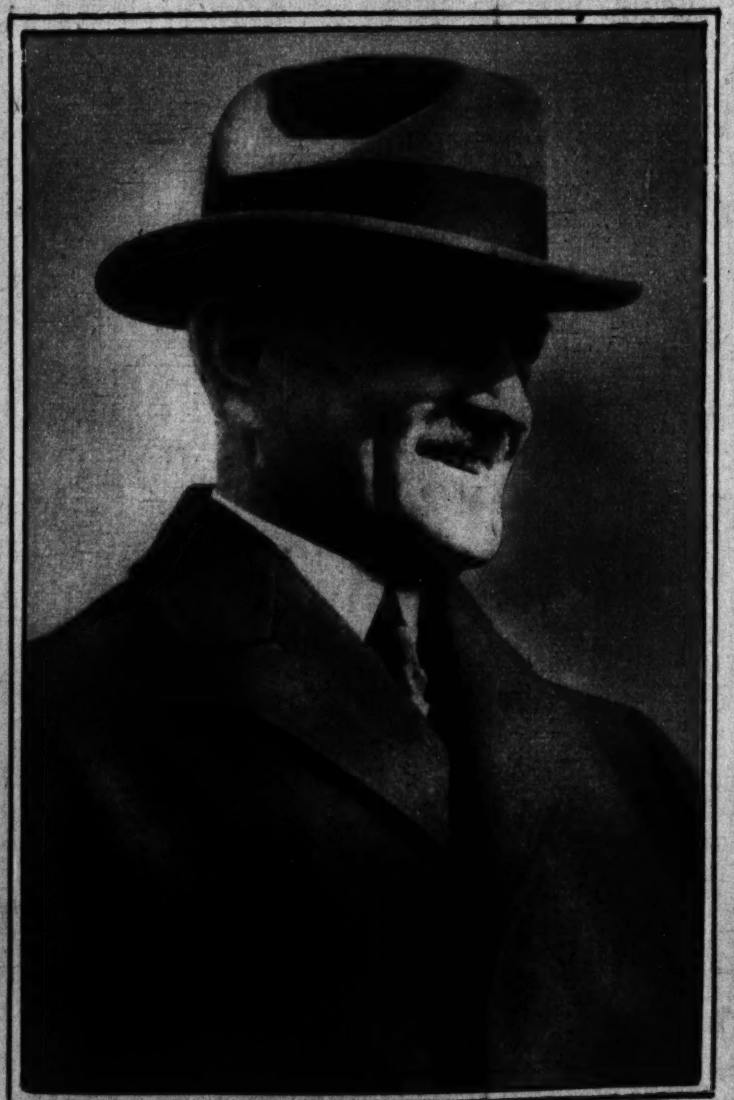
JAPANESE ART now claims the more or less undivided attention of the dancing Dolly sisters, according to their confessions for the public prints. Even their dressing rooms are unsatisfactory until they are fixed up like this, with rare prints, cloisonne, and what not. And would you say they have gone in for Japanese bobs?



GENERAL PERSHING, home for a time after his "civilian" vacation in Europe, smiles a greeting for the photographers as his ship, the George Washington, pulls into New York harbor. His manner of resting has been to put in some hard work writing a book, which is not yet completed.

JUST BEFORE THE EARTHQUAKE that nearly rocked the light heavyweight championship crown from the brow of Mike McTigue in a ring at Newark, N. J. Mike is at the left, shaking hands with Young Stribling, the 19 year old sensation from the south. In the twelve round battle that followed these amenities Stribling outfought McTigue in every round. In the tenth he had Mike on the verge of a knockout, but his youthful overeagerness enabled the more experienced champion to weather the storm. Between the battlers is Referee Harry Lewis. Back of Stribling is his manager, his dad, "Pa" Stribling.

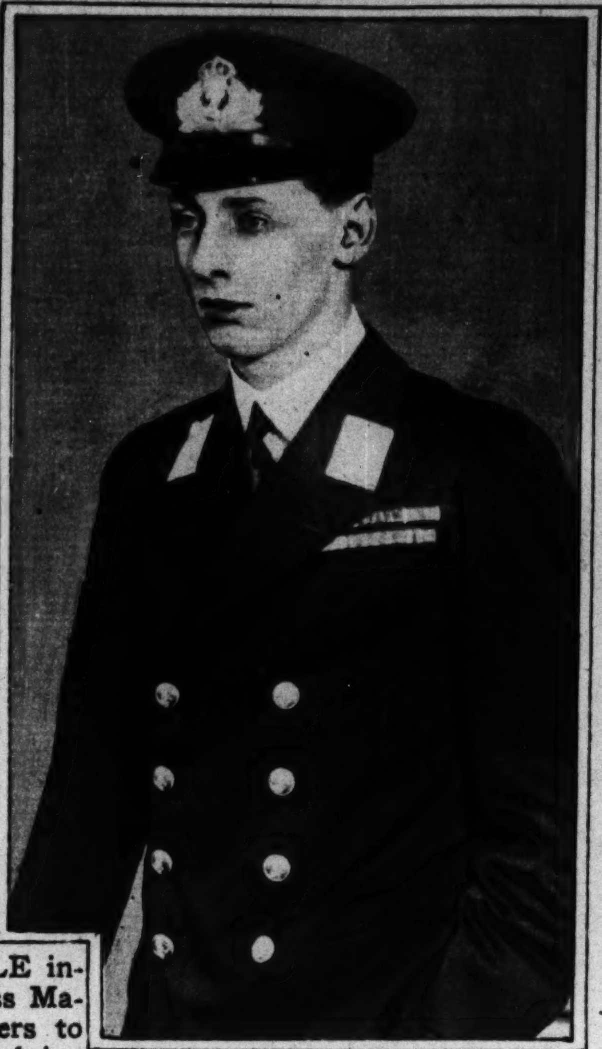
CENTER OF A ROYAL MATRIMONIAL TANGLE involving three of Europe's reigning houses. Pretty Princess Mafalda of Italy has been chosen by the political matchmakers to marry Leopold, Duke of Brabant, the heir apparent to the Belgian throne. But Mafalda loves Prince Nicholas of Roumania, and her tearful and threatening protests against the match with Leopold have thrown the courts of both countries into turmoil.

(Photograph from Pacific & Atlantic.)



THE LUCKLESS PRINCE NICHOLAS of Roumania is asked to sacrifice his love for his country's welfare. He loves Mafalda of Italy, so 'tis said. She loves him, too, but the courts have picked as his bride the Princess Giovanna of Italy, Mafalda's younger sister.

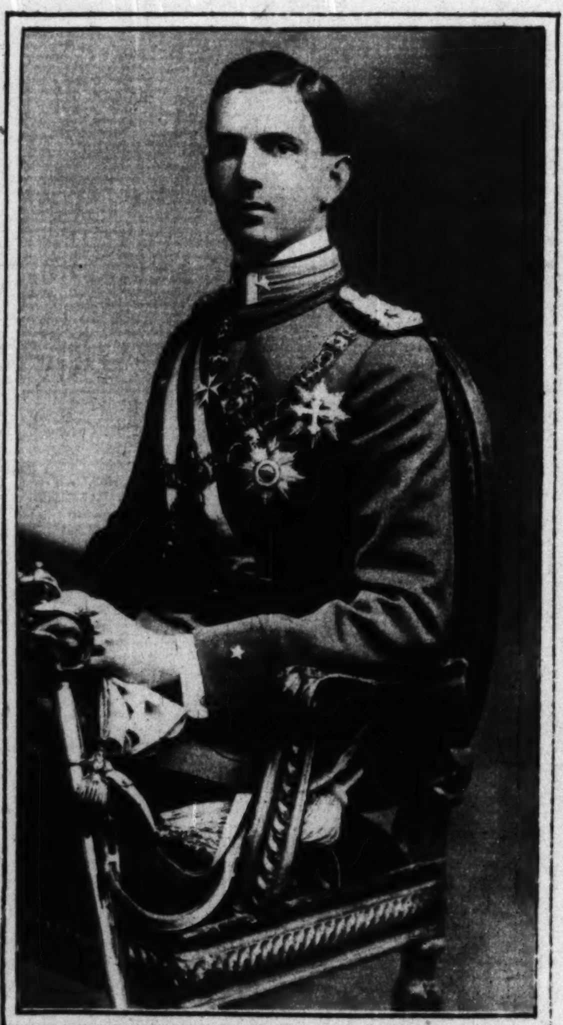
With him are his daughter, Miss Ailsa Mellon, and his son, Paul. THE THIRD ANGLE in the royal triangle, the Duke of Brabant, and his sister, Princess Marie Jose of Belgium. Prince Leopold, as a prospective king, was free to pick the Italian princess he most desired as his wife, and he chose the protesting Mafalda. Princess Marie also is expected to figure in a royal wedding soon, but hers is a peaceful match. She is slated to marry the heir to Italy's throne, Humbert, Prince of Piedmont.

(Photograph from Fotograms.)



EVEN ROYAL LOVE runs smoothly at times. Prince Humbert, future king of Italy, seems quite content with his court's selection of Princess Marie Jose of Belgium as his bride.

DEATH SNARL OF A PRAIRIE PEST, the coyote. Run to earth, this vicious fellow bares his gleaming fangs at the dogs that have tracked him down. The next scene would show the dogs' owner with a new coyote skin. This unusual picture was caught during a recent hunt near Seneca, Neb. Coyotes are so abundant and destructive in the west that stockmen now stage hunts regularly to keep down their ever-increasing numbers.

WHEN beauty costs you nothing, why not have it? What you pay for when you buy Mirro is not the beauty which women so admire, but the quality which makes Mirro last longer and cost less by the year.

Good design makes Mirro utensils beautiful, but it also makes them practical and convenient. Thorough workmanship adds its touches of beauty, but it also insures longer, better service. The thick, hard Mirro metal takes a polish that rivals silver in beauty, but it is the foundation of Mirro durability and the ease with which Mirro utensils may be kept brilliantly clean.

Choose Mirro for economy, for utility, for beauty—or for all three—and you can make no mistake. . . . . Send a post card for the interesting Mirro Miniature Catalog No. A14, and look for Mirro the next time you are shopping.

AMERICA'S CHAMPIONS AT WATER POLO—The team of the Illinois Athletic club won the national championship for the eighth time when it defeated the Olympic club of San Francisco recently in the A. A. U. meet in Chicago. Practically all the members will represent the United States at the Olympic games in water polo this summer, except Johnny Weismuller, the world's greatest splasher, who will take part in the swimming events. Left to right, they are: Fred Lauer, Johnny Weismuller, Archie Wallen, Francis McDermott, Ollie Horn, Buddy Wallen, Harry Hebner, Floyd Towne, Perry McGillivray, and William Bachrach, coach.

THIS IS A SEISMOGRAPH—You often have read in the newspapers: "Sharp earth tremors were recorded early this morning by the seismograph at Georgetown university," and you probably wondered what the instrument was like. Here it is, with one of the scientists of the observatory making computations to determine the location of the disturbance.

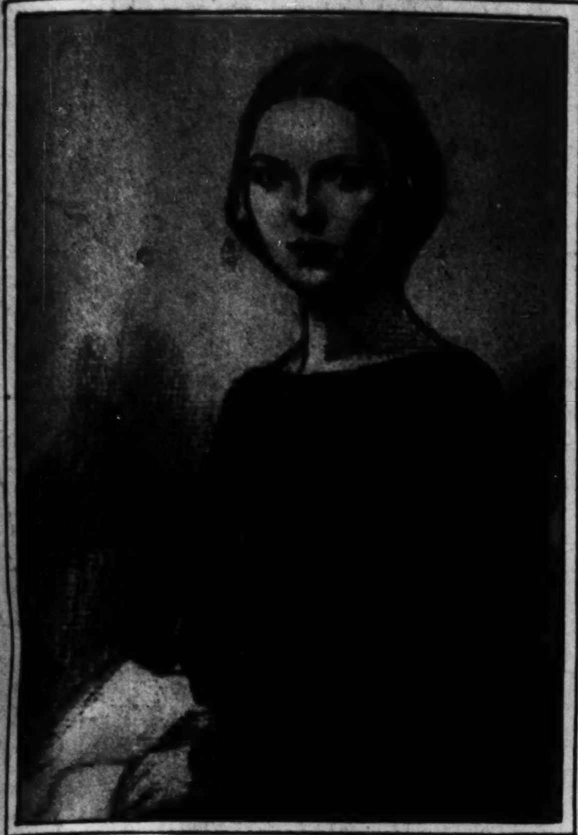
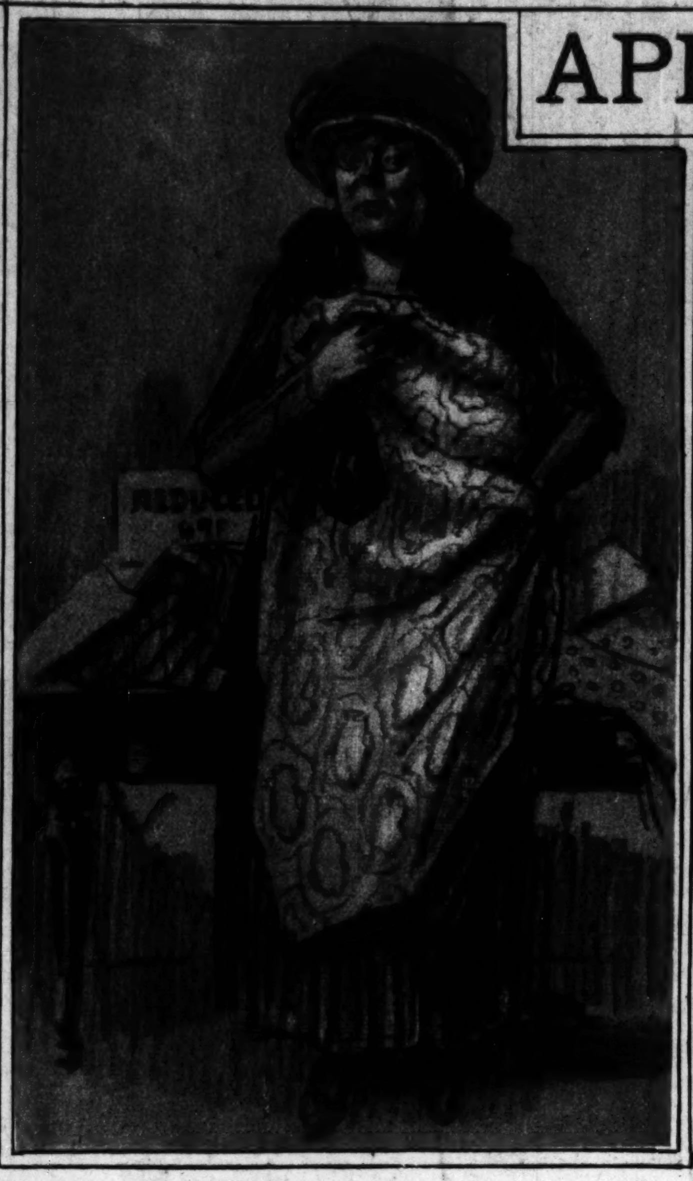
APRIL SHOWERS

By W. E. HILL

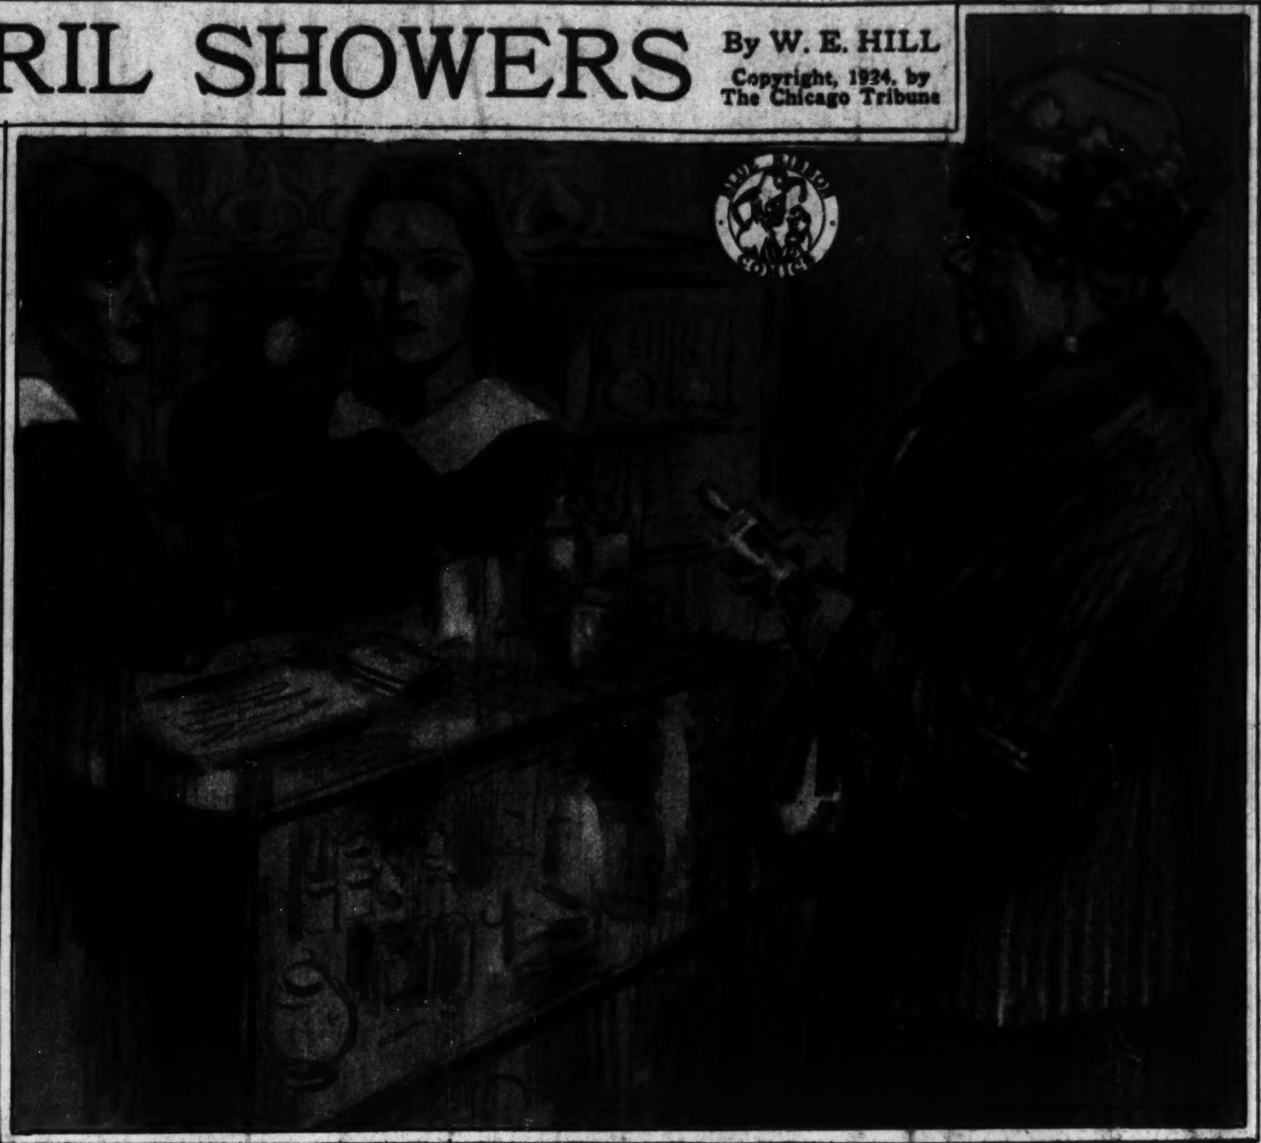
Copyright, 1924, by
The Chicago Tribune



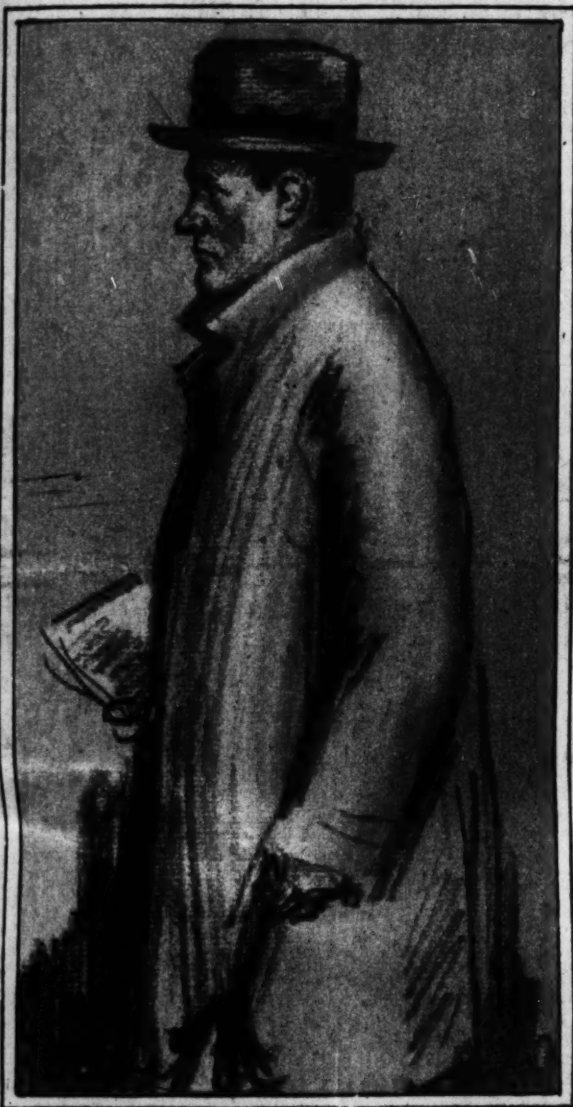
The bride to be is working hard these April days, sewing and planning, and addressing invitations.



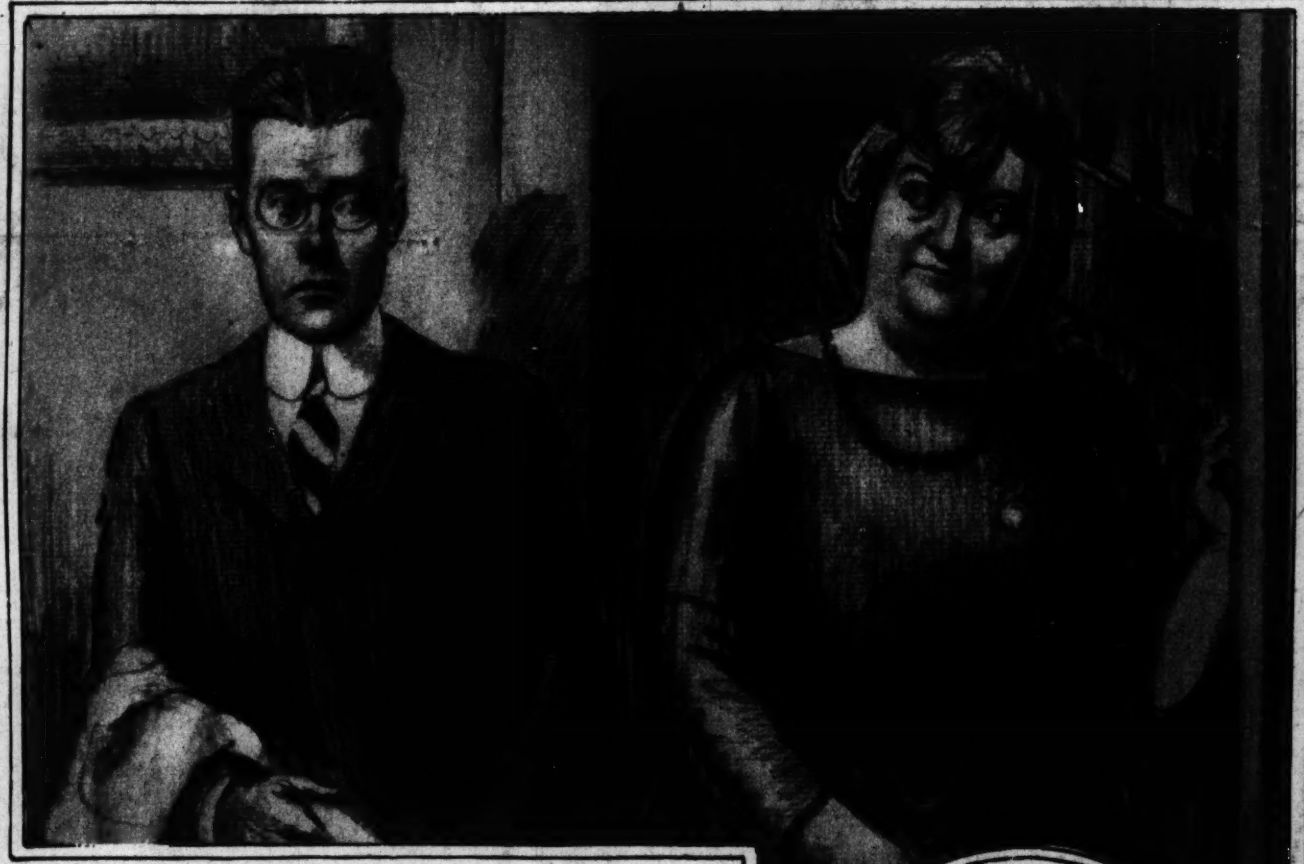
"Now, Ida, DON'T say you like it if you don't!" The April shopper makes ready to burst forth in a blaze of summer glory.



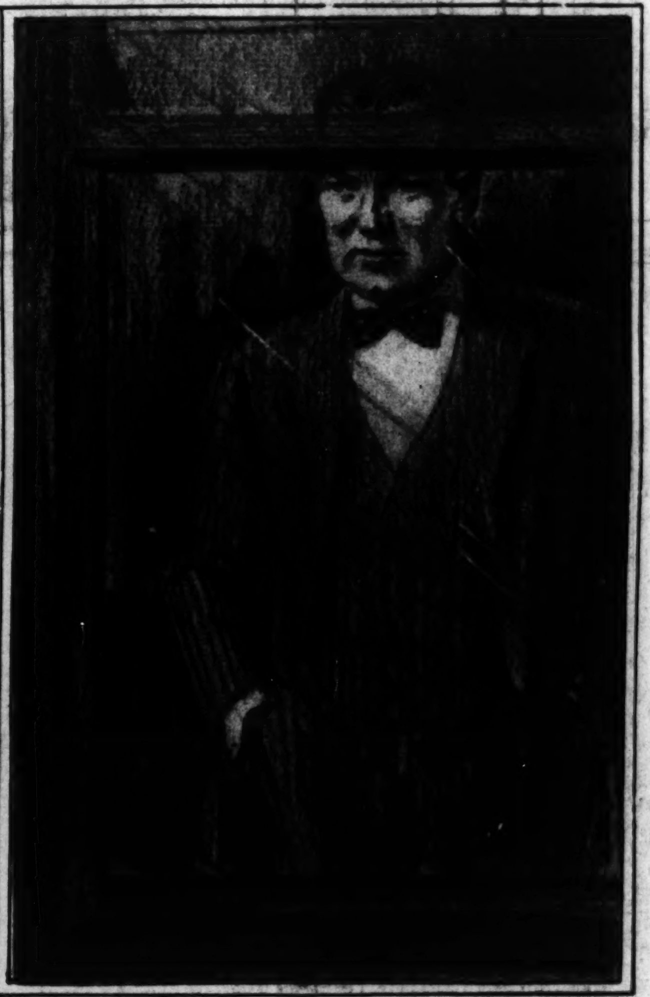
"I want a perfume that will WAFT as I walk along." Should the April showers fail to usher in the well known May flowers, the customer at the perfume counter will do her bit toward perfuming the spring air with "Whiff de Posey" at seven-fifty per bottle.



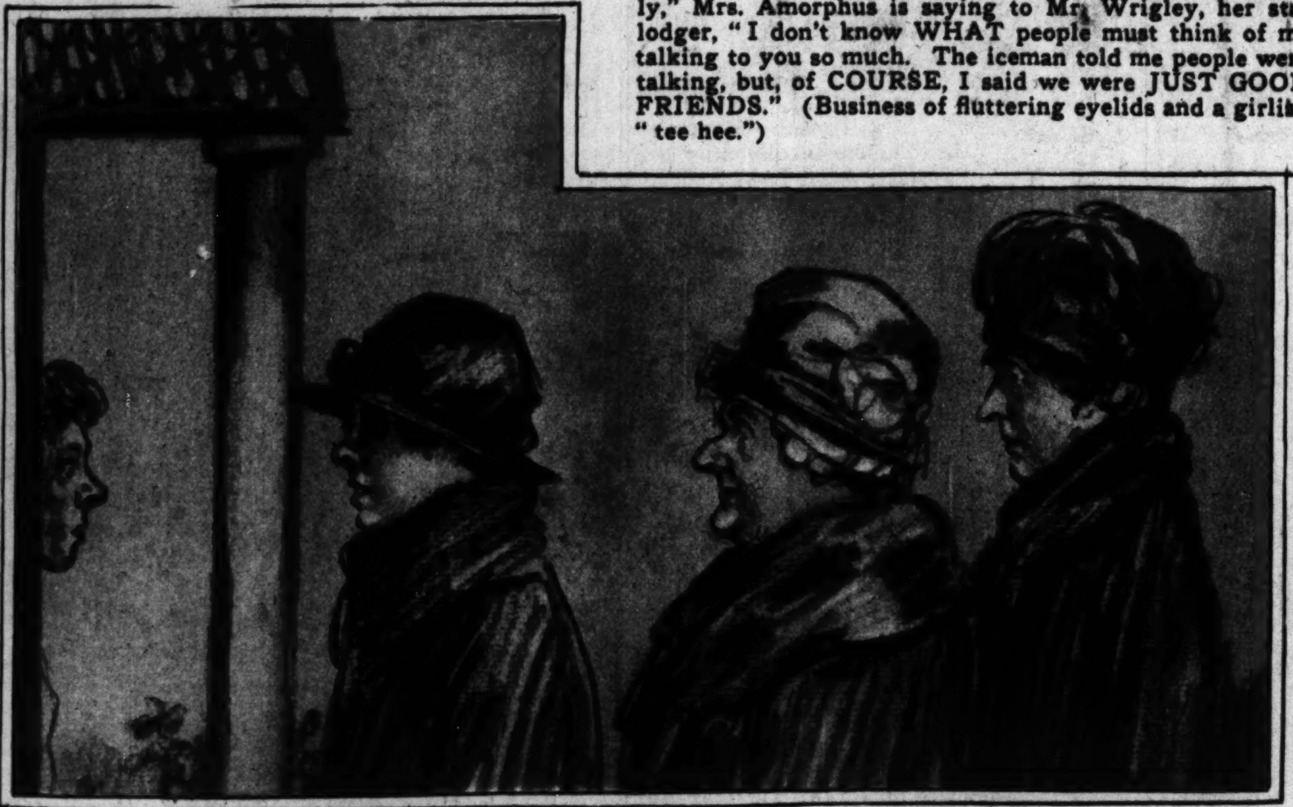
Here's a commuter all fixed up for April weather—raincoat, umbrella and rubbers. Ten to one the sun will be shining brightly when he arrives in town.



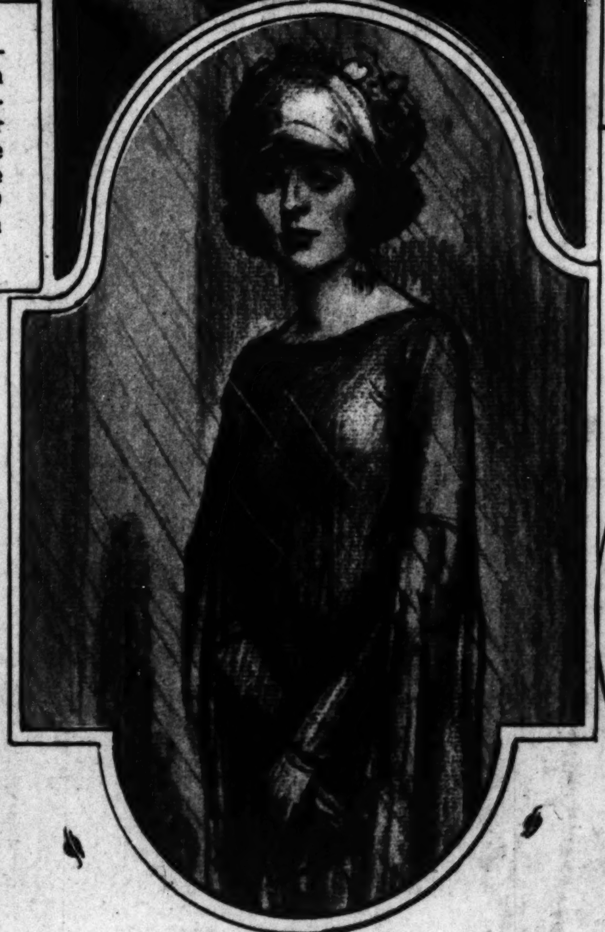
April is a bad month for landladies who have been feeling those maternal instincts all winter long. They begin all of a sudden to feel much more than maternal. "Really," Mrs. Amorphus is saying to Mr. Wrigley, her star lodger, "I don't know WHAT people must think of me talking to you so much. The iceman told me people were talking, but, of COURSE, I said we were JUST GOOD FRIENDS." (Business of fluttering eyelids and a girlish "tee hee.")



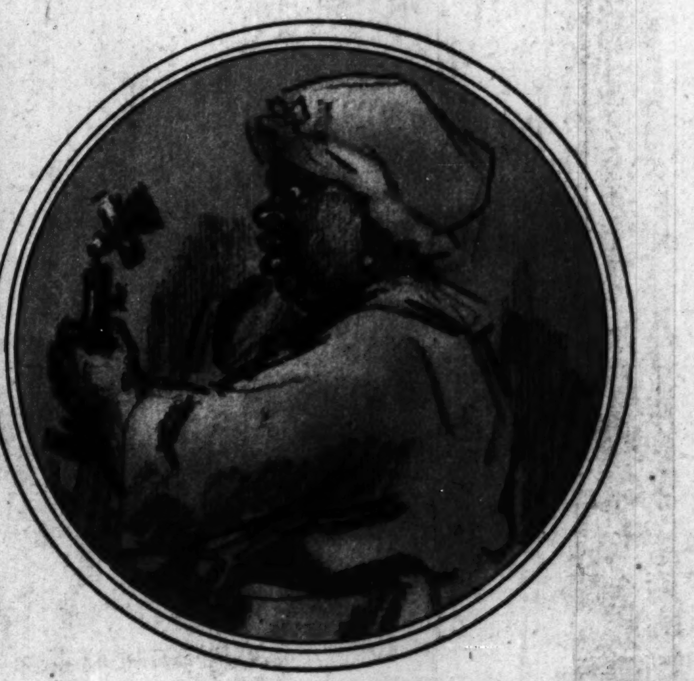
Isn't your heart torn with pity at the sight of this poor man cooped up in his office, when he ought to be out on the links? O, well, it may clear up.



The month of April ushers in the first flock of city people who decide to look for a nice little house (not too far away from town), to spend the summer in. Armed with a slip of introduction from the real estate man, they make the rounds, screaming with delight and promising to go right home and sign a lease. Then they go home and decide on Europe for the summer.



April showers may be great for the crops and the wide open spaces, but they're not doing Bessie May's new hat a bit of good.



Cooks get restless in April. Friends call up and tell them about death and destruction and doings in the Morning Star chapter.

Every single step in the Manicure from start to finish!

What the most famous authority on the manicure advises

Rose pearl nails in smooth cuticle make the hands so lovely

FASTIDIOUS women know the part gleaming nails play. Framed in smooth cuticle, they make the hands so lovely that it is a pleasure to watch them moving among the tea things, fixing a straying lock, reaching for the almonds.

They know, too, the manicure that makes the grooming of the finger-tips quick and easy. Cutex, the most famous manicure authority in the world, has provided every single thing the most particular woman wants to make her nails lovely. This exquisite Cutex manicure takes only five minutes. The secret of its speed is the care taken to make each Cutex article so it will perform its task perfectly.

You can get just the things you need separately or complete assortments of the wonderful Cutex preparations in dainty rose and black cases.

To remove ugly dead cuticle

The Powder Polish with the new sifter top

I

The preliminary to the Cutex manicure is the shaping of the nails. For this there are, in each Cutex set, fine emery boards. First file the nail to the length you like with long swift strokes from the corner of the nail towards the tip. Then smooth away any rough places and shape the tip becomingly. Either round it evenly like the finger-tip or make a delicate point at the very center.

II

Fine emery boards to shape the nail tips becomingly

The most lustrous nails look utterly neglected if the cuticle is rough and unkempt, instead of soft and even. The most famous Cutex preparation is the wonderful liquid that makes it possible to have this lovely rim of fresh smooth cuticle without any dangerous cutting at all, and it is so quick and simple to use. Twist a bit of cotton around a Cutex orange stick and wet it in Cutex Cuticle Remover. Then gently push the skin back around the base of each nail. This frees the delicate rim where it has been pulled up by growing fast to the nail and loosens the little particles of dry skin that will split off when this happens.

Use the remover, too, to bleach the nails. Pass the wet stick beneath each tip and over any stains. It washes them snow-white and stainless.

Now rinse the fingers and wipe them carefully. All the little rough edges—the superfluous particles of dead skin—wipe away. What a lovely rim of soft even cuticle, fresh and white, around each nail!

III

The latest success from Cutex is a Powder Polish. It makes the nails gleam with a lovely rose tinted brilliance almost instantly. Just shake a little on your palm from the convenient new shaker box and with the fewest strokes the nails are polished—pinkly glowing. You will not believe a powder could polish so quickly and evenly until you try it, nor that the lustre could last as it does day after day. Cutex has equally good Cake and Paste Polishes for women who prefer these forms.

And for women who want a very high rose colored brilliance on their nails Cutex has recently perfected another wonderful polish. One that combines all the features you have longed for in a liquid polish without the disadvantages of those you have tried before. It gives the fashionable rose brilliance women are asking for	won't peel off

spreads smooth and even	dries almost instantly
won't dry in ridges	lasts a whole week
	needs no separate polish remover

THOMAS JEFFERSON

A LESSON IN AMERICAN HISTORY—Thomas Jefferson, third President of the United States, began his public service in 1769 as a member of the Continental Congress. Then he was successively governor of Virginia, member of congress, minister to France, secretary of state for George Washington, Vice President, and, finally, in 1801, he became President. He died on July 4, 1825, exactly fifty years after the signing of the Declaration of Independence, which he wrote when only 33 years old. By his own direction his tombstone is inscribed as follows: "Here was buried Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of the American Independence, of the Statute of Virginia for Religious Freedom, and Father of the University of Virginia. Born April 2d, 1743, O. S. Died July 4, 1826."

CARLSBAD CAVE at Carlsbad, N. M., is one of nature's wonders. The biggest of the series of connecting caverns is half a mile long and half as wide. The ceiling ranges from 100 to 300 feet high. The picture shows a freak of the cave, dwarfed fissured formations whose sponge color make them look like giant sponges. Some are three or four feet hign and almost as thick. Not only Good But Good for You

Delicious Flavor and Rare Benefits

WHEN you eat a luscious orange this is what you do:

You take into the system organic salts and acids which are fine natural appetizers as well as active digestive aids. You get the healthful minerals that oranges supply.

You absorb fresh vitamines in which oranges are rich—a "summer freshness" which is particularly valuable with all meals.

You make all other foods much more efficient every day by thus increasing their digestibility and adding vitamines.

So don't eat oranges between meals only—serve them frequently in salads and desserts.

Enjoy the flavor of the orange while you get these valuable benefits. A good plan is to see that each child gets at least one orange every day.

Always profit by the fact that oranges are both good and good for you.

Delicious, juicy oranges are sold fresh the year 'round in tissue wrappers stamped "Sunkist." Ten sizes, and ten prices according to the size, to fit everybody's pocket book.

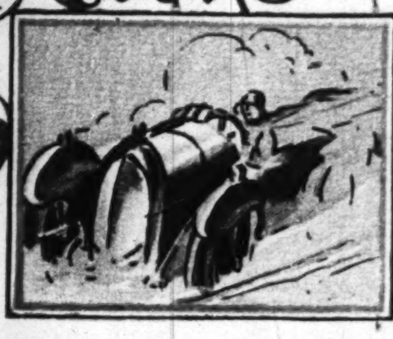
How the younger women are caring for their skin

On her dressing table she keeps the sure and simple means of skin perfection

THE younger woman of today does not permit fatigue to mark her skin with tiny lines, or exposure to redden and coarsen it. She knows how tremendously important is a clear smooth skin and the fragile loveliness that withstands her exceedingly strenuous way of life.



Out in the afternoon wind for hours, yet her skin hasn't a trace of coarsening

SHE whirls gaily through a crowded day, dances lightly most of the breathless night, snatches a few hours sleep, and is ready to begin again. There is no end to her bouyant enthusiasm, her electric energy.

Look at her smiling over her morning coffee. She played eighteen holes of golf in the afternoon wind and danced until four on top of it.

But her creamy skin hasn't a trace of roughness or coarsening. There's not a line at the corner of her mouth or eyes—no lifeless look to tell of a skin improperly cared for.

For these lighthearted, laughing girls have turned their active and exceedingly capable minds to the matter of keeping their youth in their faces. They know how desperately important a clear, fresh, smooth skin is, and they realize that their strenuous manner of life seriously threatens to destroy its fragile loveliness.

Dissatisfied with the old casual way of treating one's complexion, they searched until they found a sure and simple means of skin perfection. And younger women everywhere have now definitely adopted the new method of skin care—the method devised by Pond's and based upon the two fundamentals of skin perfection—Rejuvenating Cleansing and a delicate Protective Finish.

How the Younger Women Stay So

First—the all important cleansing that leaves the skin immaculate, supple, lustrous. For this one uses Pond's Cold Cream on face and neck every night, and after any exposure. Rub it in generously, with the tips of the fingers, or on a piece of moistened cotton. The fine oil of this soft, delicate cream sinks deep into the pores to remove the impurities, the tiny particles of dust and powder that clog the pores.

POND'S
POND'S

Every normal skin needs these two creams

With a soft cloth wipe off the cream—you will marvel at the dust and dirt that come with it. Your skin is deliciously clean and supple—and the tiny cells have a chance to breathe and function normally.

If your skin is inclined to be dry, put a little more cream on for the night.

Next—the delicate finish that protects. Smooth a little Pond's Vanishing Cream into your face after every cleansing—just enough to rub in easily. This exquisite, pure soft cream is absorbed instantly, giving a fine, normal texture, a smoothness and an enchanting pearly tone. Now your skin is ready for powder, rouge—what you will. With this perfect foundation, notice how evenly the powder goes on—and it will cling for hours.

In the morning, after dashing your face with cold water, rub in this cream. It will keep your skin fresh and untired—just touch your cheek with your fingers and see how soft and smooth it feels. Nothing will roughen it now.

After any exposure Pond's Cold Cream is especially soothing. Sun and wind are two of the worst enemies of the skin, drying, coarsening, and roughening it. Just feel your face relax as you rub the soft delicate cream in after a long drive or a morning of golf or tennis. The hungry cells drink up the oil they lack, the feeling of strain disappears, and the skin is soft and supple again. Follow this, of course, with Pond's Vanishing Cream before powdering.

If you are entertaining or going out in the evening, use Pond's Cold Cream followed by Pond's Vanishing Cream for a smooth clear loveliness.

Try the Famous Method that Keeps the Skin Young

Learn from the lovely women who insist that their skins shall be youthful and fresh. Try this famous method yourself. With Pond's Two Creams and a little care every day, you will be astonished to see how clear and smooth, how soft and velvety your skin looks. And it will keep this charm of freshness and youthfulness for years longer than one would suppose possible.

Begin today to give your skin this exquisite cleansing and protection. Buy Pond's Two Creams in jars or tubes from any drug or department store. The Pond's Extract Company.

Stopping Tooth Decay by increasing the action of the mouth glands

If you assist the natural protective processes of the mouth, the teeth are kept safe

MOUTH acids cause tooth decay. These acids are constantly forming. Brushing removes them for a few minutes. Then they begin to form again and all day they cover your teeth and begin to eat into the enamel.

There is a natural neutralizer for these acids—the mouth glands. All the time they pour forth alkaline fluids and neutralize these acids. If the glands worked properly they would prevent tooth decay. But our present soft diet does not give them enough exercise.

Instead of using a tooth paste that merely removes these acids temporarily, use one that will gently stimulate the glands to do their work of protecting the teeth all the time.

This tooth paste increases the protective fluids of the mouth

Pebeco stimulates the salivary glands—it makes them work in a normal, healthy fashion,

As soon as Pebeco enters the mouth, the fluids from these glands begin to flow more freely. They wash all through the mouth, in between the teeth where the tooth brush cannot reach. They neutralize the acids as fast as they form.

Pebeco leaves your whole mouth in a healthy, live condition—your gums, your palate, the entire oral cavity.

Pebeco cleans and polishes the teeth as thoroughly as any dentifrice can. It cannot scratch the enamel, or injure the edges of the gums. Send today for a trial tube of Pebeco. Made only by Lehn & Fink, Inc. At all druggists.

Beautiful, white teeth stay beautiful only in a healthy mouth. Thousands of men are keeping their mouths healthy and their teeth strong and clean with Pebeco.

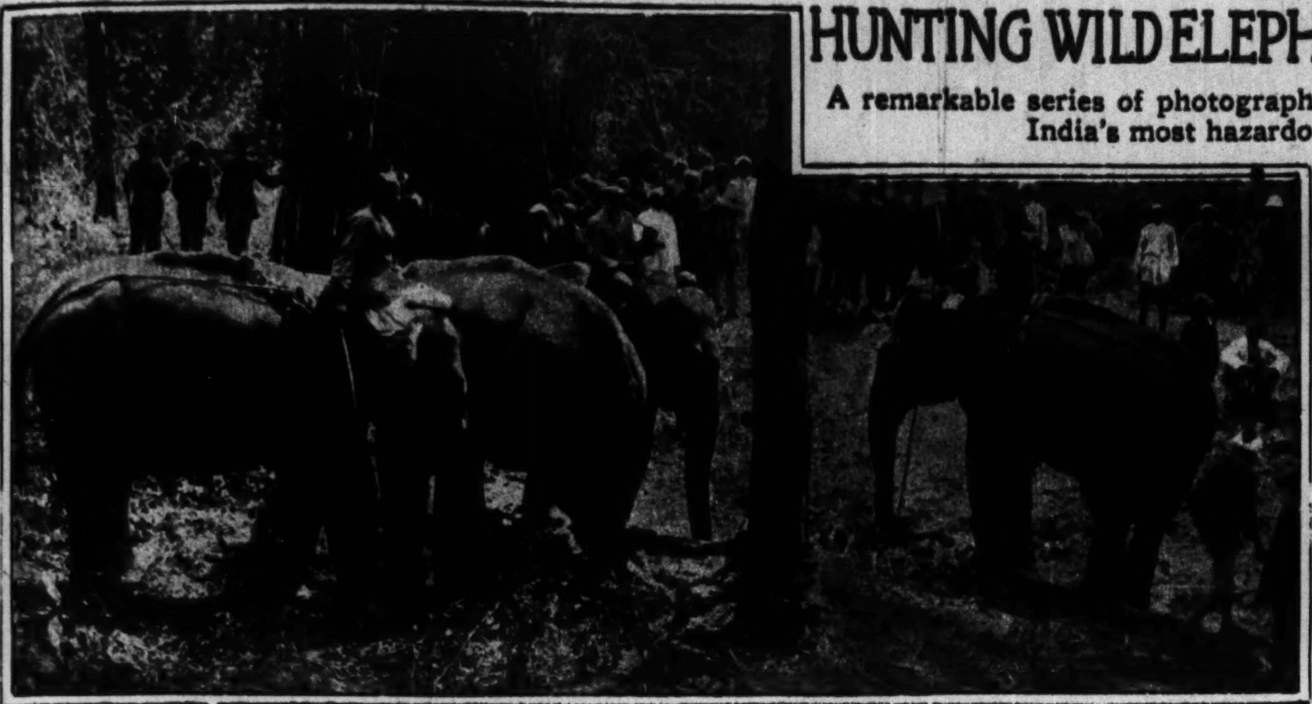
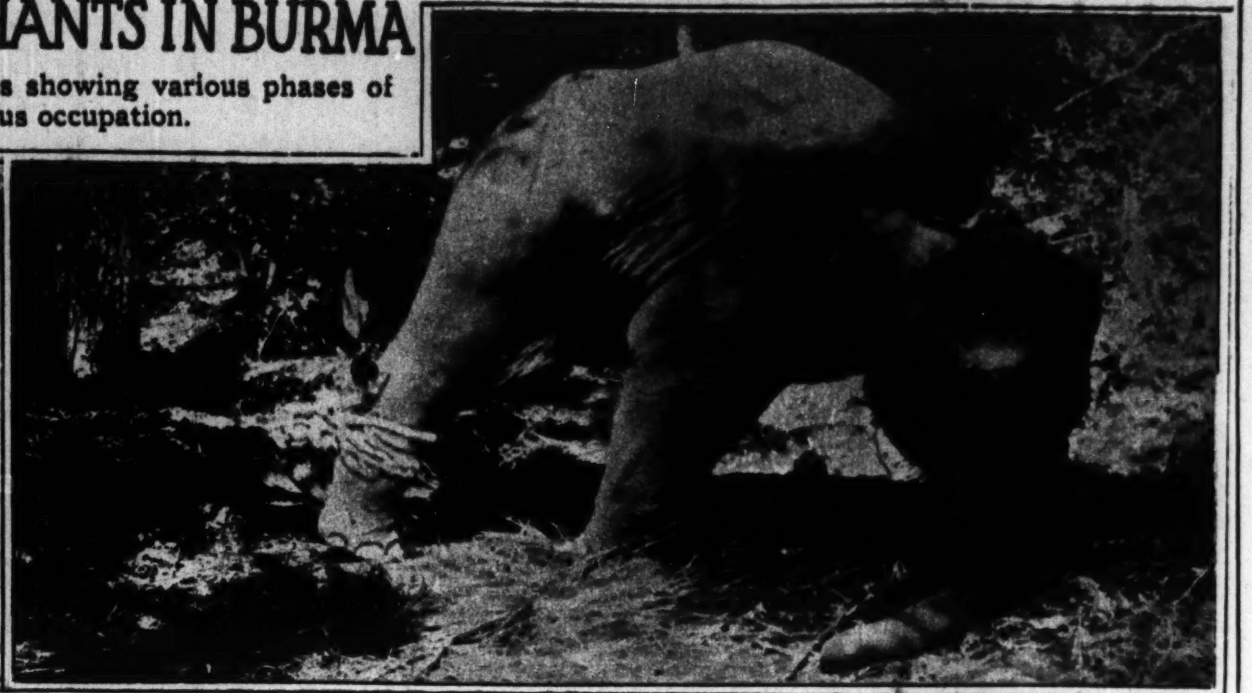
HUNTING WILD ELEPHANTS IN BURMA

A remarkable series of photographs showing various phases of India's most hazardous occupation.



Decoy elephants being tied to trees to arouse their wild brethren's curiosity as to why they are in distress.



A close-range picture of a captured wild elephant, safely manacled, but using all his strength to free himself.

Driving captured wild elephants through a crowd of venturesome spectators.

A herd of wild elephants beginning a stampede. The native beaters, some of them mounted on tame elephants, are seen driving the captives to a pen with the aid of sharp lances.

The last act of the drama—the lordly beasts, submissive now, at their civilized occupations.

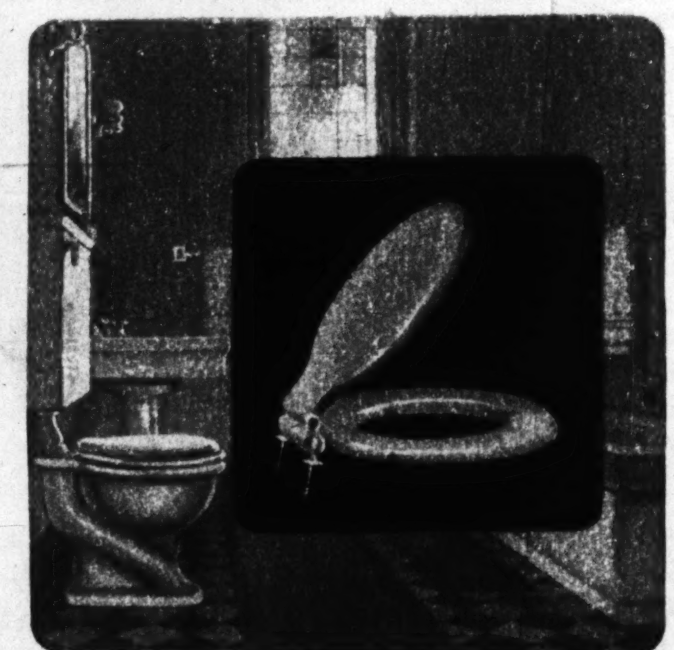
Golliwogg Perfume de VIGNY Paris The "De Luxe" Perfume of subtle charm and lingering mystery, which enhances the personality.



Are you proud to have guests go into your bathroom?

OR DO you wish, perhaps, that the bathroom was a little more up to date? It is a fact that this room is the showroom of your home.

Improve the appearance of your bathroom. The important place to start is with the toilet seat. Old-style wooden, painted or sprayed seats absorb moisture, hold odors, and in time crack and splinter. They become a detriment to the whole home—they are unhealthy.

A new beauty and safety

THINK of a seat that is white, permanently white, and which cannot become contaminated! That is the Church Seat. Its ivory white sheathing (not a paint or an enamel) will not absorb moisture, retain dirt or odors. It is as easily cleaned as porcelain. And it lasts a lifetime. What a difference such a seat would make in your bathroom!

Fits any bowl—simple and easy to put on

Ready to take home, in handy carton

NO TROUBLE at all to attach a Church Seat. You can remove the old one and put on a permanently white Church Seat yourself with an ordinary pair of pliers—or your plumber will be glad to make the installation at small expense.

Whether you rent a house, apartment, or own your own home, the toilet seat should be your personal property just like the other bathroom fixtures you own. ANY PLUMBER CAN SUPPLY YOU. Church Seats are on display at all plumbing jobbers' showrooms. That you may see for yourself just what this seat really is, mail the coupon. Do this now.

How carefully you select your toilet soap! but you expose your hands to harsh kitchen soap in the dishpan an hour and a half every day

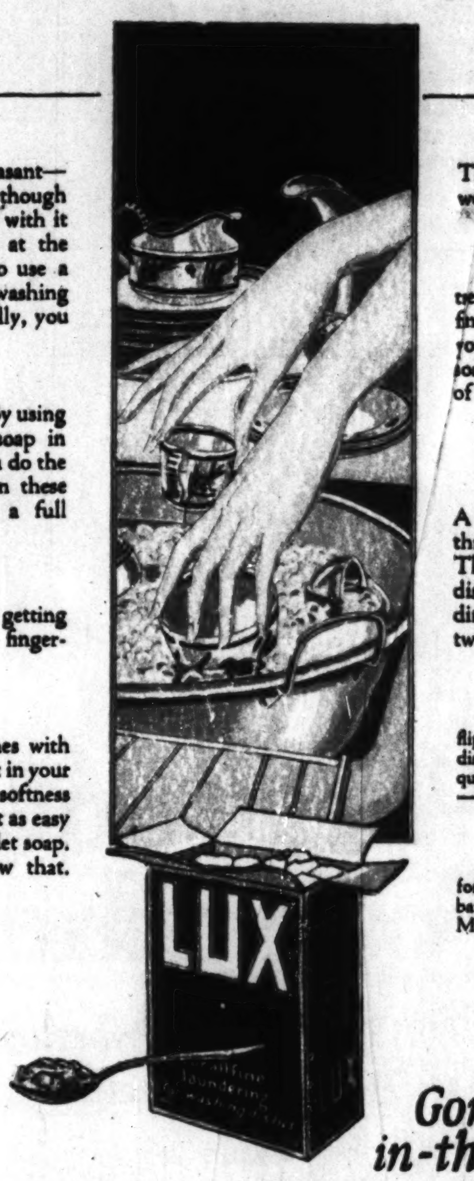
IT must be mild and pleasant—your toilet soap—even though your hands are in contact with it only ten minutes a day at the most. You can't bear to use a harsh, drying soap for washing your hands. So, naturally, you select it carefully.

Then you undo it all! By using strong, stinging kitchen soap in your dishpan. When you do the dishes—your hands are in these drying, coarsening suds a full hour and a half.

Your skin can't help getting drawn and rough—your fingertips all scratchy.

Don't wash your dishes with just "any" soap. Use Lux in your dishpan. Lux has that softness and mildness that make it as easy on your hands as fine toilet soap. But of course you know that.



Think of the things you just wouldn't trust to anything but Lux. Your hands deserve as kind treatment as your chiffons—your fine woolens. Use Lux whenever you have to have your hands in soap and water for any length of time.

For breakfast or lunch dishes a single teaspoonful

A level teaspoonful of Lux lasts through one entire dishwashing. That is, for breakfast or lunch dishes. When you've a lot of dinner dishes you sometimes need two teaspoonfuls.

Get the big new package of Lux—flip a teaspoonful of flakes into your dishpan. Then see how sparkling those quick suds make your glasses and silver—how speedily they wash all the dishes.

Buy Lux today—the big new size for kitchen use—the regular size for the bathroom. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

The home of Mr. C. A. Rindell, 1317 Elmwood Avenue, Wilmette, Illinois.

Its roof, in a wholly new color scheme, distinguishes this Wilmette home

AN UNUSUAL contrast of light and dark tones lends beauty and interest to the roof of Mr. C. A. Rindell's home in Wilmette, Illinois. This unique effect is secured by blending slate-surfaced shingles of jade green, black pearl and weathered brown.

This last color—weathered brown—is found exclusively in the Richardson quarries of Georgia. Millions of tiny slate flakes in this new color not only give a roof new beauty but also seal each shingle permanently against weather and fire hazards. Years of weathering only deepen and enrich their mellow tones.

Architects are especially enthusiastic over the rare color effects made possible by this weathered brown, especially when it is blended, as it is here, with other Richardson shingles of jade green and black pearl, or with tile red.

The Richardson Multicrome Roof

This, however, is but one example of the beauty secured in the Richardson Multicrome Roof. Many other effects are possible—one to harmonize with each color scheme and sure to please your taste. Wholly distinctive is the opal roof, built from the new Richardson opal shingles.

The new colors, opal and weathered brown, are used only on the Richardson Super-Giant Shingle—famous for its beauty and economy.

With its inner foundation of Richardson felt, for fifty years recognized as the best; coated and saturated with Viskalt, the vacuum-processed waterproofing, 99.8 per cent pure bitumen, the Super-Giant assures lasting beauty for your roof.

The Super-Giant Shingle—50% thicker, 100% more rigid, and 35% more economical in cost of laying.

Prove the facts yourself

Go to your nearest dealer in lumber, hardware or building material, or to your contractor, and ask to see the color combinations in Richardson Multicrome Roofs. Also ask to see the Super-Giant Shingle in weathered brown and opal. Note the rare color and larger size. Then compare it with other shingles—the difference will convince you.

Meanwhile, send for our beautiful new booklet, Roofs of Distinction, showing the exclusive color combinations of Richardson Multicrome Roofs, and containing valuable roofing information. Or, ask for our booklet, Roofing on the Farm. Just use the coupon below.

These Three Famous Treatments-- have helped thousands of women to keep a beautiful skin

HOW they stand out!—those women who at thirty, at forty, still keep their fresh, clear, beautiful complexion!

There is just one secret in keeping a beautiful skin, and that is —daily care! The woman who has the strength of will to take a few minutes out of every busy day and devote this time to keeping her skin in good condition, will look like a girl long after she has passed her twenties.

Don't let lack of time, or a lessening of interest keep you from giving your skin the right care. Even if your complexion has got into bad condition through past neglect, or the wrong kind of treatment—you can redeem it! Each day your skin is changing —old skin dies and new takes its place. Begin, now, to give this new skin the special care it needs—and see how soft and smooth you can make it—how quickly the faults that have worried you will disappear.

You will find the right daily care for your special type of skin in the booklet "A Skin You Love to Touch," which is wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap. Special treatments for each different skin need are given in this booklet. (Three of these famous treatments are reprinted below.)

Get a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap today—begin your treatment tonight! Within a week or ten days your skin will show marked improvement.

A 25 cent cake of Woodbury's lasts a month or six weeks for regular toilet use, including any of the special Woodbury treatments. Woodbury's also comes in convenient 3-cake boxes.

Blackheads are a confession that you are using the wrong method of cleansing for your type of skin. Begin today to use the special treatment for blackheads given below.

Blemishes are directly caused by infection from dust. Free your skin from blemishes by the special Woodbury treatment given below.

By using, every night, a special treatment, you can overcome excessive oiliness.

To correct an oily skin

First cleanse your skin by washing in your usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and luke-warm water. Wipe off the surplus moisture, but leave the skin slightly damp. Now, with warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with warm water, then with cold. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

How to overcome blackheads and blemishes

1. The right treatment for blackheads

Every night before retiring apply hot cloths to your face until the skin is reddened. Then with a rough washcloth work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the pores thoroughly, always with an upward and outward motion.

Rinse with clear hot water, then with cold. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

To remove blackheads already formed, substitute a flesh brush for the washcloth in this treatment. Then protect the fingers with a handkerchief and press out the blackheads.

2. To free your skin from blemishes

Just before you go to bed, wash in your usual way with warm water and Woodbury's Facial Soap, finishing with a dash of cold water. Then dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy, cream-like lather. Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes; then rinse very carefully, first with clear hot water, then with cold.

Use this treatment until the blemishes have disappeared, then continue to give your face, every night, a thorough bath in the regular Woodbury way, with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water, ending with a dash of cold.

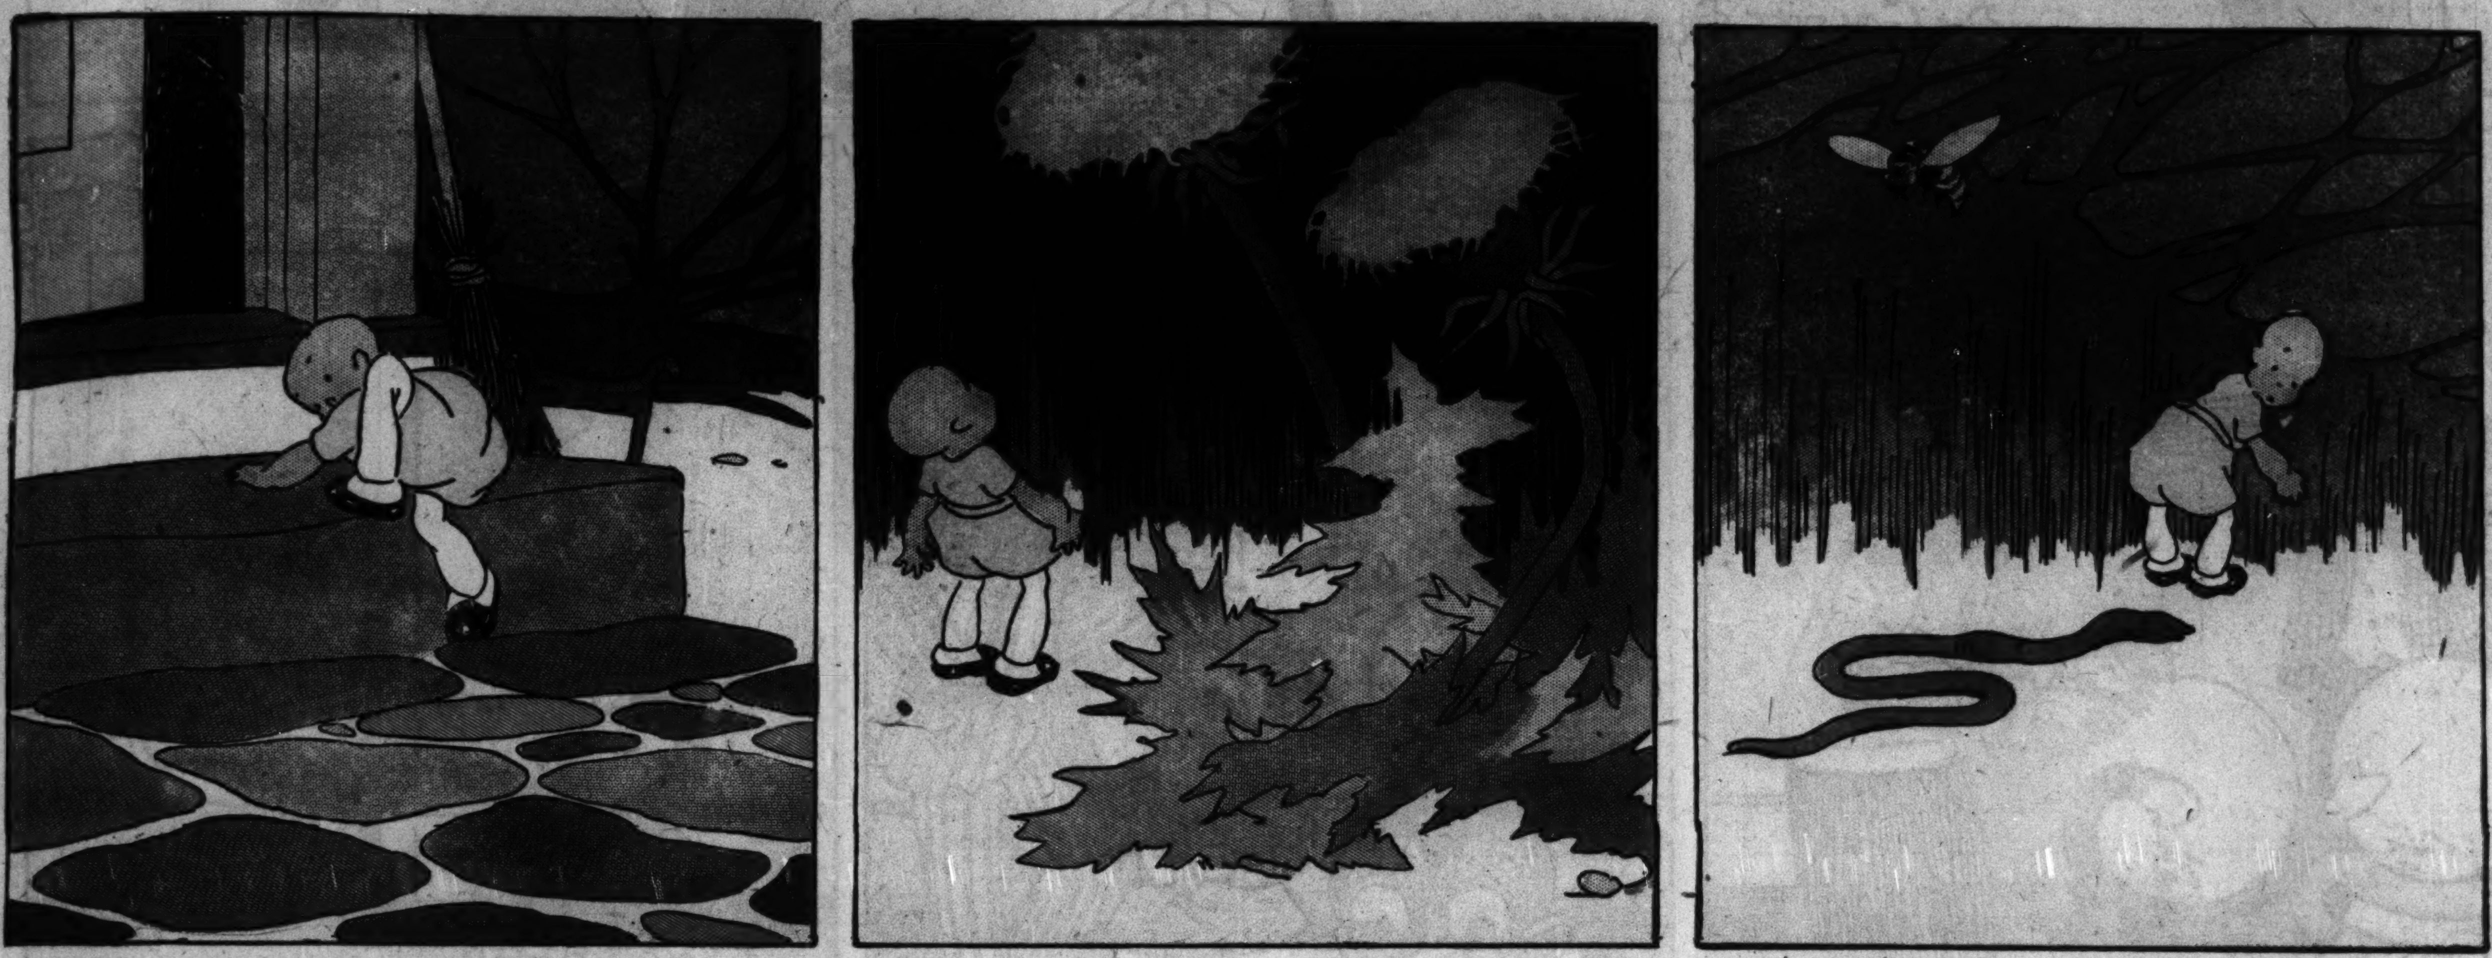
THE TEENIE WEENIES.

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

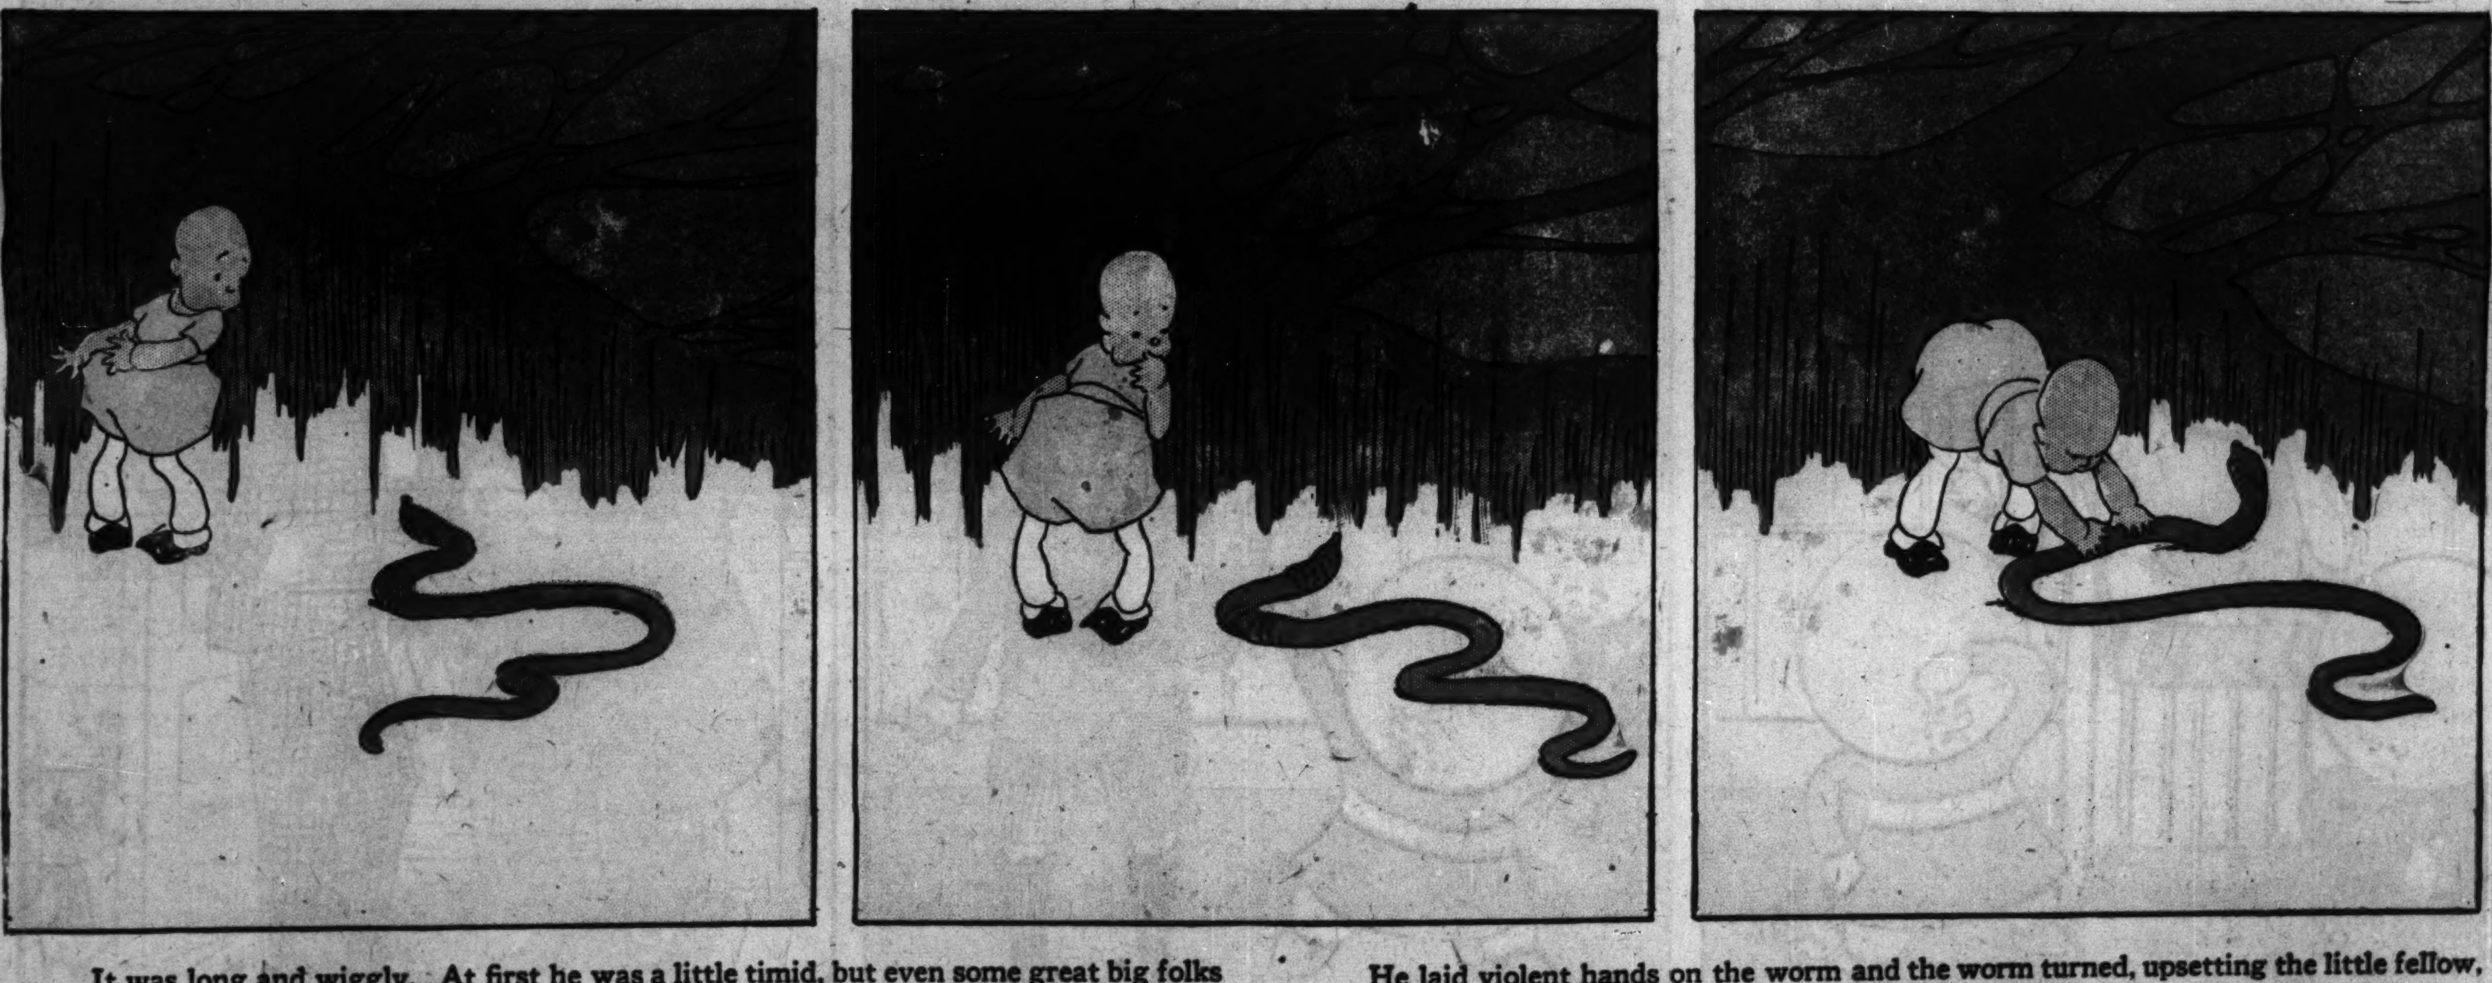
THE WORLD'S SMALLEST PEOPLE.

WM. DONAHEY.



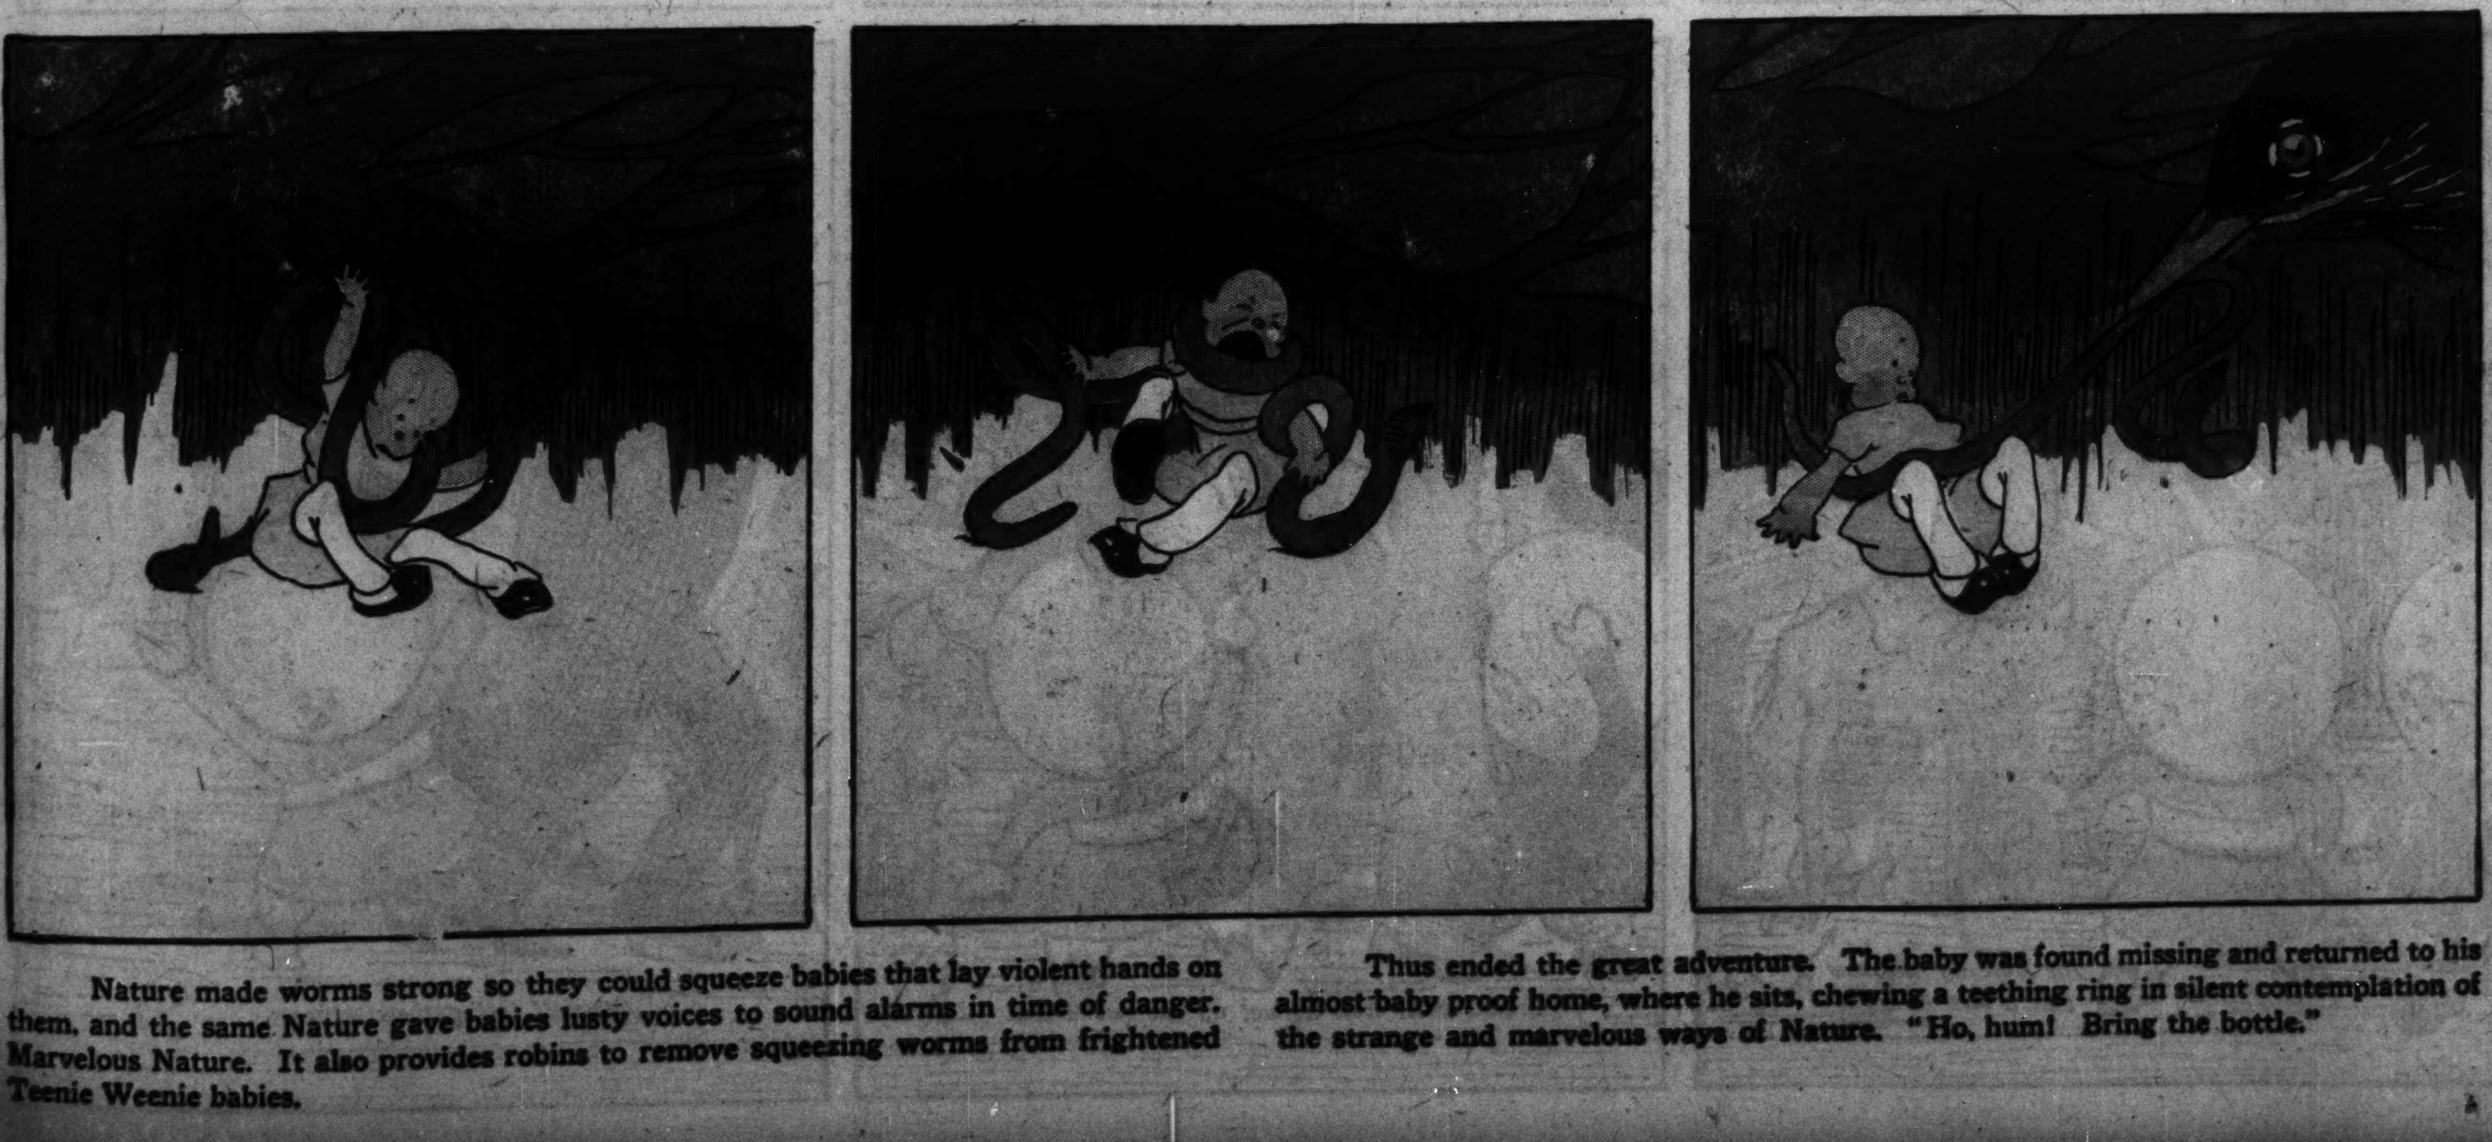
There is no such place as a baby proof house. No matter how small the baby, or how tight the house, they have a way of trickling out at the first opportunity. So, one morning a Teenie Weenie baby wiggled out into the warm sunshine and tottered off in search of adventure.

Everything was so big! But why shouldn't everything be big? Wasn't the baby only an inch or more tall? Dandelions nodded their yellow heads high in the air—the baby almost fell over backward staring at them—then he saw a pink thing move.



It was long and wiggly. At first he was a little timid, but even some great big folks are afraid of fish worms, so he couldn't be blamed for his caution. It was the most interesting thing he had seen, so he decided to investigate. A bee flying overhead smiled down on the sight.

He laid violent hands on the worm and the worm turned, upsetting the little fellow, but he didn't mind that, for Nature makes babies small so they won't have far to fall. Nature also gives them strong hands so they can hold on to things, and worms.



Nature made worms strong so they could squeeze babies that lay violent hands on them, and the same Nature gave babies lusty voices to sound alarms in time of danger. Marvelous Nature. It also provides robins to remove squeezing worms from frightened Teenie Weenie babies.

Thus ended the great adventure. The baby was found missing and returned to his almost baby proof home, where he sits, chewing a teething ring in silent contemplation of the strange and marvelous ways of Nature. "Ho, hum! Bring the bottle."
